NAZIS PUSH WAR ON 'ENEMIES'

NEW DEALERS MOVE TO CURB PRESS VIA AAA

Seek to Limit Farm Product Advertising

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—Recent events have added more substance to the charge that one of the major objectives of the Roosevelt administration is the fettering of the press.

In the pending amendments to put bigger teeth in the AAA the administration has gone back to the reign of Queen Anne for devices to burden the press. After the English press had been delivered from the thralldom of censorship and licensing the parliament of Queen Anne resorted to taxes upon advertising, taxes upon paper, and stamp taxes on newspapers.

These devices for curbing the power of the press were repealed a couple of centuries ago and until revived by the Roosevelt administration were regarded as curious relics of the measures of repression invoked by governments that feared the dissemination of information and knowledge.

Power to Tax Newsprint.

In the AAA amendments as passed by the house and pending in the senate the administration proposes to clothe the secretary of agriculture with the power to tax newsprint paper and restrict advertising of farm products and their derivatives.

In correspondence with Jerome D. Barnum, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace denied that it is the intent of the administration to tax paper and restrict advertising and offered to indorse amendments removing the ground for such fears. He declined, however, to initiate such amendments himself.

Mr. Barnum demonstrated that the definition of paper on which the tax would be levied under the pending bill is sufficiently broad to include newsprint paper. The power to restrict advertising is contained in provisions authorizing the secretary to control by license the business of food processors and handlers. The secretary thereby would be enabled to put into effect on a vast scale the theories of Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, antagonistic to newspaper advertising.

Congress Rejects Tugwell Theory.

Under the administration of Mr. Wallace the department of agriculture already has made considerable progress in carrying the Tugwell theories into effect. The Tugwell definition of false advertising, although rejected by congress, was injected into nine of the codes covering the handling of food products. One of them was the live poultry code which was at issue in the Schechter case in which the Supreme court held the NRA unconstitutional.

In 1932-'33 the California Prune Growers' association spent $145,000 in a coöperative advertising campaign. In 1933-'34 the same association spent $395,000 in advertising. In 1934 when the industry was brought under a marketing agreement Secretary Wallace refused to approve a provision authorizing a further advertising campaign. In the wheat flour milling code a direct restriction of advertising was inserted by the secretary over the protest of the millers.

Prof. Tugwell regards advertising an economic waste. In a speech at Cleveland, May 11, 1934, he said that the department of agriculture was giving serious attention to marketing agreement provisions restricting advertising.

In the revision of the food and drug act drafted by Tugwell the administration set out to place publishers at the mercy of the burocracy. The bill proposed to penalize newspapers as well as manufacturers and venders of food and drugs for publication of advertisments declared by the government to be false or misleading.

Raises Storm of Opposition.

The bill raised a storm of opposition on the part of newspapers and institutions and individuals zealous for the maintenance of a free and untrammeled press. It was contended that nothing could be better calculated to intimidate the press than to place it in the power of the administration to menace an independent newspaper by declaring an advertisment appearing therein false and misleading and the publisher subject to fine and imprisonment.

The administration was accused of deliberately aiming this blow at the press because it was unnecessary to penalize publishers to insure truth in advertising. Sufficient for that purpose was the penalizing of producers and venders for false claims and statements in advertisments of their wares. The senate took this view of the

OMAHA CAPTURES $36,500 CLASSIC BEFORE 35,000

Omaha, winner of the Kentucky Derby, won the $36,500 Arlington Classic before 35,000 yesterday. St. Bernard, owned by E. D. Shaffer was second, and Bloodroot, stablemate of Col. E. R. Bradley's Black Helen, one of the favorites, was third. Omaha set a new track record of 2:01 2-5.

Omaha won by a length and a half. In the mutuels he paid $2.80 to win, $3 to place, and $2.40 to show. St. Bernard's prices were $7 and $3.80. Bloodroot paid $2.80.

FREAK STORM HITS CHICAGO; CHASES HEAT

Bolts Strike Homes and Street Cars.

Bolts Kill 4 in N. Y.

Lightning in a violent storms kills four persons and injures four others at Brighton beach, New York City.

A freak rainstorm, accompanied by thunder and lightning and high winds, caused great damage yesterday afternoon in an area restricted to several of the western suburbs and to Chicago's northwest side.

After the rain there was a considerable drop in the temperature, which had climbed to 86 at 1 p. m. The official forecast says that temperature changes today will be unimportant and that occasional thundershowers are expected. Tomorrow is expected to be partly cloudy.

The storm swept in on southwest winds. It struck first in the vicinity of La Grange shortly before 2 p. m. Its path carried it over La Grange Park, Westchester, Brookfield, North Riverside, Broadview, Forest Park, River Forest, Maywood, and Oak Park.

Area of Greatest Fury.

The full fury of the tempest and the rain, however, was spent over a territory in Chicago bounded by Austin avenue on the west, Irving Park boulevard on the north, Kedzie avenue on the east and Washington boulevard on the south.

Lightning struck five surface cars, three in Montrose avenue, one in Lawrence avenue, and one in Laramie avenue, and temporarily put them out of commission. A bolt clipped off part of the cornice of the Cameron public school at Monticello and Potomac avenues. Other buildings struck by lightning are at 5143 Warwick avenue, 5140 Roscoe street, 1431 North Massasoit avenue, 4710 Ohio street, 3543 Adams street, and 4023 North St. Louis avenue.

At several points light wires and branches of trees were hurled to the ground. The rain was particularly heavy in Oak Park and in Austin and, though it lasted only a few minutes, it flooded many basements, including that of the Austin police station.

Tempest a Capricious Visitor.

Sweeping on toward the lake, the storm suddenly lost force. The wind east of Kedzie avenue was only moderate and the rain was light in the Edgewater and Rogers Park districts and in Evanston. As an added freak of the storm, however, there were heavy rains further north in Lake Forest and other north shore suburbs. In the loop and on the south side winds were light and there were only a few drops of rain. The southern suburbs were untouched.

Generally, however, the clouded skies brought the metropolitan area relief from the heat wave of the previous three days. At the University of Chicago observatory the mercury dropped from 86 at 1 p. m. to 78 at 2 p. m. The range for the rest of the afternoon was from 79 to 81 degrees.

High Temperatures in Region.

Chicago benefited most from the relief. At 2 p. m. yesterday a reading of 92 degrees was taken in Aurora. Elgin reported an unofficial reading at that hour of 90 degrees, while Joliet, cooled by a freak storm Friday night, had a temperature of 84 degrees, 14 points under Friday's high.

J. B. Lemen, 65 years old, 7938 Birchdale avenue, Elmwood Park, an engineer at the Mercy hospital, died of heart disease in his automobile while driving home through the storm. He was found dead in his automobile parked at the curb at 5420 Augusta boulevard, where he apparently had halted because of the driving rain.

Urges Water Conservation.

To prevent water shortages about the city, Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, asked Police Commissioner James P. Allman yesterday to enforce the city ordinance governing the hours when water may be used for sprinkling.

Commissioner Hewitt, in a letter to the police department, also asked that the unauthorized opening of fire hydrants be stopped.

If the city ordinances are observed, water pressure at the pumping stations is sufficient to carry the water to the top floors of all buildings in the city, Mr. Hewitt said. He pointed out that from June 1 to Sept. 30 the hours for sprinkling, washing windows, and similar activities are from 5 a. m. to 7 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m., and from 8:30 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

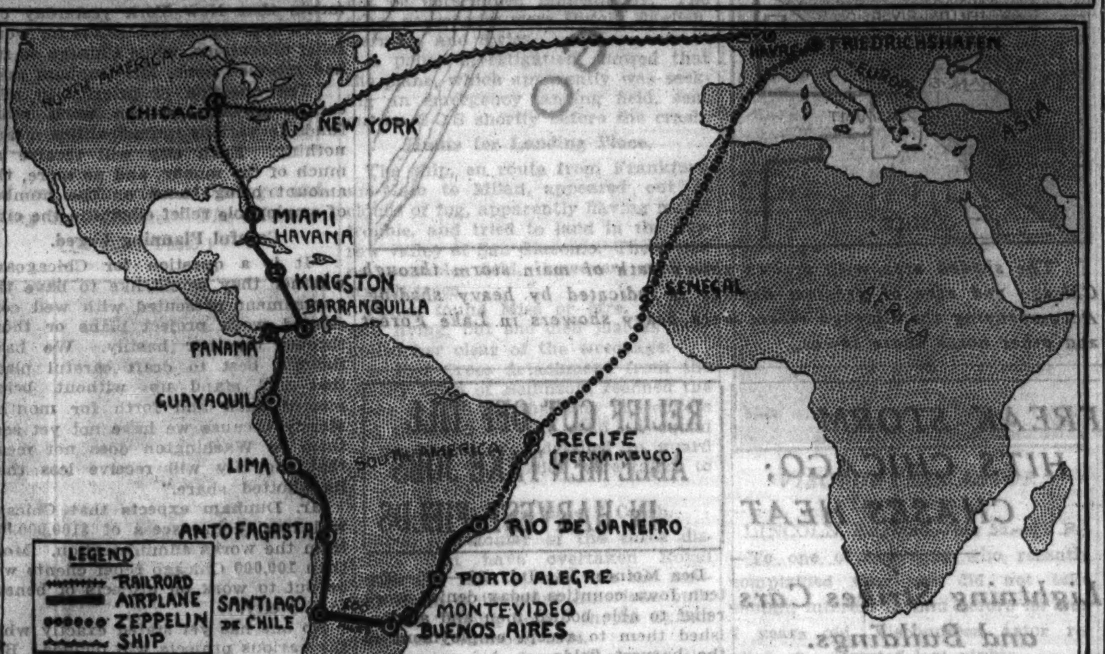
AN ANNOUNCEMENT



At 8:30 on the morning of July 21 [today, Sunday] a small expedition of three, hereafter referred to as "we," will embark from Miami on a Pan-American Airways plane—bound for Europe by way of South America and the west coast of Africa—a slight detour of some 13,000 miles. Most of the time we will be twice as far from our destination as when we started.

The purpose of the trip is to go places, collect bird's-eye views of four continents, inspect several notable zoos, and be able to talk about it afterwards. We shall be armed with all the proper credentials, including police certificates of good character and a full set of finger prints.

It will be a trip along the airy highways and will consist of a series of tremendous hops made strictly according to schedule, we hope. It is probable that we shall do as much hoping as hopping.

All the mental reservations, such as knocking on wood, saying "Deo volente," and "unberufen," and other concessions designed to mollify Fate will have been duly observed.

After leaving Miami's beautiful airport, perhaps the finest in America, stops are scheduled at Havana, Kingston, Barranquilla, Panama, Guayaquil, and Lima—four days of daylight flying.

In Lima we wait over a plane to collect our thoughts, write postcards, and have some laundry done.

From Lima we fly to Arequipa, Antofagasta, and Santiago de Chile, where we again pause three days to collect the remainder of our thoughts. While here we shall doubtless also contemplate the lofty grandeur of the Andes before skirting the icy shoulders of Aconcagua in a breath taking flight that is said to make one think fondly of a safe and speedy arrival somewhere!

Beyond the Andes, familiarly known to pilots as the "Hump," lie the immense stretches of Argentine pampas, calling to mind estancias, gauchos, tangos, Valentino, and the dashing polo stars of that great South American nation down on the under side of the world.

After four days in Buenos Aires, three more hops carry us up the east coast to Rio de Janeiro. Instead of "Rolling Down to Rio," we shall be hopping up.

The expedition is due to arrive in this, the loveliest of all seaports, on Aug. 10. It will be pleasant to see our ambassador, Hugh Gibson, and resume a friendship begun in Brussels in that historic August of 1914.

On the 17th we leave Rio on the Graf Zeppelin for Friedrichshafen, Germany. On the time table this is a five day voyage with one stop of several hours at Pernambuco before leaving the coast of Brazil for the coast of Senegal.

Since leaving midsummer in Miami we shall have passed through midwinter in Chile and Argentina, and back through spring to midsummer again, all inside of four weeks—with only about 55 pounds apiece of clothing appropriate to a maximum variety of weather!

Six days after reaching our destination by this circuitous route we shall shimmy our way home again on the Normandie, unless meanwhile the new queen of the seas shall have been devibrated. She is due to land Sept. 2, my first visit to New York in over five years.

On Sept. 5 I am booked to preside as toastmaster at the banquet given by the Sigma Chi fraternity to conclude its forty-second national convention. Hence the hurry.

20 COUPLES AT COUNTRY CLUB DANCE HELD UP

Twenty couples, gathered in the Woodmar Country club in northeast Hammond for the regular Saturday dance last night, got an added thrill that wasn't scheduled.

Shortly before midnight four masked men, one carrying a shotgun and the others armed with pistols, entered the club. The leader, holding the shotgun at a ready position, climbed on a table.

"Let all the dancers," he said, "lie down on the floor. And let the orchestra stop playing and lie down, too."

There was no argument. The leader's three assistants went through the pockets of the men in the club and garnered approximately $100. They made no attempt to molest the women or to take their jewelry. Then, while the dancers still lay still, the bandits forced the club manager, Jean Allison, to open a safe, from which they took $1,000.

After the robbers had departed the dancers swung into a snappy two step. And there was nobody present who didn't have a subject of conversation for the rest of the night.

CUT SPEED LIMIT ON OUTER DRIVE TO 35 M. P. H.

Maj. James U. Sammis, head of the north section of the Chicago park district police, announced yesterday that his men have been ordered to enforce a 35 mile an hour speed limit on the outer drive from North avenue to Belmont avenue and from Byron street to Foster avenue. Heretofore the rule on these drives has been "safe driving" without a definite speed limit.

"The speed limit has been set in coöperation with Judge John J. Gutknecht of the Trafic court," explained Maj. Sammis. "We feel that the parks are not safe for pedestrians or motorists when drivers exceed 35 miles an hour," he said.

Relief Cheater Gets 6 Month Jail Sentence

Gust Narcus, alias Gus Norkus, 4565 Wentworth avenue, was sentenced yesterday to serve six months in the House of Correction when he was found guilty before Judge Eugene L. McGarry in South State Street court of defrauding the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

At the request of the commission Judge McGarry also signed an order directing Narcus to make restitution of $1,503.04.

"It is people like you who are helping to keep this country in the depression with all its coincident ills," Judge McGarry said in sentencing the defendant. "In a time of general need the man who through fraud obtains money from a fund designed for the aid of those deserving relief deserves jail."

Draws Double Relief.

According to Assistant State's Attorney William Brumlik, Narcus obtained relief fraudulently by applying at various stations. He received relief from one branch of the relief organization from May, 1930, to October, 1934. Using the name of Gus Norkus he then obtained a total of $1,503.04 from the Halsted street relief office. During the months of January, 1932, to October, 1934, Narcus was obtaining relief from both organization offices.

In addition, accordin to H. A. Pearson, director of the relief investigation bureau, for at least a portion of the time Narcus was receiving relief he was gainfully employed, and during the entire period was getting $12 a month from the government as a pension for war service.

Had $100 Salary for 5 Months.

During June, July, August, September and October of 1934 Narcus was employed by a private corporation at a salary of $100 a month.

"This is one of the most flagrant frauds we have encountered," Pearson said. "We are constantly checking all cases in which we suspect fraud, and when they are found, as in this case, we prosecute them to the extent of the law."

May Have to Sell Duck; U. S. Wants $35,680 Taxes

Trenton, N. J., July 20.—(AP)—Tax liens were filed against Joe Penner, the comedian, and his wife, Eleanor, by Harry L. Maloney, collector of internal revenue for New Jersey, in the United States District court today, to collect a balance due on 1934 income taxes. Papers in the suit said Penner owes the government a total of $35,680, and Mrs. Penner owes $337.36,

First Report from McCutcheon's Tour

Miami, Fla., July 20.—[Special.]—We had a comfortable trip to Miami in clean, air conditioned trains which were half full. The towns along the east coast, in the midsummer doldrums, seemed empty when compared with the winter tourist throngs. Miami today suggests the Chicago loop district on Sunday.

We leave a call for 6:30 a. m. tomorrow, will breakfast at the airport, and spend the next hour trying to convince the Panair officials that our baggage is not four pounds overweight. At 8:30 we take off for Havana and Cienfuegos, and will spend the night in Kingston, Jamaica. We hope we shall be as comfortably air-minded as we were air-conditioned.

Miami is much changed since I first saw it. At that time I came from New Orleans to Havana on the Southern Pacific steamer Aransas with a cargo of 165 mules for Gen. Weyler's Spanish troops. The feeling against the Americans already was bitter and the captain of the Aransas, after disembarking my fellow passengers, took the empty ship and myself, the only passenger, on a frightfully rough crossing to Key West. The next day, on a side-wheel steamer, I went up the coast to a little settlement of a few dwellings, a store, some construction shacks, and a huge, gaunt Royal Palm hotel, which was unfinished. This was Miami in March of 1897.

From my hotel window today I could see dozens of corner lots which I could have had for a song, but I never seem to sing at the right time.

G. W. BROWNING, VETERAN LAWYER, HIT BY LOOP AUTO

Granville W. Browning, 79 years old, 2205 Cleveland avenue, widely known attorney and prominent for many years in political circles, was in a serious condition at the Henrotin hospital last night from injuries incurred yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile while crossing the intersection of Dearborn and Adams streets.

He suffered a fracture of the left leg and many bruises. Because of his age, physicians said his condition was serious.

Lester Blum, 541 Briar place, driver of the car, took Browning to the hospital. He told Sergt. Henry Gassney of the Chicago avenue police that the trafic lights were in his favor. He was not held.

Mr. Browning, an old time Democratic leader, was a chancellor of the Superior court from 1897 to 1906 and of the Circuit court from 1906 to 1916 and served as special counsel for the city from 1897 to 1906 during the Harrison administration.

Plane Waits to Fly Ex-King to Greek Throne

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 20.—Behind a small news item appearing in London evening newspapers today lies the story of preparations being made in London for the return of former King George of Greece to his throne.

The item reported that late last night a cyclist, walking home with his punctured machine from Dymchurch to Hythe, Kent, heard an airplane engine and saw the shadow of a huge machine circling low overhead.

There came a flash of light from the plane which was answered by the occupants of a large automobile standing at the side of the road. The plane circled twice over the automobile and then flew out to sea. Immediately afterward the automobile sped toward London.

Plane Brought Message.

It was learned that the mysterious plane brought a message for ex-King George telling him to hold himself in readiness for immediate return to Greece. As soon as the message reached the former monarch at his London hotel, he gave instructions for an air liner to stand by at Croydon airport in readiness for a long distance flight on short notice.

Throughout the day a new luxury Dragon Rapide airplane, equipped with radio and blind flying instruments and capable of completing the journey to Athens in less than fifteen hours, has been standing by with its engines warmed up, ready to dash away at a second's notice.

Somewhere near the coast at a private airdrome stands another machine of the same make, also ready to dash off. It will transport servants.

Movements Secret.

The movements of the ex-king in London during the day were kept secret. His hotel, where the king has an equerry and a large staf of servants occupying a whole floor, was a scene of intense activity.

None of the ordinary staf was permitted near the king's quarters and they have been instructed not to answer any questions or speak to anybody about the king. Telephone operators have been instructed to accept calls for the king only by persons giving a certain name or password.

Reports reaching London from Athens tonight stated that there are strong rumors there that the king will arrive in Athens by air tomorrow and that a royalist coup d'etat is possible at any moment.

At the moment the ex-king is still in London with all lights burning in the royal apartment, and every half hour the pilot of the six seated luxury plane waiting at Croydon climbs into the cockpit and starts up the engines.

Asks for King's Return.

ATHENS, July 20.—(AP)—Gen. George Kondylis, still collaborating with Premier Panayoti Tsaldaris despite the twenty-four hour cabinet crisis he forced yesterday, reiterated today his belief that former King George "must return for the nation's good."

Apparently in an effort to put down rumors of an imminent royalist coup, the acknowledged leader of the monarchist forces added:

"We shall follow the regular way, hold the plebiscite on the restoration issue probably late in October and run it absolutely straight. A majority of only one will compel us to call him, but it is his lookout if he accepts."

HITLER FIGHTS TO WIPE OUT CRITICS OF RULE

Germany Strikes at Catholics and Jews.

Nazis Wreck Chapel

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, July 20.—Nazi hoodlums demolished the altar and furnishings of the Confessional Protestant chapel at Trebbin, near Berlin, following a demonstration before the church. The demonstration was led by a Nazi leader and was attended by Storm Troops, Hitler Youth and party functionaries.

Confessional churches of the Brotherhood council for the Berlin-Brandenburg district, representing the opposition clergy and laity, in a note to the ministry of the interior, asked redress and protection.

The congregation aroused the ire of the Nazis recently by fitting up a hall as a chapel after the Nazi mayor refused to permit the use of either of two empty chapels. The Nazi leader mounted the hall's steps and addressed his followers, attacking bitterly the Confessional synod Protestants and their leaders, whom he described as traitors and reactionaries. Placards were tacked up bearing the slogan: "Death to the Confessional church!"

Two nights later, Nazi party members and Storm Troopers wrecked the chapel.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

BERLIN, July 20.—A new Nazi "purge" of "reactionary" opposition—thus far bloodless—swept through the Reich with increasing impetus today, its chief victims or threatened victims being Jews, clergymen and war veterans.

Nazi publications and official spokesmen lumped Hebrews, Catholic and Protestant men of the cloth, and members of the Steel Helmet veterans' organization with hated communists and other "reactionary" or "subversive" elements in the determined fight to make national socialism the faith and the religion of unified Germany.

Events of Day's Campaign.

The day's developments included:

FIRST—Julius Streicher, leading Jew baiter and publisher of the bitterly anti-semitic newspaper Stuermer, announced he himself would head the drive to oust all Jews from Berlin or segregate them in ghettos.

SECOND—A decree issued by the ministry of the interior warned Catholic priests to take care in what they said from their pulpits tomorrow concerning the Nazi drive against "political Catholicism." Prosecutors were told "quick proof of misdeeds must be followed by even quicker punishment." Wholesale arrests of clergymen were predicted.

THIRD—While Minister of Labor Franz Seldte, founder and leader of the Steel Helmets, tried frantically to contact Adolf Hitler, reported "out of the country," it was said secret police who yesterday dissolved the veterans' organizations in Thuringia and parts of Silesia would strike next at Schleswig and Mecklenberg. A sweeping order abolishing the organization was expected.

Showmen's Unit Banned.

FOURTH—Secret police abolished the international organization of cabaret, vaudeville and circus artists—bringing them into the scope of the farflung clean-up movement—because subversive elements allegedly were included in it.

FIFTH—The papal nuncio, Cesare Orsenigo, visited the foreign office where, Catholic circles said, he filed the Vatican's second protest of the week against the anti-Catholic drive.

With der Fuehrer himself believed to be cruising off the coast of Norway, the drive against "Nazi enemies" sped forward with unrelenting vigor reminiscent of the internal bitterness which developed into the June "blood bath" of one year ago.

Tomorrow's sermons in Catholic churches were awaited with anxiety, for Catholics were the center of today's attacks.

Nazis to Sit in Congregations.

Today's decree constituted virtual warning that Nazi authorities would sit in congregations armed with orders to arrest and charge with treason anyone thought to besmirch Nazism. It was expected, therefore, that local protests would be few, the more so since the annual conference of bishops at Fulda four weeks hence is expected to lay down definitly the church's policy.

The interior ministry's decree followed by two days that in which Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, head of the secret police and premier of Prussia, urged rigid enforcement of decrees against "political Catholicism."

"Quick proof of misdeeds must be followed by even quicker punishment," the decree said. "Sentences must be asked which are according to the people's feeling for justice and correspond to the danger of treasonable activities against the state and nation."

Indication of the extent of the campaign for Nazi totality came from many quarters.

Bar Confessional in Youth Units.

A Stettin police official outlawed the confessional in Catholic youth groups. Participation by a priest, he ruled, exposed the young people to counsel detrimental to the Nazi state. Catholic newspapers were confiscated and suppressed.

Catholic workers' unions were brought into the fight and Der Angriff, organ of Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels, predicted the "end of Catholic workers' societies."

Catholic workers at Muenster were being carefully checked to find those still remaining outside the Nazi labor front, with the implied threat that they would be dismissed if they did not desert the Catholic ranks.

Catholic youth headquarters in Kaiserslauters was closed by police, while over the border in the Saar Gov. Joseph Buerckel told the overwhelmingly Catholic population the Nazis would keep promises made before the recent plebiscite not to raise religious questions, though certain priests, "enemies of Germany before the plebiscite," were making it virtually impossible.

A press barrage against Catholicism contained the charge that Catholics abroad were enemies of Germany and favored the French encirclement policy.

It was understood the papal nuncio's protest against alleged breaches of the concordat cited especially treatment of Catholic organization, suppression of Catholic youth societies, and the Nazi sterilization policies.

Meanwhile, the war on Jews was intensified.

Police Guard Jew Baiters.

Robert Wagner, governor of Baden, warned Jews to "beware of provocation" in an effort to "appear as martyrs in the eyes of the world," and admonished party members to ignore such attempts, calling police instead.

Motor lorries filled with police rolled along beside Nazis who baited Jews on the Kurfuersten-Damm, reportedly there at the orders of Count von Helldorf, Berlin's new police head who is an avowed anti-Semite.

In an interview with a representative of the Voelkischer Beobachter, Helldorf said:

"It is clear that certain Jewish circles are rearing their heads again; that they are making themselves unpleasantly conspicuous by their arrogant behavior and frequent abuse of the hospitality extended to them by our country."

Helldorf added that he would deal ruthlessly with the underworld which has shown a slightly increased activity lately.

Word from the provinces said more and more towns and villages were barring Jews from bathing places and other public establishments.

Provincial papers began publishing names and addresses of "Aryan" women and Jews accused of intimate relations in definance of the Nazi demand for "racial purity."

Critics Face Jail.

The police department at Koenigsberg warned that any one criticizing police measures might expect heavy punishment. A man was reported jailed for making remarks concerning the régime which were deemed improper. Six men were reported sent to concentration camps for "shirking work."

Foreign observers expressed the opinion the big drive to renew fighting spirit within the party was due primarily to the Nazi belief that foreign affairs, for the moment, would take care of themselves.

Authoritative quarters said Hitler decided to push internal affairs soon after the Anglo-German naval agreement was concluded. Furthermore, they pointed out, Italy is now busy in Ethiopia, France is occupied with internal affairs while France and England are engrossed in watching Benito Mussolini.

All's Quiet on Western Front.

Thus, it is said, all is quiet on the western front as far as Germany is concerned.

A further contributing factor to the attempts to revive party spirit was believed to be the desire to distract attention from the severe economic tension daily making itself more and more felt.

Factories hitherto kept open by government funds just to prevent men being thrown into the streets are now quietly closing and an order was issued today, which, in effect, gives party members with numbers under 1,000 preference in employment.

Rich Jew Imprisoned.

HANOVER, Germany, July 20.—[U.P.]—For intimacy with Aryan women in thirteen separate cases, the secret police today sent Julius Cohen, wealthy Jewish wool merchant, to a Nazi concentration camp. He was charged with "racial insults" for his relations with non-Jewish women.

DEDICATE JOLIET BRIDGE ACROSS DEEP CHANNEL

Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan officiated yesterday at the formal opening of the new $650,000 Ruby street bridge over the deep waterway in Joliet. The bridge, which has been under construction for two years, is a double leaf trunnion span of bascule type. It carries four lanes of trafic for U. S. route 66. It is the last to be completed of eleven bridges built by the state over the waterway between Joliet and Marseilles. Among the others who attended the dedicatory exercises were Robert F. Kingery, state director of public works, and Lieut. Col. Donald H. Connolly, district engineer for the state highway department.

ARMY AND NAVY DEFENSE WORK IS KEPT SECRET

Foreign Nations Denied Exchange of Facts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—The army and navy have abandoned their policy of "good neighbor" in exchanging defense information with the military and naval bureaus of foreign nations. In the last few months a rigid policy of utmost secrecy quietly has been adopted by the army general headquarters and the naval bureau of operations.

The about face policy has been motivated by two considerations. One is the general state of unrest in Europe, Africa, and the far east. The other consideration—and more important in the eyes of the war and navy departments—is that other governments have not returned American frankness. The breaking of faith, in the opinion of army and navy officers, has been due in a measure to the threats of war.

Before the war nations exchanged meager information on national defense such as the army and navy policy; size, design and armament of ships; size, strength and general character of the army, and the general nature of fortifications and naval bases. The theory was that such general information could be readily obtained.

Treaties Encourage Policy.

Following the war, in the ebb of the military tide toward peace, the exchange became greater. It was believed that such exchange would promote peace through mutual fair dealing. The policy was encouraged by naval limitation treaty conferences and disarmament conferences.

When the tide flowed back to militarism in the wave of nationalism which swept over dictator ridden Europe, foreign nations became suspicious of one another—each was certain the other was keeping back information. This suspicion was found to be just in several instances, most recently in the discovery Germany was creating a new Heligoland at Sylt Island in the North sea.

The suspicion by natural process of growth extended to the United States, which was not guilty of the general practice of tucking cards up the muzzle of concealed armament. The exchange did not extend to vital secrets, but was supposed to be open on general matters.

Naval Flight Canceled.

The first indication of double dealing on American exchanges came when the navy department found its plans were being made public in the foreign press before they were released here. In this fashion a proposed trans-Pacific flight by navy planes was made public in Europe before it had been adopted by the navy. The publicity resulted in cancelation of the flight.

The navy ordered a check of the leak. It never was traced to the source, but was believed to have come from a foreign military aid to his government and from his government to the press of the foreign country.

Other exchanges were broadcast through the English press. It is believed these were obtained by correspondents in close contact with the British admiralty and general staf.

When the navy made a private protest an indiscreet foreign official said that it did not matter if the navy department stopped the exchange of general information, because his country could pick it up from visitors to ships under construction.

This inadvertent statement astounded the navy department, which had believed that one of the purposes of the exchanges was to bar espionage. In a hurried check it was discovered that ships under construction were playing to capacity audiences of visitors, a great percentage of them foreigners.

Jap Inspectors Watch Work.

During the investigation a curious circumstance was uncovered in connection with the building of the aircraft carrier U. S. S. Saratoga. It was learned that the Japanese government had contracted for a gunboat with the company constructing the Saratoga.

The two vessels were built practically side by side. It was discovered that Japan sent a corps of resident inspectors to watch the construction of the small craft. The presence of an army of Japanese inspectors during the building of the Saratoga was considered as something more than coincidence by the navy department.

As a result of the inquiry regulations regarding visits to ships afloat and under construction have been revised drastically. This revision has come in the last few months.

No visitor is allowed to look over a vessel under construction unless he is accompanied by the American resident inspector. Permission is given only after some investigation of the visitor.

Some Sections Kept Closed.

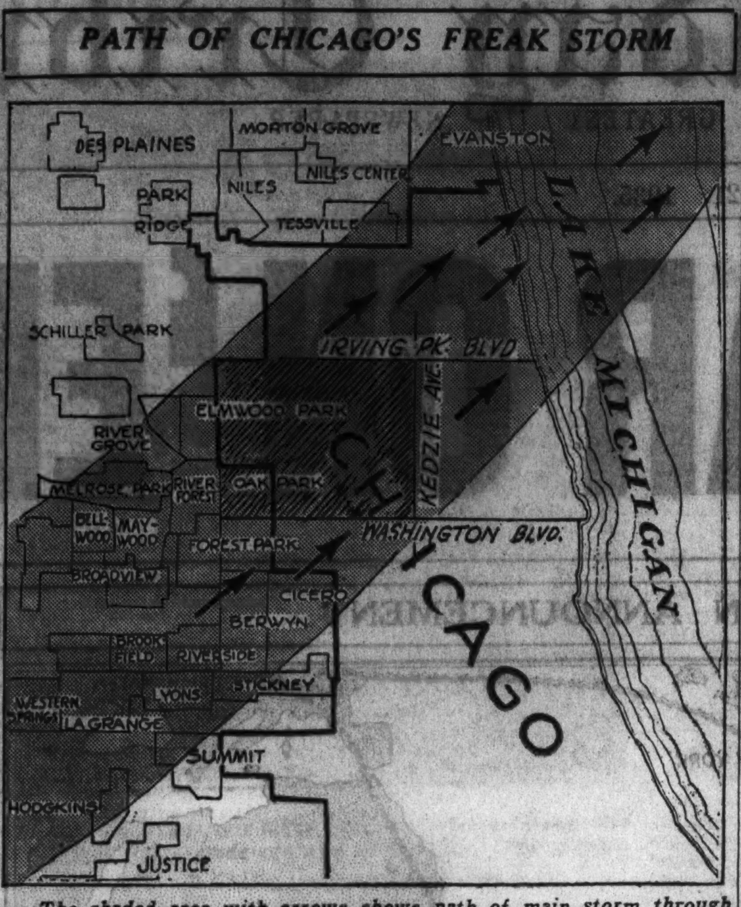
It is the duty of the resident inspector to see that no visitor tarries too long where he should not. Further, he is charged not to permit any visitor to go into certain sections of the vessel or to examine particular armament.

All of the newer vessels and those under construction have apparent gaps above, below, and on deck in which, during war, devices and armament for which the navy holds patents would be placed. An astute observer—if not a spy—could from an inspection of such places give his government an estimate of the hidden strength of our navy, even though he could not learn anything specific. The navy change has found a similar reaction in the army. Visitors no longer are free to roam about at will at forts or camps, but are politely though none the less firmly guided only where they are wanted.

20,000 Children Learning to Swim in Park Campaign

V. K. Brown, recreational director for the Chicago parks, reported yesterday that more than 20,000 boys and girls were taking advantage of the park district's free learn to swim campaign. Three free swimming classes are conducted each day at all park district swimming pools and bathing beaches. Applications for instruction are made to beach captains or small park directors.

PATH OF CHICAGO'S FREAK STORM



The shaded area with arrows shows path of main storm through Chicago and area of greatest damage is indicated by heavy shading. Accompanying the Chicago storm were heavy showers in Lake Forest and other north shore towns.

FREAK STORM HITS CHICAGO; CHASES HEAT

jured four others at Brighton beach this afternoon during a terrific thunderstorm which caused widespread but minor property damage in the metropolitan area. The storm flooded streets and felled trees and telephone poles, while lightning set half a dozen houses afire in Brooklyn and Queens.

The storm broke not long after the mercury had touched its highest point of 90 degrees for the day. In an hour or so 1.04 inches of rain fell. When the storm was over the mercury went down to its lowest point for the day, 67 degrees.

Although the storm, which was accompanied by a 38 mile north wind, made the mercury tumble 23 degrees in about two hours, it brought only passing relief from the uncomfortable weather. The low temperatures that prevailed after the rain stopped were offset by excessive humidity that measured 82 per cent of saturation and made the air stifling.

Six Persons Die at Shore.

Two drownings brought the day's death total in the city to six. About a half a million persons were on the beach front of the Coney Island area when the storm broke.

One of the lightning victims was Marvin Chesner, 17 years old, who was to have entered City college this fall. He and a girl companion decided to remain in the water during the storm. About 4 p. m. a lightning bolt struck them, instantly killing the young man. The girl was rescued unconscious. She was revived.

The other lightning victims were felled about the same time half a mile away. Two of the dead were a father and his 12 year old son.

Two Struck in Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., July 20.—(AP)—Lightning claimed two victims and heat prostration one in Maryland today before cooling thundershowers sent above 90 degree temperature readings tumbling by 20 degrees.

Killed by Bolt in Home.

Collison, Ill., July 20.—(AP)—A bolt of lightning flashed into Oltman Boten's home last night and killed him as he sat reading. Boten was 48. The bolt was believed to have traveled into the house over telephone wires.

St. Louis Gets Deluge.

St. Louis, Mo., July 20.—(AP)—Airplanes were grounded, trafic snarled, and streets turned into miniature rivers when heavy rainfall drenched the city and county of St. Louis late this afternoon. No injuries were reported. Sharp flashes of lightning caused temporary power line failures and a moderately strong wind accompanied the storm. Precipitation of 1½ inches was recorded during a 50 minute period at the government weather bureau at Lambert-St. Louis flying field.

Downpour at East Lynn.

Danville, Ill., July 20.—(AP)—A severe electrical and rainstorm struck the vicinity of East Lynn, Ill., today and several thousands of dollars of property damage was caused when lightning destroyed a barn during a downpour in which 4½ inches of rain fell in three hours. A foot of water flooded nearby highways and many cars were stalled.

RELIEF CUT OFF TILL ABLE MEN TAKE JOBS IN HARVEST FIELDS

Des Moines, Ia., July 20.—(AP)—Sixteen Iowa counties today denied work relief to able bodied men and admonished them to accept employment in the harvest fields.

Scores of farmers, hard pressed to find harvest hands at the height of their work season, have complained that relief workers have turned down offers for work. The complaints started a state-wide movement to force able bodied men into private employment.

An unofficial check showed today that at least 13 counties have suspended work relief indefinitly. Three others forcibly have eliminated 50 per cent of the able bodied men from relief rolls and drastic reductions have been made in many other counties.

Relief workers put forth two major reasons for refusing the private employment: The wage scale is less than the 40 cents an hour they receive on work relief, and if they leave their relief jobs they may be unable to get back on relief after the temporary work is finished. Farmers are paying an average of $2 a day and "keep" for work in the harvest fields.

Hold Relief Projects.

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—(AP)—Minnesota and North Dakota relief officials today acted to relieve a threatened harvest hand shortage by halting federal emergency relief projects.

The order in North Dakota affected the entire state, effective Aug. 2, and included all but specialized projects. Immediately after the harvest is completed the new Works Progress administration will be ready to step in and take care of unemployed.

Minnesota farm bureau officials said the lack of help had caused some farmers to cut and bind their grain and leave bundles on the ground. The same officials had said they believed men would rather remain on relief than accept harvest jobs.

CHICAGO ASSURED OF FULL SHARE IN WPA RELIEF CASH

Dunham Urges Care in Drafting Projects.

Chicago need have no fear of receiving less than its proper share of President Roosevelt's four billion dollar work relief program, Robert J. Dunham, works progress administrator for Illinois, declared yesterday.

In commenting on published statements that New York yesterday obtained approval of $76,189,546 for work relief allocations, while Chicago so far had received none, Mr. Dunham said:

"The question of priority in allocating portions of the work relief funds to various municipalities means nothing. Each city will receive so much of the money, and no more, the amount being based on the number of employable relief clients in the city.

Careful Planning Urged.

"It is a question for Chicagoans whether they would like to have the government presented with well considered work project plans or those thrown together hastily. We have thought best to draft careful plans that will stand up without being pushed back and forth for months. Merely because we have not yet sent them to Washington does not mean that the city will receive less than its allotted share."

Mr. Dunham expects that Chicago will receive in excess of $100,000,000 from the works administration. More than 100,000 Chicago relief clients will be put to work on projects of benefit to the city.

No one has yet stated exactly what the various projects will include. But in their number will be, according to the works progress administrator, construction of the lake front exposition grounds and an island airport, improvement of the parks and boulevards, and a start made on city filtration plants.

Yesterday the first of the Chicago park district projects was approved by Mr. Dunham and forwarded to Washington with a request for $676,507 in federal funds. It calls for conversion of Riis park, at Fullerton and Narragansett avenues, from a golf course to a general park, with picnic groves, lagoons, ball diamonds, and athletic fields.

Conversion of Riis park course to a 60 acre park tract began a month ago with Illinois Emergency Relief labor. The request for government funds on the project states that $127,346 will be furnished by the park district to complete the work.

Involved in this program is landscape work and grading, tree planting, seeding and fertilizing of lawns, and construction of four bastball diamonds, twelve tennis courts, a football field, and a half mile running track. There will also be bath houses, swimming and wading pools, and a limited area for automobile parking.

Downstate Projects Filed.

Twenty-two other projects, totaling $1,069,823 for Illinois counties, were reported on file in Washington yesterday. In the downstate projects local governments are contributing $484,115, according to information available yesterday. These programs include street improvements in Streator, creek dredging and other repairs in La Salle county amounting to $46,697, and $54,912 for a Johnson City drainage improvement and $22,966 for other road improvements in Williamson county.

Gallatin county is listed for a $267,392 rural road program. Winnebago is asking for $120,000 for improvements at Rockford. Other counties included in the requests are McLean, Madison, Will, Vermillion, Adams, and Lake.

The Citizens' Association of Chicago, headed by Francis E. Broomell, yesterday forwarded a letter to Harry Hopkins, WPA director in Washington, in protest against the proposed federal loan for construction of the lake front fair. The letter said:

"The Citizens' association is strongly opposed to this project and to the making of any loan or grant in connection therewith, because it involves the diversion of park lands for commercial purposes, which we regard as illegal and as contrary to the best interests of the people of Chicago."

'THE MOUSE'S TAIL' WANDERS ITS WAY DOWN THE RECORD

Washington, July 20.—(AP)—The staid old Congressional Record has gone modernistic—or maybe just realistic.

Anyway, "The Mouse's Tail," from Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," wiggled its way into today's issue, all curlicued down a column in four sizes of type—large to small—just as it appears in the book.

Its appearance was because Senator Bailey [Dem., N. C.] read it to the senate yesterday, remarking it was a sufficient commentary on the argument of Senator Murphy [Dem., Ia.] for the administration's AAA amendment to prohibit all suits by processors seeking to recover processing taxes.

Here is how it appeared in the Record:

"Fury said to
house, 'Let us both go to law: I will prosecute you—Come, I'll take no denial: We must have the trial:
For really this morning I've nothing to do.'
Said the mouse to the cur,
'Such a trial, dear sir, with no jury or judge would
ing our breath.'
'I'll be judge,
I'll be jury,' said cunning
old
'I'll
and condemn

The Record, one of the country's least read papers, is edited by ninety-six senators and 435 representatives—531 paid contributors. It has a daily circulation of 35,850 copies, a paid subscription list of 1,257, and no advertising. The government printing office prints it at a cost of about $45 a page. Senator Long's recent fifteen and one-half hour filibuster resulted in a 135 page Record. Long's portion occupied eighty-four pages and cost $3,780.

Cleanup of Street End Beaches Is Suggested

The North Shore chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America yesterday sent to officials of the city and the Chicago park district copies of a resolution calling for the improvement of street end beaches between Bryn Mawr avenue and the Evanston city limits. The resolution charges that the beaches are unsanitary and covered with refuse and that piling and piers in the lake are unsafe.

PLAN TO START ON OUTER DRIVE BRIDGE BY NOV. 1

Dunham Hopes to Have Job Done Early in 1937.

Chicago park district engineers are pushing efforts to complete outer drive bridge plans so that construction may start before Nov. 1 and be finished by the spring of 1937, according to Robert J. Dunham, president of the district board.

"We have about $2,000,000 now available in the bridge fund," he said yesterday. "The fund will grow as tax collections come in. We need $6,878,000 more to complete the structure."

Originally, the old south park board established the fund to construct the bridge by selling bonds. After the park district consolidation the Chicago park district used the money as a revolving fund to car for pay rolls and to meet bond and interest payments.

Law Aid to Financing.

Legislation recently passed in Springfield authorizes the park board to carry out a refunding plan, one part of which will set up a working cash fund of $5,000,000.

"The new $5,000,000 cash fund," Mr. Dunham observed, "will supplant our use of the bridge fund and we will be able to direct that money toward the bridge completion."

Mr. Dunham, in explaining why work cannot be started at an earlier date than late October, pointed out that, in addition to advertising for bids on the bridge construction, the park board needs to complete property right details with the Illinois Central railroad and other owners of property to be crossed by the south approach of the bridge.

Contracts to Be Awarded.

The first contracts to be let will be for caissons for a mile of viaduct approaches to the bridge. The next group of contracts will be to complete the substructure of the bridge, which was started several years ago. The new docks and bridge proper will come under the final contracts.

67 LOSE JOBS AS DEPUTIES IN HUEY LONG AREA

New Orleans, La., July 20.—(AP)—The state administration whip of Senator Huey P. Long was felt today in New Orleans when it cracked down on the city administration of Long's enemy, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley and cut off 67 deputy sherifs.

Only 29 of the deputies submitted to the state bureau of criminal identification and investigation under one of Long's dictated laws were approved and the remainder of the 96 deputies were notified that lack of approval meant dropping from the city pay roll.

Asked in Baton Rouge why the bureau refused to approve the 67 deputies, Brig. Gen. L. F. Guerre replied:

"Don't quote me as saying anything. It's none of the newspapers' business or anybody else's business."

SEATTLE ADDS DIAPER DERBY TO ATTRACTION LIST; 12 MEN ENTER

Seattle, Wash., July 20.—(AP)—Seattle, home of the Spavin Derby, the cat and candle putting out championships and the iceman kissing contest, will stage a diaper changing tournament Monday at the Woodland park hostess house.

Modesty will be the keynote, the Wallingford Commercial club, sponsoring the event, announced today.

After many complaints from prim prospective spectators, William Shapiro, in charge of arrangements, said all babies entered must wear "foundation" diapers.

Late today the club had 24 entries—12 men and 12 women.

FAMILY OF 4 DIES WHEN TRAIN HITS CAR AT CROSSING

Auto Stalls on Track; Only One Occupant Escapes.

A fast Chicago and North Western railroad passenger train struck an automobile last night at a crossing in Palatine, killing all the members of a family, including the father, mother, and two young daughters. A sister of the father escaped injury when she jumped clear just before the engine of the train demolished their car.

The dead were: Albert Jacobs 34 years old, living on Wilmette avenue, one mile and a half south of Palatine; his wife, Hennie, 32 years old; and their children: Esther, 9 years old; and Mary Anne, 4 years old. Jacobs, his wife, and Esther were killed instantly. Mary Anne died shortly after being taken to an emergency hospital in Palatine.

Survivor in Serious Condition.

The woman who leaped is Mrs. Martha Jacobs, 36 years old, wife of Jacobs' cousin as well as Jacobs' sister. The Jacobs family lived in her home. Although she escaped death by her leap she is in a serious condition at the hospital, suffering from nervous shock.

Chief of Police William Kable learned from Mrs. Jacobs, before she collapsed, that the family had come to town to do their week-end marketing. Jacobs was driving the car west in Chicago avenue when it stalled on the railroad crossing. The warning "wig-wag," signaling the approach of the train from the north, was working, Chief Kable said.

With the train bearing down on them, Mrs. Jacobs said her brother cried out for all to jump. Mrs. Jacobs was the only one to succeed. She said some of the others were on the running board when the train struck the car. It carried the wreckage for more than a mile before stopping. Police said the train was half an hour late at the time. It was a fast train from Madison, Wis.

Car on Sidewalk Injures Three.

Bruno Harbut, 23 years old, 1525 Walton street, was arrested by the North Racine avenue police last night after an automobile he was driving rolled up on the sidewalk at Augusta boulevard and Will street and struck three boys, all of whom were seriously injured. Policemen Vernon Johnson, James Dorsey, and William Dubois, who made the arrest, said Harbut appeared to have been drinking.

The injured lads are: Edward Sitko, 7 years old, 943 Will street, skull fracture, taken to St. Mary's hospital; Edward Cielak, 9 years old, 949 Will street, broken leg, taken to the county hospital, and Donald Dirdinski, 6 years old, 949 Will street, skull fracture, taken to the Lutheran Deaconess hospital.

Farmer Dies from Injuries.

John A. Sass, 48 years old, a farmer of Beecher, Ill., died yesterday in the St. James hospital at Chicago Heights from injuries incurred Friday night when he was struck by two automobiles on Governor's highway, two miles south of Monee, in Will county. Sass' automobile was in a ditch and he was standing behind it when the first car, driven by Louis Meyer of Chebanse, Ill., hit him. The driver of the second car did not stop.

The deaths of the Jacobs family and five others brought the 1935 Cook county automobile toll to 511. Until 4 p. m. yesterday 404 persons had been killed in automobile accidents within the city limits of Chicago, and 8,729 injured. The other deaths:

Sarahan Rowland, 7 years old, 4154 Arthur avenue, Congress Park, was injured fatally when she stepped from behind a parked truck into the path of an automobile at Arthur and Shields avenues, Congress Park. She died half an hour later at the Hinsdale sanitarium. Reginald Burns, 23 years old, 4113 Elm street, Brookfield, driver of the car, was charged with manslaughter and released in bonds of $10,000. He is a member of the Glenview Civilian Conservation corps.

Earl Landis, 19 years old, 4954 Rice street, was killed, and Ralph Stewart, 20 years old, 4954 Augusta boulevard, was injured seriously yesterday when their automobile collided with another car at Cicero avenue and Addison street. Roy Mahler, 24 years old, Itasca, Ill., driver of the other car, was uninjured.

John Hrivnak, 9 years old, 548 West Cullerton street, died while en route to the County hospital from a skull fracture and internal injuries incurred when he was struck by a truck at Sangamon and 16th streets. William Brown, 32 years old, 1509 West 13th street, driver of the truck, was held by police.

Margaret Topolewski, 5 years old, 6225 South Seeley avenue. Died in the Holy Cross hospital of injuries received earlier in the day when she was struck by an automobile in the street near her home. Henry Fredholm, 50 years old, 3841 West 147th street, Midlothian, driver of the car, was charged with reckless driving and released on a $100 bond.

Leo Zechlin, 79 years old, 7222 Clarence avenue. Died early today in the Ravenswood hospital of injuries suffered Friday when he was struck at Harlem avenue and the Northwest highway by an automobile driven by Joseph Peytorfer, 15 years old, 6758 Northwest highway.

Warns Against "Hitch" Riders.

The Chicago Safety council in a special bulletin yesterday warned against the habit of hitching rides by children and the great increase of injuries to such hitch riders. Motorists were urged to do all they could to prevent such riding, as a safety measure.

DIES AFTER HEART ATTACK.

A heart attack yesterday caused the death of Charles Korem, 57 years old, in his confectionery store at 1358 Washburne avenue.

BLAME BAD RAIL JOINT AND SPEED IN TROLLEY CRASH

Delay Inquest to Fall; One Dead, 92 Hurt.

A defective rail coupling, excessive speed and the obsolescence of the street car involved were cited yesterday by police and witnesses at a coroner's inquest as factors responsible for the accident Friday afternoon in which one man was killed and 92 persons, mostly children, were injured when a crowded 75th street trolley was derailed and crashed into a railroad viaduct support. The accident occurred on 75th street just west of South Chicago avenue.

Although no official determination of the cause of the fatal accident was announced all three factors were under investigation by Coroner Frank Walsh, Capt. William F. Russell of the Grand Crossing police district and J. R. Skidmore, railroad inspector for the Illinois Commerce commission. A defective rail joint discovered at the intersection of Greenwood avenue and 75th street, 100 feet west of the Pennsylvania railroad viaduct, where the accident occurred, was regarded as the principal cause of the wreck.

Continue Inquest to Sept. 5.

The single fatality was that of Patrick Stapleton, 51 years old, 7055 South Elizabeth street, a pile driver employed by the city. The inquest, opened at the Jackson Park hospital where 21 of the injured were still receiving treatment, was continued to Sept. 5 pending the recovery of witnesses.

The coroner's jury, composed of business men living in the neighborhood of the accident, were taken to the accident scene yesterday morning and there were shown the coupling which Coroner Walsh and Capt. Russell declared was largely responsible for the wreck. Inspection showed that one rail is a quarter of an inch lower than the one to the west of it and a street car, run over the track before the jurors, caused the lower rail to sink nearly an inch.

It was this faulty joint at the western end of a slightly curved slope under the railroad viaduct, Coroner Walsh pointed out, that caused the street car to leave the tracks and plunge 100 feet with its crowd of beachbound children into the steel structure.

Testify on Trolley's Speed.

Three witnesses, Fred Babuscio, 2853 East 96th street, and Victor Zrznacky, 3061 West 19th street, employés of a gasoline filling station at 1101 East 75th street, and Tony Baboosa, 7731 Greenwood avenue, who was in his automobile at the intersection, all agreed that the street car was traveling at a speed of from twenty-five to thirty miles an hour and that it failed to slow down after leaving the tracks until the collision.

The attention of all three witnesses was first attracted to the street car by the noise of grinding brakes and the screams of terrified passengers, they said. The car was swayin wildly, Baboosa declared, and speeding. All three agreed that although the brakes apparently were applied, the car failed to slacken its speed perceptibly. They likewise agreed in their testimony that the impact of the crash crumpled the front platform of the street car, leaving only the rear doors for exit. It was in the frantic fight to get out of the car that many of the women and children were injured.

The defective coupling was described to the coroner's jury by Policeman Leo Connors who inspected the scene shortly after the accident.

Attorneys R. F. Kelly and Patrick Hayes, counsel for the Chicago Surface lines, said that when the inquest is resumed Robert W. Paul, 32 years old, 7580 Langley avenue, motorman of the car, will testify. In a statement to Capt. Russell, Paul declared that he was not traveling at an excessive speed and that the brakes of the car were in good operating order.

In a prepared statement, Guy A. Richardson, president of the surface lines, said that the cause of the accident had not been determined and explained that more than 100 cars had passed over the particular rail during the day, that the car was traveling at a normal speed and was in perfect condition.

"A careful inspection of the track reveals nothing that would have caused a derailment," Mr. Richardson said. "The flanges of the wheels are in good condition. Nothing was found on the track that would have caused trouble. The theory has been advanced that the intense heat Friday may have expanded the rails sufficiently to cause the wheels to leave the track. Apparently it was a combination of circumstances, no one of which would have been sufficient in itself to cause the accident."

The accident, however, brought criticism of the condition of the surface line rails and the operation of old rolling stock in many sections of the city. Herman Landerman, vice president of the Better Lawndale association, said that his organization had investigated street car surface in the Lawndale district and found tracks and rolling stock in poor condition and obsolescent.

The tragic accident attracted attention yesterday to recently voiced opposition to the purchase of new street cars and equipment, and modernization of the trolley system. It was pointed out that such a heavy toll of injured could not result in a similar accident were modern, steel safety trolleys in operation.

FIND $24,300 BONDS STOLEN BY TORTURERS IN MAILBOX AT FARM

Vandalia, Ill., July 20.—[Special.]—Government bonds having a face value of $24,300 were found today in a mail box on the estate of C. A. Evans, five miles east of Vandalia. The property was identified as part of the loot in the robbery last Sunday of Frank Bissing, whose home south of Altamont in Effingham county was invaded by three armed men.

It was assumed that the robbers, realizing that the registered bonds were unsalable, decided to let the owner have them back. Omar Shepley, caretaker of the Evans estate, who found them, said they had not been in the mail box yesterday.

Bissing, who is 80 years old, was alone when the bandits arrived at his home. He was tied to a stove and was threatened with being burned unless he told where his money and securities were kept. Besides the registered bonds the robbers took unregistered bonds worth $4,000 and $10 in cash.

AIR LINER HITS MOUNTAIN; 13 KILLED IN CRASH

All Occupants of Dutch Plane Perish.

SAN BERNARDINO, Switzerland, July 20.—(AP)—Thirteen persons died today as the third Royal Dutch Air Line passenger plane to crash in seven months struck a mountain and fell into trees near the village of San Giacomo, three miles from here.

Two of the nine passengers killed were Gerard and Virginia Phillips, whose address and nationality could not be determined immediately. The other passengers were Dutch, English, German, and Swiss.

A police investigation showed that the plane, which apparently was seeking an emergency landing field, sent out an SOS shortly before the crash.

Hunts for Landing Place.

The ship, en route from Frankfort-am-Main to Milan, appeared out of clouds of fog, apparently having motor trouble, and tried to land in the narrow valley at San Giacomo. There was no suitable field, however, and it struck trees.

Police found Miss or Mrs. Phillips still living, but she died just as they pulled her clear of the wreckage.

A Red Cross detachment from the nearby town of Bellinzoni reached the scene to find all the nine passengers and the crew of four dead. A squad of gendarmes was detailed to guard the débris. The bodies were taken to a nearby chalet.

Recall "Flying Hotel" Crash.

Most spectacular of the three disasters that have overtaken Royal Dutch Air Line planes was the mystery crash of its giant American built Douglas "flying hotel" in the Syrian desert in December, 1934.

After several days of search the burned hulk of the plane, which had taken the handicap in the England to Australia Air Derby two months before, was found ten miles south of Rutba Wells, Iraq. All its seven occupants were dead.

One week ago another giant commercial ship carrying 14 passengers and a crew of six from Amsterdam to Sweden crashed shortly after the take-off, killing six of the occupants.

Blames Weather Conditions.

LONDON, July 20.—(AP)—An official statement issued by the Royal Dutch Air Line office today attributed the crash of one of its air liners in Switzerland, in which 13 persons died, to weather conditions. The statement said:

"The plane was a Douglas monoplane operating on the Milan-Frankfort-Amsterdam route. The pilot on crossing the frontier into Switzerland encountered fog and wound in his wireless aerial owing to a thunderstorm. He came out of clouds into the valley of San Bernardino, but could not go further because of bad weather conditions.

"He turned around again and flew in the clouds. While flying in them he collided with a mountain. The machine did not catch fire."

CHINA ANGERED BY MARRIAGE OF PRESIDENT'S SON

SHANGHAI, July 20.—(AP)—The vernacular press today published with evidence of extreme displeasure reports from the United States of the marriage of Miss Viola Brown of Columbus, O. and James Lin, foster son of President Lin Sen.

There were indications a major political crisis would be precipitated. Newspapers stated the government has virtually ordered the president to take retaliatory measures against the youth. The aged statesman has secluded himself on Kuling mountain, near Kiu-Kiang, refusing to discuss the affair.

An uncle, James Lin, at Kuling said young Lin was to become head of the Lin family, but that his marriage in America complicated the succession.

VISCOUNTESS ASTOR.

LINCOLN, England, July 20.—[U.P.]—To one of her sons who recently complained that she did not take enough interest in him before he was 7 years old, Viscountess Astor replied, she asserted last night:

"If I had known as much as I do now I should not have had you at all."

She was addressing teachers, and she bemoaned her early ignorance of birth control. She said the old theory that a mother was the best person to bring up a child was out of date, and she said that every child should be sent to a nursery school when 2.

Lady Astor, American born member of the house of commons, had five children, four of them boys, by Viscount Astor. The youngest is 17. She had one son, Robert Gould Shaw III., by a previous marriage to the late Robert Gould Shaw II., millionaire polo player of Boston, whom she divorced in 1903.

KEEHN ARRIVES BY AIR; GIVEN TRANSFUSION

The condition of Roy D. Keehn, major general of militia commanding the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, was reported unchanged yesterday. He is suffering from an infection that developed as the result of injuries incurred a week ago when he was trapped in his burning automobile near Beulah, Wyo.

Gen. Keehn and Mrs. Keehn arrived in Chicago by airplane yesterday from Deadwood, S. D. At a hospital here the general's right arm was treated for compound fracture and he received a blood transfusion. Physicians said that the transfusion was not of an emergency character, but was performed as a precaution against the possible weakening effect of the treatment.

While members of the hospital staf said that Keehn is suffering from a "dangerous infection," they reported that his condition last night was satisfactory.

RAID TWO A. & P. STORES.

Gunmen obtained $66 in robberies of two stores of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company yesterday. The robbers got $36 in the store at 5455 Madison street. Soon afterward one man entered the store at 3858 Chicago avenue, and took $30.

Kidnapers Get 'Wrong Man' in Ohio so Set Him Free

Cleveland, O., July 20.—[Special.]—An apparent case of mistaken identity in a slip-shod kidnaping was being investigated by police tonight. The victim was Robert G. Byers, 43, a sales counselor of Columbus, who reported he was abducted by five men under the impression he was his brother, George Byers, a Columbus automobile distributor.

ROBERT G. BYERS.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

When the kidnapers discovered their mistake they offered to release him, Byers said, if we would pay them $500. He agreed to pay the money at 1 p. m. today in Columbus. Columbus police, however, said that as far as they knew the kidnapers did not keep the appointment.

Byers said he was kidnaped about 11:30 p. m. Thursday as he entered his car in front of the Byers' Automobile Distributing company in Columbus. Robert Byers has a small interest in the firm which is headed by his brother George, one of Columbus' best known business men.

Abductor Takes Over Car.

"Two of the men had revolvers," Byers told Capt. Frank W. Story. "We had driven as far as Westerville when the kidnapers complained I wasn't driving fast enough.

"When they discovered the car was running low on gasoline they went through my pockets and took $28 and a watch. We got gas and then drove to about two miles outside of Medina, where they took me to a house and blindfolded me.

"One of the men said: 'George, this will cost you $10,000 before you get out of here.' I told them my name was Robert and that George is the one who has the money.

"One of the kidnapers turned to the man they called Bittle and said: 'Say, Bittle, who did you get, anyhow?' When I convinced them I wasn't George they began to bargain for less money. They wanted $1,000, but when I told them I didn't have that much money they agreed to free me for $500."

Walks to Find Car.

Yesterday, Byers said, his abductors drove him to a point between Strongsville and Parma and instructed him where he could find his car at the end of a mile and a half walk. He found the car and drove here and notified police.

Special Agent J. P. MacFarland of the department of justice office here said he questioned Byers yesterday and decided that the federal authorities did not have jurisdiction in the case because no state boundaries were crossed in the kidnaping. He said, however, that his office is prepared to coöperate with local police.

ALTERIE MURDER BARES PERILS TO ALL UNION HEADS

Seek Federal Protection Under Wagner Act.

The statement, unamplified, seems paradoxical, but the powers granted labor unions and their heads under the Wagner-Connery law, signed on July 5 by President Roosevelt, are so great and so valuable that Chicago's labor leaders are fearful.

The explanation is not too complicated. Gangsters, particularly the old Capone organization remnants, have seen the advantages accruing to union control under the new federal law and have started with a campaign of assassination to get such control.

After Louis Alterie, chief of the theatrical janitors' union, was slain in front of 922 Eastwood avenue on Thursday, the investigators asserted a belief that his death was due to efforts of Caponeites to seize either his union or another, the moving picture operators', which Alterie was credited with coveting.

Consider Appeal to U. S. Board.

Alterie was a notorious gangster and investigators said he was "long overdue" for killing. But legitimate union heads would be no more difficult to slay, and many of these are moving about uneasily nowadays. So great is their alarm that there is a proposal to appeal to the national labor relations board, set up by provisions of the Wagner-Connery act, and urge that it become a quasi-police agency to prevent other assassinations.

At the offices of the Illinois Federation of Labor it was admitted yesterday that many union leaders fear the same fate that overtook Alterie. And it was suggested that the labor relations board investigate not only Alterie's death but that of Thomas E. Maloy, czar of the moving picture organization, who was shot down last February, as he rode in his auto in the Outer Drive at 24th street.

The Wagner-Connery act gives the labor board authority to subpena witnesses and to complete their testimony under oath, and prescribes punishment for contempt in the event of refusal to testify. The board can become a judge of whether any labor official is "of the own choosing" of the workers.

Puts Problem in Board's Lap.

It was pointed out that an employer could refuse to deal with a union head on the ground that he had won his place by the gun and had terrorized his members into acquiescence. It would then, labor unionists said yesterday, become the duty of the board to hold hearings to determine whether the leader under attack actually was the choice of the majority of the union.

Some of the commentators professed to see in the law an opportunity to have District Attorney Michael L. Igoe investigate labor killings on behalf of the government and, where necessary, furnish protection to legitimate union heads threatened with assassination.

Rule by the gun is no new program among the gangsters in their relations with unions. It was recalled that the late George [Red] Barker, an ex-convict, took over the coal teamsters' union through the murder of its head and announcing he was business agent, and that other gangsters slew John Clay, a veteran head of Laundry Workers' union, in an attempt to usurp his place several years ago.

Fertile Field for Gangsters.

But for the properly chosen union times are more perilous now than before, what with the gambling and liquor rackets nonexistent and only the labor field offering highly profitable opportunities for hoodlum penetration.

That field is getting better and a shrewd gangster like Frank Nitti, the present Capone leader who always was the business "brains" of the criminal organization, is considered quite capable of realizing that the Wagner-Connery measure practically guarantees to union heads the domination not only of union members but also of employers.

Nitti's name has been mentioned frequently in connection with the Alterie killing and the police said yesterday they were seeking to question him about the reports that he and his criminal associates wanted to take over Alterie's union domination and the old ones of the slain Maloy.

Little of significance was learned about the murder yesterday. Some vague clues to the identity of Alterie's killers were being run down, but progress was slow.

The body of Alterie, whose real name was Leland Deveraigne, was shipped on a Rock Island train last night to Los Angeles for burial.

SUSPECT HUNTED IN LOOP SLAYING; POLICE HOLD 3

Hat and Coat Clew in Gambler's Death.

Police were seeking a man known as Nate Schlitz yesterday in connection with the fatal shooting of William E. Cunning, 35 years old, 4343 West Van Buren street, which occurred early in the morning in front of Potts Rendezvous tavern, 194 North Clark street.

Cunning, alias Cunningham, was reputed to be a gambler and former associate of Frankie Lake of the Druggan-Lake bootleg beer gang. His mother, Mrs. Daisy Cook, with whom he lived, and a brother-in-law, H. M. Butters, said Cunningham had not been employed for the last two years.

Find Hat and Coat.

Leo Kinzelberg, 43 years old, 3838 Broadway, bartender in the tavern; Edward Burns, 30 years old, 2118 Lincoln Park West, loop newsstand owner, and Edward McDonel, 50 years old, 624 South State street, with whom Cunning had been drinking, were in police custody for questioning yesterday.

The story of the three was that Cunning had excused himself and stepped outside the tavern for a few minutes and they didn't know why he went out or who shot him. When police arrived after the shooting a brown gaberdine, double breasted sport coat and a grey fedora hat were found on a chair in the tavern.

In the coat was a postcard addressed to Nate Schlitz in care of Kramer & Potts, owners of the tavern. It read: "Hello Natkey. Everything is apple. See you next week." It was signed "Joe."

Draws Gun and Fires.

Lewis McCarthy, 33 years old, 2651 Orchard street, a cab driver who witnessed the shooting, said Cunning's assailant wore a brown coat. He said there was an exchange of heated words between Cunning and the gunman before the shooting, but he was not close enough to hear and understand the subject of the argument.

Suddenly one of the men drew a pistol and shot the other, McCarthy said, five shots in all being fired. The bullets struck Cunning in the abdomen and head. He was taken to St. Lukes' hospital and died a few hours later.

HEARS WALEY AT ALCATRAZ; WIFE WEEPS AT NEWS

Tacoma, Wash., July 20.—[U.P.]—Margaret Thulin Waley, convicted Weyerhaeuser kidnaper, today learned for the first time that her husband, Harmon, had been taken from McNeil Island to Alcatraz federal prison to serve a 45 year term for his part in the crime.

The 19 year old prisoner heard the news from Mrs. Cleo Bonney, Tacoma, Waley's mother, who visited her at the Tacoma city jail. The jail matron reported Margaret broke down and cried bitterly when her mother-in-law left.

Mrs. Waley was expected to leave tomorrow in company of federal officers for the detention farm at Milan, Mich. She was sentenced to a 20 year term for aiding in the kidnaping.

FLOCK TO WEST FOR OUTING; FILL TOURIST CAMPS

Great Cabin Cities in Yellowstone Park.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Buffalo, Wyo., July 20.—[Special.]—This year's record tourist invasion of the west, as noted in ten days' travels in THE TRIBUNE roadster, is almost as heavily ladden with luggage as were the covered wagon trains that trekked over this brown plateau half a century ago. This summer's motoring vacationists, while covering greater distances, are patronizing tourist camps rather than hotels.

In one of the great cabin cities of Yellowstone park, where the shacks and streets are numbered and lettered so a visitor can identify his temporary home, the complaint frequently was heard that there's a shortage of cabins on the main highways to the east, that it was necessary to stop for the night before dark to find a vacancy.

Gift from Shoshone Indians.

THE TRIBUNE roadster ran into this trouble the other night at Thermopolis [translated Hot City] where the state of Wyoming owns therapeutic hot springs, a gift from the Shoshone Indians. After driving about 20 miles in moonlight of eerie brightness on a winding highway blasted from the jagged granite of Wind river canyon, the town of 2,200 population was reached only to find all hotel rooms and cabins occupied.

Towns as big as this are far apart in this part of the country. The proprietor of a camp was induced for $1.50 to surrender his own cabin to be furnished with cots and blankets from THE TRIBUNE roadster.

This price is mentioned to explain why folks are traveling with their own bedding and cooking utensils and stopping at camps. They also save by eliminating bell boy tips and garage rental. And there's no embarrassment, such as might be encountered in hotel lobbies or dining rooms, in wearing travel soiled clothes into these cabins.

$3.50 Night for Better Cabin.

The price of $1.50 is typical, but there are notable exceptions. For one of the better cabins in Yellowstone the proprietor asked $3.50 a night plus 50 cents for each bath at a not so nearby shower house. It proved cheaper for a party of man, wife, and child to pay $4.50 a day for a room with private bath in one of the large hotels.

Then there are the cabins around lodge houses that cater to dudes. These are expensive. South of Yellowstone, on a lake with the Grand Teton mountains reflecting their peaks on the water, $4.50 was charged for half of a duplex cabin.

The scenery, however, was worth the extra $3. The Teton rise abruptly to elevations well over 12,000 feet, almost a mile above the surrounding country. They are shaped as a prairie reared school boy imagines all mountains should be shaped, like inverted V's.

Headed toward home, THE TRIBUNE roadster is able to impart a bit of directional advice to the thousands from Chicagoland who will be following other thousands to the Black Hills and thence to Yellowstone in the next month. The only dangerous mountain driving is over the Big Horn range, about midway between the Wyoming and the South Dakota attractions. There are two routes, U. S. 14 and U. S. 16. The former is the more beautiful and the more hazardous.

Complete and up to date, the 1935 Chicagoland Road Map is now on sale at THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 25c; by mail, 30c.

RUSSIA USES BOOK LISTING 852 WOMEN IN TRAVEL HEAD'S TRIAL

MOSCOW, July 20.—(AP)—An address book containing the names and telephone numbers of 852 women was today declared to be part of the evidence against Sergei Meshki, former manager of the Moscow office of the official Intourist travel agency, on trial here for abuse of his position.

The Intourist employs many girl guides and interpreters whose job is to escort tourists to museums and factories and other points of interest, and it was charged that Meshki used his authority to oblige the girls to accept his attentions.

The communist party newspaper Pravda accused the former Intourist manager of holding orgies in his home and of falsely representing himself as one of the Baku commissars at the time of the English intervention in that province in 1918.

At Kursk today the business manager of a branch office of the Terbunsky Grain Trust and one of the trust's employés were sentenced to death for wholesale thefts of grain. Two bandits were executed at Tiflis for looting apartments.

WARN AUTOISTS OF STRICT NEW TRAFIC STATUTE

Convictions for Reckless Driving to Be Easier.

In the new Illinois trafic code, which recently became law, there appears a new definition of reckless driving. This provision was the basis yesterday for a prediction by J. H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club, that there would be a reduction in automobile accidents throughout the state.

The new code also contains more severe penalties for disobeying trafic policemen, and requires accident reports to be sent to the state department of public works and building. The former provision, if not abused, may lead to better trafic regulation, according to Mr. Braun, and the latter should result in more intelligent and effective efforts for the prevention of accidents.

Easier to Convict Motorists.

Formerly it was necessary to prove the actual cause of damage or personal injury to sustain a conviction for reckless driving, Mr. Braun said. Under the present law, he contends, motorists can be convicted of reckless driving without being involved in any accident or without causing personal injury.

The new definition reads: "Any person who drives any vehicle with a wilful or a wanton disregard for the safety of persons or property is guilty of reckless driving." The penalty for the first offense is five to 90 days in jail, or a fine of $10 to $500, or both. Later convictions carry jail sentences not to exceed from 10 days to six months and a fine of $100 to $1,000.

"Under the new law," said Mr. Braun, "many persons will be amenable to prosecution for being involved in accidents regardless of the extent of the damage caused. Possible penalties, even in trifling cases, can be expected to encourage more care in driving.

Calls Old Law Deficient.

"The old law was deficient in failing to punish recklessness not resulting in bodily injury, but it did have the virtue of shielding from arrest innocent drivers unfortunate enough to become involved in small property damage cases. If the courts are not to be cluttered with unfounded prosecutions, it will be necessary for judges to exercise the utmost vigilance in issuing warants for the new offense of reckless driving."

Probably few motorists realize that under the new code neglect to obey a policeman's instructions, running the whistle for example, may place them in danger of a jail sentence. The explanation is that failure to obey a trafic officer now is a misdemeanor.

Penalties provided for these misdemeanors are, upon the first conviction, a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment for not more than 10 days. Upon a second conviction within a year the penalty is a fine of not more than $200 or imprisonment for not more than 20 days, or both; for a third or subsequent conviction there is a penalty of a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment for not more than six months.

Violation of State Law.

"Formerly," said Mr. Braun, "cities and villages enacted ordinances to cover this situation, providing for only a small penalty. Now, however, the instructions of a policeman are made more impressive by the fact that violating them means the violation of a state law and the danger of incurring a more severe penalty.

"Conscientiously administered, this provision has the possibility of assuring better trafic regulation. Capriciously or corruptly enforced, it may mean considerable annoyance and injustice to motorists at the hands of officials of the type who in the past have operated speed traps.

"In theory such a law is eminently desirable because it is almost impossible for a legislature to enact rules for every type of trafic situation or for all motorists to familiarize themselves with all regulations which could be adopted.

Warn Against Abuses.

"It is a convenient method of handling the problem to relegate, for the moment, rule making authority to a trained trafic officer. In practice, such arbitrary power, of course, may prove no benefit when abused by an untrained or venal officer."

Before the adoption of the new code there was no official agency in Illinois for gathering, tabulating and analyzing accident reports, according to Mr. Braun. Drivers or occupants of vehicles involved in accidents resulting in death or injury to persons now are required to make a report to be forwarded to the state department of public works and building within 24 hours after the accident.

"Since the reports are declared confidential and inadmissible as evidence in any court proceeding," said Mr. Braun, "there is no risk incurred by drivers in making them out truthfully. Such accurate and comprehensive information furnishes the best basis for corrective measures and will point the way to a reduction in accidents."

Stunt Actor Acquitted of Hitting Faith Hampton

Hollywood, Cal., July 20.—[Special.]—Jack Gallagher, motion picture stunt man, was acquitted of striking Faith Hampton, film actress, by a jury of 12 women today, after Miss Hampton had testified she tried to stop a café brawl between Gallagher and another man, "and he knocked me into the gutter." Gallagher said his head was turned and some one hit him with something, and "I didn't know whether it was man or woman. I just slammed out." He says he "guessed" his "push" upset the actress.

ETHIOPIAN KING ASSAILS ITALIAN THIRST FOR WAR

Appeals to World Again to Stop Mussolini.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, July 20.—Emperor Haile Selassie flung another ringing challenge at Italy today as Italy's diplomatic representative here vigorously protested the "bitter tone of attacks on Italy" in the emperor's fighting speech before parliament Thursday.

Count Vinci, the Italian minister, called at the foreign office to protest verbally against the address without waiting for written instructions from Rome.

Shortly before, the emperor, citing the European nation's increasing preparations for war, appealed to the world to help avert the threatened Italo-Ethiopian war lest peace covenants become mere scraps of paper.

Selassie Attacks Italy.

The king of kings and conquering lion of Judah, whose stirring speech before parliament fired all Ethiopia's tribal lords to battle fervor, said in an interview:

"Ever since her crushing defeat by our army 40 years ago, Italy has nourished the desire to attack us. This desire assumed today more acute and more menacing form, which Italy has proclaimed to all the world. All our advances for peace have been rejected and our sincere desire for conciliation has been rebuffed.

"Now, 2,000 years after the crucifixion, is peace to be drowned in the blood and tears of a war?"

Outlines Case Against Rome.

Reiterating Ethiopia's unwavering determination to "defend its territory to the last man for the preservation of our deathless record of never having been conquered," the dark skinned, curly bearded emperor made these points in his case against Ialy:

1. The Italian attitude threatens to destroy the efficacy of the league of nations.

2. It promises to convert the Kellogg pact outlawing war into mere pious hopes.

3. "A drunken brawl between native employés of a commercial agency and local police" is the best excuse Italy can find for her apparently impending invasion.

4. Italy "is seeking a pretext for a campaign of vilification with a view to eventual conquest."

Ethiopia became Christian when Europe was "still plunged in paganism," the emperor recalled, and "still subscribes to the ten commandments and to Christ's sermon on the mount."

Asks Treatment as Christians.

She "has every right to be treated in the spirit of Christian brotherhood and peace by Italy, which claims to be an international shrine of the Christian religion," he said.

Selassie charged the European nation with provoking "cowardly" attacks against Ethiopians, supported by tanks and airplanes, saying the Italians bombed the Ethiopian garrison at Gerlogubi. Such attacks are continuing, he said, despite denials.

"Then, assuming the attitude of the injured party, Italy demanded an apology and reparations," he continued, in outlining his view that Italy constantly provoked incidents, while she continued her military preparations, increased her bellicose attitude and avoided impartial arbitration.

Praising efforts of the league of nations to avert war the emperor remarked ironically that Italy, "seeing herself entrusted with the mission of 'civilizing' Ethiopia, rejects the method of peaceful settlement elaborated by modern civilization."

She "justifies her belligerent attitude by denouncing Ethiopians as savages," he added, "but proposes herself to have recourse to the most savage method of all."

Italy Denies Rupture Near.

ROME, July 20.—(AP)—A government spokesman today said Italy had protested to Ethiopia against the "uncompromising attitude" taken by Emperor Haile Selassie in his speech before parliament Thursday, but denied the protest meant immediate severance of diplomatic relations.

Meanwhile authoritative quarters said the Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission which recently broke up in Scheveningen, the Netherlands, might meet again soon, thus obviating necessity for the projected special session of the league of nations council, admittedly likely to be embarrassing for many league members.

Italians Flee Army Service.

[Copyright: 1935: By the United Press.]

VIENNA, July 20.—Italians are fleeing daily across the Jugo-Slavian and Austrian frontiers to escape army service, it was learned today.

Reliable sources on the Jugo-Slavian side of the northeastern frontier of Italy estimated that more than 900 Italians had crossed the frontier there. Most of them were of Slovene origin.

Fear Many Persons Dead in Turkish Munitions Blast

ISTANBUL, July 20.—(AP)—Many persons were reported dead tonight in a terrific explosion at a munitions dump near here. A considerable area around the dump was badly damaged and residents in the vicinity fled in panic. It was the second explosion at the munitions plant within a month.

CUT ANTI-ITALIAN NEWS, ROME ASKS JAPS; HOOTED AT

Tokio Tells Mussolini to Mind Own Business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, July 20.—Japan bluntly told Italy today to mind its business and mend its ways before telling other countries to put a strict censorship on news unfavorable to Italy. Japan was replying to the Italian ambassador's protest against publication of anti-Italian news in Japanese newspapers.

Count Giacinto Auriti, the Italian ambassador, called on Foreign Minister Koki Hirota and requested a stricter censorship of the press, which has been publishing news unfavorable to Italy.

Feature American's Story.

The newspapers Jiji Shimpo and the Japan Times last week featured a story from Switzerland by an American writer, Albin Johnson, stating that the Italian people are half-heartedly supporting the Ethiopian campaign and that sickness is spreading among the troops.

Count Auriti categorically denied the truth of these as well as all other statements in the story. Hirota, through the foreign office spokesman, Eiji Amau, today suggested, however, that the Italians might better mend their ways before asking favors of Tokio.

He pointed out that leading Italian papers, which are strictly censored and controled by the government, have been publishing anti-Japanese matter and have charged that Ethiopia is breaking her treaty with Italy of 1928 by favoring Japanese goods over Italian.

Recalls Mussolini's Action.

Japanese newspapers recall that Premier Mussolini went out of his way last year to oppose the marriage of Masako Kuroda, daughter of Viscount Hiroyuki Kuroda, to Prince Araya Ababa, a nephew of Emperor Haile Selassie I. of Ethiopia. The marriage was subsequently called off.

The press and public here are also irked at the issuance of an official communique in Italy on the talks between Japanese Ambassador Yotaro Sugimaru and Mussolini without a previous agreement.

Sugimaru was reported to have assured Il Duce that the Japanese would not interfere in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. It was declared yesterday in Tokio that he had committed Japan without authority.

Writer Defends Aim of Duce to Grab a Portion of Ethopia

New York, July 20. — [Special.] — Luigi Pirandello, Italian novelist and playwright, arrived here today breathing fire upon Ethiopia.

It was canned fire in the form of a typed statement which a fellow passenger, commercial attaché of the Italian embassy in Washington, distributed on behalf of the urbane old man even before a large press delegation had made its way into his cabin.

Its prose style was not that which the world associates with Pirandello, Nobel prize winner, but more like that of Mussolini.

"Don't Understand Politics."

Pirandello wanted to rest his political views with that, even pleaded, smilingly, "I don't understand politics," through the corporal's squad of representatives who translated his Italian.

But when a reporter commented mournfully that it wasn't nice to take Ethiopia away from the Ethiopians, Pirandello's hands leaped into the air, his sharp white beard bobbed excitedly.

"Well, America was inhabited by the Indians and you took it away from them!" he cried. "Didn't you? Didn't you?"

On Way to Hollywood.

Pirandello [entitled to be called His Excellency as a member of the Italian Academy] is here for two or three months, most of which he will spend in Hollywood making a scenario of one of his plays.

The typed statement on Ethiopia, or Abyssinia, as he called it ran in part: "With reference to Abyssinia, it is to be observed, first of all, that the Italian people are following their Duce with absolute unanimity, in the determination to solve this problem once for all. For more than fifty years Italy has consistently tried to open to civilization the closed feudal world of the Ethiopia highlands. All peaceful efforts have been nullified by the persistent hostility of Abyssinian chieftains, who are only interested in continuing, by brute force and under terrifying slavery conditions, their domination of the Abyssinian people.

Home for White Race.

"By their bold and tenacious efforts for more than a century, the American people have conquered a whole continent and made it a home for the prolific work of the white race.

"I am sure they cannot withhold their sympathetic feelings for the Italian people, determined to call to civilization the last African regions where slavery still is openly and shamefully perpetuated. For I cannot forget that your forefathers did not hesitate to engage in a long and bloody civil war for the abolition of slavery on the American continent, under the leadership of President Lincoln, who had the courage to fight and die for such an essential cause."

BRITISH TROOPS FIRE ON MOSLEM MOB; 10 KILLED

2,000 Angered by Tearing Down of Mosque.

LAHORE, India, July 21 [Sunday].—(AP)—A day and night of rioting in Lahore left nine Moslems and one British trooper dead tonight, with further serious trouble expected before dawn.

Most of the deaths occurred when British troops of the Royal Scots guards fired into 2,000 Moslems charging toward the Shahidguna mosque in an effort to halt its demolition, which is being accomplished by Sikhs.

An undetermined number of persons were injured. Natives fleeing the hail of lead carried most of their dead and injured with them, leaving the bodies of only three of those killed.

Trooper Knocked from Horse.

The trooper was killed when he was knocked from his horse in the mad mêlée raging around the mosque, which the Moslems claim.

Balked in their efforts to reach the heavily guarded building, the natives adopted Mahatma Gandhi's "passive resistance" tactics, squatting in the streets in protest. The temper of the crowds continued ugly, however, and the situation was tense. All entrances to shops were guarded, bazars were closed, and armored police cars patroled the streets.

Three Hundred Arrested.

The governor, accompanied by other high officials, was attempting to restore order and pacify the maddened Moslems.

The shooting occurred when the crowd, refusing to disperse despite the arrest of 300 of its number, flung itself upon the lines of troops, hurling bricks, stones, and other missils. Four rounds were fired at the mob before it retreated.

Early today all streets in the area were barricaded with barbed wire, and heavy forces of troops and police stood guard. Despite curfew regulations, mobs remained in the streets beyond the barrier. Their attitude was threatening.

Communistic Aid Charged in Strike; Two Arrested

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 20.—(AP)—Communistic activity in the Morrell packing plant strike here was disclosed today as the situation quieted down after yesterday's rioting in which 54 union and nonunion men were injured in a hand to hand battle. Police announced two persons were arrested and released with warnings after being held over night, and said a quantity of communist literature was seized. They were booked as Mrs. Al Long and E. M. Fitzroy, Sioux Falls.

MEXICO PUTS BAN ON GAMBLING IN BORDER TOWNS

TIJUANA, Mexico, July 20.—(AP)—A ban on gambling here and at Agua Caliente was ordered today by President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico.

The gambling ban was announced as of "indefinite duration," but Tijuana interests, deeply alarmed, feared it would be made permanent. They pointed out that President Cardenas' policy aims at elimination of all gambling in the republic and that gambling has been forbidden everywhere except at the local resorts since last Jan. 1.

Lou Anger, general manager of the Agua Caliente Jocky club, immediately announced racing would be suspended after today's program, since pari-mutuel betting at the track comes within the scope of the order.

NEW RELIGIOUS RIOTS FLARE IN BELFAST; 2 SHOT

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 20.—(AP)—Two persons were wounded tonight in another outbreak of religious disorders as the death of John McKay, shot July 12 in a riot, brought the week's toll of such disturbances to eight lives during the week.

The city, tense after an unidentified gunman's shots caused an afternoon stampede, was startled this evening by general firing in the trouble torn area. John O'Hara was wounded in the shins, and John Diamond was shot in the arm.

The earlier shooting occurred as thousands were taking part in a demonstration during the funeral procession for one of the week's rioting victims.

'CENTRAL POWER' GUIDING WAR ON PWA, SAYS ICKES

Wants to Give Evidence at Lobby Inquiry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—Armed with what he termed "documentary evidence," Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes today plunged into the utility lobby investigation. He charged that private utility companies are making a "concentrated attack" on municipal power projects financed by the PWA.

Ickes expressed himself convinced that some "central source" is responsible for 22 widely separated legal attempts to frustrate the government's power program. He said he is prepared to go before the house lobby investigating committee to give evidence gathered by his legal department, if he receives an invitation.

Smarts Under Reverses.

In a public charge Ickes did not disclose the source from which he expects to prove the suits emanated. At PWA headquarters it was said Ickes' charge is the result of his smarting under adverse court decisions he has received, the last being the upset of his housing program by a federal court at Cincinnati.

"In virtually all of the 22 cases," Ickes said, "the language of the legal documents presented against the municipal power projects is similar in so far as questions of constitutionality are concerned. In some instances it is identical."

"For Worthy Purpose."

Asked if it is unusual for legal actions of a similar nature to be almost identical, PWA officials were silent. Pressed further on the fact that various enabling bills sent to the states by the PWA were identical, the officials said that circumstance was "a bird of another feather" because it was hatched by the New Deal for "worthy purposes."

Of the 22 bills which attacked the constitutionality of the PWA power program, 18 are in federal courts and four in state courts. The government won 9 suits, 3 have been won by utility companies, 9 motions to dismiss are pending, and in the last case an injunction was allowed on the ground the bond ordinance was subject to referendum.

Use of Funds Attacked.

The attack of private companies was made on the ground that the constitution does not confer power on congress to appropriate national funds to finance such local and competitive activities. The companies also attacked as unconstitutional the power to select projects for financing vested in the President.

Investigation of the 22 cases was made by Henry T. Hunt, general counsel for the PWA.

HOOVER TO MEET MORE LEADERS OF G. O. P. THIS WEEK

Palo Alto, Cal., July 20.—(AP)—While political observers pondered today the significance of coincidental visits of prominent Republicans to the home of Herbert Hoover, the former President and a group of friends spent the week-end at a northern California resort section.

He will return here tomorrow, his secretary, Paul Sexson, said, prepared to greet Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland. Other visitors scheduled to call later in the week are Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war; James M. Beck, former solicitor general, and Frank Knox, Chicago publisher.

Mr. Hoover's departure late yesterday for the annual Bohemian grove conclave came three days earlier than expected.

Sexson today reiterated the absence of political import in the arrival of the Hoover guests, declaring it was just a coincidence and that the visits will be purely social.

Since Mr. Hoover has thus far declined to commit himself on the 1936 political situation, some observers were of the opinion the visits might be preludes to a definite announcement on the subject.

CALLS ROOSEVELT BIGGEST LOBBYIST IN THE COUNTRY

New Hartford, N. Y., July 20.—[Special.]—Melvin C. Eaton, Republican state chairman, in an address at a Republican garden party at the home of Mrs. Alice D. Proctor, Republican vice chairman of Oneida county, attacked President Roosevelt today in connection with the congressional inquiry into lobbying.

"In the last week or so we have read many denunciations against lobbying in Washington, these attacks emanating from the New Deal," Mr. Eaton said. "Now, I am not here to defend lobbying, nor have I any interest in the subject. But did it ever occur to you that Mr. Roosevelt is the greatest lobbyist of them all? That he lobbies with money, with influence, with patronage, with public works projects, with appointments of rubber stamp legislators to committees and in a score of other ways, so compel passage of legislation in his program?"

The state chairman continued with an argument that the President, in seeking to influence legislation, is usurping the functions of congress.

SCOTS TO HONOR BURNS' MEMORY IN FETE TODAY

There'll be bagpipes skirling and tartans whirling in Garfield park this afternoon when the Scots of Chicago gather there for their outstanding ceremony of the year.

They will gather at the foot of the lofty bronze statue of Robert Burns and will pay homage to the poet on this, the 139th anniversary of his death. Matthew Settridge of Evanston, author of "Reveries of a Wandering Scot," will be the chief speaker.

And there will be parading, with the Curtiss Kilties band piping and the kilted representatives of the various Scottish clans in the line of march.

The program will start at 1:30 and will continue, if tradition is followed, until twilight.

Irish-Americans Observe Revival of Feis of Tara

Chicago Irish-Americans gathered at Shewbridge stadium, 74th and Aberdeen streets, last night to take part in a revival of the international Irish feis of Tara. Just as music, dancing, and song featured the first feis, held bu the druids on the Hill of Tara in 500 B. C., so ancient melodies and folk dances featured the feis of last night. The sweet notes of the Irish harp mingled with the shrill notes of 100 pipers as the ancient music was played again. Concertinists, flutists, and violinists also took part, while old and young alike joined in competitive dancing.

matter and eliminated the Tugwell provision aimed at the press. So great was the reaction even on the Democratic side of the chamber against the expansion of the burocracy that the administration leaders were compelled to withdraw the food bill from consideration after a few days' debate and send it back to the calendar to avoid a recommitment to the committee.

Pass Bill in Amended Form.

Eventually the senate passed the bill in an amended form which, eliminating publishers, confined liability for false advertising claims to advertisers of commodities. Also the senate adopted an amendment removing advertising and branding from the category of adulteration. Senator Josiah W. Bailey [Dem., N. C.], who moved the amendment, said the effect of the original provision would be to force advertisers to submit advertising copy to a department of agriculture burocrat. Senator Bennett Champ Clark [Dem., Mo.] characterized the bill as "burocracy gone mad."

The bill is now pending in the house.

The administration has not hesitated to crack down on advertising by which it is displeased. In the heyday of the NRA James Murray, a tradesman of Lynn, Mass., inserted in the newspapers an advertisment which contained his opinion of the "recovery" institution. Gen. Johnson was so incensed that he snatched Mr. Murray's Blue Eagle. This action created such a scandal that the Blue Eagle eventually was restored to the tradesman, but by that time he had gone into bankruptcy.

Move to Raise Press Rate.

Antagonism of the Roosevelt administration to the press also cropped out recently in connection with a move by the new federal communications commission in the direction of raising telegraph rates on press dispatches.

In the course of the pending investigation of telegraph rates by the commission J. P. Bramhall, general counsel for the commission, directed a barrage of questions at J. C. Willever, first vice president of the Western Union Telegraph company, attacking the lower rates charged for press messages than for commercial and other service.

"It may be that newspapers have lost literary caste and become highly commercialized, which would be a factor in determining rates," said Mr. Bramhall.

Mr. Bramhall in another question asserted that the newspapers carry a greater volume of advertising compared to the volume of news than a decade or two ago. Mr. Willever replied that he did not understand this to be the case. He knew of no just basis for the charge of commercialism. On the contrary, he said, the newspapers are carrying a greater volume of news than ever before.

Justified by Public Interest.

"Press telegraphic rates," said Mr. Willever, "are justified by the public interest in the dissemination of news. As operating officials we would like to see the rates raised, but we have no intention of seeking an increase from the commission and are not appearing at this hearing to pave the way for such a step."

Much significance was attached to the commission counsel's line of questioning because of that fact that when the legislation creating the commission was enacted last year it was pointed out that the administration had forged another instrumentality for use for cracking down on the press through control of telegraph press rates.

The amount of press matter telegraphed from Washington, for example, could be materially lessened, it was pointed out, by forcing a raise on press rates on the telegraph companies.

President Is Displeased.

President Roosevelt himself has long been displeased with the treatment of Washington news by the press. At the very outset of his administration an attempt was made to curb the press along the lines of the President's views. The state department drafted and sent to congress for passage a bill ostensibly designed to circumvent publication in an alleged forthcoming book, certain code messages passing between the Japanese government and its ambassador in Washington, which had been intercepted and decoded by the state department in a previous administration.

The house passed this bill on April 3, 1933, by a vote of 300 to 29, after 20 minutes' discussion in which a single protest against the censorship of the press was bowled over by the pleas of the Democratic leaders to grant the request of the administration to avert an embarrassing incident.

Beneficial to People.

When the bill reached the senate, however, a storm of opposition broke upon it. It was pointed out that the press obtains and publishes almost every day information the disclosure of which administration officials profess to deem detrimental to the "interest" if not the "safety" of the United States, but which proves highly benecial to the "interest" of the people in acquainting them with actions their public servants would conceal.

On April 21 Secretary of State Hull disclaimed any intention of muzzling the press and asked that the censorship provisions be stricken from the bill. As a result the bill, as it became law, was limited to the unauthorized publication of code messages.

The next threat to the freedom of the press was derived from the institution of the NRA. The administration sought to impose upon the newspaper publishers a code under which they would concede the right of the President to license newspapers and to suspend publication of any of them by withdrawal of the license, as provided by the industrial act for all business enterprise.

Question Drags On for Months.

The fight over this question dragged on for months, with the President and Gen. Johnson opposing inclusion of the reservation in the code. Eventually they surrendered—by degrees. First, they agreed to the inclusion in the code of the provision that it could not be modified except with the consent of the publishers and that the publishers do not "waive any constitutional rights or consent to the imposition of any requirements that might restrict or interfere with the constitutional guarantee of the freedom of the press."

But in signing the code the President took a rap at the publishers. He called the freedom of the press reservation "pure surplusage," said the constitutional guarantee is "freedom of expression, and that will be scrupulously respected—but it is not freedom to work children, or do business in a fire trap, or violate the laws against obscenity, libel, and lewdness."

The President also incorporated in the executive order promulgating the code the statement that the code could be modified even if the publishers were not to consent. The publishers refused to sign the code with this executive nullification of the reservation. A week later the President capitulated and issued another executive order in which he recanted and pronounced the reservation "approved as submitted and without modification, condition, or qualification."

Antagonistic to Press.

Throughout this conflict the antagonistic attitude of the administration to the press was abundantly demonstrated. Administration officials sought to exalt the radio, over which the government had complete control, as a medium of publicity superior to the newspapers. The President conveyed a threat to the correspondents of two metropolitan journals that were critical of the administration to go on the air in denunciation of the editors of their papers.

Gen. Johnson in his 1933 Labor day speech in Chicago said that the NRA chiefly relied on the force of public opinion to enforce Blue Eagle compliance, remarking that "the radio and motion pictures have enabled the people to know instantly what is going on and more nearly every year to think and act as one." According to Editor and Publisher this was the third public address in which Gen. Johnson had omitted the mention of newspapers as a major channel of publicity.

On Aug. 19, 1933, Gen. Johnson requested all newspapers to coöperate for the nation's welfare by contributing a free page of advertising to the NRA. He also asked each paper for two free annual subscriptions. Editor and Publisher pointed out that the advertising requested would cost at the regular rates $400,000. In his annual report as dean of the Columbia School of Journalism Carl W. Ackerman said that "the refusal of many daily newspapers to give advertising space to the National Recovery administration was brought to the attention of the American people by Gen. Johnson over the radio."

Use Radio to Build Backfire.

"True," he added, "it was subtly done and it was only an incident, but the fact should be recorded that any government in Washington may, if it wishes, use the radio [a channel of communication subject to federal control] to build a backfire in homes against any individual, business, or institution, even though the first amendment to the constitution guarantees freedom of opinion, speech, and assembly or petition."

Another collision between the administration and the press occurred when Eugene H. Dunnegan, an agent of the department of labor threatened to cause the prosecution of Dick Thompson, editor of the Tallahassie [Ala.] Tribune, for publication of editorials he conceived to be in violation of the national recovery act. The editor defied him to proceed and stood upon his constitutional rights. Under fire Secretary of Labor Perkins eventually disavowed the action of her agent.

SPEAKER BYRNS PUTS IN 66TH BIRTHDAY AT DESK; PRAISES HOUSE

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—On the 198th day of the 74th congress Speaker Joseph Wellington Byrns today celebrated his 66th birthday. He celebrated by sitting tight in his big swivel chair and attacking a mass of letters and documents at his desk between congratulatory visits.

SPEAKER BYRNS.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

"This session hasn't been so hard," the speaker said. "Why, I recollect back in 1918 we had one that lasted 354 days."

Speaker Byrns has been in the house continuously since 1909.

"I've been here through peace, through war, through panic, through recovery; through almost every conceivable condition," he reflected. "And I wouldn't trade my experience for anything else I could have done.

"In all the years I've been here, the members of the house, with few exceptions, have been men of high ability.

"I've never served with a better congress than the present one."

DEBATE ON AAA BILL RESULTS IN A TARIF BATTLE

La Follette's Plan Brings Attack by Tydings.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—Embroiled in a fight over the loss of world markets and the futility of trying to solve the depression by artificial restrictions on production and price increases, the senate today made no progress on the controversial AAA amendments bill. After nine days of debate it appeared unlikely that a final vote could be reached before the middle of next week.

Today's discussion assumed the nature of a tarif battle royal when Senator Robert La Follette [Radical, Wis.], offered an amendment giving President Roosevelt discretionary power to restrict quotas of agricultural imports on a finding that they threaten the domestic restriction policy.

Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.], however, assailed the whole AAA scheme as an "approach from the wrong angle" and as "violating every economic principle which can safely be used to conduct a nation's affairs."

Limits Cut to Half.

La Follette's amendment, on which the senate did not reach a vote, would authorize the President to reduce quotas of agricultural imports from any country by not more than 50 per cent of its 1928-1933 average. It was a modification of a house provision stricken out by the senate agriculture committee.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], defended the amendment but not the AAA, and cited figures showing "alarming" increases in agricultural imports since the inauguration of the crop reduction program.

"It is not a question of whether the AAA program is good, bad or indifferent," he said. "Having embarked upon a policy of restriction, the question is whether we shall pursue it to its logical conclusion. The value in dollars of agricultural imports for the first quarter of 1935 was 72 million dollars, a rate of 300 million dollars a year in commodities on which we are taxing our citizens for a parity price. If there is any logic on the face of this earth in taxing people 400 to 500 million dollars and admitting under the tarif walls 300 million dollars' worth of competing products, I don't know what it is.

And Still Imports Gain.

"The constant and persistent trend is a challenging increase in these importations. If this rate of increase continues, your system cannot work."

Senator Vandenberg said that imports of corn increased from 112,000 bushels for the first quarter in 1934 to 7 million bushels in the same period this year; wheat imports increased from 11,000 to 3½ million bushels and canned meats increased from 2,600,000 to 16 million pounds.

Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], said he had information that the largest cotton textile company in the world, employing 12,000 persons, would be forced to close within 60 days as a result of higher costs due to the NRA and the AAA processing taxes and the steadily increasing competition of Japanese imports.

Senator Thomas P. Gore, [Dem., Okla.], however, ridiculed the arguments of Senators Vandenberg and Walsh, saying figures meant nothing without percentages. Japan, he said, buys 1,700,000 bales of American cotton a year—more than England, France and Germany combined—while her exports of cotton textiles to the United States aggregate less than 1 per cent of our domestic production.

Not Enough for a Meal.

"Sixteen million pounds of canned meats," he exclaimed. "A rate of 64 million pounds a year. That wouldn't make a single meal for the American people."

Senator Tydings' thesis was that America cannot hope to sell goods abroad without buying from the rest of the world, but he assailed the scheme to raise agricultural prices by curtailing production.

"I believe that in 1937 or 1938," he said, "the job of the senate is going to be to unscramble this whole situation and it is going to be a bigger job than any one the senate has undertaken so far. These are all artificial measures. Obviously if industry is getting more than it should in comparison with agriculture, then the thing to do is to pull industry down to the level where agriculture can exist on the same parity.

"If it is wrong, as claimed by the agriculturists, to put industry on stilts, it is equally wrong to put agriculture on stilts.

Blames It on NRA.

"We had the NRA and what did it do? The NRA put the farmer further below parity than he ever was before the NRA was established. The fact was recognized at once that the farmer was not getting a fair return for his toil, and one of the first acts passed was one accentuating the unfairness between agriculture and industry.

"What I mean to say is that the mission of congress is not to condone evils by raising up other things to the standard of the evils, but our mission is to bring these things which are too high down so that all will rest on a good, solid foundation."

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] wanted to know whether the last Democratic convention hadn't declared this to be the mission of congress. Tydings said it had, and Glass replied: "And not a sentence has been written into the law in the three years the party has been in power looking to that end."

"The senator is correct," said Senator Tydings. "What is the condition of the United States today, not only as respects agriculture, but along other lines? Go into the cities of the United States, with their great reservoirs of unemployed. Do you mean to tell me that you can make food cost more and at the same time help the distressed people in the cities, for whom we have just appropriated 4 billion 880 million dollars?

"I am not going to vote for the measure because it further handicaps America in competing in the world markets. We have already lost the world markets, not necessarily because of the depression. You would have lost them in 1920 and 1922 if we had not been sending billions of dollars abroad each year in the form of international loans, which the borrowers were using to pay for our goods. You have had 14 or 15 years of this illusion of prosperity. We refuse to face the naked fact that trade has ultimately to come to a balance."

An effort by Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] to reconsider the rejection of an amendment putting a compensatory tax on rayon, as a competitor of cotton, was rejected.

ROOSEVELT NEAR TO IMPEACHABLE GROUND—SNELL

Cites Remark on Bill to Control Coal.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was accused today by House Republican Leader Bertrand H. Snell of having come "perilously close to what some people call impeachable grounds."

In a statement palpably projected toward next year's election, Snell lashed the administration's entire legislative program and particularly the President's "latest vagary," the proposed taxes on wealth.

"No administration in the history of this country," he said, "has had such a confusing record and I hazard the guess that none ever will be so inconsiderate of the statutes, the constitution, and generally, what the people really want.

Courts Are Feared.

"Every effort has been made to circumvent the courts, a clear admission that the administration fears the worst for its legislation.

"In pursuing this headstrong course, Mr. Roosevelt has come perilously close to what some people call impeachable grounds."

Elaborating on the impeachable angle, Snell said the President was on the border line of violating his oath to preserve, protect and defend the constitution, when in a letter to Chairman Samuel B. Hill [Dem., Wash.] of a ways and means subcommittee he urged approval of the Guffey-Snyder coal bill and said:

"I hope your committee will not permit doubt as to the constitutionality, however reasonable, to block the suggested legislation."

"House of Cards Tumbling."

Urging the President to review his "failures," the minority leader said Mr. Roosevelt's "house of cards is tumbling" and his "policies have been wrecked."

"Yet to satisfy his own whims," he asserted, "he would proceed still further along the road to ruin."

Snell noted that virtually every major piece of legislation "born of Mr. Roosevelt's refusal to abide by American principles of government" has been challenged as unconstitutional or been so held in the courts.

He said the nation "is awake to the faultiness" of Roosevelt policies and "the hardships they have wrought" and that "the country knows that the New Deal administration is not acting in its welfare."

Then Snell attacked the executive for "forcing his own legislative vagaries" on a Democratic congress "in the hope of enhancing his personal political fortunes, regardless of the disastrous effect faulty legislation always has."

Turning to the tax bill, Snell said:

"The attitude of the administration in this matter is additional proof that railroading and recklessness in the consideration of important legislation are synonymous with Roosevelt."

REPUBLICANS GET ALL SET TO RIP UP RIVALS' RECORD

Whip Campaign on "State Affairs" Into Shape.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Republicans began yesterday to whip into shape the campaign ammunition on Illinois affairs which they consider the Democrats furnished in the recently ended session of the legislature. As set forth by some of the G. O. P. reorganizers, some of the points to be stressed at the coming group meetings in addition to the general onslaught upon the New Deal and its efforts to tear down America's constitution, are:

1. The "subservience" of the statehouse to the New Deal and the brain trust as exemplified in Gov. Henry Horner's five unsuccessful attempts to pass the 3 cent sales tax as an emergency measure to take immediate effect at the instance of Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator. After five futile efforts to roll up a two-thirds vote in the house the emergency clause was stricken, and, a mere majority vote then sufficing, the bill was passed to take effect July 1, the regular date for nonemergency acts.

Cite "Honest Election" Defeat.

2. The killing by the Democratic machine of the honest election bills which would have provided for permanent registration of voters in Chicago. The bills were tabled in the house after a filibuster had dragged them out of the committee where the chloroform bottle was uncorked.

3. The ousting of Senator Arthur J. Bidwill, Republican, of the Seventh district, in favor of Charles F. Baumrucker, Democrat, without any senate recount of ballots. In massmeetings in the district this action has been denounced as a "brazen theft" by a Democrat machine "drunk with power" which disfranchised more than 60,000 voters. Senator T. V. Smith, University of Chicago professor of philosophy, a Democrat who voted against the ouster of Bidwill, said in the senate the only reason for the unseating was "We Democrats are lousy with power."

These three points are main ones to be given emphasis in a series of Republican ward organization meetings. In addition the G. O. P. reorganization committee of Cook county is circulating a declaration which speaks of the New Deal activities of Gov. Horner, "who used the power of his office to compel the enactment of the tyrannical state NRA law."

Uphold Grass Roots Principles.

Nearly all the Republican ward organizations have in recent weeks affirmed the declaration of principles of the Grass Roots conference of ten midwest states at Springfield last month. Now the program is to take up also aspects of the New Deal in Illinois as well as in the nation.

An increasing flock of candidates is in the offing, but the G. O. P. reorganization groups, as did the Springfield Grass Rooters, are putting the soft pedal on talk of candidacies. At this period they declare the need is to concentrate upon laying the foundation for the coming campaign and upon crystalizing principles and issues.

About a dozen Republican candidacies for governor or other state offices are being talked of. They are of all types, ranging from probable or possible to potential or problematic.

Otis F. Glenn, former United States senator of Murphysboro, is being talked of for governor. John G. Oglesby of Elkhart, former lieutenant governor and son of Governor Richard J. Oglesby, has announced his candidacy.

State Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield, minority leader of the senate, asked to run by a group of colleagues headed by Senator Charles W. Baker of Ogle county, has his hat in the ring. Oscar E. Carlstrom of Aledo, former attorney general, and Congressman Everett M. Dirksen of the Peoria district have their supporters.

Brooks a Possibility.

C. Wayland [Curly] Brooks is on the list of governorship possibilities. In 1934 he carried downstate for congressman at large and came closer to winning than did any other Republican on the statewide ticket. In 1932 he was defeated in his race for state treasurer by only 128,700 in the face of Roosevelt's 449,000 landslide and Horner's 566,000 plurality.

In some quarters Edward A. Hayes of Decatur is spoken of as a possibility for governor or attorney general. He is former national commander of the American Legion and was head of the resolutions committee at the Grass Roots conclave. Among the house members at Springfield several are mentioned when possible candidacies are discussed.

Among them is Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago, regarded as one of the pillars of the house. Another is Leroy M. Green of Rockford, Republican house leader. Schnackenberg and Green led the filibuster for the honest election bills. Both are spoken of in connection with the governorship or the attorney generalship.

Stratton Also Considered.

Friends of William J. Stratton, former secretary of state, speak of him for some place on the state ticket as the best Republican vote getter in the two last campaigns.

But in this period candidates are the last thing the Grass Rooters say they are considering. They hold to the Springfield Grass Root policy of keeping the movement free of office hunting. H. L. Williamson, secretary of the Illinois Republican Editorial association, sent a questionnaire over the state on available candidates. But the Egyptian Republican reports the response he got was that Republicans everywhere are giving their time to organization work, leaving discussion of candidates for later on.

G. O. P. Leaders Inaugurate Analysis of New Deal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—The Republican national committee today fired its first gun in the 1936 presidential campaign with the inauguration of a publicity service to the Republican and independent press of the country. The service, under the title of "Facts and Opinions," is to consist of an analysis of administration moves and a presentation of editorial comment on Washington affairs.

Of the four pages of the first issue, two are devoted to analysis and two to the reproduction of editorials. In the analysis are articles on utility lobbying, unemployed preferring relief to work, "must" legislation, delay in launching the works relief program, and the President's tax program.

In a foreword Chairman Henry P. Fletcher states "the facts [and they will be facts, and can be relied upon as such] contained in this service will be offered with a minimum of comment, purely for the information of these publications receiving it.

Points to New Deal Laws.

"The Republican national committee fully believes that, put in possession of facts, the editors of the press of the United States are fully competent to draw their own conclusions and make their own observations."

The foreword points to the close on last June 30 of the second fiscal year under the New Deal and declares that in that period the Roosevelt administration had complete control of the executive and legislative branches of government. An "obsequious" congress—heavily Democratic in both branches—enacted a vast amount of experimental legislation in the period at the request of the White House, much of it clearly unconstitutional, Mr. Fletcher asserts.

"During these two years the Roosevelt administration actually expended over $14,480,000,000, incurred a deficit of $7,565,000,000, increased the interest bearing public debt [exclusive of farm mortgage corporation and HOLC bonds, which the United States treasury lists as government liabilities] to over $27,645,000,000 greater than it was at the close of the world war, and added 148,625 individuals to the federal pay roll, an increase of 26 per cent, involving an additional annual cost of $250,000,000," Mr. Fletcher continues.

"Time for Fair Appraisal."

"The Roosevelt administration has had ample time and opportunity to justify its program, offered in the name of recovery. The time has now arrived for the American people to make a fair appraisal of what these two years of experimental legislation and unprecedented expenditure have done for them—and to them. How much real recovery have they brought?

"This question becomes all the more pertinent in view of the fact that President Roosevelt is an avowed candidate for renomination and reëlection.

"The fiction that he should not be criticised because he is the President of the United States disappears in view of the very concrete fact that his official family and spokesmen already have opened the 1936 campaign. Over the radio, in the public prints, and from the public platform they already are insisting the President is entitled to renomination and reëlection upon his record. From now on he must be judged as a candidate and his record as properly open for the minutest inspection."

White House Lobby Cited.

In the article on utility lobbying the Republican bulletin asserts that the lobbying investigation is not going to be anything short of a whitewash unless "it brings into the open all facts regarding the activities of gentlemen representing the administration and the White House." The article deals with the activities of Thomas G. Corcoran, New Deal lawyer; Charles West, the President's liason man with congress, and Dr. Ernest H. Gruening, a radical aid to Ickes, in behalf of the "death sentence" in the utility bill.

On "must" legislation, "Facts and Opinions" states that the President is "becoming annoyed, if not alarmed" at the practice of newspapers of referring to his "must" program, because it smacks of dictatorship. Yet the word has gone forth that congress "must" remain in session until it passes a tax bill. The service concludes that in spite of all denials there is a "must" program.

Commenting further on the tax bill, the Republican committee says, "Until he came to his 'soak the rich' tax bill, President Roosevelt has not been hesitant about telling congress what he wanted in the way of legislation. Most of his messages to congress were accompanied with, or followed by, drafts of proposed administration bills.

Innovation in Tax Bill.

"Not so when the tax program was dumped in the lap of congress. Then, for the first time, the President announced to party leaders that congress should write its own bill. That was an innovation.

"The instant reaction of the press and the nation to the President's tax proposal was adverse. Most severe criticism came from Democratic sources. The 'soak the rich' idea proved to be tremendously unpopular."

This fact, the committee concludes, led the White House to attempt to shift responsibility for the unpopular measure on congress. Such maneuvering has not increased the popularity of the President with Democrats, the statement says, as the Democratic congress has "no appetite for the dose handed them by the President."

On the works relief program the committee declared there is a growing suspicion in the minds of Democratic senators and congressmen that the President is holding back the program until he gets all his "must" program through congress.

LAUNCH MOVE TO CHANGE NAME OF THE G. O. P.

Business Men Circulate 'Constitutional' Petitions

Green Bay, Wis., July 20.—[Special.]—Formal effort to change the name of the Republican party with a view to effecting a coalition of dissatisfied members of the Democratic party with the Republicans under a "constitutional party" or some other appropriate name was started here today with circulation of the first of a series of petitions that its authors hope to become a nation-wide movement.

The petitions were launched by a group of Green Bay and De Pere businessmen, most of whom were delegates to the Republican "Grass Roots" rally in Springfield, Ill., recently.

Urges New Name.

The petition suggests that the name of the party be changed to a name descriptive of the ideals and purposes of the party in the present emergency from the term "Republican" which arose out of the threatened disintegration of the Union in 1862.

Ideals and purposes alluded to in the petition include that "sectionalism should be eliminated and a united stand taken throughout the entire country by those believing in the constitution for the common cause of preserving America for the Americans in a coalition party embodying the ideals of both Jefferson and Lincoln.

"Inceptors of the petition stress that no attempt is being made to organize a third party, and if the movement fails, they will remain loyal to the Republican cause.

Would Retain Working Staf.

The entire working organization of the present Republican party will be maintained, regardless of name, but members of other parties aligning themselves under the new banner would be accorded a status in the new coalition corresponding to that held in their old party.

A meeting of the men behind the petition will be held Tuesday night to effect an organization to promulgate the petition on a nation-wide scale.

The signed petitions will be forwarded to the Republican national committee in New York for consideration.

ROBS LOOP BANK MESSENGER.

Frank Rogala, 245 West North avenue, a messenger for the First National bank, yesterday was robbed of an envelope containing three checks as he was crossing Desplaines street at Madison street. Bank officials said the checks would be valueless to the robbers.

FISH, SINCLAIR UNITE IN CALLING NEW DEAL FAILURE

New Yorker Labels It Socialism.

Chautauqua, N. Y., July 20.—(AP)—Upton Sinclair, nationally known Socialist, and Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., New York Republican, debating here today Sinclair's EPIC plan to end poverty by production for use, spent most of their time agreeing that the New Deal was a "failure."

Fish, after saying he considered "EPIC, the New Deal, and Socialism as one and the same thing," paid so little attention to discussing the question, "Is EPIC within the American constitution?" that Sinclair twitted him about it again and again. After the debate Fish told a questioner he was "satisfied EPIC is entirely unconstitutional."

Insists EPIC Is Constitutional.

Sinclair insisted the plan to put the unemployed to work growing and making things for their own use was constitutional. He said the government now was doing everything EPIC proposed, but "doing it idiotically, such as manicuring the highways."

The men spoke at Chautauqua institution to 4,000 persons, who cheered Sinclair loudly, but gave applause just as freely to his opponent when Fish said "There isn't a single abuse or evil in our economic system that can't be solved under our constitution without recourse to Socialism or Hitlerism, and that is how we propose to solve them."

Sinclair was defeated last year for the California governorship. Fish is mentioned as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination next years.

Fish was chairman of a congressional committee which investigated Red activities in this country, and Sinclair called him a "noted Red hunter."

Fears Sinclair and President.

Fish retorted: "It isn't Reds I fear; if the communists tried an armed uprising they would be liquidated in two weeks. The people I am fearful of are Sinclair and the President of the United States, who take the people into collectivism and state socialism."

Sinclair said there was only one question, whether the government had the right to buy land, factories, and tools to put the unemployed to work. He said this was being done, but in such "idiotic" ways the unemployed got small benefits.

Fish said the New Deal was a failure because it was socialistic. Sinclair said it failed because it was "contrary to economic law."

Chautauqua institution sponsored the debate as part of its annual summer program.

INJURIES IN FALL KILL MAN, 84.

Henry Schmidt, 84 years old, 5732 Blackstone avenue, died in the Illinois Central hospital yesterday of a fractured right hip, which he incurred when he fell on the stairs at his home July 5.

FIRED DEMOCRAT OF TEXAS WARS ON ROOSEVELT

Crockett, Tex., July 20.—[U. P.]—Joe Bailey Humphreys, ousted executive secretary of the Young Democrats of Texas, today assailed President Roosevelt and his son, Elliott Roosevelt, in an announcement of plans to organize a states' rights Democratic group.

The proposed organization would have as its purpose the defeat for renomination of President Roosevelt, he said.

Humphreys has been active in the unsuccessful fight to oust Elliott as vice president of the Texas young Democratic organization. He said, however, that the attack would not be upon the President himself, but on his handling of affairs and his principles of national administration.

"The party has been betrayed and double crossed by the present national administration," Humphreys asserted, "and it is time that the Democrats of Texas, as well as those of the nation, awake to the fact.

"I am not deserting the Democratic party, nor am I asking any one else to do so. The sole purpose of the organization will be to send delegates to the 1936 national Democratic convention with no instructions other than to nominate a real Democrat for President of the United States."

Play SAFE! Re-color Your Gray Hair
with CANUTE WATER
20 years without injury to a single user

If your hair is faded, streaked or gray, you are sure to be delighted with Canute Water. This is a pure, colorless, odorless and crystal-clear liquid of wonderful properties which actually recolors gray hair. By using Canute Water, lustrous, youthful looking hair can be yours once more.

There is as much difference between Canute Water and "old-fashioned" crude hair dyes as there is between an electric light and an old kerosene lamp.

Easy to Use

Because of its safety, cleanliness and positive action, you can use Canute Water alone, in the privacy of your own room. No previous experience is necessary. Just wet the hair with it and allow it to dry. Could anything be simpler?

Canute Water re-colors gray hair in from 1 to 3 applications, depending on shade. The whole treatment can be completed in a single day, if desired. After that, a single treatment, once a month, is sufficient to keep it that way.

Canute Water is not sticky or greasy and leaves the hair clean and natural to the touch. It is not only a hair "darkener" but imparts a color similar to nature's own.

Are YOU Old-Fashioned?

Only a few years ago the father of a young girl discovered a box of rouge and lipstick on her dressing table. And he raised a howl about it. Today he brings these home as gifts... Which only goes to prove that times have changed. That today, it is considered a woman's duty to look as young as she can. If she neglects herself, she is considered unkempt... Nothing adds more years to your appearance than gray, streaked or faded hair. And there is nothing like Canute Water to bring them beauty, color and lustre.

Color is Permanent

The effect is so perfectly natural that there is not even the hint of a dyed appearance. Your most intimate friends will be unable to distinguish the re-colored hair from the natural. And it remains permanent against sun, air, salt-water or shampooing.

No matter what has caused your grayness, Canute Water will positively overcome it. There are no exceptions. Even if you have been using some other hair coloring preparation, it need not prevent you from trying Canute Water. It can be applied with equal satisfaction either during the day or at night and in all weather conditions.

Since Canute Water does not alter the texture of your hair, you may curl, wave or set it — or get a permanent — as usual.

Inexpensive

Even a very modest purse can spare the trifling cost of keeping the hair lovely with Canute Water. A bottle will last you for several months. If you wish to share the first one with a friend, you will find that it contains enough for both.

Here's a little secret. We made a survey in a number of Cities recently and found that over 40% of Canute Water users are men. Which only goes to prove that they, too, are recognizing the demands of society and industry for a youthful appearance.

Get a bottle today and forget about your gray hair. On sale at leading drug and department stores everywhere. Also sent direct in plain wrapper and postpaid upon receipt of $1.15 per bottle by The Canute Co., P.O. Box 888, Milwaukee, Wis.

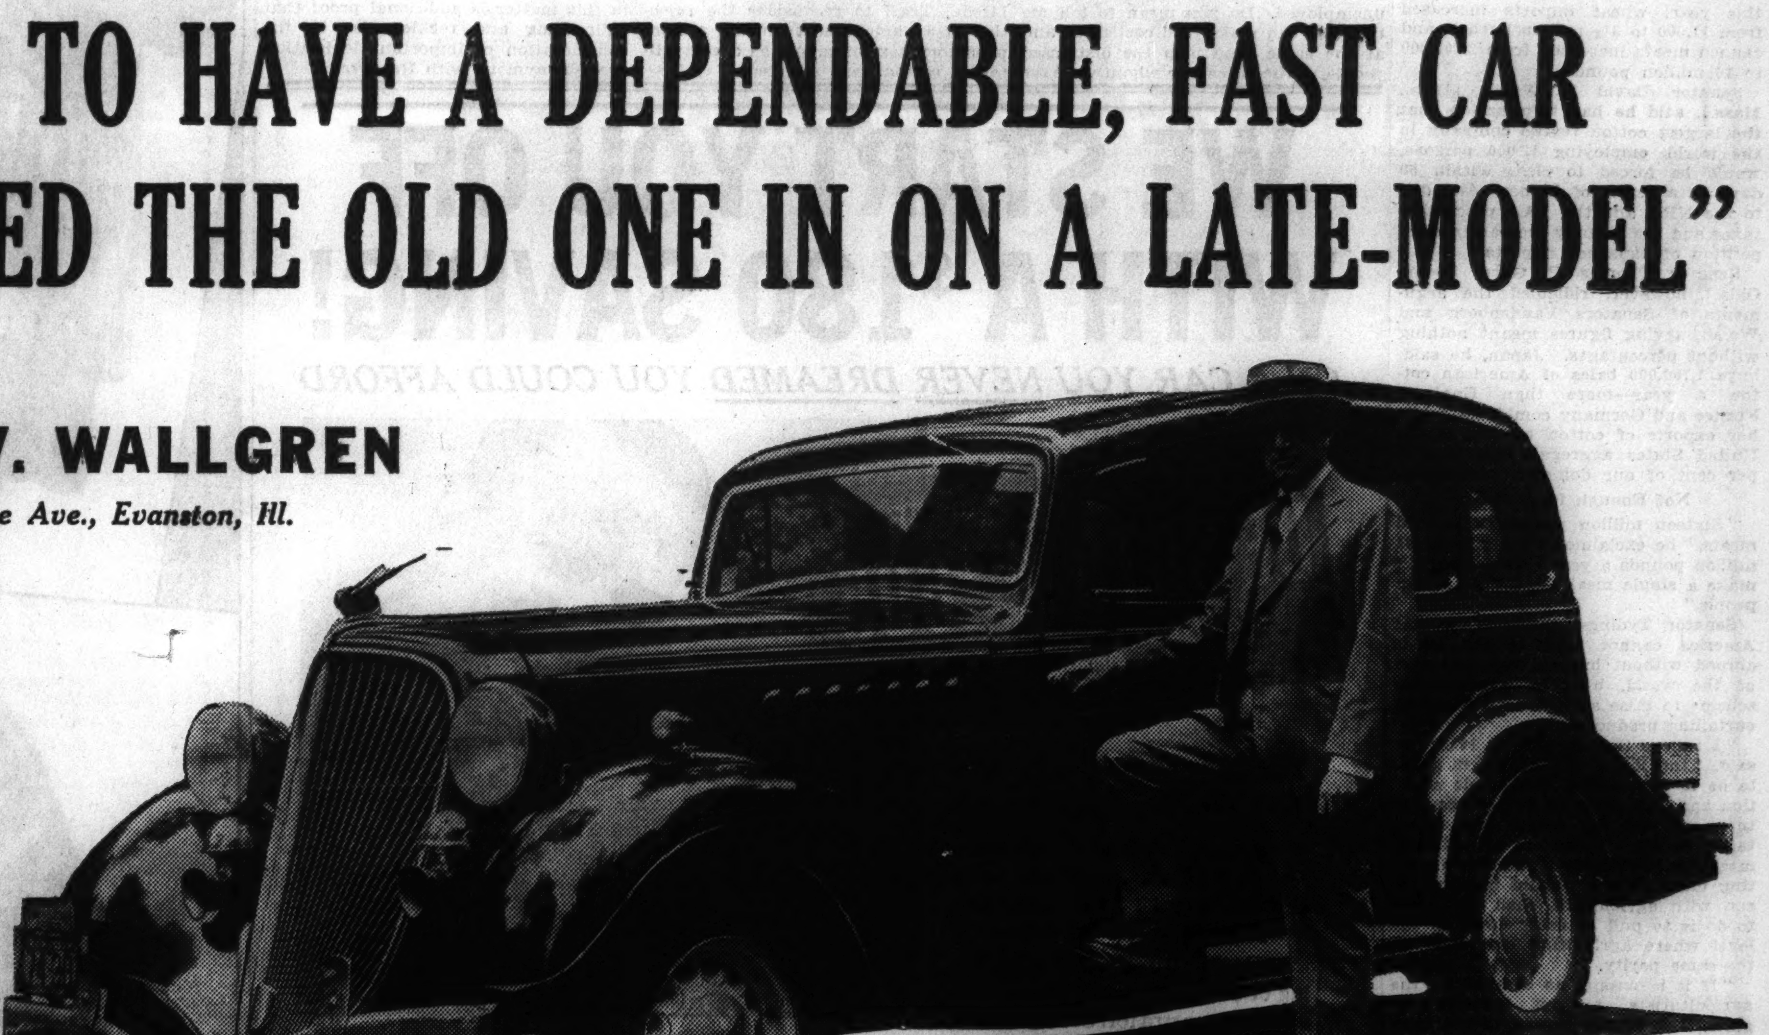
"I HAD TO HAVE A DEPENDABLE, FAST CAR SO I TRADED THE OLD ONE IN ON A LATE-MODEL"

says O. V. WALLGREN
1615 Ridge Ave., Evanston, Ill.

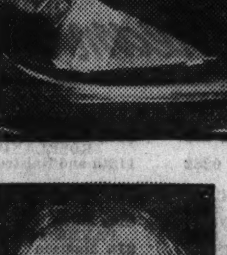


I USE a car in business practically all day and every day. As sales manager of the Child Development Foundation, 180 N. Michigan Ave., I drive all over Chicagoland keeping in touch with our district superintendents and our sales personnel. There are 600 people on our sales force. So you can see that I have to cover a great deal of ground.

"A serviceable, dependable car is indispensable to me. My old car had gone 46,000 miles and was getting too slow. I decided that I needed a fast, late-model used car.

"I saw a 1934 Terraplane Sedan advertised in the Tribune want ads. I answered the ad, went over to the Butler Motors, Inc., 1901 Ridge Ave., Evanston, and saw the car. They looked at my old one. We made a deal.

"I have been driving the new car since March 6th. It is a fine car and I am very well satisfied with its performance and with the deal I made. The Tribune is certainly the place to find a good late-model used car."



"THE TRIBUNE HAS GIVEN US EXCELLENT RETURNS"

"Having used the Tribune for twenty-four years to sell used cars, we can testify that it is an excellent medium and has given us excellent returns for the investment."

BUTLER MOTORS, Inc.

President

USED CAR DEALERS: Through Tribune want ads you can reach practically every motor car owner and prospect in Chicago and suburbs.

● Before you decide to spend money putting your old car in shape, find out how little additional money is required to get a late-model used car. Your car may be the only down payment you need.

Check the auto columns in the Tribune want ad section. Read through the offers for several days. Make a list of the ones which look most interesting. Call on a few dealers and drive the cars advertised.

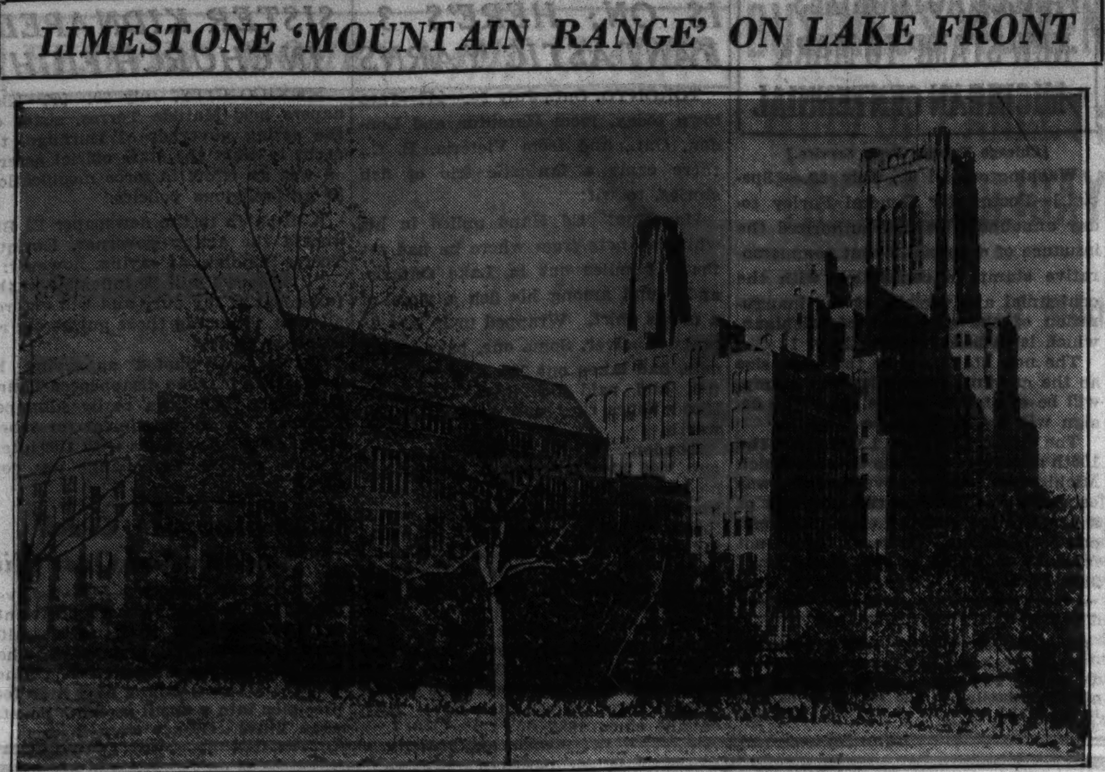
Inquire about prices, terms, and an allowance on your old car. It will take no more than this to convince you that you ought to have one of these handsome, powerful, late-model cars. Start reading the want ads now.

WOMAN'S VISION COMES TO LIFE IN M'KINLOCK GROUP

Campus Buildings Have One Purpose—Service.

BY GUY MURCHIE JR.

LIMESTONE 'MOUNTAIN RANGE' ON LAKE FRONT



McKinlock campus of Northwestern university, a great mass of Bedford limestone rising on the shore of Lake Michigan. The large Gothic tower on the right is the Montgomery Ward Memorial building. The tower near the center is Wieboldt hall, and in the left foreground is the Levy Mayer school of law.

A mountain range along the shore of Lake Michigan half a mile north of the Chicago river! Jagged peaks, crags hurling themselves majestically into the sky.

How can it be? Yet there it is before your eyes as you blink in the hot sun on Lake Shore drive near Superior street. Behold the stony cliffs, the pinnacles, the craters smoldering against the spotles blue.

This soaring vision is known as the McKinlock campus group, part of Northwestern university. Ten years ago it existed only in the minds of a few architects, donors, and the officers and trustees of the university. Today it rides the sky, a breathing reality.

Symmetry Speaks of Purpose.

As you approach the foothills, walking on Chicago avenue, you perceive a certain symmetry about this manmade range, a massive orderliness that speaks to you of PURPOSE. Yet the rough precipices, the canyons, are of stone as real, as coarse as any on a Sierra Nevada. Grayish, brownish it is—of an earthy, almost mossy, quality. Fitted together in natural irregularity, the stones reveal the touch of artful hands. Some light, some dark, they rise beyond the groping fingers of the vines to the crags above. The whole is a living mass as much a part of the earth as the grasses and shrubs and fluttering poplars which raise their tiny hands beside it.

But what does it mean? Why has man or God created this monument beside the shore? What is the PURPOSE that is expressed in every stalwart cliff of stone?

Enter to Seek Answer.

For answer we must strike to the heart of the matter. We march directly toward the dominating peak in the range. In the great crannied cliff that is the north wall of the Montgomery Ward Memorial building we find a double arched doorway. Passing under its medieval grillwork, we enter a hall of light gray marble floor and walls of pinkish yellow marble with bannisters of iron grill and iron lanterns hanging from the ceiling of gayly painted emblems and decorative squares.

Almost immediately come clews to the raison d'être of the enveloping structure. A figure in white tunic passes through the hall to a waiting elevator. The dispatcher clicks his castanets. The elevator door closes and the white figure rises out of sight. Presently two other figures in white pass through the hall. As with the first, there is a certain intentness in their faces.

Who are these men? There goes one with rubber gloves on his hands. So, they are doctors—and that is a clinic down the hall. And those waiting people are patients who come to this mountain cavern for free medical care.

Mrs. Ward's $8,000,000 Gift.

Service then is the PURPOSE expressed in the resolute uprightness of the mounting cliffs outside. Yes, and here in the marble interior is a bas relief tablet of "Elizabeth J. Ward, by whose generosity this building was erected," and of "A. Montgomery Ward, to whose memory this building is dedicated." What did Mrs. Ward have in mind?

Once Mrs. Ward spoke in clear terms on the subject of memorials. It was before she gave something more than $8,000,000 to McKinlock campus. Said she: "It must be a visible thing which adds something to the values of the city. It must be enduring. It must be useful to humanity."

Eighteen stories above, at his desk in the towering rock, sits Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern. He, too, has clearly defined the purpose of this structure. Northwestern university, to his thinking, is an institution "that renders service to the youth of the country, service in the discovery and propagation of truth, service to the learned professions, service to the military forces in three wars, and service in promoting the highest ideals and practices of our Christian civilization."

Form Fits Its Function.

This mountain of stone is then in reality a service station.

As such, its form is admirably fitted to its function. The modernized Gothic lines are a blending of the massive modern skyscraper with the ethereal monuments meticulously worked out by the monks of the middle ages. A twentieth century workshop in reinforced concrete, with wide floor areas, central heating plant, elevator shafts, and equipped with the latest appliances, is done in the sculptured stone pinnacle style which for eight hundred years has monopolized the ecclesiastic field.

There is aspiration in those crags and spires and climbing buttresses of Bedford limestone, and there is practicality in the irresistible mass of the monument itself. The combination is both worldly and celestial and is no cathedral and no ordinary office building.

Educational institutions have adopted widely the cloistered Gothic style of the 13th century monastery. This style, which so obviously expresses feeling and movement, as compared to the thought and stability expressed by the Roman type of architecture, grew out of a solution to structural problems.

Difficulties Surmounted.

In constructing churches before the twelfth century, builders had employed the vaulted roof and the spherical dome. But these presented great difficulties in roofing the oblong bay of a church nave. If ribs were formed of semi-circular arches, springing from the same columns or piers, the different lengths and irregularities of wall would bring their apexes to awkwardly different levels. Romanesque architecture with its solid circular arches never had solved satisfactorily this problem of creating a graceful vaulted roof for an irregularly shaped church.

But then—in the twelfth century—came the epoch making application of the pointed arch to the design of ribbed vaults. In an oblong nave bay, by building the diagonal ribs as semicircles, and pointing the shorter cross and wall ribs, the apexes could be brought to the same level. This was the real beginning of the Gothic style and the wide use of the pointed arch.

The addition of buttresses and flying buttresses to offset the outward thrust of the arched ribs against the wall tops further developed this new style which was regarded as barbaric by the Romanesque loving Italians. In derision they labeled the "wild" new architecture "Gothic" after the barbarian Goths of the north. A century or so later, however, the Gothic style had developed such undeniable beauty and sensitiveness that it pervaded Italy.

Influences All of Europe.

As time went on this ecclesiastically applied style began to be used on castles and barns and smaller houses, and rapidly spread its influence throughout Europe. Besides the characteristics of the pointed arch, the buttress, and the decorative ribbed vault, the Gothic style made much use of vertical lines and declicate tracery on tall windows with colored glass and individualistic floral designs. The general trend of it was toward decorative naturalism.

Its adaptation to such a structure as the McKinlock campus has obvious limitations. The recent laws in many cities requiring buildings to "set back" from the street at certain heights, so they will not cast too much shade on neighboring structures, has greatly influenced modern architecture, especially tall buildings. Instead of dealing in lines, columns, arches, buttresses, and other surface features, the modern architecture concerns itself mainly with masses, the solid form of the building as a whole. Tracery and cornices and many other details are largely lost at thirty or fifty stories in the sky.

Necessity Rules for Height.

And so the form of the Montgomery Ward Memorial building as a whole was the first consideration of its architects. What must the form be? It couldn't be low and rambling like the early Gothic structures which rarely rose much above 100 feet in height, for it must contain many hundreds of laboratory rooms, clinics, and offices, while the available ground for building was far too expensive to be used for any inefficient sentimental purposes. Furthermore, the transportation problem in a very low building of floor space equal to the Montgomery Ward Memorial building would be difficult. Without some sort of conveyor system, it would be a considerable hike from end to end of the structure. By building vertically the remotest corners are brought much closer together and four or five elevators are sufficient to handle all the trafic.

Being forced by circumstances to adopt the height of a skyscraper, and yet wishing to carry out the traditional feeling and movement of the Gothic idea so expressive of the ideals of a dedicated and educational institution, it took little time for the architicts to arrive at the general form they wanted. Inspired by the beautiful Gothic of the Harkness Memorial at Yale, they let the latter structure form the keynote for their designs and went on to a more modern and freer version of the same theme, yet conservative enough to be enduring.

Gothic Tower Hides "Crater."

What applies to the crowning peak in the McKinlock range, the Montgomery Ward Memorial building, also holds for the lesser summits around it—the smoking volcano of Wieboldt hall, housing the school of commerce, where a Gothic tower forms a steep cone around the hidden smokestack of the central heating plant; the cloistered Levy Mayer school of law, the gracefully proportioned Passavant hospital, and the low churchlike auditorium of Thorne hall in the southeast corner of the campus.

While the Montgomery Ward Memorial building houses medical and dental schools, laboratories and clinics, which handle a thousand students and give some 200,000 free treatments a year to needy patients, the school of commerce building next to it houses the Medill school of journalism and gives evening courses in business to about 5,000 students every week. As the great majority of these students are Chicagoans who work in offices all day, they must be treated differently from ordinary college boys and girls. Therefore a special type of classroom seat, designed to relax the tired business man's back, has been installed, and there are men's and women's clubrooms with comfortable sofas and kindly chairs where the students can take it easy between classes.

All along the hallways of the school of commerce building are hung fine colored prints and photographs of different phases of business and commerce, augmenting the Gothic irregularity of the colored emblems in the windows. The Montgomery Ward Memorial building's corridors have historic medical prints instead of commercial ones, and the adjoining Levy Mayer school of law has prints of famous jurists and magistrates.

Nook for Quiet Thinking.

To keep up the learned legal spirit in its inmates the latter vine covered bluff of pinnacled limestone has a cloister in the rear where the more ardent students may pace back and forth under a leafy arcade with hands behind their backs, pondering just which phrase would best fit after the next "whereas." A rock garden, bird bath, and fluttering poplars only heighten the monastic illusion.

At one end of the building is a wainscotted library with alcoves and busts; at the other a large debating chamber called Lincoln hall, which has steep banks of seats on both sides to permit the "government" and the "opposition" to hurl ponderous arguments across at each other in warmest house of commons style. In the front of the Levy Mayer building is a framed creed which reads in part:

"I am the lawyer.

"I displaced brute force with mercy, justice, and equity.

"I taught mankind to respect the rights of others to their property, to their personal liberty, to freedom of conscience, to free speech and free assembly.

"I maintain honor in the market place.

"I am the champion of unpopular causes.

"I am the conservatist of the past, the liberal of the present, and the radical of the future.

"I am the scapegoat of the world.

"Louis Lande."

Hospital a Restful Place.

Passavant hospital, architecturally similar in effect to the rest of the campus, is affiliated with but not strictly a part of Northwestern university. Within there is the same marble and Gothic grill effects and mural scenes in cool green that must be restful to many a throbbing soul.

On the ninth floor is a solarium penthouse. The tiled terrace outside is fringed with spruce trees, with easy chairs and shade umbrellas here and there. The interior, roofed with a banana leaf awning, has a fountain in the center of a silvery mural depicting a jungle of flowers. In front of this glass mural is a row of plants which, appropriately, look like fever trees.

Marvel of Acoustics.

Thorne hall contains a modern auditorium which can seat nearly a thousand people. This great room contains no balcony and the acoustics are so perfect that a member of the audience can rise at any seat and easily make himself heard at every other seat.

Perhaps the soul of the manmade mountain range that is McKinlock campus, with its serried crags and its treelike spires lifting over the irregular precipices, is best expressed by an inscription engraved in the solid stone at the main entrance. It reads:

"I profess both to learn and to teach from the fabric of nature.—Harvey."

BRITISH LEADER'S SON CAPTURED BY WARLIKE TRIBESMEN IN ARABIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIEUT. JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN.
[Acme Photo.]

LONDON, July 20.—Lieut. Joseph Chamberlain of the Transjordan frontier force, was reported today to have been captured in Hejaz territory in Arabia by the warlike Wahabis, who are followers of Ibn Saud, king of Saudi Arabia. Chamberlain is the son of Sir Austen Chamberlain, a member of parliament who for forty years has been prominent in British politics as foreign secretary, postmaster general, chancellor of the exchequer, civil lord of the admiralty, lord privy seal and secretary for India. Under the national government in 1931 he was first lord of the admiralty.

Reports from Zerka, where Lieut. Chamberlain was stationed, said he had made a pleasure trip across the Transjordan border into Arabia. Considerable delay is expected by officials at Amman, Transjordan capital, before the government can start negotiations for the lieutenant's release.

Under Ibn Saud the Wahabis, a sect of purists, have extended their territory until it now includes practically all of Arabia. They are disciples of Mohammed Ibn Abdu'l-Wahhab, an Islam reformer who lived from 1691 to 1787. Great Britain, in a treaty signed May 20, 1927, recognized the complete independence of Ibn Saud's dominions.

SEEK NEW SWAMP MURDER CLEWS IN CHINESE DISTRICT

Police again yesterday searched the Chinatown district for more information about Harry Jung, alias Jung Moy Gee, and Evelyn Smith, white wife of the Chinese, who have been sought since the discovery of the murder of Ervin Lang, 1212 Waveland avenue. Mrs. Smith is accused of having killed Lang, severing his legs, and her husband with having helped her to dispose of the body and legs, according to the confession of Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, Lang's mother-inlaw, who has admitted paying Mrs. Smith $100 of an agreed $500 price to commit the murder.

A white woman and her Chinese companion, arrested late Friday at Eau Claire, Wis., were freed yesterday when Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, wired Eau Claire he was convinced the suspects were not the Smith woman and Jung.

The couple in Eau Claire had identified themselves as Helen Whitlow and L. D. Gamaro, both of Washington, D. C. Gamaro said he was formerly chauffeur for Mayor La Guardia of New York.

Capt. Gilbert, Capt. Thomas Duffy, and Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the state's attorney's office instituted the investigation in Chinese sections yesterday on information that Mrs. Smith had one or two children by a previous marriage and that the children were being kept by a Chinese family. No trace was found of the children.

CONSTABLE GETS $3,500 FOR BEING SHOT BY NELSON

Washington, D. C., July 20.—(AP)—Carl C. Christensen was entitled today to collect $3,500 from the federal treasury for personal injuries received April 22, 1934, when he was shot by "Baby Face" Nelson at Koerner's resort near Manitowish, Wis.

President Roosevelt signed a bill sponsored by Senator F. Ryan Duffy [Dem., Wis.] reimbursing Christensen in full for his injury.

Christensen, who was constable of the town of Spider Lake, Vilas county, was assisting federal agents in their hunt for John Dillinger.

BAR POSTPONES REPORT ON NEW DEAL'S EFFECTS

Many Delegates Assail Its Activities.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 20.—(AP)—Officially the New Deal as a whole emerged unscathed today from under the legal microscope of the American Bar association, but many administration policies received verbal drubbings.

Without explanation and without divulging its contents the association deferred until November at least any action on a survey of the "effects of the New Deal on the rights and liberties of the American citizen."

"The school of law that argues for changes in the essential lines of the constitution by the process of corruption of its text" was denounced in a report by Louis G. Caldwell of Washington, D. C., chairman of the committee on administrative law, and adopted.

Many Pets Under Attack.

The NIRA, the AAA, the processing tax and the administration's social security act were the objects of attack in one form or another.

James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, unsuccessful candidate for the presidency of the association, was particularly critical of the AAA.

He told the association he believed the Supreme court would decide that the processing tax on farm products was a clear violation of the constitution. He also indicted the "share the wealth" plan as he said it was interpreted by Secretary Henry Wallace of the department of agriculture.

"While the state may tax for legitimate purposes of the state, it has no right to redistribute property, and to do so is anti-constitutional and immoral," Beck said.

George M. Morris, of Washington, federal taxation committee chairman, reported the federal government was traveling dangerous paths in proposing legislation that may result in tax provisions which will make it impossible for a citizen to recover taxes unlawfully assessed. The special report concerned an amendment to the AAA, pending before congress.

More friendly to the New Deal was the adopted report of the committee on commerce presented by Rush C. Butler of Chicago, which stated the experience under the NRA has been "valuable, and legislation along the fundamental principles of that act is highly desirable."

Predicts "Major Crisis" Soon.

Jacob M. Lashly of St. Louis, in presenting the report of the committee on commercial law and bankruptcy, predicted that a "political crisis cannot long be deferred on the existing major points of contact between the government and the people.

"It is the present policy of the government to escape coming to grips with the excess debt problem and through the expedience of moratoria and conciliations to move the crisis point along through gradual steps to the indefinite future," Lashly stated.

Boston was chosen as the 1936 convention city.

$10,000,000 IN RUSSIAN TRADE MAY RELEASE HUNGARIAN RED CHIEF

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 20.—(AP)—Mathias Rakosi, people commissar when bolshevism held brief sway in Hungary in 1919, may be traded to soviet Russia for $10,000,000 worth of Russian orders for Hungarian goods, official circles indicated tonight.

Rakosi, long a center of bitter political quarreling, was convicted Jan. 21 of several homicides and 489 other offenses alleged to have been committed during his short tenure of office. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Rakosi is esteemed in Russia because he is vice president of communist internationale.

Hope for the Deafened
Today, thousands of people who had despaired of ever hearing again have found that the New Bone Conductor Fortiphone has restored their hearing to such an extent that they can listen to concerts and lectures in perfect comfort, and enjoy again the voices of their friends.
This marvelous device, which enables people to hear through the bones of the head, can be worn practically entirely concealed.
Don't give up hope of hearing until you've tried the Fortiphone—it produces wonderful results in four out of five cases. We will be glad to give you a free, private demonstration at any time in our audition rooms, or send you our descriptive folder if a visit is not convenient.

HORNER STUDIES PROPOSALS FOR PENAL REFORMS

Idleness Criticized; 'Real' Reformatory Urged.

Gov. Horner has under advisement recommendations for rehabilitating prisoners in state institutions as contained in a report made by Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, after a study of the state's parole and prison systems. Portions of the report relating to such rehabilitation were made public yesterday.

Erection of another penitentiary because of overcrowding, especially at the Joliet and Stateville institutions, is one of the recommendations. Others are for the establishment of a "real" reformatory and increased appropriations for the diagnostic depots at Joliet and Chester, where men under sentence are studied at the start of their terms.

Idleness Is Deplored.

"The idleness of the men and overcrowded conditions," Col. Chamberlin advised, "means that little or no constructive work can be done to prepare the men for release into the community, although the state law places the duty upon the department of public welfare to provide for the rehabilitation of men while in penal institutions.

"Approximately two-thirds of the inmates are without employment and without proper educational and vocational training."

Diagnostic work was started two years ago when the prison system was reorganized. The diagnostic depot, according to the report, is a progressive step in penology, and increased stafs should be provided.

Urges Building Real Reformatory.

In a further discussion of the state's prison system, the report continues:

"There is no real reformatory in Illinois. The institution at Pontiac is so called, but it obviously is merely a branch of the Illinois penitentiary system. The St. Charles School for Boys belies its name. The various statutes, including the Juvenile court act, beget confusion.

"Pontiac receives boys from the ages of 17 to men of about 25, all guilty of committing felonies. The St. Charles school receives youths up to the maximum age of 17 years, not only those guilty of committing felonies but those who are guilty of minor infractions of the law.

"No successful program can be had under existing conditions. It is suggested that a reformatory be established as part of the department of public welfare."

10 Year Old Girl Hides Out 3 Nights to Spite Parents

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Within an hour after police sent out an alarm today for Mary Beno, 10 years old, as a missing child, she was found in a vacant top floor apartment of the building on East Seventh street, where her parents lived on the second floor. Instead of a runaway, she had been on a three night hideout because her parents could not send her to a summer camp.

COUNTY FINANCES FOR JUNE

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, issued yesterday a report of the county's finances for the month of June. The report compiled by County Auditor Lee Howard shows that from June 6 to July 1 the county collected a total of $1,104,470.67 in fees, taxes, and other collections. An overdraft of $325,035.85 carried over from the preceding period, added to disbursements for the June period, amounted to $1,570,938.97, leaving an overdraft of $466,468.30.

The detailed report of the receipts and disbursements for the month follows:

REPORT ON RENT EVICTION DENIED BY JESSIE REED

Jessie Reed, who in her heyday as a Follies star, bore the title of "highest paid chorine," yesterday denied published reports that she faces eviction from her $5 a week room at the Buena Plaza hotel, 4363 Kenmore avenue. "Nor," came her voice over the telephone, "am I applying for relief."

That she is financially pinched, the 38 year old ex-show girl who has had five husbands—two of them millionaires—did not hesitate to admit. And she is still waiting, she says, for outcome of the suit for separate maintenance that she filed on June 9 against her fifth husband, Leonard M. Reno, world war flyer and son of H. O. Reno, publisher.

Officials of the hotel said that Mrs. Reno had owed eight weeks' rent, but that she had just made a partial payment. She has lived there, they said, since December.

Aloha Wanderwell Stops Here En Route to Orient

Aloha Wanderwell, noted traveler, arrived in Chicago yesterday by automobile from New York with five members of her party which will tour Japan, Korea, and Manchukuo by plane and auto. Miss Wanderwell is the widow of Capt. Walter Wanderwell who was mysteriously shot to death Dec. 5, 1932, on board his yacht at Long Beach, Cal. In 1933 she married Walter Baker, a member of her crew, but continues to use the name Wanderwell.

DELAY INQUEST IN DEATH OF GIRL FOUND IN SEWER

The inquest into the death of Miss Marian Cozzo, 17 years old, 6420 South Oakley avenue, whose body was found in a sewer catch basin near 68th street and Fairfield avenue Thursday, was continued until Aug. 16 after a perfunctory hearing at the county morgue yesterday.

The continuance was asked by Capt. Michael Lee of the Chicago Lawn police station and Assistant State's Attorney Irwin Clorfene. Capt. Lee and Clorfene returned to the police station and resumed the questioning of Mills Redmond.

Redmond was arrested after relatives of the girl said Miss Cozzo had an engagement with Redmond on Dec. 1, the night that she disappeared. Sergt. James McGurk returned yesterday from Niles, Mich., where he was unable either to refute or corroborate Redmond's story that he had been in that city visiting his wife and relatives on Dec. 1. McGurk said he would subject Redmond to additional questioning this morning, using the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory's lie detector.

FARLEY AUTHORIZES NEW STAMP TO MARK MICHIGAN CENTENNIAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—Postmaster General Farley today announced he has authorized the issuance of a special 3 cent commemorative stamp in connection with the centennial anniversary of the inauguration of the statehood of Michigan, which is to be celebrated Nov. 1.

The new stamp, to be the same size as the current special delivery stamp, will be printed in purple ink. The design will be made public later.

The celebration Nov. 1 will mark the 100th anniversary of the date on which Michigan's state government was established, following the adoption of a constitution and the election of officers. Michigan, however, was not formally admitted to the Union until Jan. 26, 1837.

FISHING SEASON IS ON; HERE'S 3 FANTASTIC YARNS

TORONTO, Ont., July 20.—(AP)—Into town today, from Hamilton and London, Ont., and from Victoria, B. C., there came a fantastic trio of fish stories, to wit:

Hamilton: Ed Hand pulled in his whitefish nets from where he had set them, 7 miles out in Lake Ontario, and found among his fish a piece of a man's shirt. Wrapped in it was 75 cents in silver. Some one, passing the nets, had taken out 75 cents' worth of fish and paid for them. At least Hand hopes they only took 75 cents' worth.

London: W. R. Smith two weeks ago lost his troll line when the fish he had hooked jerked the spool from his hands. Yesterday, trolling again, Smith pulled in a bass—with the missing troll in its mouth. And hanging to the two other prongs of the triple hook, according to Mrs. Smith, were two nice pickerel.

Victoria: A curious looking fish, caught in traps at Sooke, B. C., was identified as "Acrotus Willoughby 1." They say only four specimens of the species are known to have been caught since 1885.

MEXICAN CHIEF'S SISTER KIDNAPED IN CHURCH FIGHT

MEXICO CITY, July 20.—(AP)—Kidnapers held Matilda Torres, sister of the acting governor of Durango, tonight in what the state official asserted was an effort to force modification of anti-religious policies.

A dispatch to the newspaper El Bia quoted the acting governor, Enrique Torres Sanchez, as saying, however:

"I declare I will be inflexible in the fulfilment of my duty and will enforce all laws, including those governing religious worship."

Torres was quoted as saying he feared the girl, who disappeared Thursday night, had been really kidnaped "to serve as an instrument for rebels opposing religious laws with the intention of making me change my conduct."

Cows Stampede, Crash Fence, Fall Over Cliff

Freeport, Ill., July 20.—(AP)—Believed maddened by heat, a herd of twenty cows on the farm of Glenn Metcalfe, near Warren, Ill., stampeded when being driven to a barn and crashed through a fence, falling over a 50 foot precipice into a small stream. Several were killed. Others were injured.

GOLDEN VOICE WANT AD-VISER COMPETITION

HELD OVER W-G-N TO SELECT THREE NEW MEMBERS OF THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE TELEPHONE AD-TAKING STAF

Three Jobs and $300 in Cash Prizes—Winners to Be Chosen After Radio Broadcasts Over W-G-N!

Girls! Would you like to be a member of the most famous want ad staf in the world?

In a few weeks, three young women will be offered positions as members of the Telephone Staf of Chicago Tribune Want Ad-Visers of whom a few are shown in the photograph above.

You may be one of these fortunate young women.

To qualify, enter the Golden Voice Want Ad-Viser Competition inaugurated by the Chicago Tribune to select three new members of its Telephone Staf of Want Ad-Visers.

The winners of the first three places will be offered positions on the staf. The next 12 winners will receive cash prizes of $25.00 each.

The three young women who will be offered positions as members of the Telephone Staf have telephone voices which are easily understood and pleasant to hear. They have charm and personality. They are tactful and intelligent. They grasp facts quickly and are equally quick in grasping another's point of view. They know the value of time—to themselves and to others.

These three girls have had a high school education or its equivalent. They may have had previous business experience, or they may not. They are unmarried and preferably living with their families.

For complete details of how the competition will be conducted, judged, and prizes awarded, read the following rules:

WOULD YOU LIKE TO WORK IN THESE PLEASANT, HEALTHFUL SURROUNDINGS?

THIS is where the winners of the three first places in the Golden Voice Competition will work. Air-conditioned and soundproof, this bright room on the tenth floor of Tribune Tower is famed throughout America as a model of its kind. It was specially constructed to provide pleasant, healthful surroundings for the young women who solicit and receive Tribune want ads.

Each Want Ad-Viser has her own desk—a glass enclosed booth connected by special equipment with a switchboard having 67 trunk lines.

Time passes pleasantly for Tribune Want Ad-Visers. Their days are never dull or tiresome. In an average week each of them has telephone conversations with from 250 to 300 persons.

Because of the variety of goods and services advertised in the Tribune, each Want Ad-Viser must be versatile, alert, courteous, and patient. She must get names, addresses, and numbers accurately the first time she hears them.

Before Tribune Want Ad-Visers are placed in charge of a desk they receive extensive training under the guidance of skilled supervisors.

If you would like to become a member of the world-famous Tribune Telephone Staf of Want Ad-Visers, write a short letter, fill in the accompanying entry blank and mail both today.

THE RULES: WHO IS ELIGIBLE: To be eligible to compete, candidates must be unmarried women less than 30 years of age as of July 25, 1935. They must have completed a 4-year high school course or its equivalent. Previous business experience is not necessary.

THE PRIZES: The first three winners will be offered positions as full-time members of the Telephone Staf of the Chicago Tribune Want Ad Department. Each of the next twelve successful entrants will receive $25.00 in cash.

HOW TO ENTER: Fill in the entry blank and mail it to the "GOLDEN VOICE COMPETITION," Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. Write also a letter, not to exceed 100 words, telling why you want to become a member of the Telephone Staf of Chicago Tribune Want Ad-Visers. Mail this letter with your entry blank. You may also enclose a small, inexpensive photograph or snapshot if you wish. No entries will be returned. NOTE: Entries will be received by mail only. DO NOT come to the Tribune offices. DO NOT telephone. No personal interviews can be granted, nor can the Tribune engage in correspondence on this subject. Simply fill in the entry blank, write the letter, and mail both to the "GOLDEN VOICE COMPETITION," Chicago Tribune. All entries must be received in the Tribune office before 6:00 p. m. on July 25, 1935.

JUDGING: The Chicago Tribune will appoint a committee of judges and their decisions will be final. From the information contained in the entry blanks, and the letters which accompany them, the judges will nominate candidates for preliminary interviews and voice try-outs. Candidates will be notified by mail to take their tests which will be held at Tribune Tower from time to time at the option of the judges. The fifteen candidates who receive the highest scores in these preliminary trials will be invited to participate in the final Golden Voice Competition.

FINAL COMPETITON: The finals of the Golden Voice Competition will be conducted over Radio Station W-G-N on a night to be selected by the judges. The fifteen candidates selected as a result of the preliminary tests will be required to read short announcements over the radio or to pass similar voice tests to be decided by the judges. The audience will be invited to vote on the candidates' voices, and the audience vote will be taken into consideration in deciding the winners.

YOU PAY NOTHING: There are no charges or costs of any kind for entering the Golden Voice Competition. You may use the handy entry blank or you may submit the same information on a separate sheet of paper.

CATER TO DEMAND FOR LIGHT, SAFE PRIVATE PLANES

Builders Exhibit Them at Detroit Show.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., July 20.—[Special.]—Absence of the major commercial air transport airplane manufacturers and the apparent conviction of builders of private, sport and training ships that the public is about to demand a light, safe airplane of good performance are the outstanding impressions gained by visitors to the 1935 all-American aircraft show which opened today in the exposition hangar on the city's municipal airport.

Leaders among the manufacturers whose products line the corridors assert that the aircraft industry must turn to the market found twenty years ago by automobile manufacturers. They point out that virtually every airplane among the 30 odd here was designed either directly or indirectly with this market in mind.

Small Gasoline Consumption.

Salesmen, smiling and hopeful, talked more of flaps and slow landing speeds, the small gasoline consumption of the motors in their planes, and the per-gallon mileage ratio for cruising speeds of theri models than of the top speeds and long distance range of the craft. Most of the visitors asked pertinent questions about the weight payload equation of the ships, indicating that Mr. Average Citizen is becoming well informed about airplanes.

Not all the airplanes on display were within this class, however. Lockheed, Vultee, Waco, and Beechcraft are of the luxury type, providing speed and comfort of the best airliners in a ship intended primarily for the private owner. There also were service aircraft both from Wright field, the army air corps' experimental field and Anacostia station, the navy air corps' proving ground just outside Washington, D. C.

Of this group a Beechcraft cabin plane powered with a Wright 420 horse power whirlwind motor got the most attention. This biplane embodies the three chief engineering improvements of the last half decade—retractible landing gear, flaps, and controlable pitch propeller—in addition to certain unusual characteristics of its own.

Can Land at 50 Miles Hour.

The biplane wings have reverse stagger—in other words the upper wing is set back well above the roof of the glass enclosed cabin while the lower wing is forward giving the pilot all the view inherent in a low-wing monoplane. It also passes in performance as goal designers long have striven in cruising at 202 miles an hour while landing at 50 miles an hour.

This means that the plane cruises four times as fast as it lands and has a top speed almost five times as fast. Hitherto a cruising speed three times as great as the landing speed has been considered excellent. No other plane at the show boasted of such a speed range.

Best of the light ships here was the low-wing monoplane built by T. Claude Ryan of San Diego, Cal., the man who built We, the ship Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew from New York to Paris in 1927.

Ryan's 1935 ship was intended to appeal to sportsmen pilots. The fuselage is all metal as are the spars and ribs of the wings, the covering of the latter being fabric. With a 95 horse power Menasco motor it cruises at 120 miles an hour and has a top speed at 140. Its ceiling is 17,000 feet and, with flaps, it lands at 38 miles an hour. It seats two passengers in open tandem cockpits.

Dean Hammond's model Y, developed for the bureau of air commerce in an effort to find the foolproof airplane, was not in the exhibition.

Six Female Zebras Added to Brookfield Zoo Scene

The Chicago Zoölogical gardens at Brookfield yesterday announced the arrival of a shipment of six female Grat's zebras, to be exhibited in the African veldt scene. The Grat's zebra differs from ordinary ones in that the black markings extend to the hoofs, instead of ceasing at the knee. The new animals bring the zebra colony to eight. In the veldt scene the zoo presents other African animals, including gnus, antelope, and giraffes.

TWO BREAK JAIL AT LA CROSSE; BOTH SHOT TO DEATH IN CHASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

La Crosse, Wis., July 20.—[Special.]—Two prisoners, fleeing from the La Crosse county jail, were killed by pursuing policemen this afternoon in a spectacular running gun battle through part of the city's business district. Though many shots were fired none of the policemen or pedestrians were wounded.

The prisoners were Orville Moore, 35, charged with robbery, and Harold Chamberlain, 19, accused of automobile thefts. A trusty, Andrew Jungen, who telephoned the city police about the jail break, apparently walked away in the ensuing excitement.

Moore, who had been released from his cell on the pretext of telephoning his attorney, suddenly confronted Turnkey Robert Garrow with a straight edged razor. At the same time Chamberlain, who had been permitted to leave his cell to get a haircut on another floor of the jail, overpowered Trusty Dewey Meinertz. While Moore held the jailers at bay, Chamberlain pried open a gun case and took two revolvers, a riot and a pump gun.

Running to the street they jumped into a driverless taxicab and sped away. The police squad car met the fleeing men as they headed for the Minnesota state line. Shots were exchanged over a distance of a mile, the chase ending across the Mississippi river in Minnesota with both prisoners shot dead.

BUSINESS WOMEN WIND UP PARLEY; TAKE A HOLIDAY

Reject Support of Mott Amendment.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Seattle, Wash., July 20.—[Special.]—With its docket cleared of business, the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs wound up its biennial convention today and declared for a week-end of play.

Most of the 2,000 wage earners, in session here since last Sunday, joined in a good will cruise to the quaint island city of Victoria. The Canada Federation of Business and Professional Women was hostess to the visitors for the day.

Up Mount Rainier Today.

Tomorrow the members will make trips up Mount Rainier, "the mountain that was God." A number of the delegates will remain for the "gold diggers cruise" to Alaska which leaves Seattle next Tuesday. This has been planned by Miss Lulu Fairbanks of Seattle.

In their 14th biennial convention the business and professional women mapped a plan of action which has for its keynote strenuous opposition to all protective legislation for business and professional women down to and through the clerical classification. This program will be urged upon the national and state political parties in convention next year.

In their final session, however, the delegates rejected by a large majority a resolution from the floor asking support for the proposed Lucretia Mott amendment to the federal constitution. In a broad sweep this amendment would remove protective legislation for all women including those in industry.

Decide on Study First.

The resolution was offered by Miss Sue Brobst of Los Angeles, Cal. In a supplementary recommendation it was voted to devote careful study to the Lucretia Mott amendment during the coming year.

By a unanimous vote Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman of Richmond, Va., retiring president, was elected an honorary president of the federation for life. The federation has two other honorary presidents, Miss Lena Kadesin Phillips of New York City and Mrs. Lena Lake Forest of Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. Bowman was defeated in a close contest yesterday for a third term in the presidency. Her successor is Miss Charl O. Williams of Washington, D. C., field secretary for the National Education association.

County to Keep Gambling Lid On, Asserts Gilbert

The state's attorney's office intends to keep the lid on gambling in Cook county, Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for State's Attorney Courtney, announced yesterday. His pronouncement followed reports that county enforcement has been slipping and that in southern suburbs the wheel is rolling and boys are placing bets on the ponies. Following a day of raids on bookie joints on Friday, there was little activity on the gambling front yesterday, though seven were arrested in two loop raids.

ARCHDUKE OTTO BEGINS ROMANCE WITH SHOP GIRL

[Copyright: 1935: By the United Press.]

BRUSSELS, July 20.—Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, handsome young exile, is whiling away his time until recalled to his Vienna throne with a 20 year old shopgirl whose identity has Brussels agog with speculation. So little is known about the romance that neither Brussels nor court attendants at nearby Castle Steenockerzeel, the Hapsburg home in exile, can answer:

Who is she?

Where did the girl and the pretender to Austria's throne meet?

Does she know her ardent young admirer is a prince of the blood?

What heartaches are in store for the shopgirl when Otto is called to royal duties?

There is no doubt that Otto spends much of his time with the mysterious charmer. Often, almost nightly, he travels from Castle Steenockerzeel to Brussels by street car but keeps his rendezvous in a luxuriously appointed automobile.

The girl works as a seamstress in a Brussels department store. Quiet, she keeps her own counsel. Her fellow workers notice that nightly when 6 o'clock strikes and closing time approaches she grows nervous. She jams a cheap little hat on her head, hurries to the street, looks quickly from right to left, and darts into a waiting motor car.

Farmers Ask Roosevelt to Speak at Rockford

Rockford, Ill., July 20.—[Special.]—The board of directors of the Winnebago county farm bureau today invited President Roosevelt to speak at a celebration marking the bureau's 15th anniversary, at Camp Grant next month. It was hoped the President would be able to stop here on his way to Milwaukee where he has an address scheduled Aug. 24.

PRICE FIXING BY INJUNCTION.

The courts of Cook county have recently ventured into a new field. They have undertaken to fix prices in what are called the service trades. Judge Fisher early last year set minimum prices to be charged by wet wash laundries. Judge McGoorty in April of this year determined the price of a shave, a hair cut, and other barber services. Now Judge Epstein has fixed the scale of prices for cleaning and dyeing.

In each case an injunction has been issued restraining violations of the order. A cleaner who charges less than the price set can be sentenced to jail for contempt, without a jury trial. He may have developed a new and superior method of doing the work which reduces by half the cost of the operation, but he may not pass his saving along to the public unless he first goes to court to obtain a modification of the judge's order. In court he may even have to disclose his improved method for the benefit of his competitors. If so he will be free to choose between giving away his advantage and going to jail.

The first injunction was issued while the Blue Eagle was squawking her loudest. NRA was still going strong when the Appellate court in this district, by a 2 to 1 decision, upheld the legality of the order. It was a period when from a hundred platforms agreements to gouge the public were being hailed as in the public interest. Any one who ventured to suggest that they were bad law and worse economics was denounced as a public enemy and a chiseler. It is not impossible that some of this yeast started a ferment in the judicial mind hereabouts. That is a matter which may be decided some day by the state Supreme court, which has yet to utter the last word on the legal aspects of the matter.

The last word on the economics of price fixing was said long ago. Price fixing schemes, intended to bind many competitors, never work for long. There are many reasons for this. One of them is that the owners of more efficient shops won't pass up the opportunity to profit from their superiority by lowering the price and thus increasing their volume of business.

The Appellate court in Cook county drew a distinction between the price fixing of commodities, which the court said was illegal in Illinois, and the price fixing of services, against which no legal prohibition was found. The distinction may be valid in law, though opinions will differ on the point, as Judge Matchett's vigorous dissent shows, but whatever the legal distinctions may be there is no distinction in economics between the two kinds of price fixing. Neither will work in a free society, and as a matter of fact arbitrary prices in the service trades seem more difficult to maintain than in other lines of business.

The first failure which Gen. Johnson was forced to confess—and this was many months before the Supreme court had passed on the Schechter case—was precisely in the service trades. With all the prestige of his office, all his ballyhoo and the full power of the federal government to back him up, he still couldn't regiment laundrymen, barbers, and the rest. He gave it up as a hopeless job, but what he couldn't do the judges of Cook county are now attempting.

Some citizens have sought to justify the new activity of the courts on the theory that the service trades have been a fruitful field for racketeering, in which beatings, bombings, kidnapings, and murders have been frequent incidents. The argument is a curious one indeed. It overlooks the fact that the murders were committed precisely for the purpose of maintaining a monopolistic price structure. Not even a Capone with all his ruthlessness was able to maintain such a schedule of prices for any length of time. He could not prevent chiseling, though he used bombs and machine guns to enforce his decrees. What he could not accomplish with his means of persuasion the judges are now attempting to do with the threat of a few days or weeks in jail. The probability of their succeeding does not appear to be overwhelming.

The fact is that racketeering in the service trades has existed for just one reason: the police and the courts have failed to do their full duty in suppressing it. It is difficult to believe that the forces of law are unequal to the task. When, as at present, determined men are in control of the law enforcement machinery, racketeering declines. Its revival may actually be hastened by giving the sanction of the courts to the organization of price fixing combinations in the various trades.

One of the most unfortunate consequences of the NRA was the exaggeration by Gen. Johnson's propagandists of the evils of competition. They spoke continually of cutthroat competition. A more misleading phrase could hardly have been used. There is now and for years has been sharp competition between General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler, but no throats have been slit or will be slit in connection with it. Generally speaking, violence appears in the business world when the attempt is made to substitute monopoly regulation for price competition. It is that substitution which accounts for almost all labor slugging and almost all of the activity of racketeers in the service trades.

It is therefore highly improbable that the courts will succeed in suppressing violence by encouraging price fixing arrangements. The contrary result is the more probable.

AS ONE DEPRESSION TO ANOTHER.

With melancholic satisfaction the reader may contemplate the scene disclosed in an article by Samuel Rezneck of Rensselaer Polytechnic institute in the current American Historical Review. It is called "The Social History of an American Depression." The period is from 1837 to 1843. The comment will be, there we were, here we are. It has often been remarked that depressions are all the same. The behavior they inspire follows about the same channels in one as in another.

First there are explosions, collapses, and wreckage. There is fear and running for cover. Then comes an early revival of hope: it can't last very long! Much is made of a few encouraging signs. The unpleasantness is too unpleasant to continue, therefore in human expectations it can't.

"Down with the panic makers and down with the prevailing distrust," says Greeley as the gloom thickened. "A bright sun will soon dispel the remaining darkness." It should be noted that before the sudden catastrophes that ushered in the period there had been warnings of what was preparing, with little heed paid them. When the depression had frozen into thought and habit it became the chief political consideration, as is always natural, and it is with that feature of it that we now may be most profitably interested. Luxurious habits were blamed. The American people were too speculative. They tended to over-expansion. The doctrin of class conflict appeared. How was it that a country as rich as ours was pinched for the common necessaries of life? Karl Marx was studying law, history, and philosophy at Bonn and Berlin.

State debts were repudiated. There was rebellion in Rhode Island. Rents were refused and private debts were repudiated in New York. Loco-focos were organized in New York City. They took their name from a friction match, so-called. They were against the legalized robberies of the credit system and proposed a different and free system of credit, "simple, efficient, and just," with no laws for the enforcement of debt collection, debts resting only on honor. The 1840 EPIC spread all over the country.

At the beginning of the depression the federal government was not only debtless but it had been distributing a surplus to the various states. Now the treasury began to issue its notes and bonds. After some of the states had defaulted and repudiated the federal treasury was unable to negotiate a loan in Europe. Many of the states set about revising their constitutions.

Alabama borrowed five million dollars for the benefit of debtors and deferred all the payment of bank debts. Virginia required a creditor to accept current bank notes for debt. Illinois stayed the payment of debts. Various states, including Illinois, required that property sold at a forced sale must bring two-thirds of an appraised value. The Supreme court declared the Illinois law unconstitutional and Illinois citizens preached resistance to the decision. America had a frontier but didn't seem to know what to do with it. The cry was that the wilderness has receded and new lands are beyond the reach of the poor man. There was agitation for free land and ultimately the Homestead act was the consequence. There were many Sinclairs and many EPICS and Utopias. It may be interesting to note that the author of the most elaborate social planning on a national scale was Clinton Roosevelt.

Editorial of the Day

TOWARD TAX LOGIC.

[New York Herald Tribune.]

A paltry week of hearings before the ways and means committee of the house has apparently demonstrated to its members the iniquity of the proposed graduated tax on corporate incomes. This particular item in the President's program has come in for such a barrage of criticism that Democratic leaders on the committee are now reported in favor of substituting an excess profits tax. For these crums of comfort let us be duly thankful!

Not that an excess profits tax lacks its own serious disadvantages and injustices, but compared with the President's proposal it sounds almost human. The President has asked that the tax on corporate incomes be graded according to their size, regardless of the relation between income and investment and of the return to the individual stockholder. An excess profits tax, on the other hand, would take these factors into consideration. It would concern itself not with the size but with the rate of earnings; it would bear down not on bigness per se but on affluence, which is a very different thing.

If the tax on corporate incomes is to be progressive at all, the rate of earnings is the only defensible basis for it. However, exceptional earnings are quite as often as not the fruit of special inventiveness or ability on the part of corporation management and to subject them to a graded tax is to penalize ingenuity and diligence in business, and by so much to discourage economic progress. Certain businesses, moreover, are proverbially uncertain and risky and are entitled to a higher rate of earnings than those whose incomes are characteristically stable and certain. It is obviously unfair, therefore, to apply the tax to the same rate of earnings in all business enterprises. And yet who could be intrusted to differentiate among them?

Which suggests other difficulties of administration. Is the basis for the tax to be the rate of earnings on the actual investment in the corporation or that on its capitalization? If the latter, what is to prevent an orgy of overcapitalization to escape the tax? If the former, who is to determine the investment, and how? Remember the years and the money spent in the attempt of the interstate commerce commission to arrive at a valuation of the country's railways, to mention only one instance of the kind.

REAL DISTINCTION.

"And what," asked the cannibal chief in his kindest tones, "was your business before you were captured by my men?"

"I was a newspaper man," answered the captive.

"An editor?"

"Only a subeditor."

"Cheer up, young man, promotion awaits you. After supper you shall be editor in chief."—American Boy.

THE MORAL OBLIQUITY OF THE NEW DEAL

BY GEORGE CLARKE COX.

Sovereign states have no morals; they do what seems good in their own eyes. There is no way to bring a sovereign state to account except by going to war with it. Still, governments and their heads are judged ultimately by the standards which apply to the government. On this basis the New Deal is condemned out of its own mouth and, as Mr. Roosevelt is the New Deal, he is so condemned.

Many recent publications and speeches have thrown back in his teeth utterances of the President in campaign speeches, in statements after election but before inauguration, and in his early promises about the budget. It is not necessary to do this here. No newspaper in the country has been more acutely conscious of the unsound policies of the New Deal than this paper.

The New Deal was welcomed by myriads of people, even by many conservative Republicans. Its social program, while extreme, embodied many reforms of business and social procedure which had been the hope and the aim of honorable men and women of all parties. While legislative plans or administrative prerogative seemed unsound to many, there was a general willingness to acquiesce in an emergency and let Mr. Roosevelt lead us out of our difficulties. Few saw, and still fewer declared, that the enterprise was essentially hopeless from the beginning—the reason being that "a double minded man is unstable in all his ways."

Now the indictment of the New Deal is not an indictment of Democrats by Republicans nor a contrast of high tarif with low tarif, nor even a contrast of managed currencies with conventional gold standards. Carter Glass and Ogden Mills can and do subscribe to the same principles. Nor is there any longer the century old quarrel about state rights. Republicans are eager to maintain these and Democrats are eager to uphold the constitution of the United States. The controversy today is between common honesty and chicanery.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his oath of office, swore to uphold the constitution of the United States. This did not mean an unchangeable constitution. There have been many amendments to that venerable document. There probably will be many more; but until changed by legal process the implication of the oath is plain—to uphold it as it is and as interpreted by the Supreme court. Now it is notorious that cases involving the NRA especially were postponed by the advice of the department of justice and Mr. Frankfurter—unless the order of these names should be reversed!—until action was unavoidable, hoping that the Supreme court would be faced with an accomplished fact. We all know that the decision of the Supreme court was unanimous; yet immediately there was an outburst of wrath and insidious suggestions that a way would be found to circumvent the constitution and not to amend it in forthright fashion. Some proposals were such as practically to destroy the constitution altogether by act of congress. The present pending legislation with respect to AAA, TVA, the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, the Wagner-Connery bill, Guffey coal bill, social security bills, etc., is backed by Mr. Roosevelt to the limit, in the face of almost universal legal opinion that, even in amended form, these things are equally unconstitutional.

The attitude here revealed is not of loyal support of the constitution, but of defiance.

In the case of the repudiation of gold contracts the Supreme court formally declared the administration guilty, even though leaving it a technical loophole. Whatever may be said of the morality of violating the gold clause in the case of our own citizens, there can be no excuse for breaking faith with foreign peoples who had bought our gold bonds. There was no lack of ability to pay on the part of the United States.

As to a "sound and adequate currency" there are many differences of opinion among honorable men as to what constitutes such a currency. Had Mr. Roosevelt declared what he meant by it, in reply to frequent requests, he could not be charged with bad faith; but in view of the implications of his words at the time such a currency could not possibly have involved devaluation of the dollar, embargoes on gold, repudiation of the gold clause, etc. There was about this procedure a tricky evasion, practiced indeed by politicians of all countries and all parties at many times, but none the less unworthy of a man who proclaimed himself a great moral leader and whose criticism of business men for similar practices and methods was unsparing and harsh.

Mr. Roosevelt's most obvious "fixed idea" is a bitter hatred of utility companies, not of bad utility companies only, not of vicious individual men, but of all privately owned utility companies whatsoever, regardless of integrity of performance and obvious usefulness to the community. His famous "yardstick," setting up especially TVA, has been touted with an obstinacy and a vindictiveness seldom if ever seen in the head of any country. There has been no attempt to appoint an impartial commission to find the facts. The country today is flooded with propaganda, not so much from utility companies themselves, who are fighting in the open, as from Washington. The official figures of TVA have been challenged not only by Mr. Wendell Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern corporation, most effectively, but by Mr. McCarl, controler general of the United States. On the evidence the President is wrong and he makes no genuine effort to persuade the country that he is right. He simply says "Carthage must be destroyed"; the private utility companies must go; if not now, then later.

THE LAST WORD.

"Yes," said the boastful young man, "my family can trace its ancestry back to William the Conqueror."

"I suppose," remarked his friend, "you'll be telling us that your ancestors were in the Ark with Noah?"

"Certainly not," said the other. "My people had a boat of their own."—Tid-Bits.

WATCHFUL WAITING.

Junior came to school with the glad news that his father had work again.

"What is he doing?" asked the teacher.

"O, he's got a hard job," said the child. "He's got to watch six watchmen."—Indianapolis News.

HALLUCINATIONS.

We are living in a world of substitutions where unreal things appear real. Of course, we cannot imagine things we have not seen and hence we interpret what we see in terms of what we know. A beautiful appearing piece of walnut turns out to be painted metal; what we thought was silk is nothing but the chemical effect of certain compounds upon corn stalks; "ebony" radio panels are the result of the action of carbolic acid upon sawdust; what seems to us to be beaver fur is Belgian hare—and so it goes.

Because things are not what we think them to be, are we suffering from hallucinations? Not at all. We are misinterpreting what we see, and in a sense we are the victims of an illusion. We can train ourselves to recognize bakelite and rayon, and some people—although this seems hardly credible—can trace the antecedents of furs.

Hallucinations are quite different. Nothing from the outside stimulates or creates them. They are projections into the outer world of disordered thought. Neither the object that is seen nor the sound that is heard by the afflicted individual exists in fact. We recognize hallucinations as characteristics of a psychosis.

Common hallucinations are those of sight. They range from tiny bits of light to clouds, shadows, and even landscapes bright with color. As a rule the objects are visualized naturally. Occasionally, however, they are gigantic or microscopic, as though one were living in the land of Brobdingnag or Lilliput.

Hallucinations of hearing are frequent and vary from slight noises to rushing or roaring sounds, and may include the human voice and instrumental music, such as a pealing pipe organ, etc. The spoken messages that come to individuals out of the void are true hallucinations.

Any one of the senses may be involved. We may have hallucinations of heat and cold, blows, caresses, prickling, or tingling; some persons will complain that they are constantly smelling the odors of chloroform, noxious gases, and filth, or quite the contrary, that of fragrant flowers and perfumes. A common complaint associated with smell is a bitter, sour, or salty taste.

The symptoms are not in any sense equal in all individuals. Occasionally they are mild in their effect and are properly discounted by the patient. On the other hand they may be so real that normal thinking is impossible. The victim will close the window to keep out a poisonous gas or raise his arm to ward off an imaginary assault.

Hallucinations are not the constant companions of normal individuals, but they are regularly associated with those who show some degree of mental instability. One German investigator questioned 27,000 sane persons and found that 3,000 admitted having had hallucinations at least once in their lives. We must understand, however, that in a mentally healthy person a sensation that appears without a tangible stimulus is promptly rejected and denied by the individual, but that a hallucination that persists is indicative of insanity.

Some writers believe that dreams are hallucinations, but dreams are recognized as such when the individual wakens, even though the vivid character of the dream state may persist for several hours. We are also familiar with the type of delirium that is attended with hallucinations. This symptom may occur in a profound toxic state attended with high fever, such as typhoid fever or pneumonia. Children are particularly prone to such manifestations. On recovery, however, the delirium disappears.

Much can be done for the afflicted individual if hallucinations are detected early. If they do not persist, well and good; if they continue, however, the patient must be placed under expert management, preferably in an institution where he can be studied individually and an effort made toward readjustment. Sometimes it is merely a question of rest, of the removal of some toxic focus, and the elimination of poisonous products of metabolism.

DRUG HABIT.

N. L. suggests that the drug habit is due, in many instances, to the fact that the sale of drugs is against the law, just as people used liquor during prohibition.

REPLY.

Perhaps this is so—in one case in a hundred thousand. Most users begin in an attempt to obliterate fatigue or pain, or to experience a thrill. But few people will carry the "I dare" spirit so far as to become drug addicts just to "spite" the law. The use of drugs is a sure fire boomerang.

THROAT IRRITATION.

R. T. H. writes: I have an irritation in the throat, causing me to cough after retiring. It is a dry feeling, without phlegm, and does not interfere with swallowing.

REPLY.

Probably a bronchitis, although tuberculosis should be thought of. A careful examination will supply an accurate diagnosis. If it is bronchitis, inhaling steam from boiling water impregnated with a teaspoonful or two of benzoin will be helpful.

RIDGES ON NAILS.

E. J. L. writes: Please give cause and cure for ridges on finger nails.

REPLY.

This is a nutritional difficulty and sometimes follows or accompanies a long continued illness and disappears when health is restored. Look for a nutritional cause or some infection.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA.—An abortive rebellion in central Luzon might have given the government—including the United States army in the Philippines—a lot more to do than killing 69 rebels and prosecuting 1,000 men, including two members of the insular legislature. A widespread revolt might have broken out on May 2 had not the leader of the uprising, who was in Japan trying to get arms and sympathy, made a false move at the eleventh hour.

The uprising was scheduled for May 2, the day after May day when police and the constabulary relax their vigilance against radicals and give their reserves the day off. Whether the rebels had expected it or not, all civil and military officials were out of the country or in the hinterlands on leave or inspection.

The acting governor general was in the interior traveling on horseback where he was contacted May 4. Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Philippine department of the American army, was in China. Brig. Gen. Valdes, chief of the constabulary, had left on May 1 for some isolated provinces where he was marooned. Other officials were out on a junket. Gov. Gen. Murphy and President Quezon of the senate, the two highest civil officials, were in Washington, D. C.

To all appearances, civil and military authorities were unaware of the vast plot to overthrow the government. But Benigno Ramos, the leader of the Sakdalists, as the rebels call themselves, who was in Japan, changed his mind on May 1 and ordered a cable postponement of the uprising until May 14. It is generally believed Ramos sought to postpone the revolt for two reasons—because he had so far failed to secure arms, and because May 14 was the date set for the plebiscite on the Philippine constitution and the avowed purpose of the uprising was to prevent acceptance of the constitution.

The postponement order was received in Manila on the night of May 1. As the revolt was planned to take place simultaneously in seven provinces, the message could not be relayed to all the provincial rebel commands. The result was that the uprising took place in three provinces—Laguna, Bulacan and Cavite.

A few of the Sakdalists were armed with shotguns and revolvers, either imported or home-made. They were ignorant of military science, their ranks were deluded by extravagant promises of reward and good times to come. When they struck they killed two and wounded three constabulary soldiers, and held one provincial governor for 12 hours as hostage.

The constabulary, an insular police force of 6,000 men, though noted for its efficiency in coping with snipers and guerrillas, was not prepared for the emergency. The organization lacked men. Normally, the force is divided into provincial detachments, with reserves of about 500 men stationed in Manila.

When the municipalities overrun by the Sakdalists began to send frantic calls for constabulary protection, only detachments of 10 and at the most 30 men could be dispatched. On the second day of the uprising, when practically every town in central Luzon, either because of alarm or actual danger, was sending appeals for help to Manila, the constabulary had no more men to send.

In its two major operations against the rebels the constabulary was short handed. In the battle of Cabuyao, Laguna, where 1,000 rebels entrenched themselves in a church and convent, only 98 soldiers could be mustered. It is here that the constabulary slew 57 Sakdalists. A force of about 15 men recklessly pursued 3,000 fleeing rebels to the mountains of Bulacan, old lairs of bandits and malcontents.

The town police forces were no obstacles at all. Most of them, upon seeing the Sakdalist hordes, surrendered.

The situation was well in hand on the third day. Many of the wounded and captured rebels expressed ignorance of the objective of violence, or avowed belief in fantastic things their leaders had boasted about or promised. The Sakdalists have been made to believe that President Roosevelt had promised complete Philippine independence to Ramos in 1935. They have been told that under a Sakdalist government the peeople will pay very little taxes if at all. Borrowing from communism, the Sakdal leaders also promised an equal distribution of wealth.

The Sakdal as a violent political group participated in its first election last year, when it succeeded in electing three men to the house of representatives, one in Tayabas, and two in Laguna, the center of the May 2-3 uprising. The Laguna solons, Aurelio Almazan and Mariano Untivero, were arrested. Ramos, the leader, is a fugitive and is still hiding in Japan.

CONTRACT, MORTGAGE, ETC.

Eau Claire, Wis., July 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. An infant is not bound by his contract, I understand. If he owns a car and has it repaired [2] is he bound to pay for it? 3. If a mortgage is paid I understand one must give the mortgagee a discharge or satisfaction. Does this have to be recorded? 4. If a person dies and leaves property does it have to go through probate if all debts are paid up immediately after death? 5. If I loan my car to a friend and he has an accident, could the party injured in a collision with party borrowing car hold me liable in civil action? If a person stops at a hotel and did not pay his bill, does owner of hotel have a lien on his baggage? 6. What if he has something other than baggage, can he hold this? W. K.

1. He is not liable on the contract as such, but where necessaries have been supplied he may be held for their reasonable value.
2. He might be held for the reasonable value. See 1.
3. It is to the interest of the property owner to record the release so as to show the title clear.
4. Depends on the nature of the assets and on whether the assets could be reduced to possession without court proceedings. Probate is necessary in order to produce a merchantable title to real estate.
5. You would not be liable on the bare facts stated.
6. We do not understand your facts.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MUST APPLY SEPARATELY.

Chicago, July 11.—[Friend of the People.]—I came to this country in 1919, when I was 6 years old. My father came to this country before I did and took out a declaration of intention [first paper] when I was 14 years old, but he did not apply for final papers before this declaration of intention expired. He has taken out another declaration of intention and is now waiting for the two year period to expire. Will I have to apply for my own citizenship papers or do I become a citizen the same time as my father? J. S.

Children over 21 years of age do not derive citizenship through the naturalization of their parents. Under the facts stated the writer, in order to become a citizen, should apply for citizenship papers in his own right.

INCOME TAX EVADERS.

Chicago, July 12.—Here is one question I have thought a great deal about for a number of years. I do not know the answer, and I have never seen any one else who does.

I would like to know why, instead of attempting to confiscate everything over and above a bare living from the class of people who accurately pay their income taxes, the brain trusters [and God knows I hate that designation] do not devise some method of collecting 100 per cent of the taxes which are due the United States government under the existing laws?

Does any one in the full possession of his faculties feel that there were only one and one-half million people in the United States who earned over $1,000 if single, and $2,500 if married, in 1935? I understand that was the total.

There is only one group that I know of who pay their income taxes and it consists of:

1. Responsible corporations and business organizations.
2. Their security holders.
3. Their employés.

I am employed by the largest corporation of its kind in the world. Naturally the report goes to the internal revenue department on me, and my return had better match the figures shown on that report. If I deposit an interest coupon another form goes right along with that, too.

It is true that they caught Capone, simply because they concentrated on him, and they used the efforts of many men and many months of work. He was simply singled out, but you can rest assured that there were thousands of lesser Capones right here in the city of Chicago who were not caught.

And that is not all—the racketeers are not the only income tax evaders. There are hordes of others, including people doing a more or less cash business, men of irregular income, professional men, salesmen handling numerous small lines [total not reportable individually] on commission, and various small fry business men. Not all of these people as a class are dishonest, but neither are they all honest, and their incomes are not traceable. The accuracy of their incomes depends purely on themselves.

Can one stretch his imagination far enough to believe that some of the gangster lawyers in recent notorious cases received their fees by check? No, sir, they got their grands in cash. Maybe their returns were correct; if they were, it depended on themselves. You certainly can't trace gangster cash or any other kind.

I admit that I do not know of any method of collecting income taxes fairly and accurately, but with all the accumulation of brains in Washington it surely ought to be easy. If the brain trusters and hot dogs can work out a millennium for us, a simple little thing like this ought to be easy.

President Roosevelt's "Soak the rich" ["Soak the poor" I would call it] is merely a case of an attempt to increase the taxes of the only class in the United States who are making their reports out accurately.

"Soaking" the income tax payers is easy. They represent a very small minority. It is, therefore, cowardly, and the tax itself is the most unjust levy ever put on the people of this country.

One of the Soaked.

ON THE LOT LINE.

Chicago, July 17.—When my house was built 4½ feet was left on one side and 6½ feet on the other, but when my neighbors built they set their buildings within an inch or two of the lot line, so that when their awnings are put up or their gutters repaired the workmen come into my yard and destroy flowers and fences. We also set our garage several feet back from the alley line and our neighbors park their cars and trucks on the cement apron at our garage, as theirs are built right on the alley line.

You should compliment Mrs. Barnet on having the nerve to stand up for her rights and protect her property. I wish this family was not so afraid of the neighbors' opinions. A Timid One.

A LESSON IN PROGRESS.

KURSEONG, India, June 5.—A friend of mine forwarded to us on several occasions the picture section of your paper. I must say I admired the way the paper was brought up and the fine selections of pictures it offered to its readers. I have seen twice magnificent colored prints which really claim deserved praises for the editor. Once I had the idea of using those pictures for illustrating some class matter and to make our Indian students realize some facts of progress in modern civilization. I was agreeably surprised to note how the pictures had struck the full attention of the students, and what the textbook failed to bring home to them your paper did it as per magic.

TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT.

Norway, Mich., July 11.—The writer observed with much interest and pleasure your section of picturesque Poland in your Sunday, July 7, issue. It brought to mind many recollections of a childhood home.

Will you at your convenience at some time print in your paper brief historical facts of the city of Krzemieniec, in Volhynia, near the Russian border, especially about the hills and ruins of the ancient fortifications as well as of its age-old Jewish population?

SMOKING ON THE BUSES.

Chicago, July 16.—Would some one please give a good reason why the health department permits smoking on top of the buses, open or inclosed, when they do not permit smoking on street cars and the elevated lines? When the top of the bus is crowded it is a fire hazard and a panic could not be averted, so why not stop smoking before a serious accident happens?

The tops of the buses now being used on route 31 are filthy. The stairs are dirty, to say nothing about the window sills on the enclosed tops which are used for ash trays. May I add that 99 per cent of the smokers are women and they don't give a continental where they blow their smoke or whom they annoy. It is just too bad if some women cannot get along without a cigaret for 30 minutes or 45 minutes at the most. C. C.

PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS.

Chicago, July 17.—I read your editorial in today's Tribune entitled "A Bad Act Vetoed" and wish to call your attention to the fact that I think you are in error when you state "the already privileged class includes lawyers and the clergy." I know of no law in the state of Illinois which exempts members of the clergy from testifying as to any communications made to them. I have been an instructor in the law of evidence for twenty years and if there is any foundation for the statement made in your editorial I shall be glad to know of it.

At common law there was no privilege as to communications or confessions to a spiritual adviser and in the absence of statute no such privilege exists [70 Corpus Juris, 451]. About seven states of the Union have passed statutes in this regard, but so far as I know no statute has ever existed and does not now exist in the state of Illinois making the clergy a privileged class. Under the Illinois law communications made to a public accountant are privileged [paragraph 19 of Smith Hurd Illinois Revised Statutes, chapter 110¼].

SUGGESTION TO MR. GARNER.

Galesburg, Ill., July 16.—Since no one can stop Roosevelt in his destruction of America I wired Vice President Garner today asking him to arrange for the President to accompany Mussolini to Africa and to prorogue the senate as did Gov. Yates a copperhead legislature during the civil war.

Two generations of unborn baby hands will have to gather taxes to fill up the holes Roosevelt has caused to be made, and it is time he was spurned from the house tops and decency and sanity aided in returning to social and business conditions. Will Farlow.

SUITOR ADMITS HE KILLED GIRL IN 'SUICIDE PACT'

Story Doubted; Murder Charge Prepared.

Swapping his confession for a breakfast Joseph Gornik, 21 years old, 4300 South Seeley avenue, calmly told police yesterday how he fatally stabbed his sweetheart, Mae Lekavice, 19 years old, of 4607 South Paulina street. Despite his protestations that Miss Lekavice died in a suicide pact, in which he failed to carry out his part, Gornik will be charged with murder.

A few hours earlier Gornik had carried the dying girl, whose suitor he had been from school days, into the home of Dr. Edward F. Kuba at 4725 South Western avenue. He said that he had stumbled upon her body behind a clump of bushes in the parkway near by. But friends of the girl told New City police that Gornik had been intensely jealous of the girl, and he was questioned by Assistant State's Attorney John Long.

Eats Hearty Meal.

"Give me some breakfast, and I'll tell you about it," said Gornik, a husky, well built youth. After eating heartily he told his version of the slaying. He said that he had met Miss Lekavice in front of her home late Friday night and had walked into the Western avenue parkway with her.

"We agreed that the only way out of our love was suicide," Gornik related. "I stuck my pocketknife into her left breast, and then she took the knife; but all she could do was cut my shirt. She was moaning and crying so I ran for the doctor.

"When I got back she begged me to put her out of her pain. I stabbed her again. Then I held her in my arms and kissed her."

Held on Murder Charge.

Police were inclined to doubt Gornik's story of a suicide pact and at an inquest later in the day the youth, a former hog sticker in the stockyards and more recently a member of the Civilian Conservation corps, was held to the grand jury on a charge of murder. Gornik refused to testify at the inquest, but other witnesses said that he was intoxicated when he called for the girl Friday night.

Relatives testified that although Gornik and Miss Lekavice had been friends for several years, they had objected to the match because of Gornik's intoxication and inability to find employment. She had recently told Gornik that she would not see him, relatives said.

He also had been jealous of her and shortly before the slaying had attacked Fred Boltz, 24 years old, 821 East 45th street, whom he encountered while walking with Miss Lekavice.

POLICE RECOVER SAFE UNOPENED; HOLD EX-CONVICT

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Automobiles stolen, 12; recovered, 13; stripped 1. [From police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Friday].

Two bandits invaded the Pure Oil Products company at 1030 West Division street early yesterday, and at pistol point made John Epperson, the night watchman, help them load a 1,400 pound office safe on a company truck. When the robbers drove away with the truck and its $7,000 contents, Racine avenue police were notified.

During their investigation a boy in the 1500 block in Tell place told of seeing a truck being driven into a garage at the rear of 1543 Tell place. The policemen entered and found Frank Miedzwyko, the owner, a prisoner in the hands of a gunman who identified himself as Stanley Lewandowski, 34 years old, 1128 North Branch street, a paroled robber from Joliet. The other robber was away hunting an acetylene torch with which to open the safe. Lewandowski said his accomplice was Frank Schaeffer, also a paroled convict.

About the time of the Pure Oil raid 10 bandits held up Howard Mitchell, 2308 South 50th avenue, Cicero, night watchman in the Sherman Cartage company garage at 2950 Taylor street. They searched all the trucks in the garage and drove one away.

SAVAGE SEEKS CROWE-GORMAN FIRM ACCOUNTING

Joseph P. Savage filed suit yesterday in the Superior court seeking an accounting of the assets of the former law firm of Crowe, Gorman & Savage, of which he was a member. Similar accounting suits were filed Friday in the Circuit court by former State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, one of the former partners, and by Mrs. Marguerite Gorman as executor of the estate of her husband, George E. Gorman, the third member. In his bill Attorney Savage alleges that the value of the partnership assets on March 20 amounted to approximately $250,000. He asks an accounting of the firm's affairs, the appointment of a receiver, and the issuance of an injunction restraining the other defendants from "further collecting of partnership accounts or money."

U. S. AIR ARMADA LANDS IN CANADA ON GOODWILL HOP

MONTREAL, Que., July 20.—(AP)—An armada of nearly 70 planes, bringing 150 United States airmen and a message of good will from the American people, arrived at the Cartierville airport today on the fourth annual Roosevelt field good will flight.

Swooping out of a clear blue sky, the armada arrived in small groups. As the airmen stepped from their planes they were greeted by Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal and Montreal Light Aeroplane club officials.

Prominent among the arrivals were Col. Cone of the aeronautics branch of the United States department of commerce and Maj. Williams, noted United States stunt flyer.

ATLANTIC FLYERS HELD IN QUEBEC BY LACK OF FUEL

HAVRE ST. PIERRE, Que., July 20.—(AP)—A lack of gasoline for the tanks of his amphibian plane, Liev Erikson, today delayed Thor Solberg, flying Norseman, on his easy stage flight from New York to Norway.

Arriving at this village on the north shore of the gulf of St. Lawrence 45 minutes after taking off from Seven Islands, his overnight stopping place, Solberg learned that gasoline he had expected to find here had not arrived.

FIVE CHILDREN TOSSED IN RIVER; MOTHER SEIZED

LINDSAY, Ont., July 20.—(AP)—Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wallace were thrown into the Scugog river tonight and three were drowned before rescuers could reach the scene. Police placed the mother of the children under arrest. They announced she was being held temporarily under a vagrancy charge.

The drowned children were Catherine, 9; Ages, 7, and William, 4. Gavin, 11, and Mary, 2 were saved.

Three of the children were dragged from the water by Clarence McGee, 14, who was swimming 150 yards from where the screaming children were thrashing about in the water. Gavin, according to McGee, crawled up on the river bank and ran to his home nearby.

Young McGee dived and pulled out Mary, Catherine, and William, but only Mary was alive when he brought them to the bank.

MOUNTAIN GIRL ADMITS KILLING HER BROTHER, 9

Mad Fit Caused by Heat, She Declares.

Prestonsburg, Ky., July 20.—(AP)—A mountainside tragedy came to light here today with announcement by county officials that 14 year old Hattie Irene Hyden had confessed slaying her brother, Thomas James Hyden, 9 years old, when they were picking berries.

Officers said the mountain girl, apparently crazed by the sun beating down on the mountainside, slashed his throat with a butcher knife with which she had been cutting the undergrowth as they climbed up the mountain.

Father Finds Body.

Described as pretty, the girl was held in jail awaiting trial in Juvenile court here July 25 on a murder charge. If convicted she would face sentence to a state reform school for girls.

The child's body was found by the father F. M. Hyden, a coal miner at Weeksbury, in the undergrowth on a mountain at Caleb Fork. Officers said the girl at first said she knew nothing of the tragedy but later confessed she cut her brother's throat in a "mad fit."

Officers said she gave this explanation:

"He was dragging along behind as we climbed the hill, and it was so hot I couldn't hardly stand it. I flew into a mad fit and cut his throat."

Finds Stained Dress.

Deputy Sherif Willie Johnson said he found a blood stained dress inside a bundle of clean clothes at the Hyden home. The dress, he said, was worn by the girl when she and her brother left home.

Mrs. Emma Hunt Krazeise, director of the Kentucky children's bureau, announced at Louisville she would go to the trial "to look after the interests of the girl."

Two Prisoners in Bridewell and County Jail Hang Selves

Edward Kellstrom, 24 years old, 644 Roscoe street, hanged himself in his cell in the county jail yesterday, and Eugene Bartoli, 60 years old, 1440 Larrabee street, took his own life in the same manner in the Bridewell. Kellstrom, an ex-convict and narcotic addict, was facing arraignment on two charges of robbery with a gun, and if convicted would have been liable to life imprisonment as an habitual criminal. Bartoli was serving a one year term for assault.

THEY'VE ALWAYS BUILT A GOOD CAR!
OF COURSE!...BUT HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW HUPP?

The most satisfying thing in our business is the incredibly deep-rooted knowledge that "Hupps" have always been GOOD automobiles.

Not so many people, however, are familiar with the equally telling advantages of the newer Hupmobiles.

Do you realize, for example, that they are considerably lower in price than any of the genuine stream-lined cars? That they are conceded to present the most highly refined and "finished" appearance among all cars of this type? That their performance is amazing, as it SHOULD be, with greater horsepower than any car of comparable weight and wheelbase? That they embody practically every worth-while feature of the best cars, and equally important advantages of their own?

Facts like these are too important to ignore. No one who wants the most for his money can afford to decide without considering them.

Look before you buy, of course!—And don't overlook Hupmobile.

MOSCOW ORDERS U. S. REDS TO GET IN ON THIRD PARTY

Cautions Them to Remain in Background.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 20.—Conditions are ripe in the United States for the birth of a third political party uniting liberal, Reds, and other radicals, according to Communist Internationale, official organ of that organization. Accordingly, the Moscow headquarters of the Internationale today ordered the American communist party to participate actively in the formation of such a new party.

In order not to frighten American voters, who, according to Moscow, still respect private property and would refuse to support an open revolutionary program, American communists have been ordered to remain in the background, but to play a leading rôle in the formulation of the program of the proposed new party.

Will Combine Restless Elements.

The Comintern organ reports that the program for the proposed third party is not yet ready, but reveals that it is investigating various popular movements in America with a view to combining all the demands of dissatisfied groups into the platform.

Some of these demands, according to the Communist Internationale, have been popularized by the American Federation of Labor, such as that for unemployment insurance. The Townsend campaign for old age pensions and the communist campaign against Fascism and war have also developed many followers, Moscow asserts.

Other vote getting planks, Comintern says, would call for a bonus for veterans, a thirty hour week, more loans for farmers, opposition to the high cost of living, a minimum wage, increasing of public works, opposition to higher taxes, prohibition of child labor, government aid, and closer relations with and support for Russia.

Class Consciousness Appearing.

Such a platform, continues the Comintern paper, would include a number of separated movements, having thousands of followers, and would develop class consciousness, which has already begun to evince itself for the first time in America under the Roosevelt administration.

The Comintern welcomes the report from American Reds that America has begun to talk openly about a revolution as one means out of the depression.

It is extremely important, says the Comintern, that the new party include the more radical American labor unions which already are affiliated with the Comintern by being members of its subsidiary organization, "Trade Union Internationale."

Reds in Background.

These unions, declares the statement, will include planks in the platform calling for the destruction of the capitalistic system, thus enabling the communists to remain in the background.

Further analyzing the political situation in America, Comintern predicts that President Roosevelt will not be able to halt the tendencies toward revolution. Despite the billions of dollars he has appropriated for social welfare and subsidies to the unemployed President Roosevelt still is unable to satisfy the disgruntled elements because "the more you give them the more they want," say the Kremlin observers.

Orders U. S. Reds to Get Busy.

"The third party movement in America will not develop automatically and the communists must not sit with their hands in their laps while this is taking place," the Comintern says, "American communists must bear the responsibility of organizing and popularizing this party quickly in order to combat the rapidly developing Fascist movement in America and must guard especially that semi-Fascists do not take control of the new party from their hands.

"However, the surest way to wreck this new party would be to place it under the direct control of the American communist party. Instead, using the tactics of Comrade William Foster of boring from within, the new party should actually be brought into life by the American Federation of Labor and the communists should seek to control it from behind the scenes."

Name Edward J. Lawler Jr. Assistant U. S. Attorney

United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe announced yesterday the appointment of Edward J. Lawler Jr., 26 years old, 5552 Everett avenue, as an assistant district attorney. Mr. Lawler will be associated with Carl R. Perkins, another assistant, in matters involving income tax litigation. Lawler, whose father is a stockyards commission merchant, is a graduate of the University of Chicago and the Harvard law school. He was previously employed in the internal revenue department.

Boy, 16, Netless, Smokeless, Wins in Queen Bee Hunt

Robert J. Daux, 16 years old, 3414 South Western avenue, yesterday won the queen bee hunt that is a regular feature of the annual convention of the Cook-Du Page Beekeepers' association. The annual meeting was held this year at the home of Charles Siegle, 13889 Thornton road, Blue Island. Wearing no protective net and carrying no smoke maker, Daux was the first to locate the queen of a colony of bees kept by Mr. Siegle.

Thomas Burrus, 92, Dead; Civil War Vet in Herrick

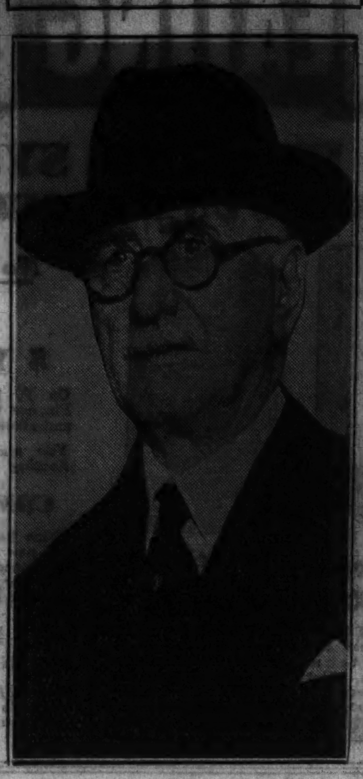
Police Veteran Dead



LIEUT. EDWARD T. CONROY.

Lieut. Edward T. Conroy, 75 years old, 5508 Potomac avenue, police hero who had served on the department for the last 47 years, died in the Garfield Park hospital yesterday after a long illness.

Mr. Conroy joined the force on Jan. 12, 1888; was promoted to a sergeantcy in 1892, and became a lieutenant in 1895. He was cited four times for bravery, twice in 1921, once in 1922, and again in 1930. The most recent citation arose from his help in preventing an attempted robbery at 4049 Jackson boulevard. Lieut. Conroy was wounded and Detective Jerry Murphy was killed in a gun battle with the robbers, two of whom were killed by the police.

Recently Lieut. Conroy had been attached to the Marquette police station. He never had fully recovered from an operation he underwent a year ago.

The widow, Mrs. Minnie Conroy, and three sons and three daughters survive. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Tuesday in St. Angela's church, Potomac avenue and Ferdinand street. Burial will be in All Saints cemetery.

MRS. J. M. CLARK IS DEAD; FORMER SOCIETY MATRON

Chicago friends of Mrs. John M. Clark [Mary Louise Qua], formerly a leader in society in this city, learned yesterday that she died last Sunday in a hospital in Brookline, Mass. Her husband, John Marshall Clark, died a number of years ago. He had been a resident of Chicago since 1847. He was one of the founders and one time was president of the Chicago Telephone company.

Mrs. Clark lived in Chicago from the time of her marriage in 1873, until 1915. Since Mr. Clark's death she has lived in the east at their old summer home in Marion, Mass. The old Clark homestead at the southwest corner of 20th street and Prairie avenue was in the center of one of Chicago's society regions.

Mrs. Clark is survived by her two children, Bruce Clark and Mrs. Cecil Clark Davis. The latter was at one time the wife of the writer, Richard Harding Davis. She is widely known as a portrait painter.

J. D. WARFIELD JR. OF CHOCOLATE CO. SUED FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Helen Totten Warfield, 108 Gage road, Riverside, filed suit for divorce yesterday in Superior court from John D. Warfield Jr., vice president of the Thomson and Taylor company and president of the Warfield Chocolate company. Mrs. Warfield charged desertion. According to the bill drawn by Attorney Frank Cantwell, the couple married on June 1, 1921, in St. Paul, Minn., and separated on June 7 of last year. Mrs. Warfield asks custody of their two sons, John D. Warfield III., 12 years old, and Totten Kenneth Warfield, 10 years old. It was indicated the suit would be uncontested.

Former Blue Island High School Principal Is Dead

Robert McCay, 83 years old, who retired in 1915 as principal of the Blue Island High school, died yesterday at his home in Miami, Fla., of injuries suffered in a fall on Wednesday. Mr. McCay had a long career as an educator and had served as principal at Burlington, Ia., Elgin and Bloomington, Ill., before coming to Blue Island. He had resided in Miami since his retirement. Surviving Mr. McCay are two sons and a daughter.

Kansas Doctor to Take 25 In-Laws on Pleasure Trip

Kansas City, Kas., July 20.—(AP)—Imagine taking 25 in-laws on a pleasure trip—voluntarily. Dr. Thomas Richmond is going to do it. Tomorrow morning Mrs. Richmond's kin, ranging from her 81 year old mother, Mrs. L. C. Cutler, to her 11 months old nephew, Bobby Lee Reed, will pile into a 17 passenger bus and two motor cars and head for Estes Park, Colo. A truck will carry their baggage.

Chicago Greeks to Give Banquet for Statesman

Leading professional Greek-American men of Chicago tomorrow night will give a banquet in the Bismarck hotel to Alexander Papanastasiou, former prime minister of Greece and known as the "father of democracy in Greece." Hosts at the banquet will be the professional group of the Order of Ahepa. The former premier is expected to discuss the present move to restore royalty in Greece.

Lady Sempill, Daughter of Painter, Lavery, Is Dead

LONDON, July 20.—(AP)—Lady Sempill, wife of the nineteenth baron of Sempill, died here today. She was formerly Eileen Marion Lavery, only daughter of Sir John Lavery, famous painter.

'WORLD'S BIGGEST FAT MAN' HELPS FREE ICE FUND

'Circus' Donates Receipts of 'One Day Stand.'

BY MARCIA WINN.

The tent was imaginary, the trained dog was a boy and pillows continually dropped from the posterior of the World's Biggest Fat Man, but all the spirit of a sawdust circus was in the yard of Mrs. Alvah S. Holway's home, 1227 Elmwood avenue, Wilmette, when five small Wilmettians staged an amateur circus there to benefit THE TRIBUNE free ice fund.

Dick Holway, 8 years old, was the clown. He also was the Fat Man. He was, in fact, the two in one, with a dead white face, a fiery red nose and a tall silk hat.

"The Two Barbaras."

Two daring young ladies on the flying trapeze were Barbara Holway and Barbara Barrett. While lacking, perhaps, the agility of the young man of the song, they made up for their lack of professional deftness by the beauty of their costumes, which were of spangled, ruffled net.

The human dog was young Tommy Richmond, who, to the delight of his juvenile audience, did innumerable dives through a hoop at the command of red-coated Ring Master Rosemary Barrett.

Of such stuff, then, was circus day in the Holway back yard.

It netted, according to the account received yesterday by THE TRIBUNE cashier, exactly one dollar, the aggregate gate fees of 10 "children under 10" at 3 cents a head and 14 "children over 10" at five cents a head.

Heavy Calls Upon Fund.

This contribution, as well as the others included in the following list, comes at a time when requests for free ice are coming in at their most feverish pace, and at a time when every donation, no matter how small, provides cool comfort for some poverty stricken mother, baby or aged person of Chicago.

Recent contributions are:

A Friend	$ 5.00
E. Puffer	.50
Mrs. W. S. Hamm	2.50
Agnes B. Murray	5.00
J. J. James	3.25
Mrs. Charlotte Greenfield	2.50

Contributions to Camp Algonquin, camp on the Fox river for needy mothers and children, are:

A Friend	$ 5.00
Mrs. W. S. Hamm	2.50
J. J. James	5.00
Mrs. H. M. Henrikson	9.00
Anonymous	10.00
Previously acknowledged	2,246.19
Total	$2,256.19

Contributions to either fund should be sent to the Cashier, Tribune Tower. All will be acknowledged in the columns of this paper.

J. D. M'DONALD, RETIRED RAILWAY EXECUTIVE, DIES

J. D. McDonald, former general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Western railway, died early yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Louis G. Raggio, 610 Abbottsford road, Kenilworth, after an extended illness. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 1118 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

Mr. McDonald was born in Toronto, Ont., Aug. 27, 1855, and entered the service of the Grand Trunk line in 1868 as a messenger. He came to Chicago in 1911, becoming general passenger agent during the world war, while the railroads were under federal control. He retired in 1923.

In addition to his daughter Mr. McDonald is survived by a son, Charles J. McDonald of Toronto.

Baron d'Hestroy, Veteran Belgian Diplomat, Dies

PARIS, July 20.—(AP)—Baron de Gaiffier d'Hestroy, 69, Belgian ambassador to France since 1919, died of heart disease today. Belgium's first ambassador to France, Baron d'Hestroy was one of the most popular figures in Paris society. He entered the Belgian diplomatic service in 1887. It was D'Hestroy who on Aug. 3, 1914, delivered to the German Minister von Buelow Belgium's proud reply to the German wartime ultimatum that German troops be permitted to pass through Belgium.

WIFE OF YEAR LIVING IN DRAIN IS SWEPT TO DEATH BY FLOOD

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—A 26 year old wife of less than a year was drowned today at Palisades Interstate park, near the New Jersey approach of the George Washington bridge, when rains swept her 300 feet down a drain in which poverty had forced her to make her home.

She was Mrs. Ottilie Stufmann Umbach, daughter of Prof. Karl Stufmann of the University of Hamburg, Germany. Four months ago she refused an offer of her parents to return her to Germany, made after her destitution had been made known through the death of her infant son from malnutrition. Today her husband, George Umbach, 28, reported her death.

Miss Stufmann arrived in New York last September and the following day wed Umbach. When her parents failed to hear from her they wrote to the missing persons bureau. Police traced her after her son died in March, but she declined the offer of her father to pay her expenses back to Germany.

Burial of the child in the potter's field was averted by the German consul. Marlene Dietrich, German film actress, read of the case and provided money for burial.

Meanwhile, Umbach lost his job. Penniless, the couple fashioned a crude tent and camped out in New Jersey. Recent rains forced them to seek shelter in the drain.

Umbach said that today while he stood near the entrance to the drain a wall of water swept him outside, but so swift was the current he could not aid his wife, and she was whirled down to a grating at the river, where police recovered the body.

PLAN REBURIAL OF OPERA SINGER, MARY L. BOSLER

The body of Mme. Mary L. Bosler, 61 years old, former opera singer and more recently a teacher of voice on the gold coast, will be exhumed Tuesday from potter's field and interred in Oak Woods cemetery, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Irene Behnke, president of the Women's Republican club of Illinois.

The body was recovered from Lake Michigan on May 29 but was not identified until more than three weeks later and a week after it had been buried in potter's field. Relatives and friends identified photographs of the body as that of the singing teacher. Mme. Bosler was reported missing from her home and studio at 181 Lake Shore drive on May 27.

Dr. Behnke said funds for the exhumation and reburial were raised by individual contributions from members of the Women's Republican club, of which Mme. Bosler was a vice president. Funeral services will be held at the Oak Woods cemetery chapel at 3 p. m. Tuesday. The body will be cremated.

BURIAL SERVICES TOMORROW FOR WM. O. BUDD, 88

William O. Budd, 88 years old, for 63 years a real estate man in the Englewood district and one of the moving figures in the annexation of that district to the corporate city of Chicago, will be buried tomorrow in Mount Hope cemetery following funeral services in Masonic hall, 6729 Gale avenue. He died July 18 in the Gladstone hotel, 62d street and Kenwood avenue, where he had resided since 1918.

Mr. Budd for years was prominent in civic activities in the Englewood district and at one time was president of the Englewood school board. He was a member of numerous Masonic organizations. He is survived by his widow, Fannie, one daughter, and one son.

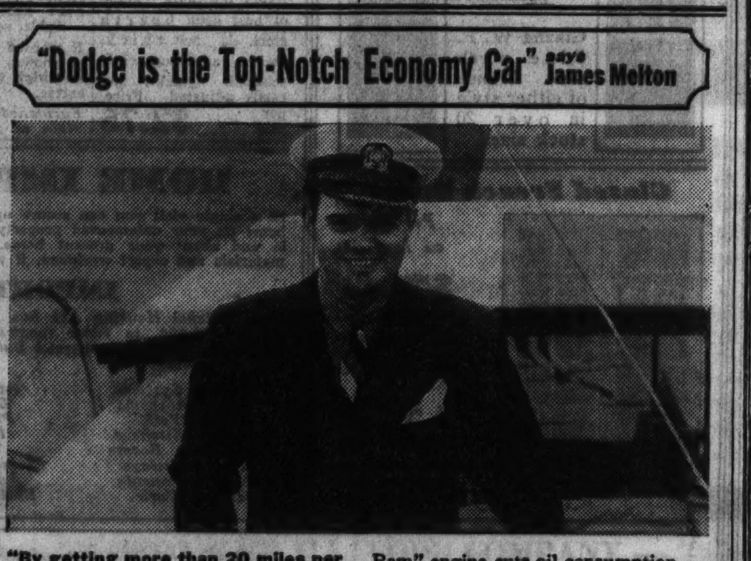
Taxicab Driver Ends Life by Fumes from Exhaust

A Checker taxicab driver, identified through cards in his pockets as Samuel Greenberg, 34 years old, 212 North Hamlin avenue, was found dead early today in his cab, parked at 50th street and the lake. Apparently he was a suicide, a rubber hose having been attached to the exhaust pipe of the car and led to the interior, which was tightly closed. Death was due to carbon monoxide fumes, according to members of a fire department rescue squad, who attempted to revive the cabman.

Sing Sing's Executioner Paid $2,550 for Year

Ossining, N. Y., July 20.—(AP)—Sing Sing prison officials reported today that the state's official executioner, Robert Elliot, had performed 17 executions during the year ended July 1 at a cost to the taxpayers of $2,550. For the previous fiscal year he received $2,700 for 18 executions, and for the fiscal year preceding that $2,850 for 19 executions.

"Dodge is the Top-Notch Economy Car" says James Melton



"By getting more than 20 miles per gallon of gasoline, the Dodge wins my new honors as America's economy car," says James Melton, popular radio star. "When I heard that Dodge owners are reporting 18—20—22 and even more miles per gallon, I realized the Dodge represented a complete change in what I thought was impossible." And Dodge owners everywhere are agreeing with Mr. Melton.

A combination of money-saving features in the powerful Dodge "Red Ram" engine cuts oil consumption, increases gas mileage to record-smashing distances.

Drive a Dodge today. Make a FREE economy test. Enjoy an "Airglide Ride" in the Dodge. Get the instant action of Dodge genuine hydraulic brakes. Remember, this big, economical car costs only a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars. List price $645 and up at factory, Detroit.

ARGENTINE PRESS PROTESTS GAG ON FOREIGN WRITERS

Claims Decree Is Violation of Constitution.

BUENOS AIRES, July 20.—(AP)—Argentine newspapers today vigorously protested yesterday's surprise government decree requiring foreign newspaper men to post heavy bonds to insure their sending out only news favorable to this country.

La Nacion, one of the capital's most influential newspapers, in an editorial headed "An Absurd Decree," assailed it as "an absurd device" to cancel constitutional provisions guaranteeing freedom of the mails. Its provisions were termed impracticable.

Sees Harm to Argentina.

La Prensa also took the view that the decree was tantamount to abrogation of the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

The English language Herald said Argentina, by "one stroke of the pen, declared war on the world's foreign press." The Herald viewed the measures as harmful only to Argentina, which "was built up largely on favorable press representations alone."

Salient provisions of the decree are:

1. Correspondents must post bonds ranging from $1,470 to $14,700 to be forfeited if they "violate regulations or give false information contrary to moral or public order tending to perturb opinion or to bring discredit to the country."

Has Right to Close Offices.

2. The ministry of interior may close offices of news associations or correspondents, and reopen them only after one year.

3. Press associations and correspondents must register with the national telegraphs, and post bonds to be fixed by the director.

4. Copies of dispatches sent must be kept in registered files, available to government inspectors, and must be signed.

MILITARY RITES MARK BURIAL OF CAPT. EDW. DUNK

A military burial, with firing squad and color guard, yesterday was accorded Capt. Edward F. Dunk, 303 South Illinois street, Villa Park, who received many decorations for heroism in the world war. Capt. Dunk died Thursday of a gangrenous infection in the unhealed stump of a leg which he lost in the St. Etienne salient.

Entering the army as a private in 1917, he was discharged a captain in 1921, after spending three years in base hospitals in France. Although cited by the United States, British, and French governments for his work at St. Etienne, he was taciturn about his exploits.

Funeral services were held at St. Sylvester church, Humboldt boulevard and Palmer square. Burial was in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Mrs. Rennes Holcomb, 83, Is Dead in Rapids City

Rapids City, Ill., July 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. Rennes Holcomb, 83, who for many years had supported herself by weaving carpets and other articles on a loom made by her husband more than a third of a century ago, died here last night. She was treasurer of the Rapids City Christian church Sunday school for thirty years.

GATHER FINEST TRAINED CHORUS FOR MUSIC FETE

Added Festival Feature; Other Groups Retained.

TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets for the annual Chicagoland Music Festival are on sale at The Tribune Public Service offices and by mail. Reserved seats are 50 cents. Please make checks payable to The Chicago Tribune.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

The largest and finest chorus of trained voices ever heard in America will sing Saturday night, August 17, in Soldiers' field at the sixth Chicagoland Music Festival.

Plans for this great festival chorus were made last Friday night at a meeting attended by more than twenty of the famous chorus directors of Chicago. More than 1,000 invitations will be sent out tomorrow by these leaders to their members inviting them to sing in this chorus. Rehersals will be held on Monday night, August 12, and on Friday night, August 16, at 7:30 o'clock in Orchestra hall. The group will sing the "Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel, "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan, "Prayer of Thanksgiving" by Kremser, "Bells of St. Mary's" by Adams, and "The Cradle Song" by Reger.

Old Chorus Retained.

This invitational chorus is a new feature for the festival. In the past splendid choral effects have been obtained and thousands of singers have sung in the Soldiers' field concert. These same singers again will take part in the "Hallelujah Chorus" number. The Thursday night rehersal [this year on August 15 in the grand ballroom of the Drake hotel] will be retained and all of those wishing to join the Hallelujah number will reherse that night. The Handel oratorio will have the support of these singers, plus members of the festival contesting choruses and the 1,000 Negro musicians under the direction of J. Wesley Jones. The total number of singers on the platform festival night will be near 5,000.

Invitational chorus	1,000
Contesting choruses	500
Negro chorus	1,000
Hallelujah chorus	2,500

The invitational chorus conference was addressed by Victor Grabel, general musical director of the festival, and Noble Cain, choral director.

Feature Trained Voices.

Mr. Cain said that while great numbers have featured previous festival presentations, this summer more stress will be laid on trained singers. The choruses will be accompanied by the Festival band, conducted by Mr. Grabel. The Negro singers, chanting spirituals, will be featured during the evening.

A chorus of 5,000 voices is not a new thing in the Chicagoland festival. But never in the history of choral singing has such a group of trained singers been recruited for a presentation as will be heard at the festival concert.

Among the choral directors and organizations enlisted in the invitational chorus are:

MR. CAIN—Chicago A Cappella choir.
EDGAR NELSON—Apollo club, Sunday Evening club, and Marshall Field chorus.
SAMUEL R. BURKHOLDER—Edgewater Presbyterian choir and American Legion mixed chorus.
GEORGE CALDER—Chicago Scottish Choral society of Chicago and Orpheus Choir of Hammond, Ind.
GEORGE A. CARLSON—Ebenezer Lutheran Church choir. President Choral Directors' Guild of Chicago.
HARRY T. CARLSON—Several choral groups.
HENRY V. LOEPPERT—First German M. E. choir. Mr. Loeppert is secretary of the Choral Directors' guild.
CARL CRAVEN—Carl Craven Ladies' chorus and Park Manor Congregational church choir.
FRANK BENNETT—Lawson Y. M. C. A. Glee club.
DAVID NYVALL JR.—The Chicago Lutheran A Cappella choir and Bethany Union Church choir of Beverly Hills.
WALTER ASCHENBRENNER—Chicago Symphonic choir.
HARRY WALSH—Hamilton club chorus.
GLENN C. BAINUM—Northwestern university singers.

Additional information concerning the festival choruses may be obtained by calling the festival headquarters, telephone number Superior 0100, local 710, or visiting the festival headquarters, room 1418, in Tribune Tower.

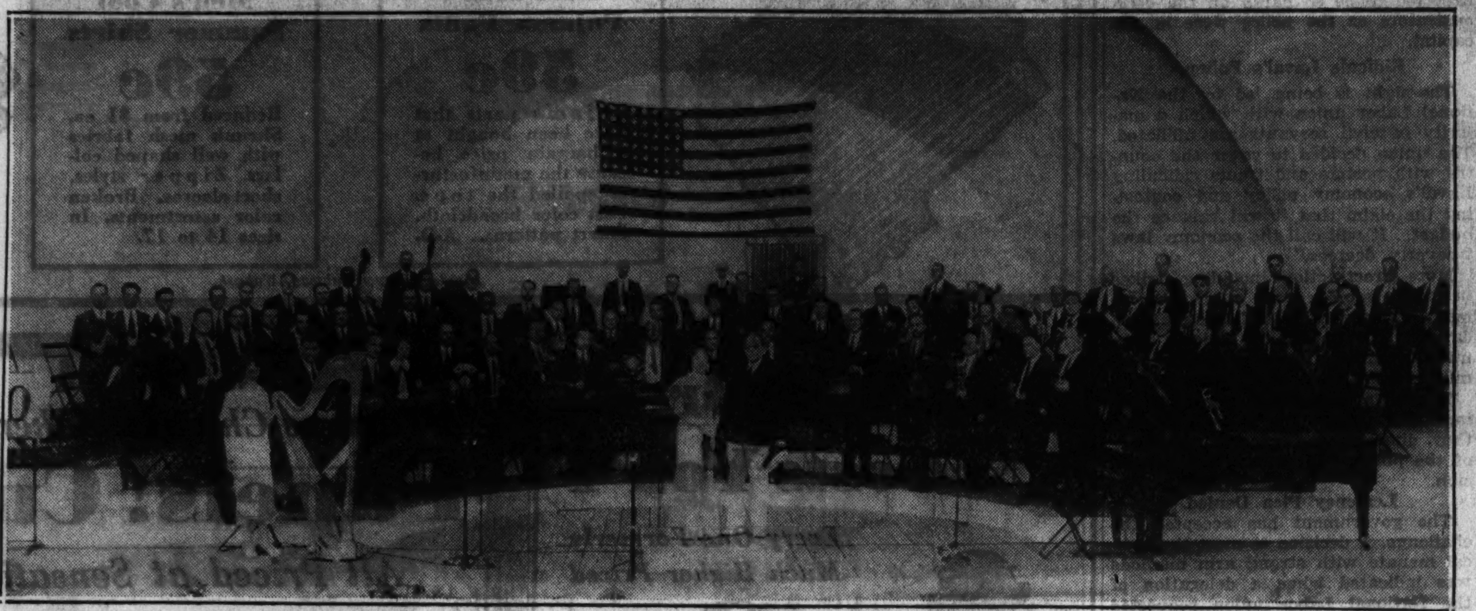
NEARLY 50,000 ATTEND PARK BAND CONCERT

A throng estimated by police at nearly 50,000 attended the concert given by Max Bendix' band at the Grant park band shell last evening under the sponsorship of the Chicago Federation of Musicians and the Chicago park district. Mr. Bendix is shown in the foreground as he conducted the band.



This picture shows Mr. Bendix' band as it appeared in band shell at concert. Mr. Bendix is standing near the center of the stage. Ada Paggi, mezzo-soprano of the Civic Opera company, was the soloist. Last night's concert was the 20th in a series of 64.

WEDDING BELLS WILL NOT RING OUT FOR THIS MICHIGAN PAIR

Pontiac, Mich., July 20.—[U.P.]—A change of mind, or heart, by the prospective bride tonight brought "permanent" postponement of the marriage of Miss Frances Ann Belknap of Pontiac to Philip Adams Minges of Battle Creek and Ames, Ia.

A few hours before the ceremony, the culmination of a college romance, was to be held, the socially prominent families of the young couple hurriedly recalled invitations and notified newspapers that the wedding was "definitly off."

Miss Belknap, found at the home of a friend, admitted only that "I've changed my mind."

"I won't marry him now or ever," she said.

Minges, assistant director of research in the department of horticulture at Iowa State college, declined to comment. He was secluded at the home of his parents.

QUEZON BEGINS FILIPINO DRIVE FOR PRESIDENCY

MANILA, P. I., July 20.—[U.P.]—Manuel Quezon, Philippine political leader, today pledged himself to maintain an orderly and democratic government in informally accepting nomination as a candidate for the first presidency of the new Philippine commonwealth.

Quezon advised his countrymen that the worst enemies of their new independence would be "social enemies." Without mentioning the sakdalistas, militant farm organization, by name, he warned against "those stirring up discontent among the masses." He announced his opposition to communism.

He said that in due time the Philippines should apply for membership in the league of nations and that in the meantime the island government should maintain adequate military preparedness. He announced his support of the ten year transition period plan under which the United States will grant the islands acquired from Spain their full independence. In this he is opposed by Emilio Aguinaldo, rival candidate for the presidency, who favors more immediate independence.

Numbers Broadcast

Before an appreciative audience of nearly 50,000 persons Conductor Max Bendix and his band and Ada Paggi, mezzo soprano of the Civic Opera company, were heard last night at the Grant Park band shell. The concert was the twentieth of a series of sixty-four sponsored by the Chicago Federation of Musicians, of which James Petrillo is president, and the Chicago park district board, of which Petrillo is a member.

Seven numbers of the program were broadcast over WGN, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station. These were three songs by Miss Paggi—Schubert's Serenade, "Estrellita," by Ponce, and "La Paloma," by Yradier—the Spanish Capriccio by Rimsky-Korsakov, which was an unscheduled number; Conductor Bendix's "March of Events"; "Valse des Fleurs," by Tschaikowsky, and Victor Herbert's "American Fantasy."

Miss Paggi also sang the "Habanera" from "Carmen." Other numbers played by the band were Suppe's overture "Light Cavalry," Saint-Saens' "Bacchanale," Verdi's Quartet from "Rigoletto," Flotow's overture, 'Stradella," and Meyerbeer's fanfare, 'Coronation March."

FIND POISON IN BODY OF HER 4TH HUSBAND; JAILED

South Bend, Ind., July 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. Cora Werntz Rendall, 52, was jailed tonight after she had been questioned by officers on circumstances surrounding the death of her fourth husband, Harry T. Rendall, 46. The woman was brought in for questioning after a report from a state toxicologist showed poison sufficient to kill had been found in Rendall's body.

She denied that there was poison in her house. She insisted she believed poison liquor had caused her husband's death. A bottle containing some of the liquor was found in the kitchen of her home and will be analyzed.

The coroner said he planned to investigate circumstances of the deaths of previous husbands of the woman as well as those of a brother and a brother-in-law.

Mrs. Rendall said her third husband, Elmer Werntz, died March 27, 1933, as a result of excessive drinking. In November of the preceding year her brother-in-law, Schuyler Colfax Werntz, died at her home.

GOES TO SIBERIA TO SEEK BONES OF 'FOLSOM MAN'

Philadelphia, Pa., July 20.—(AP)—Edgar B. Howard, archæologist of the academy of natural sciences, is en route to soviet Russia to enlist aid in a search for the key to the mystery of the "Folsom man," believed to have been America's first resident.

Howard, who has searched five years for some more tangible evidence of the existence of the "Folsom man," believes the key lies somewhere in the vastnesses of the Siberian wastes, from which he thinks the first man emigrated to this continent.

Thus far the "Folsom man" is known only by his handiwork. Flint points, knives, spearheads, and other articles, first found near Folsom, New Mexico, have since been discovered all over the midwest—as far east as Pennsylvania, as far north as New Hampshire, and as far south as Georgia.

The bones of the "Folsom man" remain to be discovered.

SPAIN FIDGETY; POLITICAL STRIFE PERILS REPUBLIC

Jails Filled as Enemies Fight for Power.

Mr. Darrah, formerly correspondent of The Tribune in Rome, recently completed a survey of conditions in Spain. Here is the first of several articles.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain.—[By Mail.]—Spain's jails, many of them newly constructed, are overflowing with political prisoners and the police forces of the country have been doubled as the second Spanish republic enters the fifth year of an unstable existence.

Such is the bitter division among Spaniards that behind the easy charm that Madrid always wears many are doubting whether the present régime or even republican institutions can endure. Political strife seems to be increasing. Political groups fall in and out with each other.

Just now the powerful man in Spain is Gil Robles, 32 years old, Salamanca professor, leader of the Popular Catholice Action party and head of the amalgamated rightist groups. It was he who organized the reaction against the Socialists. His partisans are urging him to claim more power. Will he become another Primo de Rivera, and will a dictatorship, Fascism, or a monarchical restoration be the only way out of the present political division and class war that exists now in Spain? That is the question being asked today.

Still Trying Rebels.

Courts martial are still sitting in judgment on the Socialists, revolutionaries, and Separatists who organized the bloody revolution of last October. Hundreds are being condemned to prison for their participation in the Asturias revolt.

A rigorous censorship which the present government of the right maintains hushes the truth about the Socialist revolt.

The government accuses the Asturias miners of atrocities in the revolt, including the bayoneting of babies and hanging of priests. The Socialists retort that most of the atrocities were committed by the Foreign Legion and the Moors whom the government summoned to suppress the uprising.

The left parties demand the lifting of the censorship and the holding of elections in the light of a free exposition of what went on. They claim popular opinion would seat them again in Madrid and drive out the rightist concentration now sitting in the saddle.

Azaña Is Freed.

Among those recently tried was former Prime Minister Manuel Azaña, republican, who headed the first Socialist government of the republic. He succeeded in vindicating himself. His friends argue that the charge against him was a political ruse of his enemies.

Sectional unrest is also stirring again in Catalonia. The Catalon Action party is demanding an end of the dictatorship which it says has been functioning for the last six months. It also demands that the Catalon parliament, established under the autonomy statute, be reopened, or elections held to form a new one.

From time to time there are open outbreaks for one reason or other in various sections of Spain. At Easter time in Saragossa the radical syndicalists declared a general strike when the authorities suppressed a rally during Holy week. Bombs were thrown. One person was killed. Police made 100 arrests.

At about the same time in Seville partisans of the Catholic party and those of the Bloque Nacional or monarchist group headed by Calvo Sotelo, formerly Primo de Rivera's finance minister, clashed. More than 100 arrests were made.

Deals Harshly with Reds.

The Lerroux government has dealt harshly with the so-called "pistoleros" and the communistic and anarchistic agitators who infest Barcelona. To cope with them and their aggressions several thousand more men have been added to the civil guard.

This state of turmoil leaves the citizens uneasy. Most Spaniards are disappointed. They say that the republic's achievements have not been great. One of the main problems is to revise the constitution of 1931. Educational facilities are perhaps greater under the republic, but observers say that administrative efficiency is no better than it was under the monarchy. The budget has not been balanced for years and the economic and trade situation is described as bad.

The class war, aggravated by the Socialist rebellion, is in fact the greatest danger to be feared, in the eyes of most citizens. Some even go so far as to represent Spain in that state of chaos and lack of authority as was Russia in 1917 at the time of Kerensky. Making due allowances for exaggeration, the saner elements admit that this factional strife is putting the governmental institutions in jeopardy and it is from this that they fear a possible Fascist reaction.

MISS HINCKLEY WED TO HENRY M. PARKER IN MAINE CEREMONY

Boston, Mass., July 20.—[Special.]—Miss Margaret Pope Hinckley, daughter of Freeman Hinckley of Brookline and "Briarwood," Prout's Neck, and the late Mrs. Hinckley, was married this afternoon at St. James Episcopal church, Prout's Neck, Me., to Henry McBurney Parker of Brookline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Parker of Bedford and Napant. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Richard Pressey of Grantwood, N. J., assisted by the Rev. George A. Trowbridge of New York.

Miss Carol Winman of West Orange, N. J., was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Albert P. Hinckley of Bedford Hills, N. Y.; Miss Barbara Reynolds, Miss Eleanor Fairfield, Miss Jane S. Megrew, Mrs. C. Campbell Patterson Jr., and Miss Eleanor McClurg, all of Boston.

Miss Margaret Roberts Hinckley, niece of the bride, was the flower girl, and Miss Barbara Ogden McClurg and Miss Nancy Parker King were ribbon bearers.

Amory Coolidge Jr. of Brookline and Manchester was best man. Ushers were Dr. Frederic Parker Jr., John S. Parker, William Amory Parker, Henry P. King, Harold W. Pierce, Francis Brooks, Edward S. Brewer, and Winslow Felton, all of Boston; William F. Prescott of Long Island, N. Y.; Albert P. Hinckley of Bedford Hills, N. Y., and J. Holliday Philbin of Long Island.

A reception at "Briarwood" followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Parker will reside at 120 Willard road, Brookline, following their wedding trip.

W. K. COOLIDGE WEDS LAETITIA KELLY IN EAST

The marriage of Miss Laetitia Bredow Kelly and Winthrop Knowlton Coolidge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Coolidge, 5749 Kenwood avenue, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the country estate of the bride's parents, Liriodendron, near Bel Air, Md. The Rev. Benjamin B. Lovett, rector of the Memorial Protestant Episcopal church at Baltimore, performed the ceremony.

The bride was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Atwood Kelly of Baltimore. Dr. Kelly is a noted physician. He is a professor emeritus and consulting physician at the Johns Hopkins hospital.

Mrs. Coolidge was attended by her sister, Mrs. Douglas S. Warner of Baltimore, as her maid of honor, and three nieces, Miss Anne Siebels of Birmingham, Ala., and Miss Lucy Kelly and Miss Peggy Warner of Baltimore. The best man was Donald Halsted of Montclair, N. J.

After a wedding trip through the Adirondacks and Canada the Coolidges will make their home temporarily with his parents because of their absence from the city during the summer.

DUCKS HUSBAND'S BLOW; CALLS OUT A FIRE BRIGADE

New York, July 20.—(AP)—It wasn't that Mrs. Grace Fisher mistook the fire alarm box for a mailbox, or anything else as hackneyed as that.

It was simply, she told Magistrate Anna M. Kross today, that she and her husband were having a fight, her husband raised his arm as if to hit her, she ducked, lost her balance, and grabbed the fire alarm handle to keep from falling.

Along came three engine companies, two hook and ladder companies, a salvage corps patrol, two police radio cars, three battalion chiefs and a patrolman, who arrested her.

The magistrate paroled her in custody of her husband pending a further hearing.

FRENCH WORKERS TO FIGHT LAVAL'S ECONOMY POLICY

Agitators Stir Up Huge Protest Demonstrations.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 20.—The intention to wage a furious, unrelenting fight in an effort to ruin Premier Pierre Laval's economy decrees and to prevent the balancing of the budget was announced today by the left press. Last night's demonstration near the Place de l'Opera was btu the beginning, the leftist newspapers declared.

Agitators are now at work in the provinces stirring up huge protest demonstrations of government employés whose wages were cut. The agitators are paying particular attention to workers in Marseilles, Lyons, Bordeaux, Toulouse, Le Havre, and Rouen. Those cities have left wing municipal governments and are not expected to be so harsh on the demonstrators as the police were in the capital.

Ridicule Laval's Policy.

The fight is being led by the National Labor union with which a majority of civil servants are affiliated. The union decided to cover the country with posters and tracts ridiculing Laval's economy policy and contesting the claim that it will balance the budget. It will call the economy laws "poverty decrees."

More direct action, including strikes in the postoffice and other government services, will be discussed Monday at a meeting of the union's executive committee, which is under communist influence.

The main propaganda argument being used against the decrees is that they diminish the purchasing power of the public and prolong the depression.

Leniency Plea Denied.

The government has accepted the challenge. A decision to meet the radical menate with strong arm methods was indicated when a delegation of the National Labor union requested Joseph Paganon, the minister of the interior, not to punish government employés arrested in last night's demonstration. The union curtly was told the cabinet refused to commit itself to leniency.

At the same time, an announcement was made that the arrested demonstrators, if found to be government employés, would be disciplined. The government is also taking a vigorous stand against foreign agitators. Eighteen have been ordered expelled from France.

The cabinet, however, is abating some of its rigor with the announcement that an "interpretation" of the economy decrees means that the 10 per cent cuts will affect neither military or civil disablement allowances nor railway workers' retirement pensions.

OMAHA WINS $36,500 CLASSIC; SETS RECORD

CUBS WHIP GIANTS, 7-2; SOX AND SENATORS SPLIT

BEAT PARMELEE AS FRENCH GOES ROUTE FOR NO. 8

Second in Row Over Jittery Leaders.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs' research designed to discover gents who are not so tough yesterday embraced one of their most persistent foes, one Tarzan Parmelee of the New York Giants, at whose hands they had suffered six defeats since they beat him the first time they ever faced him away back in 1932. The brisk Chicagoans romped over the Giants again, winning 7 to 2, to make it two straight in the series, and Parmelee bore the brunt of the punishment.

The Cubs, who have won eleven of their last thirteen starts, now are six games back of the trembling Giants, and the Cardinals, idle yesterday, are only three and a half games behind the faltering easterners.

On several occasions there was evidence that Parmelee, unquestionably a great pitcher when the going is good, was suffering from acute tightening of the tonsils, a malady also suffered by some of his mates, who seemed to be in danger of choking to death.

Jitters! They Got the Jitters!

In addition to being pushed around considerably as a pitcher, Tarzan's control in throwing to the bases was bad. He made two errors in the last two innings. Gus Mancuso was on the jitter squad with a toss to center field, and the usually calm Mark Koenig in one instance completely forgot baseball procedure and failed to cover first base on a bunt while First Baseman Bill Terry was playing in.

Larry French increased his winning streak to six straight, though it must be said it's an odd kind of a winning streak, inasmuch as Larry previously hadn't won a game since June 29. He has done considerable pitching since that time—some very good, and some very bad pitching—but had not been able to grab a victory although he dodged defeat with great agility. French now has won eight games while losing five.

Good Ol' Tarzan!

French allowed twelve hits, two more than the Cubs registered, but he was a stingy workman in the jams. The Giants' first run, in the seventh, was unearned and the other one was a homer by George Davis, who batted for Parmelee to lead off the ninth.

Everybody in the Cub lineup, excepting French and Stan Hack, bumped Parmelee with at least one hit, and Hack's solace was found in the fact that he walked twice, each time to fill the bases.

Hitting honors were pretty evenly distributed among Klein, Hartnett, Cavarretta, Galan and Jurges, but you may as well give the wreath to Klein, who produced the first run of the game with a homer at the outset of the second inning. Or Hartnett who drove in the third and winning run with a double in the third inning and scored the fourth Chicago run after walking in the eighth.

What a Ball Club!

The Cubs made four runs in the eighth inning yesterday and six in the eighth in Friday's opener. Ten runs in two successive eighth innings was taken as an indication of the extent to which the league leaders' vaunted fighting power has collapsed. And over them, of course, hangs the harrowing memory of the manner in which they blew up last year, after remaining stronghearted until well along in September.

The first inning was a session of wasted singles. In the Giant half Terry, Ott and Leiber singled successively to load the bases after two were out, after which Jackson forced Leiber. In the home half Galan singled to right and went to third when Herman singled to the same terrain. Then Cavarretta fouled to Jackson, Hartnett fanned on

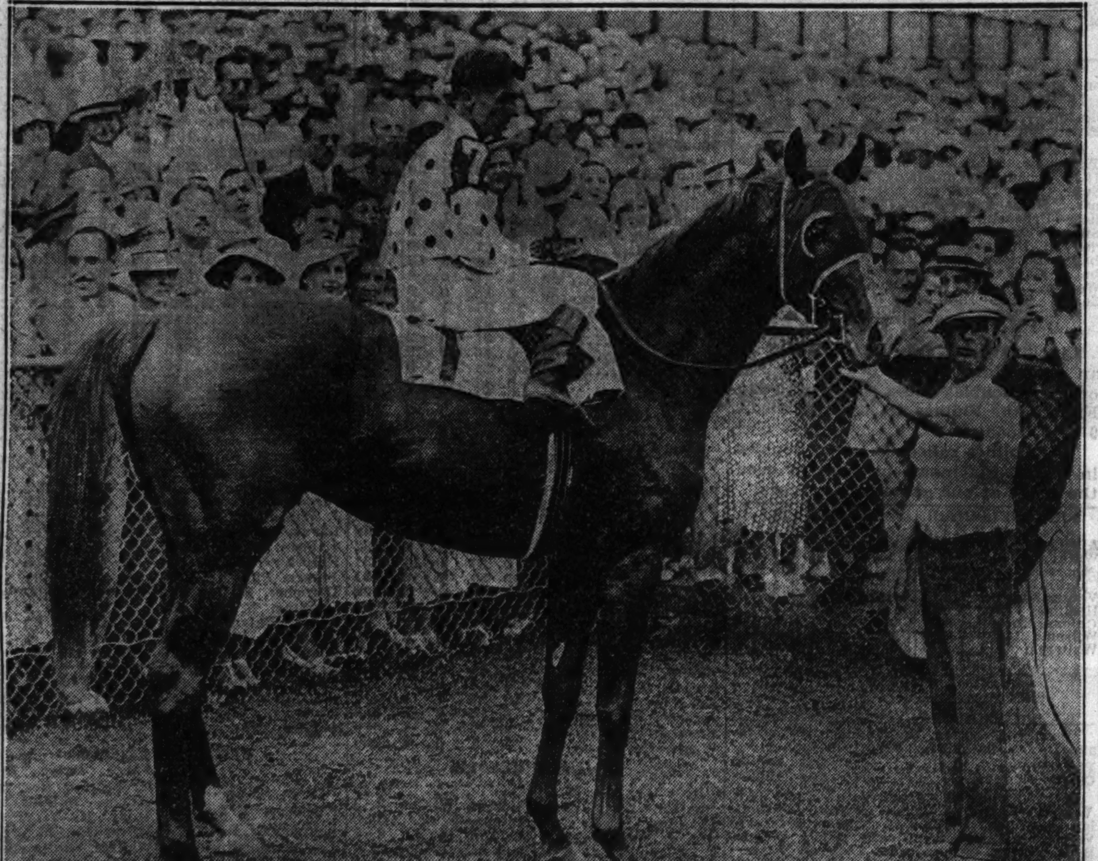
"AND SO DID MY OLD MAN!" NEIGHS CLASSIC WINNER

Omaha, gallant son of Gallant Fox, clinches his claim to the 3 year old championship by victory in yesterday's $30,000 added Arlington Classic, the same stake that his daddy captured back in 1930. St. Bernard, owned by Earl Shaffer of Chicago, is finishing second and Bloodroot, one of Col. E. R. Bradley's two starters, is third. Jocky Don Meade is easing up Black Helen, the other Bradley filly, which took fourth money. Omaha paid $2.80 to win and ran the 1 1-4 miles in 2:01 2-5, a new track record.



"Howdy, folks, how did you like that?" says Omaha as he and Jocky W. D. Wright pose for the photographers in winner's circle at Arlington Park.

Fischer Hurls One Hit Game, Sox Win, 1-0; Then Lose, 9-2

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Carl Fischer, just one of the boys from the bull pen, almost southpawed his way into baseball's honor list of no hit pitchers today as he piloted the White Sox to a 1-0 victory in the first half of a double-header. With amazing ease the ex-Tiger carried the Senators into the ninth inning without yielding anything resembling a safe smash. Then with one out in the final stand Ossie Bluege singled and a possible no hit triumph was reduced to a one hit affair.

Fischer's thriller, his third victory of the season against four defeats, seemingly exhausted the Sox luster for the day. Sam Jones, the sad faced old fellow, endeavored to carry on, but the Senators refused to be impressed. They rode him out of the picture in a dizzy third inning splurge during which seven runs scored, three after the side should have been retired. The rest of the one sided struggle was mere routine for Early [Lefty] Whitehill, the Senators winning 9 to 2.

Holbrook Gets to Third.

Fischer's wizardry over his pet foes was so effective that he experienced only one shaky inning, and it wasn't altogether his fault. One of the two passes that he dropped into his machinelike retirement of the Senators went to Holbrook to open the third. Holbrook continued to enjoy cheap transportation when a wild pitch moved him to second. Then Piet dropped the easiest kind of a popup off Hadley's bat and Holbrook took third. The error proved a blessing in disguise. It made possible a double play on Bluege's tap to Dykes. Thereafter nobody reached second.

Holbrook also was the third enemy to become a base runner, of which there were only two in the last six innings. Holbrook drew his second pass in the fifth after two were out, whereupon Fischer fanned Kress. Then there were three innings in which only nine men appeared at the plate. Manush, batting for Hadley to start the ninth, also was dropped on a lazy pop to Appling. Then Bluege broke the spell with his single over short on the first pitch. Miles ran for Bluege, but the pinch runner wasn't needed. Stone flied to Radcliff, and Myer popped to Piet for the final out.

Senators Pop Up.

Whatever it was that Fischer was throwing had the Senators hitting into the air most of the time, and this must have been somewhat annoying for Manager Bucky Harris, who juggled his lineup so that all except three southpaw hitters were absent. Nineteen putouts were recorded on fly balls or pop ups. Four men died on strikes. The remaining four putouts, half of them in a double play, were turned on ground balls. Bonura was almost totally unemployed at first

FRANKLIN PARK QUALIFIES FIVE IN TRIBUNE SWIM

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Five contestants from Franklin Park led the 33 boys and girls who qualified yesterday in the preliminaries of THE TRIBUNE'S 100 yard swimming races at Cermak pool, Lyons, Ill. The finals will be held next Sunday at Lincoln park.

This afternoon at Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avenues, the list of qualifiers for the finals will be completed. One thousand have registered for this afternoon's events. These contestants must report between 1 and 2 o'clock, and the first of the trials will start at 2 o'clock.

Showers Hinder Event.

Thunder showers which lasted a half hour probably cut the number of competitors yesterday, although the rain stopped just in time to get the races started on schedule. There were vacancies in the list of girls qualified in three of the age classes, but this will prove to the advantage of the girls who report today at Whealan pool.

If the list warrants, six girls will be qualified today in class A [11 and 12 years of age], and class D [17 and 18 years of age]. It also will be possible to qualify seven girls in class E for those 19 years of age and over.

Out of Town Swimmers Win.

The out of Chicago swimmers dominated yesterday's trials, which was expected since Cermak pool is several miles from Chicago's limits. Most surprising was that swimmers from farther away made the trip to the forest preserve pool. Oscar Fodor of South Bend, Ind., qualified in class D, while Harold Long of Kenosha, Wis., was a winner in class C.

Peoria Country club placed two sisters, Jacqueline and Jeanne Swann, in the finals of classes B and C, re-

Fans' Poll to Pick All-Star Football Team Closes Tonight

BY ARCH WARD.

America will know within the next 48 hours who were its college football heroes of 1934.

The national poll conducted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and 105 associated newspapers for the purpose of picking a team of 1934 college seniors to play the Bears at Soldiers' Field, Aug. 29, ends tonight at midnight.

Working day and night, the department in charge of counting the final returns expects to have the figures available for publication Tuesday morning. It is predicted the total will exceed 700,000, as compared to 167,000 cast for players in last year's poll.

The coast to coast voting for three coaches to lead the All-Stars begins today and will continue for two weeks. Fans are invited to name three coaches in the order of their preference. First place will count three points, second two and third one. Noble Kizer of Purdue, who was elected head coach last year, will not be eligible to run again.

Vote May Total 2,000,000.

The coach who receives the greatest number of total points will be the winner and will be appointed head coach. In event he is unable to accept the honor conferred on him by the fans, the No. 2 man will be named leader of the squad. The head coach will be entirely responsible for the development and direction of the team. The men who finish second and third in the vote will be asked to serve as his assistants.

The coaches' poll will end at midnight, Aug. 4, but it probably will be Aug. 7 before final figures are printed. It will not be surprising if the total vote approximates 2,000,000, judging from returns in the player poll.

15,000 Vote in Los Angeles.

Invitations to the 22 leading players will be sent immediately after the last vote has been counted Monday. Probably that many more also will be invited to join the squad. No expense will be spared to make this the greatest football show.

More than 15,000 have cast ballots in the poll conducted by the Los Angeles Times. Cotton Warburton, who for the last three years has been the most dangerous ball carrier in Pacific Coast football, leads every candidate in every position in Los Angeles. His total of 12,114 gives him a lead of 12 to 1 over Munjas of Pittsburgh and Salatino of Santa Clara. Other Los Angeles favorites are Hutson and Larson, Lee and Barber, Boyer and Bevan, Christie and Siemering, Clemens and Williams, Woykyns and Sulkosky.

The Birmingham, Ala., News-Age Herald returns favor Alabama players naturally, but they are not the overwhelming favorites that some of the coast boys are in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Dixie Howell, for example, leads Duane Purvis only 7 to 4 and Lee's margin over Bengtson is about 7 to 6. Robinson of Notre Dame is running 5 to 1 ahead of Shotwell, his closest competitor, in Alabama. Gentry, Oklahoma tackle, and Stacey, Oklahoma guard, are the leading vote getters in the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman poll.

Winners in some of the positions already are apparent. It is unlikely that Hutson and Larson will be displaced as the leading ends. The next pair, Borden and Fuqua, appear to have a comfortable lead over the rest of the field. Bengston of Minnesota, Lee of Alabama, and Barber of San Francisco have three of the tackle berths well in hand, but there is a battle for the fourth place between Maddox of Kansas State and Steen of Syracuse. There is a similar situation at guard, where Monahan of Ohio State, Mucha of Washington and Bevan of Minnesota are far in front. Schiralli of Notre Dame, Marr of Alabama and Barclay of North Carolina all have a chance for the fourth place.

Warburton at Quarter.

Jack Robinson of Notre Dame, who probably will be unable to compete because of a recent appendectomy, is almost sure to be the No. 1 center, although Shotwell of Pittsburgh has a chance to overtake him. Warburton of Southern California is the fans' quarter back choice, but it likely will require the last ballots to determine holder of second place, which now is a dead heat between Munjas of Pittsburgh and Beynon of Illinois. Kostka of Minnesota is an overwhelming choice at full back.

The wealth of great half back material has made the battle for honor places there a merry scramble. Purvis of Purdue and Howell of Alabama are the favorites, but right behind them closely bunched are Lund of Minnesota, Melinkovich of Notre Dame, Carter of Purdue, Shepherd of Western Maryland and Borries of the Navy.

Loyal to Coast Stars.

Pacific coast fans have been extremely loyal to players from their section. In the San Francisco bay district, where the Chronicle and San José Mercury Herald are conducting polls, Barber and Siemering of San Francisco, Mucha of Washington, Salatino and Sobrero of Santa Clara, and Nichelini of St. Mary's are running far ahead.

On the Atlantic coast they are showing similar enthusiasm for eastern players. Trenton, N. J., gives Borden of Fordham, Kalbaugh and Kadlic of Princeton and Weinstock of Pittsburgh a big vote. Melinkovich of Notre Dame is another New Jersey favorite.

Sioux City, Ia., where fans are voting through the Journal, is adding heavily to the totals of Bengtson, Larson, Bevan, and Kostka of Minnesota. Robinson and Hanley of Notre Dame also are popular there. Warburton is swamping all rivals in the Sioux City poll. The Austin, Tex., American Statesman returns give state favorites, notably Sanger, Gray, Fuqua, Hilliard and Coates, a big vote and Warburton also is running away with quarter back honors there. Melinkovich leads the half backs in the Wisconsin State

Lund is Ready

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 20.—[Special.—Francis [Pug] Lund, star half back of Minnesota's undefeated 1934 football team, already has started getting into condition for the game between the College All Stars and Chicago Bears. Lund, who is running among the leaders at half back in the national poll, said today that the game in Chicago looked like the thrill of his life.

MADE A BUM OUT OF MY OLD MAN, CHUCKLES OMAHA

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

"Hello there, Harvey, old pal. Well, am I as good a colt as my old man was at my age?"

That was Omaha's greeting yesterday as we tramped over to the Belair Stable barn at Arlington Park for the customary post-Classic interview with the winner. The son of Gallant Fox already had received his shower and rubdown, was sitting in his shirt sleeves puffing at about the longest, blackest cigar we ever saw.

"Indeed, you are," he replied. "You answered the question most convincingly."

"And you might say in your newspaper, I believe you work—or I should say play—on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE," continued Omaha, who evidently was in a bantering mood, "that I won the race a hell—or don't you say hell in your newspaper—of a sight easier than the old man did in 1930."

O, a Sheik, Eh?

The handsome chestnut colt, of course, was referring to the stern struggle given Gallant Fox in that second Classic by Gallant Knight and his margin of a neck at the finish.

"It appeared from the press stand as if you had the race in the bag all the way," we countered, "but tell me what did you say to Black Helen when you passed her and St. Bernard on the home turn. You weren't razzing the poor little thing, were you?"

"Hell, no," replied Omaha, who was using more mild cuss words than we had ever heard from him before, perhaps a reaction from his 1¼ miles for a new track record. "You ought to know me better than that. What I really said was 'Helen, how about a little date tonight at Lincoln tavern or Villa Venice? I'd like to spend some of that 29 grand. Perhaps it was the wrong time to bring up the subject, but I really meant it'."

"What did Helen say?" we asked.

"Nary a word. She just tossed her head and it wasn't coquettishly either."

Stick to Your Ruching, Helen.

"Did you try to follow it up after the race?"

"No, I thought Helen acted a little

ST. BERNARD IS 2D; BLOODROOT FINISHES THIRD

35,000 Watch Black Helen Run 4th.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Omaha won the Classic stakes and clinched the 3 year old championship at Arlington Park yesterday.

There were no ifs and ands about the way he did it. He cleared the last hurdle to the title when he galloped home the winner by a length and a half, just as his sire Gallant Fox had, although by a much narrower margin, back in 1930.

A crowd of 35,000 watched him do it and sighed a bit when he humiliated Col. Edward R. Bradley's great filly, Black Helen, so thoroughly that she finished out of the money.

St. Bernard, after outrunning Black Helen through the early stages of the race, finished second. Running desperately toward the rescue of Col. Bradley's Black Helen was his other colorbearer, Bloodroot, which finished third, a head back of St. Bernard.

Tiny Little Helen Fourth.

Faltering Black Helen, so tiny that she appeared almost like a midget when she lined up with the other nine starters, staggered home in fourth place. Warren Wright's Skip It was fifth, and Mrs. John Hertz's Count Arthur sixth. In the rear guard were Roman Soldier, Chief Cherokee, Tearout, and Malbrouk.

Omaha not only won the race, but he shattered a track record while he was doing it. He skipped over the mile and a quarter trip in 2:01 2-5. This was two-fifths of a second faster than Sun Beau ran the distance when he established the track mark back in 1931. It was a second and 2-5ths slower than the world's record.

Yet Omaha was running so easily when he passed the finish line he seemed to be doing little more than jogging. He had simply overpowered his rivals.

Everybody Had Omaha.

Omaha was the overwhelming favorite among those who wagered $147,073 on the race. He paid $2.80 to win, $3.00 to place and $2.40 to show. St. Bernard paid $7.00 to place and $3.80 to show. The Bradley entry of Bloodroot and Black Helen paid $2.80 to show.

The weather man cut some of his queer capers during the afternoon. The early arrivals in the great crowd sweltered beneath a blistering sun. They appeared to be in for a most uncomfortable afternoon. Then shortly before 2 o'clock a breeze blew in from Lake Michigan, making those garbed in flimsy raiment almost uncomfortable.

Every seat in the huge grand stand and club enclosure was taken and thousands were standing banked along the sloping lawns when Omaha cantered to victory.

St. Bernard Is a Greyhound.

Except for slight interference suffered by Black Helen at the stretch turn, when Omaha brushed by her, the Classic was very cleanly run. The field was well mannered at the post and Starter Roy Dickerson had them away within a minute. St. Bernard at once dashed to the front with Black Helen second. Malbrouk and Chief Cherokee were not far away. Omaha was taken in hand as Jocky Wayne Wright went about the business of placing him.

St. Bernard was under stout restraint as he went to the clubhouse turn about a length in front. He held this margin around the bend, with Black Helen, Malbrouk and Chief Cherokee still his closest pursuers. Omaha was well back on the outside, eager to run, but held in check.

Down the back stretch Malbrouk had enough and fell back as Chief Cherokee and Bloodroot moved up. Omaha was given his head midway through the far straightaway and quickly began to move forward, running sixth at the far turn.

Here Comes Omaha!

St. Bernard held his advantage around the second curve with Black Helen following doggedly at his heels. Bloodroot moved up on the inside to be third and Omaha made his run on the outside with long, sweeping strides. Just before turning into the home stretch, Omaha sped by Black Helen and placed her in tight quarters. Then he went up to challenge St. Bernard. The two looked each other in the eye for a few strides, then Omaha said good-by to the son of Bull Dog. Drawing away into a lead of a length and a half, Omaha was kept under steady pressure until the final few yards when Wright eased up on him slightly.

St. Bernard held on to second place with something to spare until the final Went to post at 5:05½. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won handily, place driving.

OMAHA, taken to outside before going a quarter, moved up slightly while under strong restraint in the backstretch, swept around the leaders with a rush on stretch turn, drew clear nicely before reaching final eighth, but was kept under light pressure to end. ST. BERNARD, displaying keen speed from the start and well rated, could not withstand winner, but held on with fine courage to last sixteenth before weakening. BLOODROOT, well up after three furlongs and lucky to save much ground on second turn, stood a terrific drive gamely and would have headed ST. BERNARD in another stride. BLACK HELEN had her speed, was in tight quarters briefly as OMAHA moved to front entering stretch, and held on well when clear. SKIP IT came from far back and finished fastest of all. COUNT ARTHUR went well. CHIEF CHEROKEE and MALBROUK quit. ROMAN SOLDIER was outrun throughout. TEAROUT also was outrun.

TIGERS CLOSE IN ON YANKS; BEAT RED SOX, 6 TO 5

Trail Idle Leaders by 8 Percentage Points.

Boston, Mass., July 20.—(AP)—The Tigers wiped out most of the difference between first and second place in the American league standing today as they turned back the Red Sox for the third straight time, 6 to 5, but the percentage column continued to favor the Yankees.

The triumph left Detroit, which has climbed steadily ever since it moved out of sixth place late in May, only eight percentage points behind the Yanks, who were idle. The Tigers have won 52 games, three more than the Yankees, and lost 33, also three more. The percentage table shows New York on top with .620 to .612.

Detroit made four runs off Gordon [Dusty] Rhodes in the first two innings and seemed headed for an easy victory when General Al Crowder began to weaken in the seventh and the Red Sox rallied to tie the score in the eighth. Wes Ferrell, who smacked a pinch double in Boston's rally, failed to hold the Tigers, however, and a ninth inning run decided the game. Score:

INDIANS, A'S DIVIDE.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 20.—(AP)—Behind Roy Mahaffey's six hit pitching the Athletics came back in the second game today to win, 5 to 2, and evened a double header after the Cleveland Indians had overwhelmed them, 15 to 3, in the first encounter.

Eight runs in the first inning made the opening game easy for the Indians. Bruce Campbell made five hits in five times up to lead the Cleveland assault of 21 hits.

Jimmy Foxx's 18th homer of the season, coming with two on base to climax a four run rally in the third inning, gave Mahaffey the decision over Ralph Winegarner in the second game. Scores:

Carleton, Lee Oppose Giants for Cubs Today

Tex Carleton and Bill Lee are Vice President Charley Grimm's nominees for today's pitching chores in the Cubs' double-header with the Giants. It will be Carl Hubbell and Allyn Stout for the New Yorkers. The probable lineup for the two games, with players' numbers, follows:

NEW YORK.	CHICAGO.
1. Moore, lf.	51. Galan, lf.
2. Bartell, ss.	2. Herman, 2b.
3. Terry, 1b.	43. Cavarretta, 1b.
4. Ott, rf.	9. Hartnett, c.
16. Leiber, cf.	6. Demaree, cf.
5. Jackson, 3b.	4. Klein, rf [or]
23. Koenig, 2b.	5. Stainback, rf.
8. Mancuso, c.	39. Hack, 3b.
11. Hubbell, p.	11. Jurges, ss.
14. Stout, p.	16. Carleton, p.
	15. Lee, p.

The rain started to pepper down just a few minutes before 2 o'clock, the scheduled starting time for yesterday's game. The contest was started 55 minutes later, a few minutes before the starting time for all other days of the week on which single games are played.

On the night of July 4 the Cubs were trailing the Giants by 10½ games. They were six games behind on July 14, the same gap that prevails this morning, but were embarrassed when the Phillies ended an 8 game Cub winning streak by beating the Chicagoans twice in succession.

The largest crowd of the year is deemed a certainty for this afternoon. It is expected that the present high, 38,100 on July 4, will be surpassed by 4,000 or $5,000.

three pitches and Demaree tapped to Parmelee.

After the Giants had gone out in order in the second inning, Klein opened the scoring program with that No. 15 homer, a smash over the right field bleachers into Sheffield avenue. Hack, Jurges and French were retired in order.

The Cubs doubled their second inning quota in the third inning. Galan led off with his second single to right and advanced on Herman's sacrifice. Cavarretta singled to right center, scoring Galan, then Hartnett doubled to the right field corner, scoring Cavarretta. Demaree flied to Leiber and Klein fanned.

The New Yorkers moved into the scoring column in the seventh. Parmelee pushed off with a single to center. French diverted Moore's smash to Herman, who fumbled then lost sight of the ball, Parmelee reaching second and Moore first on the error. Terry singled to center, scoring Parmelee. Ott flied to Klein and Galan went against the left field wall to bring down Leiber's drive.

Remember This One, Tarz?

Hartnett walked to get the Chicago eighth under way. Demaree bunted and got credit for a single when no one covered first base. After the Giants held a skull session on what to do on a sacrifice, Klein sacrificed and the lads handled the play elegantly. Hack was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Jurges, who had hit into a double play when up with the bases full in the sixth, had no idea of repeating the fade out when he came up at this juncture. He lined a single to left center, Hartnett and Demaree scoring. French bunted to Parmelee, who threw the ball past third, Hack scoring and Jurges taking third. Galan sent a double play ball to Koenig, who juggled, but recovered in time to salvage a force out, Jurges scoring. Herman flied to Moore.

Davis batted for Parmelee to lead off the ninth and knocked a homer into the left center bleacher. After Moore and Bartell had been retired, Terry and Ott knocked successive singles, but the game ended with Leiber's foul to Jurges.

Report Helen Wills to Pass Up National Tennis Meet

base. His labor was restricted to three plays.

Until he blossomed forth in his one hit splendor this afternoon Fischer owned only one performance of note. That was an 8 to 3 victory against the same team here on May 25. His only other previous victory was a three inning relief job against Cleveland.

FIRST GAME

The Sox had Hadley rocking on his heels in the opening inning, but he got away. Radcliff opened with an infield single and a pass to Piet. Haas' bunt moved the two runners along. Then to the great surprise of everybody both Bonura and Simmons fanned, but it wasn't because of any particular skill on Hadley's part. They invited the embarrassment by striking at bad pitches.

The run which wasn't considered of consequence at the time but which was of importance at the finish started to take form in the second inning when Appling led off with a pass. Dykes spanked a single into center, sending Radcliff to third. Sewell's roller to short was turned into a double play but it gave Radcliff time to scamper home. Fischer lined to Myer for the third out.

Hadley Braces Up.

After the Sox had assumed the lead, Hadley treated them to four innings in which they encountered only a limited amount of pleasure. A pass to Haas in the third and a single by Dykes in the fourth was the extent of their attack during this time.

Then in the seventh Appling opened with a hit only to be doubled off first when Dykes' bunt went to Hadley on the fly. The same thing happened on Piet's bunt after Radcliff had inaugurated the eighth with a single. In the ninth Simmons singled with one out, but both Appling and Dykes fanned.

SECOND GAME

The Sox started off with a run in the first inning of the second game, but in view of subsequent happenings this didn't mean anything. The run scored because Myer kicked Haas' grounder with two out. He went home on a single by Simmons after Bonura had walked.

The large package of trouble picked up by Jones in the third when seven runs scored started with a looping single by Kuhel, who was forced by Stone. Myer singled to center and when Simmons' throw to third rolled into the Sox dugout, Stone scored and Myer took third. Manush and Travis also singled. Powell flied out and next came singles by Bolton and Strange. This much accounted for four runs. The inning should have ended on Whitehill's roller to Piet, but the ball slipped through his fingers, Bolton scoring. When Jones walked Kuhel, filling the bases, he was yanked for Phelps. The latter was greeted by Stone's single which drove in the last two runs.

Three On, One In.

The Sox built a full house for themselves with none out in the fourth, but it netted them only one run. Appling singled to right and Dykes and Shea walked. Sewell was asked to bat for Phelps, but didn't do a very good job of it. He bounced into a double play, Appling scoring. The inning was completed on Radcliffe's hopper to Whitehill.

Wyatt, the fourth of the Sox pitchers to take a hand in the uneven argument, was victim of Washington's last two runs. Powell singled in the seventh, stole second, went to third on Shea's bad throw and home on an infield out. In the eighth Kuhel doubled and scored on a two bagger by Stone.

White Sox to Use Ted Lyons Today Against Senators

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Ted Lyons will step out tomorrow and endeavor to record his eleventh triumph of his comeback season. The 34 year old youngster has been beaten only three times. The Senators will come up with Buck Newsom, who beat the Sox in the opener of the series last Thursday.

The Sox will hurry out of here for Philadelphia right after tomorrow's game. John Henderson Whitehead will pitch Monday's opener against the Athletics. The Texas league graduate has won only one game out of his last nine starts.

Today's double-header drew about 8,000, which was better than average for this place.

Mule Haas, who a few weeks back was up among the league leaders, fears he has become infected with the no-hit germ which caused Al Simmons so much trouble. Haas has had only one hit in his last 27 times at bat.

Ted Lyons knew just how Fischer felt today when Bluege spoiled the no-hit game with his single in the ninth. Some years back Lyons in the same park held the Senators hitless until he had two out in the ninth. Then Bobby Veach, a pinch hitter, poked a lazy single over first base.

LEAGUE TO HOLD DANCE.

The Cook County Baseball league will hold its fourth annual dance next Saturday at the Palmer house. Proceeds will go for the maintenance of the 25 teams in the league.

PIRATES DEFEAT BRAVES TWICE, 14 TO 2 AND 6 TO 3

Double Defeat Runs Boston String to 14.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 20.—(AP)—The Boston Braves lost today's double-header with the Pirates, running their consecutive string of defeats to 14. The scores were 14 to 2 and 6 to 3.

Pittsburgh pounded four Brave hurlers in the first game for 15 hits while Mace Brown, a rookie, held the Braves scoreless until the ninth.

In the second game Danny MacFayden had two bad innings, the second and seventh, when Pittsburgh bunched six of its eleven hits to score five runs. Arky Vaughan added the last tally with a home run. Score:

Cochrane Picks Rowe to Beat Yankees Twice

Boston, Mass., July 20.—(AP)—Mickey Cochrane has it all figured out how his Detroit Tigers are going to jump over the Yankees into the American league lead.

"I'm going to throw Rowe against them twice next week," he said, "and when we leave New York next Thursday night we'll be out in front and there will be nothing left of the pennant race but the shouting.

"The Yanks have only beaten the Schoolboy once since he came into the league, and it took them 11 innings to do it then. He beat them twice in two series last season, and he can do it again. I'll start him against them Monday, even if they use Gomez, and close with him Thursday.

Mickey Wants a Sweep.

"There's half of the four game series. If we get the breaks and take the other two games the Yanks will never catch us, and neither will anybody else in the league."

It would be an excellent break for Cochrane if Joe McCarthy would follow his example of pitching ace against ace as the Tiger pilot did when he sent out Rowe against the Red Sox's Wes Ferrell.

This sort of strategy, highly successful in the case of the trailing Tigers, would be fatal to McCarthy's pace setting Yankees, whose margin has been whittled down to eight percentage points.

Yanks Must Break Even.

The Yankee manager, provided his club can escape another bumping from the St. Louis Browns tomorrow, can stay in front by breaking even with the Tigers in next week's series. Therefore he probably will use a pair of his youngsters, Broaca and Allen, against Rowe and save his veterans, Lefty Gomez and Charlie Ruffing, for the less effective Bridges and Crowder.

So far this season Cochrane has not hesitated to throw Rowe in against the other club's best, and he intends to continue doing so.

UNION PRINTERS, ZINTAKS PLAY IN MIDWEST LEAGUE

The Union Printers' baseball team will play the Frank V. Zintaks at 4 o'clock this afternoon at McKinley park, 39th street and Western avenue, in one of 18 Midwest league games. The others scheduled are:

Grove Street Colts vs. West Side All-Stars at Blue Island. Waggoners' Stations at Niles Center. Rose's Winnemacs vs. Austin Merchants, LeMoyne and LaVerne avenues. St. Celestine's at Maywood. Chapman Motors vs. Lill Coals at Evanston. Cherokee Indians vs. Bush Furniture, Calumet park. Hamilton Merchants vs. Raab Tailors, 76th street and Ingleside avenue. St. Cyril vs. Zoubek's Crackerjacks, 31st street and Keeler avenue. Logan Orioles vs. Burke Goldecks, Hamlin park. George Forth Coals at Waukegan. Maciejewski Supervisors vs. Winecki Cragins, Long and Fullerton avenues. Al's Tavern vs. Frank J. Lymans, Sunnyside and Clarendon avenues. Roy's Markets vs. Chi Boys, Logan and Elston. Franklin Union, No. 4, vs. Donhue Revers, Welles park. Willow Springs at Chicago Heights. Alberti Jewelers vs. Ten Bruins, Cicero and Hirsch. Brandt Florals vs. Cicero Pros, Cicero.

FIREMEN MEET COALS TODAY IN PAIR OF GAMES

Four Double-Headers on Semi-Pro Card.

Games Today

Chicago Firemen vs. Spencer Coals, 4200 North Central avenue, 1:30 p. m. [2 games].
Logan Squares vs. Duffy Florals, 74th and Aberdeen streets, 1:30 p. m. [2].
Mills vs. Kautsky A. C. of Indianapolis, Kilpatrick and Lake streets, 1:30 p. m. [2].
Waukegan vs. Chicago Giants, 39th street and Wentworth avenue, 1:30 p. m. [2].
Milwauke Red Sox at Elgin.

The Chicago Firemen will visit the home park of the Spencer Coals, 4200 North Central avenue, this afternoon for one of the four double headers on the Chicago Semipro league schedule.

Other bargain attractions will bring together the Logan Squares and Duffy Florals at Shewbridge field and the Mills and Kautsky A. C. of Indianapolis in two games at Cole's American Giants park, while the Milwaukee Red Sox will be at Elgin for one contest.

Spencers Sign Gerken.

Ald. William C. Cowhey, former fireman, will be guest of honor at Spencer field. Manager Nate Shyer of the Spencers has strengthened his club considerably for today's games with the acquisition of George Gerken, until recently with the Nashville club of the Southern league, to bolster the Spencer outfield. Ray Lucas, a catcher who has been with the Dayton team in organized baseball until a week ago, has also joined the club. Irv Cohen, Pete Beam, Jake Sommerfield and Marvin Carlson are the Spencer Coals' hurlers.

The Logan Squares will be trying to get revenge for a double trouncing handed them in a recent visit to the Duffy Florals' park. Jim Vaughn and Bill Holabird will be the Logan starting pitchers, and Dutch Kohlenberg and Tony Sims will work for the Florals.

Sullivan Seeks No. 9.

Lefty Sullivan will be after his ninth straight victory when the Mills tangle with the Kautsky A. C. in a twin bill at Mills stadium. Sullivan's opponent most likely will be Fred Hosler, who, as a member of the Fort Wayne team last season, defeated the Mills twice.

Joe Louis day will feature the Chicago Giants-Waukegan bill at Cole's American Giants park. The two games are to be played as a benefit for the Old Folks' home, a colored organization on the south side, and Joe Louis, the "brown bomber" of boxing, will be on hand to throw the first ball.

Colored Stars Play Aug. 11— East vs. West

Eastern and western all-stars of the Negro National league will play their third annual intersectional baseball game on Sunday, Aug. 11, at Comisky park. This was announced yesterday by R. A. Coles, owner of the Chicago American Giants, who will sponsor the intra-league contest.

For the western squad star players will be drawn from the American Giants, Columbus Elite Giants, Homestead Grays, and Pittsburgh Crawfords. The eastern lineup will be recruited from the Brooklyn Eagles, Philadelphia Stars, Newark Dodgers, and New York Cubans.

Fans to Pick Players.

In contrast to the way the major leagues handled the selections for the recent all-star game at Cleveland, the Negro National league again is permitting the colored baseball fans of the country to pick the personnel of the teams in a nation-wide poll conducted by the eight member clubs and colored newspapers.

The first east-west game, played in 1933 at Comisky park before a crowd of 18,000, was won by the west, 11 to 7. Last year before a gathering of 25,000 at Sox park the east evened the series with a thrilling 1 to 0 victory in which the great Satchell Paige lived up to advance notices in stopping the western sluggers.

Paige on Other Side.

This year, with the Pittsburgh Crawfords listed in the western division of the league, Paige, if the fans so decree, will be on the other side of the fence in the all-star game.

On his record this season Slim Jones of Philadelphia promises to be the ranking pitcher for the east. He was starting pitcher against the west last year.

The American Giants, perennially one of the best teams of the league, again are expected to be well represented. Last year the Chicago club had Mule Suttles, who made three of the west's seven hits, at first base; Larry Brown, now the Giants' manager, as catcher; Wells at shortstop, Radcliffe at third base, Stearns in the outfield, and Willie Foster on the pitching staf in the all-star battle.

STORM THREATS FAIL TO DAUNT CLASSIC THRONGS

Gaily Garbed Women Lend Color to Spectacle.

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

Thunder booming sonorously in the west early in the afternoon had no dampening effect on the spirits of the 36,500 gathered at Arlington Park yesterday to witness the running of the Classic. The huge clouds that cut off the sun's penetrating rays and a cool breeze that swept the grandstands contributed to the comfort of the racing enthusiasts, all of whom were clad in the coolest clothes they possessed.

One of the most interested spectators was Mrs. Thomas Bancroft, the former Edith Woodward, who came from Locust Valley, N. Y., to watch Omaha, property of her father, William Woodward, compete for the rich purse. Mrs. Bancroft and her husband were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mitchell for luncheon at the Post and Paddock clubhouse adjoining the grandstand. Mrs. Mitchell, gowned in fashionable white dotted with blue, watched the races perched on the railing of the club's upper terrace.

Gay Gowns Are Everywhere.

Immediately below, lunching at a large table on the lower terrace, was Mrs. Howard Linn, looking enviably cool in a graceful black and white print gown and a large natural straw hat trimmed with white daisies. She was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hughes, who were host and hostess also to Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen Jr., in a striking Persian print; Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Peck, Mrs. Merrill Hubbard, Roger Hyatt and John C. Mechem.

One of the most striking frocks was that of Miss Francis Clow. Made of white silk, it was completely backless, and a scarf of red and white dots twined about her shoulders. Her turban hat matched the scarf. Miss Clow was a guest of Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, in pale blue. Mrs. McCormick's other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Col. Thomas Gowenlock, and Miss Clow's mother, Mrs. William E. Clow Jr.

This Was a Family Party.

At two tables Mr. and Mrs. Solomon B. Smith and her sister-in-law, Mrs. William Collins Jr., Mr. Collins, and his sister, Mrs. Robert J. Graf Jr., were enjoying a family party with several guests, including Miss Virginia Stewart and James Palmer Johnson. Further down the terrace, poring over their racing cards, were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall and their daughters, Mrs. Richard Hill Fleming and Mrs. Richard W. Simmons, and son, Benjamin H. Marshall Jr.

Miss Edith Behr, who is at Arlington nearly every afternoon during the season, entertained her brother, Benjamin L. Behr Jr., and his wife; Miss Eleanor Wheeler, Mrs. Prindiville Turner, smart in blue linen with a matching brimmed hat, W. Edwin Stanley Jr., Benson Martin and John P. Porter. A foursome seated on the terrace included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Y. Freeman Jr. [Helen Marie Castle], Miss Lydia Swift, who was having a run of good luck, and Paul Rowan.

Some Win, Others Lose.

Others who spent a good part of the afternoon examining their programs with varying degrees of success at the totalizer were Mrs. Warren Towle of Washington, who was with her mother, Mrs. Charles W. McNear; Subdebutante Betty Keith, with a beau; Mrs. Charles F. Glore in a stunning dress of dotted cherry silk and a matching floppy brimmed straw hat; Princess Rostislaw, Mrs. Winfield T. Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. Fowler McCormick, she in lime green, with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirk, the latter in pale pink with a flattering broad brimmed hat of pink.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Hancock of Kentucky were hosts to other Kentuckians, including Mr. and Mrs. Breaux Ballard, Miss Mary Ballard, and Robert Fairbairn. Also present were Miss Nancy Knode, her brother, Oliver M. Knode Jr., and Miss Muriel Picher, Edwin M. Ashcraft III., whose wife is visiting in the east; Mr. and Mrs. William Hunt [Jeanette Peterkin], Mrs. Horatio B. Hackett, Mrs. J. Clark Dean, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed with Mrs. George A. Ranney, and Mrs. Paul Walker in bright yellow.

ST. MARY PLAYS ST. STANISLAUS IN C. Y. O. TODAY

St. Mary of Celle's will seek revenge for its first round defeat at the hands of St. Stanislaus today in one of the most important games of the C. Y. O. baseball league. The game will be played at Fullerton and Long streets at 1 o'clock. This is one of the fifteen games carded. The schedule follows:

1:00—Queen of Angels vs. St. Ladislaus at Roscoe and Long streets; St. Gabriel's vs. St. Basil's at 54th street and Hoyne avenue; St. Genevieve's vs. Epiphany at Fullerton avenue and Long street; St. Martin's vs. St. Bronislava's at 89th street and Manistee avenue; St. Mary Celle vs. St. Stanislaus at Fullerton avenue and Long street.

2:00—St. Hyacinth vs. St. Hilary's at Crawford and Bryn Mawr avenues; St. John Cantius vs. St. Mark's at Grant park.

3:00—St. Adrian's vs. Nativity at 59th street and Damen avenue; St. Camillus vs. St. Blase at Archer avenue and Laramie street; St. Christina vs. St. Alphonsus at 110th street and Homan avenue; St. Mary vs. St. Viator's at Belmont and Crawford avenues; St. Josaphat's vs. Mercy Mission at Lincoln park, No. 4; St. Michael's [48th] vs. St. Michael's [83d] at 83d street and South Shore drive; St. Mary vs. St. Pius at 30th and Halsted streets; Sacred Heart vs. St. Bronislava at 89th street and Manistee.

DISCUSS 8 CLUB AMERICAN PRO FOOTBALL GROUP

Memphis, Tenn., July 20.—(AP)—Expansion of the American Professional Football league from a six club to an eight club circuit was discussed here today as promoters gathered for an official league meeting tomorrow.

Los Angeles is certain to be represented in the league this year, the officials said, although the coast entry must travel about 1,700 miles to meet its nearest rival. B. B. Nelson of Los Angeles, here for the meeting, said he had not decided on the personnel of the team.

League officials said prospects are bright for league teams at Kansas City and Dallas.

Time: :22 3-5, :46 2-5, :58 3-5, 1:05 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: First Class, $2.60 straight, $2.60 place, $2.60 show; Roxana S., $57.60 place, $28.60 show; Stepinanna, $13.60 show. Winenr trained by C. Van Dusen. Went to post at 2:22½. At post 1 minute. Start good, from Bahr gate. Won easily, place driving.

FIRST CLASS, much the best, raced wide while drawing away fast in first quarter, was strongly restrained on the turn, increased her margin when lightly shaken up in stretch and taken in hand the last sixteenth won with speed in reserve. ROXANA S., inclined to swerve in early stages, saved ground entering stretch and closing with a rush headed STEPINANNA right at the end. Latter, given a hustling ride, saved ground throughout but weakened near end.

SECOND RACE. Hertz course, one mile. [Chute]. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time: :23, :46 3-5, 1:10 1-5, 1:36 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Prince Pest, $4.40 straight, $3.40 place, $2.60 show; Bibbies Choice, $4.80 place, $3.60 show; Countess Ann, $4.60 show. Winner trained by S. Furnival. Went to post at 2:55. At post 1 minute. Start good, from permanent stalls. Won driving, place same.

PRINCE PEST slipped through between horses when beginning to move up leaving backstretch, raced to BIBBIES CHOICE with a rush entering stretch and outgamed her in a long drive. Latter, well in hand for five-eighths raced to front on inside when ready and held on stubbornly but was not good enough. COUNTESS ANN, a factor from the start, dropped back slightly on stretch turn then went to inside and outstayed FANFERN in the drive.

THIRD RACE. Six furlongs. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. [Daily double, second and third races, paid $14.80].

MONEY GETTER, never far back and on inside the first half mile, appeared to bump RED WAGON as Robertson brought him out in the stretch, was forced very wide while wearing down TRANSMUTABLE, and taking a good margin in last seventy yards was saved from ISAIAH. Latter, going in his best form, lost much ground and closed resolutely in a fine performance. TRANSMUTABLE displayed keen speed for five-eighths and bore out when tiring thereafter.

FOURTH RACE. Hertz course, one mile. [Chute . Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time: :23, :46 3-5, 1:10 2-5, 1:36 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Stand Pat, $3.00 straight, $2.20 place, $2.20 show; Watch Him, $2.60 place, $2.40 show; Glynson, $3.80 show. Winner trained by F. Gilpin. Went to post at 3:56. At post ½ minute. Start good, from permanent stalls. Won easily, place driving.

STAND PAT, saving ground throughout and under strong restraint until reaching final half mile, came away fast approaching stretch and continuing well held WATCH HIM safe to win with something in reserve. WATCH HIM, under steady restraint early and slow to respond to pressure, came with fine late speed the last three-sixteenths. GLYNSON, forced to race wide the first five-eighths, saved ground thereafter but weakened after seven-eighths.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and three-sixteenths. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :24 3-5, :48 4-5, 1:14 1-5, 1:40, 1:59 2-5. [New track record.] Two dollar mutuels paid: Easy, $6.80 straight, $4.40 place, $3.20 show; Para Four, $7.20 place, $4.80 show; Foolhardy, $8.20 show. Winner trained by J. B. Theall. Went to post at 4:24. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

EASY, taken back repeatedly in early stages, improved his position gradually when slipping through on inside on lower turn, came around THEOREM fast after reaching stretch and, holding on well, withstood PARA FOUR'S rush thereafter. FOOLHARDY raced into a long lead easily, bore out on second turn, and came again.

Winner trained by R. T. Watts. Went to post at 5:41½. At post 1½ minutes. Start good. Won easily, place driving.

EASY SAILING, under strong restraint for three-quarters took command with a rush and without need of strong pressure, and continuing well when again under restraint in final sixteenth won with much in reserve. SWEET MEMORIES also saved off the pace disposed of L. B. WILSON quickly in stretch but could not hold the winner, yet held on well. RIP VAN WINKLE, blocked on far turn came through on inside in stretch and closed going resolutely.

EIGHTH RACE. One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

SEA EAGLE, under strong restraint for five-eighths and saving ground much of the trip, responded stoutly when called upon, came around the leaders in final eighth and won drawing out. ATCINES, well up from the start, came through on inside in final quarter and held on well but was not good enough. ULUNIU made the early pace under restraint, came away slightly on stretch turn and bore out when weakening in final eighth.

MAC PHAIL ISSUES PROTEST OVER FINING DRESSEN

New York, July 20.—(AP)—A letter protesting against the fining of Manager Charley Dressen of the Cincinnati Reds, for his alleged part in a disturbance during a game with the New York Giants last Wednesday, was received today by Ford C. Frick, president of the National league, from Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Reds.

Frick refused to give out the text of the letter, understood to be critical of the umpires' reports which led to disciplinary action against Dressen. The Reds' manager was fined $50 on the grounds he incited home town fans to make a demonstration in disapproval of a decision by Umpire Reardon.

few yards, when he wilted. Bloodroot gained fast on him in the rest of the way, just missing the place by a head. Black Helen held on despite her roughing to be at their heels for fourth place. Skip It came from well back to be fifth.

He's a Homely Cuss.

Omaha was bred by William Woodward at Arthur B. Hancock's Claiborne stud in Kentucky, where Gallant Fox also was bred and raised. A big, impressive chestnut, with a huge blaze running down his face into his nostrils, Omaha is not a pretty horse according to equine standards. The son of Gallant Fox and Flambino, by Wrack, is about 17 hands high and, although not smoothly proportioned, he has the definite marks of a distance runner.

While St. Bernard was beating back Black Helen in the early stages he ran the first quarter in :23 1-5 seconds, the half in :47 2-5, and the three quarters in the rather slow time of 1:12 3-5. At this stage, when Omaha moved forward, the real running started. It forced St. Bernard to reel off the mile in 1:35 4-5 before Omaha caught up with him.

The gross value of the race was $36,500. Omaha's share of the purse was $29,500. St. Bernard earned $4,000 for finishing second, Bloodroot got $2,000, and Black Helen's ability to finish fourth increased Col. Bradley's earnings by another $1,000.

What Now, Big Fellow?

Omaha now has won the Kentucky Derby, Preakness, Belmont, Dwyer, and Classic stakes. His sire, Gallant Fox, won these same fixtures when he was a 3 year old and then retired.

Omaha's total earnings are $146,105. All but $3,850 of this amount has been earned this year.

Where's he going from here?

He may meet Discovery here in the Arlington handicap next Saturday or he may go on to Saratoga for the Travers Mid-Summer Derby. Later he may run in the Saratoga Gold cup, the Lawrence Realization stakes and the Jocky Club Gold cup.

Owner Misses Triumph.

Owner Woodward, the New York banker, was not present to see Omaha clinch the championship. He is in Europe. His daughter, Mrs. T. M. Bancroft accepted the Classic trophy from Charles McCulloch, chairman of the board of directors of the Arlington Jocky club, and Leo Spitz, a member of the Illinois racing commission.

Harvard-Yale Athletes Win from British

LONDON, July 20.—(AP)—With Keith Brown, Yale captain, and Milton Green of Harvard setting the pace, track and field stars from the two American universities scored their eighth victory in 12 attempts over the combined teams of Oxford and Cambridge in today's international meet at White City. It was the fourth straight triumph for the Americans.

If Green had not been disqualified for knocking over too many hurdles after finishing first in the 120 yard high hurdles the Americans would have won seven first places to five. As it was, deadlocked with six firsts each, the Harvard-Yale forces squeezed out a 6½ to 5½ victory on the basis of second places.

20,000 Cheer Athletes.

Nearly 20,000, a record for a British college meet, saw the visitors, trailing by three points, stage a spirited finish. They captured the last three events, tied the home boys, and then triumphed when John Badman of Yale leaped to a second place tie with Roy Kennedy of Cambridge in the high jump, final event.

Brown, pole vault ace, lifted himself to his second British record within a week by clearing the bar at 14 feet, bettering the mark of 13 feet 10 inches he set in the British A. A. A. games last Saturday. This was the day's only record breaking performance.

Green Wins Two Events.

Green redeemed himself for his failure in the high hurdles by winning both the broad jump and the 220 yard low hurdles. He was the only American to win more than one event.

The other American winners were Robert Hall of Harvard in the high jump, Erskine Smith of Yale in the 220 yard dash, and Joe Johnson of Yale in the shot put.

The British showed their traditional superiority in the distance races and rolled up a 6 to 2 lead before the Americans began scoring in the field contests.

ENTRIES CLOSED FOR 1ST NOVICE RELAY EVENTS

Entries for the first annual novice relay games under the sanction of the A. A. U. closed yesterday with nominations from most of the athletic organizations in the Chicago district which sponsor various types of athletics for boys and girls. The games will be patterned after the relay events of the National A. A. U. meet, the Drake and Pennsylvania relays, and other similar competitions. Entries, however, are limited to boys and girls who are novices in competitive athletics and have never won a prize.

The district meets will be held Tuesday afternoon. Lake Shore park, Chicago avenue and the lake, will be the scene of the competition for the north district; the west district meet will be held at Douglas park, Albany and Ogden avenues; the northwest district at Kosciuszko park, 2732 North Avers avenue, and the south district at Ogden park, 65th and Racine avenue. Finals will be held at Douglas park on Tuesday afternoon, July 30.

The event is being sponsored by the bureau of parks, recreation and aviation. Walter Wright, superintendent of the bureau, will be director.

Made a Bum Out of My Old Man, Chuckles Champ Omaha

piqued and you know how ladies are when they're pique-ted. I honestly felt sorry for her; she's such a little thing. Weighs 200 pounds less than I do. These girl horses really should stick to basketball, tennis, and swimming and not try to outfoot us stronger boys over a distance. But Helen sometime will realize I meant all right and was not trying to rub it in."

"Did Jocky Wright hit you with the whip at all?" we asked.

"I should say not," Omaha answered. "It wasn't necessary. In fact, he was rest-reining me for the first quarter mile. That was sensible, because I wanted to rush along with the leaders and might have become jammed in a pocket. Instead Wright saw I was safely on the outside all the way. Of course, you know where I won the race, don't you?"

Home in a Gallop.

"I thought it was in the fourth quarter mile," we answered.

"That was just it," Omaha replied. "I didn't know how fast we were going the first six furlongs, but with such speedsters as St. Bernard and Black Helen, it didn't seem to me it was fast enough to overtire them, so I began to move up pretty fast. In an effort to keep the lead, they ran the fourth quarter mile in :23 2-5 seconds with the mile in :35 4-5. That took all the tuck out of St. Bernard and Black Helen, but it didn't out of old Omaha. Of course, you noted I was not extended to my limit at the finish."

"Well, what about the future?"

What's a 100 Grand?

"For this season, I would think I will be started in the remaining stakes of importance such as dad won. After that, I'm guessing as much as you are. Owner Woodward has been in England looking over the situation as to shipping me there next year. I hope he decides against it.

"Dad was a domestic sort of fellow and after his 3 year old year, he wanted to retire, have a home of his own and raise a family. I feel a little differently about it. I don't care to go to England, but I would like to race another year as a handicap horse before settling down. You always can settle down. I'd like a crack at that Santa Anita handicap in Los Angeles next March. One hundred grand is real sugar."

"What do you care about 100 grand?" we asked.

"Well, I think it will be pretty generally admitted now," Omaha responded, "that I stand out over all competitors at a distance as Gallant Fox did. Personally I think the 3 year olds I have beaten are better than the ones dad beat. But dad set an all time record for earnings in one year. It was not possible for me to equal it, no matter how good I was, because that was before the depression and stakes are less valuable now. That's one reason I'd like to cop 100 grand for my record."

By this time a news reel camera man came along to take some shorts, and Omaha extended his right fore hoof for a friendly shake, saying "Much obliged for the nice things French Lane and you have said about me all season. I'll surely see you again."

Suffolk Daily Double Pays 25 Betters $1,946.40

Boston, Mass., July 20.—[U. P.]—After Polo Bar and Traitor won the first and third races, respectively, at Suffolk Downs today, twenty five holders of $2 tickets in the daily double pool received $1,946.40 each, a record for this form of wagering since horse racing became legal in Massachusetts.

Campbell Wins World Title in Single Sculls

Princeton, N. J., July 20.—(AP)—Charlie Campbell, 21 year old tow headed Canadian, who never sat in a scull until thirteen months ago, won the world's amateur singles title today. He defeated America's two outstanding oarsmen for the Philadelphia gold challenge cup—blue ribbon event of the sixty-third regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

The towering youngster, wearing the blue and white of the Argonaut Rowing club of Toronto, swept down the mile and one-quarter straightaway on Lake Carnegie to defeat Winthrop Rutherfurd Jr., the defending champion, by seven lengths. Al Vogt of the Penn Athletic club of Philadelphia, winner of the cup in 1933, finished third and last, fourteen lengths behind Campbell.

Makes Rapid Rise.

Campbell stepped into a single scull for the first time in June, 1934, and surprised his countrymen by soon winning the dominion's championship. Previously he had rowed only in schoolboy fours and eights.

Campbell is the first Canadian to wind the challenge cup in eight years. Joe Wright Jr. of Toronto was the last to do the trick.

The last event of the day, the senior eight oared shell race, was rowed in the teeth of a high wind and a lashing rain which churned up the waters of the lake which had been calm as a mill pond for the singles race. The final brought the title to the New York Athletic club for the first time in eleven years.

The winged foot oarsmen, stroked by Jack Sulger, 23 year old classified advertising clerk for a New York newspaper, trailed the four times victorious Penn A. C. crew up to the last fifty yards and then went on to win by half a length.

Buffalo Wins Trophy.

By virtue of winning four national championships, the West Side Rowing club of Buffalo carried off the Julius Barnes team trophy with 116½ points. The Undine Barge club of Philadelphia was second with 83 and the Penn A. C. third with 78. Central Rowing club of St. Louis finished in eleventh position with eight points and Detroit Boat club was in fourteenth place with 3.

SHIPPING CLERK WINS GOLF TITLE AFTER 37 HOLES

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Climaxing a week of amazing golf Ray Billow, the Poughkeepsie [N. Y.] shipping clerk who came to the tournament on the proverbial shoestring, beat Jack Creavy of Albany, 1 up, in a thirty-seven hole match today for the New York state amateur golf championship.

Four down, with only eight to go this afternoon, Billow squared the match with his upstate rival on the thirty-fifth hole. The Horatio Alger hero of the tournament almost won the match on the thirty-sixth, his chip shot from the back edge of the green missing the cup by inches for a birdie, but clinched the match on the first extra hole with a sensational 4.

The finish was dramatic. Just before Billow hit his second shot to the thirty-seventh, a camera started grinding. Ray flinched and hooked the ball into a short rough, in front of the green. Creavy, in the thick grass off the tee, hit a spectator with his second shot, which ended up in a ditch. He dug the ball out, reaching the green, and rolled a 45 footer to the lip of the cup, but Billow, after chipping on, sank a 10 foot putt to end the match.

Defaults Give Underwood South Dakota Tennis Title

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 20.—(AP)—Bobby Underwood, Los Angeles, won the junior singles championship in the South Dakota open tennis tournament today on his second consecutive default. Friday Bobby Kamrath, his semi-final opponent, became ill and defaulted. Today, after a senior semifinal encounter with Don Leavens, whiche Leavens won 7-5, 6-3, 6-4, Leavens withdrew from junior competition leaving Underwood the title.

DISCOVERY WINS BY 15 LENGTHS IN $10,000 RACE

Gov. Sholtz Is Second; Advising Anna 3d.

Boston, Mass., July 20.—(AP)—Discovery, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's four year old champion and world record holder, today trounced P. A. Shaw's Gov. Sholtz by 15 lengths as the golden colt romped away with the $10,000 added Bunker Hill handicap.

Mrs. Jack Howard's Advising Anna, one of Discovery's 1934 conquerors, trailed the Shaw colt by a length, a half length in front of L. T. Whitehill's Gusto. P. M. Pike's Teralice was last in the five horse field.

Fog Hides Most of Action.

Discovery, taking his time out of the gate under the direction of Johnny Bejshak, caught up with the trailers at the first turn and was traveling fast when he disappeared in the thick fog that blew in from the ocean and hid most of the feature action from the 40,000 crowd.

Teralice, set the early pace, followed closely by Advising Anna. Discovery was going nicely under restraint when he passed the half-mile pole. The race was over, as far as the rest of the small field was concerned, when the champion passed the three-quarter mark.

Wins in Easy Fashion.

Discovery came romping up to the finish line in easy fashion and was clocked in 1:51 4-5, three and three-fifths seconds slower than his world record for the mile and an eighth distance.

Closing at 1-5, the Vanderbilt star's pari-mutuel prices were $2.40, $2.60 and $2.20. Gov. Sholtz, a 25 to 1 shot, paid $7.00 and $3.00 for place and show, and Advising Anna, closing at 8 to 1, returned $2.40 for $2 show wagers.

TOP ROW WINS

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Showing a decided liking for the sloppy track, A. A. Boroni's Top Row, 4 year old son of Peanuts and Too High, splashed home to an easy victory in the $5,000 added Yonkers handicap at a mile and a sixteenth before 10,000 at Empire City today. Closing with a great rush, he finished a length ahead of Mrs. Deering Howe's Only One, which had gone to the post a 13 to 10 favorite. Third place went to the Belair stud's Vicar in the field of four.

This was a reversal of the placing in the Butler handicap a week before, when Only One chased Discovery home with Top Row third and it was because of that race that Only One was made the public choice. A change of five pounds in the weights and the condition of the track favored the winner. The race was worth $5,290 to the owner of Top Row.

Jocky Does His Part.

Jocky Johnny Longden rode Top Row cleverly. At the break Vicar was rushed to the front with only one lap on him and Top Row running last but close up. Longden was content to rate his mount along while Vicar and Only One raced with each other in making the pace. Going through the back stretch Longden moved Top Row into third place and waited until he had reached the turn for home before he called on his horse. Meantime Only One was overtaking the tiring Vicar.

Top Row was taken to the outside in the better part of the track and, once let down, he caught Only One a furlong from home. As Jocky Merritt applied his whip vigorously Longden sat still and finished with a hand ride. Vicar was five lengths further back while Good Gamble was never a serious factor in the race.

Rain Reduces Field.

Although only four had been named for the Morrisania handicap at six furlongs, which was the secondary feature on the card, the field was reduced to three with the scratching of Kawagoe as the result of the rain and mud.

In spite of this it proved to be a good contest with the victory going to the Tranquility farm's Rock X, which was making his second appearance at Empire City.

HORSE, DOG SHOW ONE OF COUNTY FAIR FEATURES

A horse and dog show will be one of the features of the annual Cook county fair which will be held at the fair grounds, North avenue and River road, from Aug. 10 to Aug. 18.

Henry A. Erlinger, general manager of the fair, said yesterday that entries to date indicate the largest showing of pedigreed animals in the fair's history. Seven stake events have been arranged for horses in the championship class, while there is to be competition also for heavy harness horses, hackney and Welch ponies, Shetland ponies, three gaited saddle classes, five gaited saddle classes, and roadsters. Frank N. Flynn, president of the Chicago Traders' Live Stock exchange, is chairman of the horse show committee.

The dog show will be conducted according to the rules of the American Kennel club and will be held Aug. 11 and 12.

ALABAMA COACH WARNS BEARS OF SOUTHERN STARS

Thomas Sees Great Battle of Great Teams.

BY FRANK THOMAS.
[Football Coach at the University of Alabama.]

The plans for the football game between the university and college stars of last fall and the Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field next month mean that the contest has been removed from the exhibition class. It will be a game, a fair test of an eleven fashioned from the university gridirons against one of the greatest of professional teams.

Last year I wondered whether sufficient time would be allotted the college players to prepare for the Bears. Practice is necessary to bring together the boys from all parts of the country, accustom them to one system of offense, and develop team spirit. Then, too, there is the very important job of arranging a defense for the Bears.

Exhibition? No, a Battle!

Eighty thousand saw last year's game. I suspect that many in this throng came to see the college boys and didn't concern themselves with the question whether it would be a real contest or merely an exhibition. But when each team gains more than 150 yards from scrimmage, it is proof of action and action means thrills. The result, a scoreless tie, was a tribute to the college players and their coaches, and the professionals should also be praised although their supporters rather thought in advance that the pros would win.

The training period, I am informed, will be lengthened to three weeks this year. That is ample time, with double daily drills the first week, to fashion an offense. It is more time than many college teams have in which to prepare for their opening games.

What a Squad!

The coaches in charge of the university graduates will have a marvelous group. It follows that when thousands of votes are cast in all sections of the country the composite choices will gather in the best players.

I am glad that several of the players on the 1934 University of Alabama team have been chosen. All of us in Alabama, and throughout the south, are mighty proud of these boys who won the Rose bowl game last New Year's day.

The south has made tremendous strides in football in the last ten years. Once the east monopolized the game. Then the west swept into ascendancy with the growth of Western conference competition and the rise of Notre Dame under the late Knute Rockne. Rockne also contributed to the spread of football in the south, for many of his pupils obtained jobs there.

Watch Dixie Boys.

The rise of Pacific coast football, particularly at Southern California, Stanford, and California, and then at the northern universities has made all sections of the country football conscious. All will be represented in the All-Star game. We have fine players throughout the south and these boys from Georgia, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Louisiana State, Texas, and Rice institute, to mention only a few universities, will hold up their end of the battle against the professional eleven.

I have found tremendous interest in this coming All-American game against the Bears wherever I've gone this summer. I taught in the coaching school at Denver, then went to the school at Boston, and the game was widely discussed by the coaches at each place.

Sees Scoring This Year.

I don't wish to attempt to predict the result. I don't believe, however, it will be a scoreless tie. The Chicago Bears may have been overconfident last year. Whether that is true or not, I know they won't be this year.

Then the Bears now are a more versatile team than a year ago. Beattie Feathers, former Tennessee star, has strengthened the Bears' attack. Paired with Bronko Nagurski, the Bears have a tremendous driving attack through the line and around the flanks.

It's a great battle and one I don't want to miss.

MICKEY WALKER TRIES COMEBACK TRAIL TOMORROW

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Mickey Walker, the toy bulldog of the boxing industry whose era of decadence started four years ago when he renounced the light-heavyweight title for a chance against the big fellows, in which campaign he competed against with trifling success except for a draw with Jack Sharkey, is about to cast his fistic hat into the ring for a chance to regain his abdicated title.

The rugged Walker, now 34 and the winner and loser of two titles and several fortunes, inspired by the success of Jimmy Braddock and Tony Canzoneri in their comeback efforts, is said to have offered Bob Olin, the current light-heavyweight champion, $20,000 for a chance at the crown he once wore.

Monday night Walker is matched to meet John Anderson of Sweden in the feature bout at Dexter park in Brooklyn, a fight which is viewed as the beginning of a build-up for the former great.

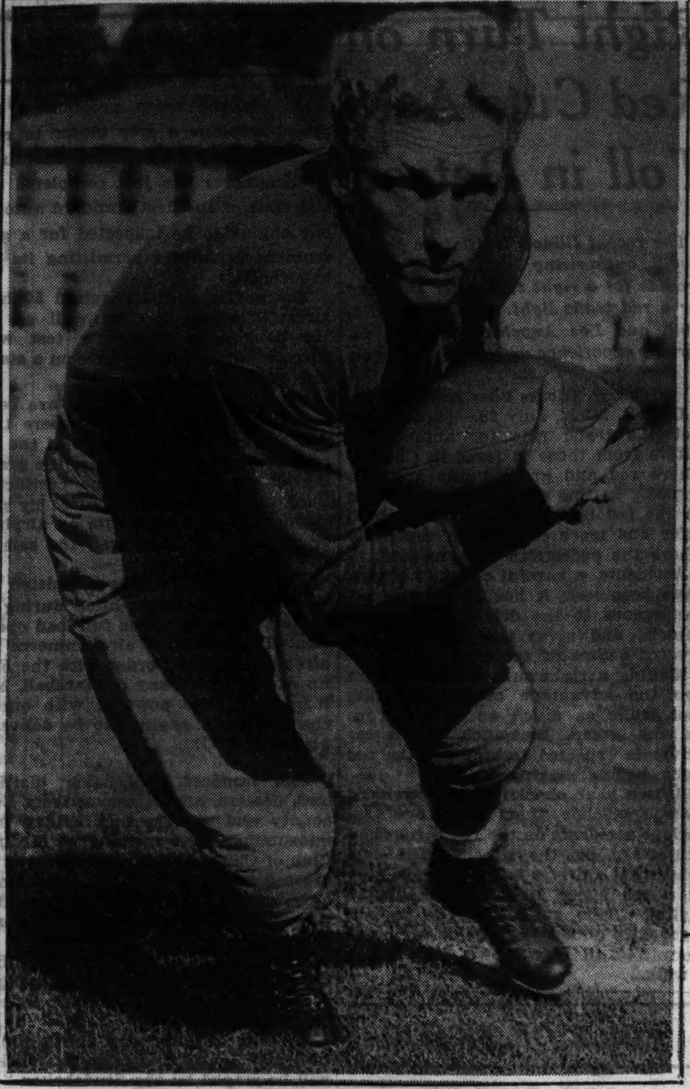
U. of Chicago to Meet Vanderbilt in 1936, 1937

Nashville, Tenn., July 20.—(AP)—Athletic Director Dan E. McGugin announced tonight that Vanderbilt university had signed a two year football contract with the University of Chicago. The Commodores will play the Big Ten eleven in Chicago Oct. 3, 1936. The following year the two teams will play in Nashville on Oct. 2.

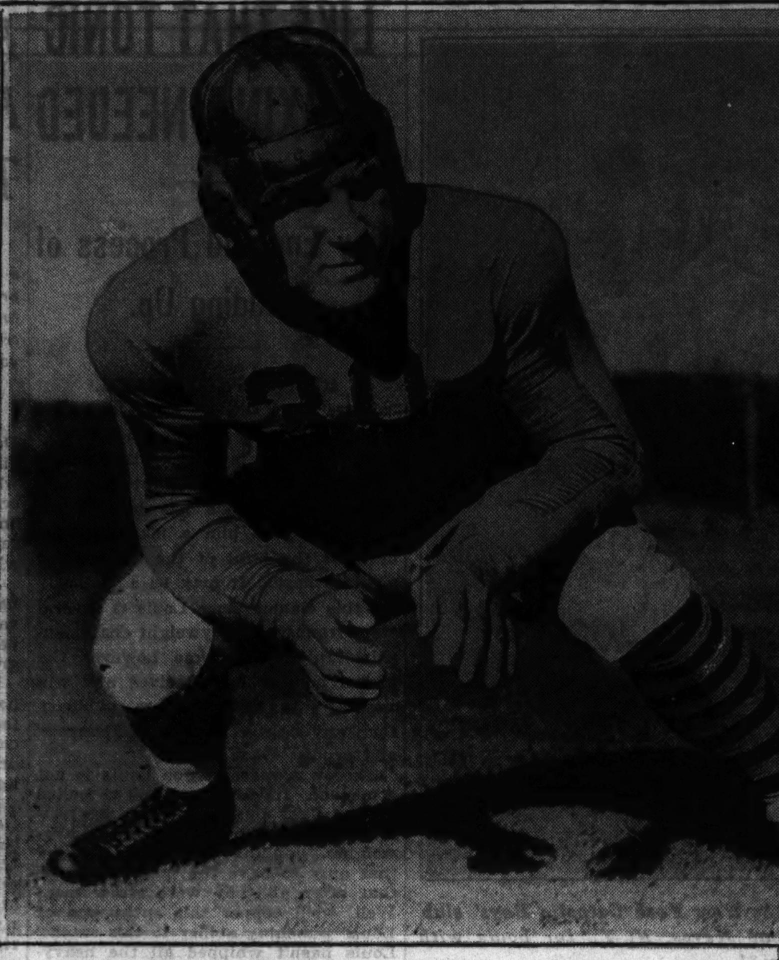
Hart Motors Team to Make Tour of Country

The Hart Motors, national girls' softball champions, will make a tour of the United States at the conclusion of their competition in Chicago this season, Arnold Pestine, manager, and Joseph Hart, sponsor, announced yesterday.

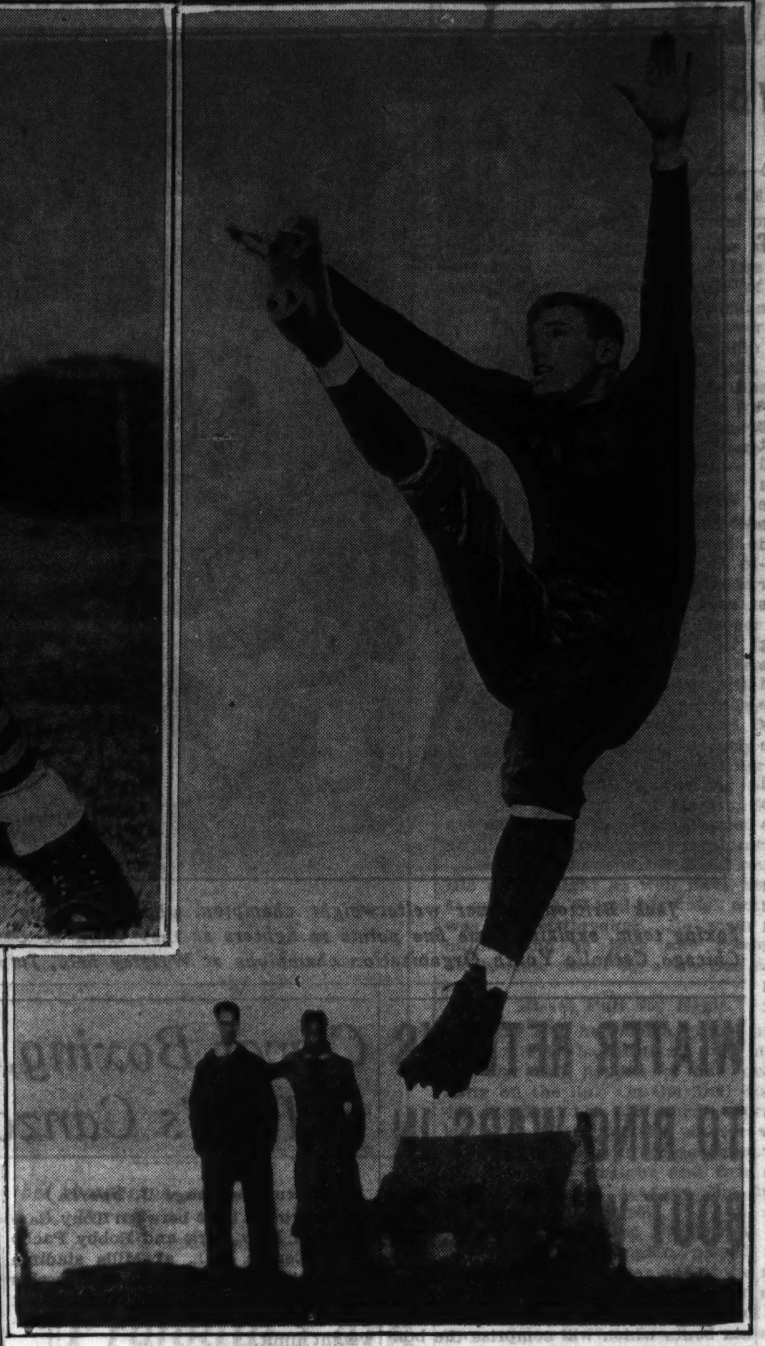
FOOTBALL FANS WANT TO SEE THESE STARS PLAY!



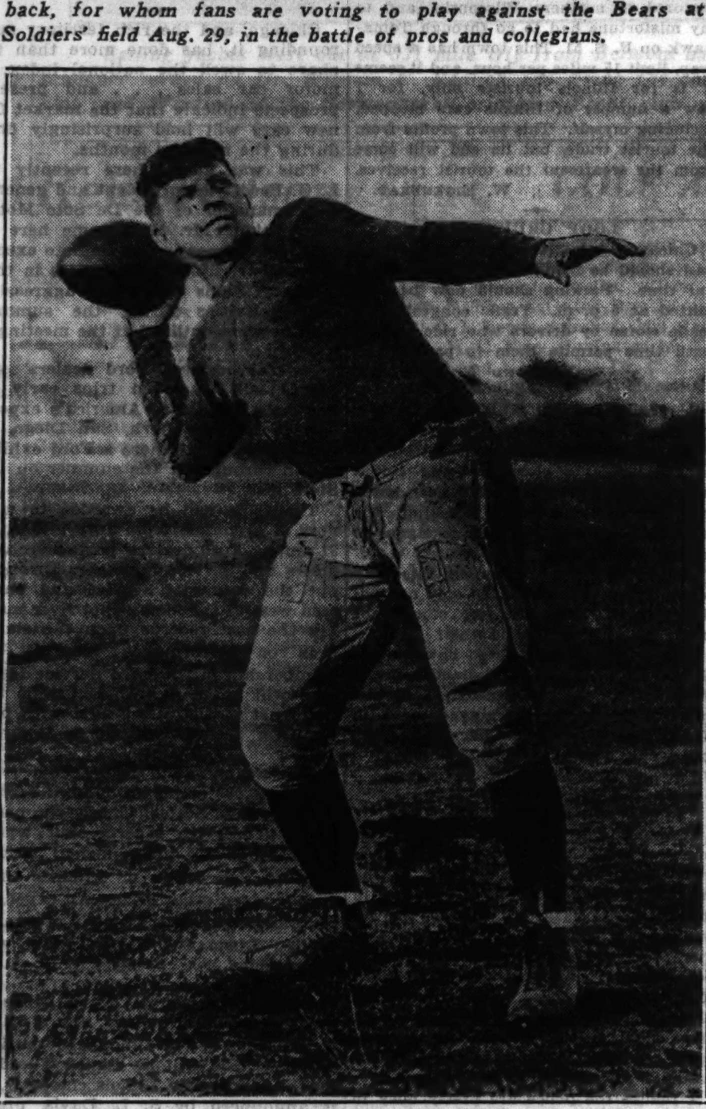
It's Cotton Warburton, University of Southern California quarter back, for whom fans are voting to play against the Bears at Soldiers' field Aug. 29, in the battle of pros and collegians.



Chuck Mucha, University of Washington star guard, is running high for a guard position in the poll on the College All-American eleven which closes at midnight tonight.



Duane Purvis of Purdue, half of the Touchdown Twins combination with Jim Carter in 1934, gets off one of those long kicks thousands of fans would like to see him make against the Bears.



Stan Kostka is likely to be the University of Minnesota's contribution to the College All-American eleven being picked by fans throughout the nation. He's a plunging full back.

Journal poll at Madison, but Bevan of Minnesota is the biggest vote getter.

Joliet for Robinson.

Robinson of Notre Dame is running 80 to 1 ahead of Patterson of Chicago at center in the Joliet Herald News poll. Other leaders there are Hutson, Bengtson, Lee, Monahan, Kostka, and Beynon. Fans balloting through the Fort Worth Star Telegram are piling up votes for Hilliard of Texas, and Dowell of Texas Tech, at half backs. Parker of Centenary leads Kostka at full back and Coates of Texas is 5 to 1 ahead of Robinson at center. The Fargo, N. D., Forum is clicking off a huge vote for Irving Kupcinet at full back.

Hutson and Lee of Alabama are the leaders in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat poll where Beynon of Illinois is 7 to 4 ahead of Warburton at quarterback. There has been considerable support for Tony Blazine, Illinois Wesleyan tackle, in St. Louis. Lund and Howell are the half back favorites.

Iowa Backs Schneidman.

Schneidman, Iowa half back, is receiving loyal support from his home town friends voting in the Quincy Herald Whig contest. The Winona, Minn., Republican Herald is ringing the bell for Minnesota players and for Robinson of Notre Dame. Sulkosky and Ullin of Washington, Pangle and Devine of Oregon State, and Stojack of Washingon State top the Spokesman Review poll at Spokane, Wash.

Returns from the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette give Weinstock a 2 to 1 lead over Kostka at full back. Ormiston of Pitt heads the guards and Shotwell shades Robinson at center, 3 to 2. Down in Florida, where they seldom go out of their way to help California, fans voting through the Jacksonville Times-Union gives Warburton of Southern California the quarter back job over Brown of Florida. Robinson, Howell, and Kostka are other Jacksonville favorites.

Simons Leads Howell.

Monk Simons of Tulane is the popular back field man in the New Orleans Times-Picayune poll. He is running about 10 to 1 ahead of Howell. Weinstock is leading Kostka for full back and Homer Robinson of Tulane is 3 to 1 ahead of Jack Robinson of Notre Dame at center. Fans voting through the Lafayette, Ind., Courier and Journal, are piling up big totals for Purdue players, notably Haas, Heldt, Purvis, and Carter. Purvis has 7,426 votes and Carter, 7,218 compared to 104 for Howell, who comes third. Warburton leads Beynon by a slight margin at quarter back and Robinson of Notre Dame has an edge on Patterson of Chicago at center.

Omaha fans are trying hard to get Meier, Nebraska center, among the leaders. The World Herald returns show him 10 to 1 ahead of Shotwell and about 4 to 1 ahead of Robinson. Maddox of Kansas State is polling a heavy vote at tackle and Lund is far in front among the half backs. Warburton is walking away with the quarter back job at Omaha.

Willis Ward, Michigan's colored end, leads all candidates for his position in the Peoria Journal-Transcript returns. Cummings of Illinois is second. Maddox of Kansas State tops the tackles, and Monahan of Ohio State the guards, but the most popular player in the Peoria poll is Jack Robinson of Notre Dame. He is running 8 to 1 ahead of Patterson of Chicago and Ford of Michigan. Beynon has a slight lead over Warburton at quarter back, and Weinstock has the full back job cornered.

Vote on All-Star Lineup

Returns in the nation-wide poll to select the personnel of the college football team which will meet the Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 29 follow:

RAIN INTERRUPTS ILLINOIS STATE TENNIS TOURNEY

Rain flooded the courts of the Chicago Town and Tennis clubs yesterday and postponed all matches in the Illinois state tennis tournament.

Officials announced that the women's semi-final match between Eugenie Kamrath and Bernice Ayer would be played this morning, with the winner facing Elizabeth Kesting later in the day for the title.

In the men's singles division, one other semi-final contest remains to be played between Joe Zukas and Chet Murphy. The two Tilden High school stars will meet this afternoon for the right to battle California's Bobby Harmon in the final match tomorrow.

Finals in minor sections will be run off in the afternoon. Ed Serrano and Art Kaiser are paired for the veterans' championship and in the father and son division the Greenbergs, Jacob and Seymour, will attempt to win their third title facing Herbert Mertz and Herbert Jr.

Edith Estabrooks, 14, Wins Iowa Golf Title

Davenport, Ia., July 20.—(AP)—Edith Estabrooks, 14 year old Dubuque girl, today became the youngest champion in the history of Iowa women's golf. Rallying after a start which sent her 5 down at the end of six holes, the youngster scored a 5 and 4 victory in the championship finals over Jennet Jones, Des Moines.

Illinois, Iowa Pigeons Enter 1,000 Mile Race

Kewanee, Ill., July 20.—[Special.]—Approximately 100 pigeons from Illinois and Iowa clubs, including Kewanee, Moline, East Moline, Rock Island and Galesburg will participate in a race from Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 7, distance 1,000 miles.

Organize Windy City Softball League Tuesday

The Windy City Softball league will be organized and a schedule drawn up at a meeting at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the Great Northern hotel. Games will be played at Litsinger park, Ashland and Wellington avenues, every Wednesday beginning July 31. Teams invited into the league are Rickett's, Rep. Adducis, Nevilles, Hannin-Klein, Did-Its, Paul Holmans, Consentinos, Albany Park All Stars, and Lawndale League All Stars.

Pitts Banks His Check; Hopes to Better .208 Mark

Albany, N. Y., July 20.—[U. P.]—Edwin [Alabama] Pitts, who emerged from Sing Sing prison with a small roll of bills—earnings during five years' imprisonment—boasted a bank account today several weeks after joining the Albany International Leaegue Baseball club.

Somewhat dejected because a swollen finger is keeping him on the bench, Pitts said he deposits part of his check each pay day.

"I get my check every two weeks," he said. "Some of the money goes into my savings account and some goes to my mother in Alabama."

Pitts said he was interested in a football career in the fall. He figures the swelling on his finger will disappear in a week, at which time he hopes to increase his batting average of .208.

Pitts has participated in 17 games, beating out 11 hits in 53 times at bat. Ten of the hits were singles. He scored five runs, drove home three, and stole two bases.

Report Keokuk Club May Be Removed to Omaha

Omaha, Neb., July 20.—(AP)—Larry Harlan, owner of the Keokuk Western league baseball club, was reported here today to be considering removal of his team to Omaha. Omaha lost its club recently due to financial troubles, the team moving to Council Bluffs, Ia., for sponsorship.

Budge Wins as Davis Cup Series Starts

WIMBLEDON, England, July 20.—(AP)—Red headed young Donald Budge, "scared stiff" by his own admission but nevertheless able to settle down and play grownup tennis when really threatened, got the United States away to a running start by whipping Germany's equally youthful Heiner Henkel before rain washed out the other half of today's Davis cup competition.

After scrambling around for three sets of tennis that looked more like a prep school match than an international duel, Budge outscored Henkel 7-5, 11-9, 6-8, 6-1. Thus he posted the first point for America in the inter-zone finals, the outcome of which decides England's challenger.

Wilmer Allison, the Texan, and Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Germany's No. 1 man, then sat around in their tennis clothes for more than an hour, waiting in vain to start the second singles match. It rained steadily most of that time, and the center court was kept covered. Then when the downpour ceased there wasn't enough time left to play more than a set or so, and the team captains agreed on a postponement of play until Monday.

Postponement Angers Crowd.

The carryover, which means putting back the doubles until Tuesday and the final two singles matches until Wednesday, prompted a large Saturday crowd to let loose a wholly unexpected demonstration of annoyance. Evidently irritated by failure to see the day's feature match, after so long a delay, spectators not only heaved cushions but actually littered up the historic turf with a barrage of teacups and saucers. It was an unprecedented outburst by British tennis onlookers, who generally have no difficulty restraining their emotions. The scene was more characteristic of an American baseball crowd than a British sports gathering.

As for the one match completed, the less said about it from a technical standpoint the better. Budge obviously suffered from stage fright in his Davis cup debut on Wimbledon turf. Henkel, though equally erratic, proved a tougher proposition than the Americans anticipated. The young German, had he been able to capitalize set point in the tenth game of the prolonged second set, might have upset the Californian.

Budge Shows Improvement.

As it was, Henkel eventually dropped this set and, although he pulled out the third, he was outclassed in the final chapter. After a "fight talk" during the rest period from Capt. Joe Wear and his teammates, Budge cut loose with his deadliest bolts in the fourth set. The redhead reeled off five straight games and yielded only eleven points.

Both got a lot of bad tennis out of their systems in the first three sets. Henkel outfumbled Budge in the first set. The German had leads of 3-0 and 4-1 in games in the second and third sets, respectively, but made good only one of his chances to win. He muffed an easy smash in the tenth game of the second set, for set point, while leading 40-30.

There were twenty-seven service breaks, including six in succession and eleven all told in the third set. This probably set a record for Davis cup play. Budge not only had his delivery broken a dozen times, but he was frequently baffled by Henkel's chop strokes and soft "floaters."

Meanwhile the Californian's normally strong backhand was erratic and he did not combine anything resembling accuracy and power until the final set.

CARDS PLAY RED SOX.

Battle Creek, Mich., July 20.—[Special.]—The St. Louis Cardinals and the Boston Red Sox will play an exhibition game at Battle Creek Aug. 12.

Yacht Notes

Henry Babson's new yawl, Maruffa, next to the longest boat in the current Mackinac race, arrived here last week just in time to be tuned up for the 331 mile event. The last leg of the 67 footer's jaunt from Wiscasset, Maine, was from Mackinac to Chicago. This latter passage was made in 50 hours, considered fast time for a boat of this size.

Constructed of the finest materials, the Maruffa is Skipper Babson's first boat. It is 50 feet on the waterline, 15 feet 3 inch beam, and weighs 58,000 tons. In the four lower working sails are 2,075 square feet of canvas. A Buda Diesel engine is auxiliary power. It was designed by Phil Rhodes, of Cox and Stevens, New York naval architests. Young Daniel Cox Jr., son of the firm partner, sailed on Maruffa from Detroit to Chicago, and is a member of the crew in the Mackinac race.

Orville Sonntag, of the Chicago Model Yacht club, designed the class A model racing yacht whose lines appear in the current issue of Yachting magazine.

New officers of the Model Yacht Racing Association of America, announced for 1935, are E. L. Cheney, Saugatuck, Mich., re-elected president; H. F. Kolb, Staten Island, N. Y., vice president; John Black, West Medford, Mass., treasurer; Harry F. Decker [of the Chicago Model Y. C.], secretary. R. J. Adams of the Ogden Park Model Y. C. was chosen a member of the committee at large.

A cruise sponsored by the American Campers and Cruisers association is being held today on the Fox river, between Millington and Wedron, Ill., in canoes and kayaks. Karl Hofinger, 2114 Lincoln avenue, secretary of the association, reports that another group of Chicago small boat sportsmen and their families will cruise next week end on the Kankakee river.

CAN YOU TELL MUSKIES APART? HERE ARE TIPS

A Tiger, It Seems, Has Paint on His Face.

BY BOB BECKER.

Mr. Muskie Fisherman, if any of your friends is inclined to argue with you about which muskie is which, why, is a tiger muskellunge, and where the different 'lunge are found, here is information on what is what among the tribe of Esocidæ, the family name given to the big pike and the species of muskellunge.

After many years of study scientists have lined up our muskies as follows:

Esox immaculatus: the northern muskie, Wisconsin muskie, or plain muskellunge. This is the 'lunge found all through Wisconsin, on into Minnesota and through the Lake of the Woods region. This species has, generally speaking, fewer bars and spots than the other two kind of muskies.

Tiger Muskie "Painted."

If some one begins to tell you about a huge tiger muskie, you can listen politely to the description and then remark: "Sure, I know all about this tiger business. The tiger muskie is just another muskie with a lot of 'paint' on his face and body which gives him very bright markings."

That is the status of the tiger muskie. There is just one species in Wisconsin. In some lakes they are more vividly marked than in others, due to the opening of the chromatophores in the skin of the fish. The muskie [and other fish] have the power of changing their color markings to fit their habitat. They're aquatic chameleons, so to speak. I have seen 'lunge taken from dark water that were almost devoid of a series of cross bars or markings.]

Bands Fade with Years.

Small muskies, about 7 inches long, that I have planted in northern lakes are much more distinctly marked than 30 pounders as a rule. The little fellows have bright bands on them, which seem to fade when they grow older.

Michigan's muskie is esox masquinongy. This is a separate species and is the spotted or St. Lawrence muskie. It's the species found in a few widely separated lakes of Michigan, the St. Lawrence river valley and New York. This fish has rows of round, or elongated spots against a light background.

South of us is a third species, esox ohioenis. This is better known as the Chautauqua or Ohio muskie, found in the Ohio river and southward. It's a heavily banded fish. If you ever have seen one you will recall the marked difference between it and the other species.

Then There's Northern Pike.

The last member of the tribe is esox lucius, the widely distributed, common old northern pike, pickerel, jackfish, or whatever you may wish to call him. This fish is a close relative of the true muskies, hits spoons and plugs just like his more distinguished relatives, and a 20 pounder will put up just about as good a scrap as a muskie—if you connect with some of those lunkers in the north country.

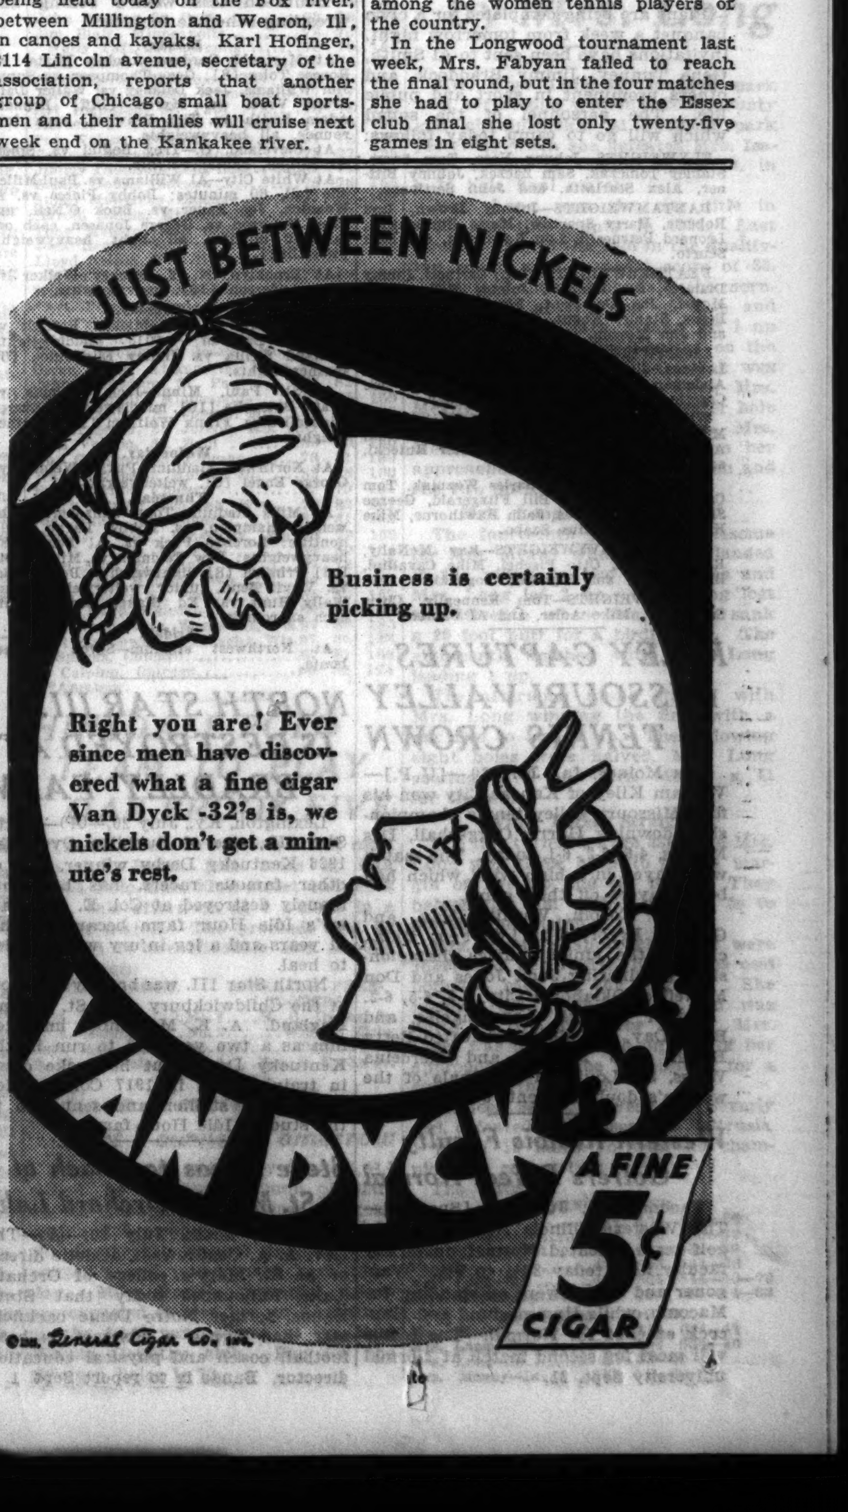
This family gives anglers a lot of fun during the fishing season because all of them are hard hitting fish with a lot of power.

MRS. FABYAN IS BEATEN IN ESSEX SINGLES FINAL

Manchester by the Sea, Mass., July 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt Arnold of Los Angeles scored a surprise victory over Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline in the singles final of the Essex county club tennis tournament, today, 6-4, 6-4.

The straight set victory of Mrs. Arnold, unseeded in the tournament and unranked nationally, was all the more outstanding because of the improvement observed this week in the playing of Mrs. Fabyan, ranked second among the women tennis players of the country.

In the Longwood tournament last week, Mrs. Fabyan failed to reach the final round, but in the four matches she had to play to enter the Essex club final she lost only twenty-five games in eight sets.



Business is certainly picking up.

Right you are! Ever since men have discovered what a fine cigar Van Dyck -32's is, we nickels don't get a minute's rest.

C. Y. O. BOXERS START TRAINING BATTLES TODAY

60 Go to Camp to Drill for New York Bouts.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Catholic Youth organization's boxing squad will pitch its training camp at Lockport this afternoon and for the next seven or eight days the boys will go through a period of intensive preparation for their intercity fights with New York.

TOM KENNEALLY.

Sixty young fighters will leave the city today and by the time of the bouts at Wrigley field a week from Wednesday evening, the squad will have been boiled down to a team of sixteen—two boys in each weight division.

Packy McFarland will have general supervision over the training, and Paddy Kane and Dick Fitzpatrick will take charge of boxing instruction, but it appears that even these three seasoned judges of fighting ability will have a difficult time picking the best fighters.

Watch Out, Champs!

The champions in each weight division will have their hands full winning a place on the intercity team. Each one will be challenged to prove he is the best man of a half dozen or more powerful fighters. During the rigorous course of training every title holder will have to prove all over again that he has a right to top rating.

Tom Kenneally, the heavyweight C. Y. O. champion, will have to battle it out with Al Camber, Mike Adler, and Christ Schuessler before he is sure of a place on the team. Ray McNally, Ray Wozniak, and three or four others will carry on a keen rivalry in the light heavyweight division. Lorenzo Lovings, Andy Scrivani, Jimmy Martin, Ed Garvey, Bob Downs, and several other courageous fighters will wage a furious rivalry for places in the 135 pound division. In nearly every class there will be a hard battle.

Old Timers Visit Camp.

In the course of their training the boys will draw inspiration from some famous fighters of the past. Tuesday has been set aside as the Day of Champions. On that day the camp will be visited by a group of famous old timers, including Battling Nelson, Johnny Coulon, Harry Forbes, Bennie Yanger, and George Gardner. These veterans will watch the workouts, tell the boys a few of their experiences, and give a little advice.

Max Marek and Jimmy Christy, former C. Y. O. and Golden Glove boxers who have now turned professional, will visit the camp during the week to help with the training.

New Yorkers Here Wednesday.

While the boys are at their Lockport camp on the grounds of the Lewis Holy Name Technical school, Chicagoans interested in the intercity fights will be having a busy time. The New York team, consisting of the winners and runners-up in the Catholic Boys' club tournament conducted in that city, will arrive Wednesday morning. Wednesday evening there will be a huge parade and reception in Garfield park.

On that occasion Mayor Edward J. Kelly will offer the city's official greeting to the visiting team, and the Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, will extend a welcome on behalf of the Catholic Youth organization, of which he is the head. Gov. Henry Horner and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney will address the gathering.

Thursday the New York boxers will settle down to training at the Midwest Athletic club.

Big Banquet Planned.

Plans are being completed for a civic banquet a week from tomorrow night. Invitations have been sent to Al Smith, Gene Tunney, Jimmy Braddock, and others prominent in sport and public life. The personnel of the squad which will go to camp today follows:

FLYWEIGHTS—Johnny Noto, Tom Snow, Stanley Tomczak, Sam Zaczek, Johnny Bittner, Alex Scarlatta, and John Settipane.

BANTAMWEIGHTS—Johnny Brown, Lou Roberts, Harry Sparrow, Mario Formentina, Leonard Petrucelli, Lou Razdienda, and Sam Scurto.

FEATHERWEIGHTS—Tony Carlucci, Jimmy Diamico, Joe Minneci, Johnny Kelly, Tony Motisi, Joe Du Pont, Floyd Walker, Pat Berns, Stanley Kogut, Bob Wiley, Ed Miller, and Jim Morton.

LIGHTWEIGHTS—Andy Scrivani, Lorenzo Lovings, Jimmy Martin, Ed Garvey, Johnny Anderson, Art Palladino, Eddie Giffee, Joe Caserio, Bob Downs, and Jim Pazy.

WELTERWEIGHTS—Frank McHugh, Eddie Mileski, Jake Lampkins, Stanley Murczek, Al Urlich, Justin Straksis, Chester Rutecki, and Jim Terracino.

MIDDLEWEIGHTS—Charles Wozniak, Tom Cahill, Bill Richter, Bill Fitzgerald, George Sluka, Hiner Thomas, John Hawthorne, Mike Krizmas, and Julius Szabo.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHTS—Ray McNally, Ray Wozniak, Otto Fischel, Mike Cavallini, Bill Bittner, and Sigmund Logocki.

HEAVYWEIGHTS—Tom Kenneally, Chris Schuessler, Mike Adler, and Al Camber.

KILEY CAPTURES MISSOURI VALLEY TENNIS CROWN

Des Moines, Ia., July 20.—[U. P.]—William Kiley of Kansas City won his first Missouri Valley tennis championship, downing Harris Coggeshall, Des Moines, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, today. The match was played in a high wind which had both players off their game.

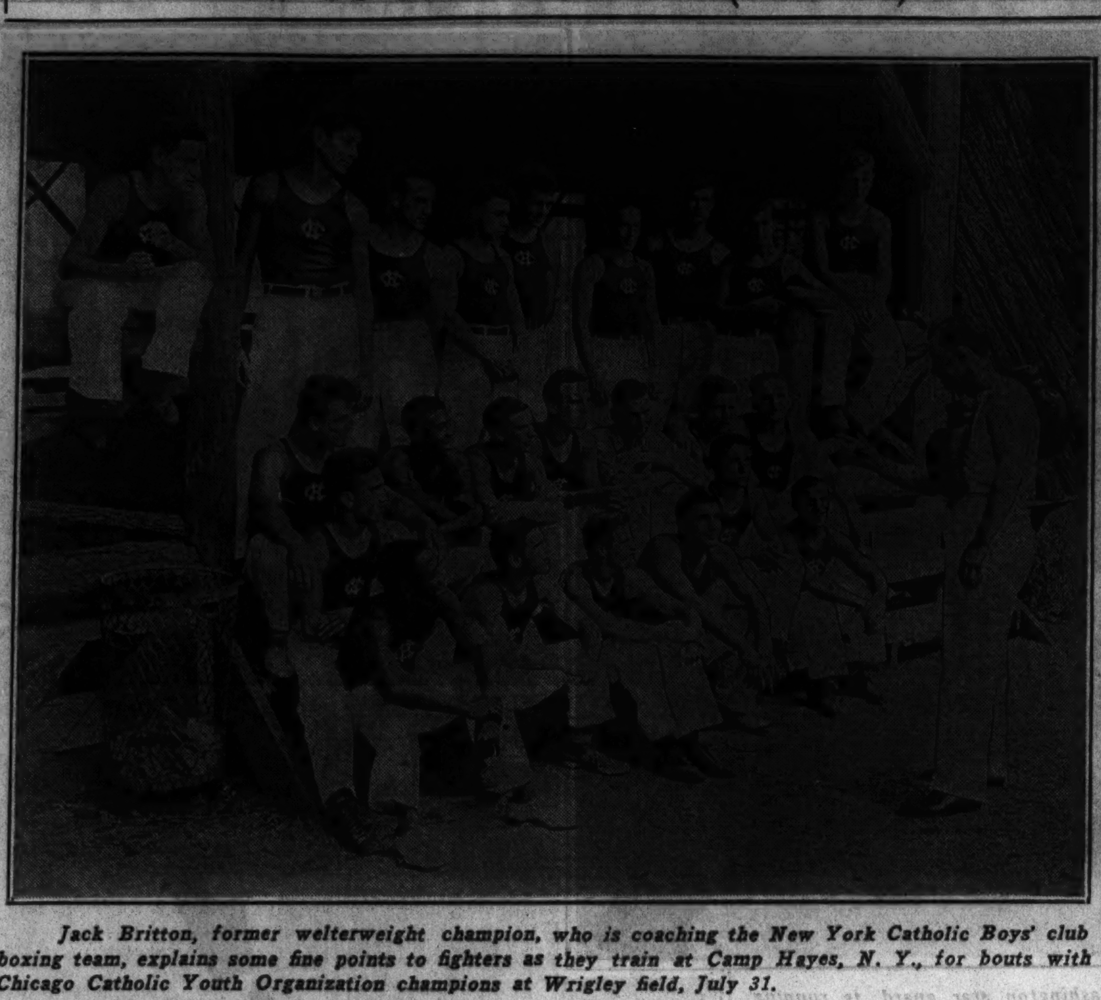
Harry Corbin, Wichita, Kas., and George Pryor, Stillwater, Okla., claimed the junior doubles championship, eliminating Jack Jones and Don McNeil of Oklahoma City, 6-3, 6-5, 6-2.

Esther Bartosh, Los Angeles, and Betty Day, Des Moines, defeated Betty Butler, Des Moines, and Merceina Weiss, St. Louis, in the finals of the women's doubles event, 6-3, 8-6.

Western Illinois Faculty Golfers Defeat Normal

Macomb, Ill., July 20.—[Special.]—The Western Illinois Normal faculty golf team defeated Normal university faculty here today 22½ to 7½. Waggoner and Silvey were outstanding for Macomb, while Hammerlund and Hancock excelled for Normal. The teams will meet for second match at Normal university Sept. 21.

HOW TO BEAT CHICAGO (MAYBE)



Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, who is coaching the New York Catholic Boys' club boxing team, explains some fine points to fighters as they train at Camp Hayes, N. Y., for bouts with Chicago Catholic Youth Organization champions at Wrigley field, July 31.

WIATER RETURNS TO RING WARS IN BOUT WITH TOLES

Heavyweights will be principals in six bouts which will comprise the boxing card tomorrow night at Marigold Gardens. Adolph Wiater, the 1933 Green Bay, Wis., Golden Gloves champion, will clash with Roscoe Toles of Toledo, O., in the eight round windup.

Johnny Pacek, making his first appearance since his six round conquest of Eddie Hogan at the Stadium Feb. 15, will appear in the semi-final at six rounds. His opponent will be selected today.

Wiater Back in Form.

Wiater has not boxed since March 29 when he lost in ten rounds to Roy Lazer of Paterson, N. J., at Detroit. He has been ailing. After undergoing treatments by physicians he has been pronounced in fine physical condition once more. Adolph hasn't had much luck since his hard ten round battle with Joe Louis at Arcadia Gardens Sept. 26. He hopes it will change for the better starting with his match against Toles.

Toles first came into the limelight by lasting six rounds against Louis at Flint, Mich., April 25. In his first start here a few weeks ago Toles knocked out Les Schuelte of East St. Louis, Ill. Schuelte was out in front at the time of the knockout in the fifth round.

Wrestle at White City.

Other shows this week will include a wrestling program at White City tomorrow and boxing matches at Western stadium Tuesday and Northwest stadium Wednesday.

Al Williams, the Fox Lake comedian, will wrestle Paul Miller of Chicago in the main event at White City. The feature attraction at Western stadium will bring together Mickey Patrick and Mickey Balaban of Buffalo at ten round at 165 pounds. They are sluggers. The card at Northwest will be the first of a series being arranged by Harry Forbes, former bantamweight champion. Puggy Weinert and George Engel, aggressive, two-fisted welterweights, will be the contending warriors in the six round windup there Wednesday.

Bouts on this week's boxing and wrestling schedule include:

Monday.

At Marigold Gardens—Adolph Wiater vs. Roscoe Toles [8]; Gene Thompson vs. Sunny Jim Williams, Jack Delaney vs. Walter Dale, Frank Vogel vs. Myron [Biff] Bennett, Adam Smith vs. Tim Brawner, each four rounds, all heavyweights.

At Cleveland, O.—Troy Bellini vs. Spider Armstrong, bantamweights.

At White City—Al Williams vs. Paul Miller, one fall, 60 minutes; Bobby Pierce vs. Al Woznica, Joe Bauer vs. Buck O'Neil, and Ernie Peterson vs. George Jonasen, each one fall, 30 minutes, all light heavyweights [wrestling].

At Brooklyn, N. Y.—Mickey Walker vs. John Anderson [10], heavyweights.

Tuesday.

At Western stadium—Mickey Patrick vs. Mickey Balaban [10], middleweights; Armand Sicilia vs. Jimmy Eliopoulos [6], featherweights.

At St. Paul, Minn.—Jack Gibbons vs. Frank Battaglia [10], middleweights; Everett Rightmire vs. Frank Wolfram [10], featherweights.

Wednesday.

At Northwest stadium—Puggy Weinert vs. George Engel [6], welterweights.

Thursday.

At Mills stadium—Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, vs. Bobby Pacho [10], nontitle; Lorenzo Pack vs. Al Boros [8], heavyweights; Lew Feldman vs. Mike [Little Pal] Primich [8], lightweights; Bob Tinsley vs. Virgil Bemi, junior welterweights, and Wally Hunt vs. Ed Slake, heavyweights, each six rounds.

Friday.

At Northwest stadium—Seven amateur bouts.

NORTH STAR III. IS DESTROYED AT BRADLEY FARM

Lexington, Ky., July 20.—(AP)—North Star III., sire of Bubbling Over, the 1926 Kentucky Derby winner, and of other famous racers, has been humanely destroyed at Col. E. R. Bradley's Idle Hour farm because of his 21 years and a leg injury which failed to heal.

North Star III. was bred by J. B. Joel at the Childwickbury stud, St. Albans, England. A. K. McComber imported him as a two year old to run in the Kentucky Derby but he broke down in training and in 1917 Col. Bradley bought the stallion and sent him to the stud at Idle Hour farm.

Steve Banas to Coach at St. Mary's, Orchard Lake

Pontiac, Mich., July 20.—(AP)—The Rev. A. A. Cendrowski, athletic director at St. Mary's college of Orchard Lake, announced today that Steve Banas, former Notre Dame backfield star, had signed a contract as head football coach and physical education director. Banas is to report Sept. 1.

Clever Boxing, Hard Punches —That's Canzoneri vs. Pacho

A ten round bout between Tony Canzoneri of New York and Bobby Pacho of El Centro, Cal., at Mills stadium Thursday night will head this week's national boxing program. The weight is 138 pounds, three over the lightweight limit.

It will be Canzoneri's first Chicago contest since March 15 when he won a unanimous ten round decision over Chuck Woods of Detroit at the stadium. Tony knocked out Eddie Zivic in the seventh round at Pittsburgh, Pa., April 25. He then defeated Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N. Y., in 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden to regain recognition as lightweight champion. Tony, it may be recalled, won the crown the first time by knocking out Al Singer in one round in 1930. Three years later Barney Ross dethroned Canzoneri at the Stadium after a hard fight.

Tony Plans Tour.

In his latest bout Canzoneri whipped Frank Klick of San Francisco, Cal., at Washington, D. C., June 10. The match with Pacho will be the first of a series being arranged by Tony's manager, Sam Goldman. Other matches tentatively set may find Tony opposing Joe Ghnouley of St. Louis at St. Louis next month and Klick at San Francisco in September.

If Pacho performs half as well against Canzoneri as he did against Frank Sagilio at Comiskey park July 2, however, Tony may be unable to finish the tour. Bobby handed Sagilio, the Cicero fighter, the most humiliating defeat of his career in ten rounds. Sagilio was floored four times.

Pacho displayed in that battle that he possesses boxing skill. Fans who have seen the California junior welterweight perform know that he is an aggressive, tireless warrior, forever throwing sharp punches to the head and body. His form against Sagilio demonstrated he is a combination boxer and fighter, a trait not many modern boxers possess. Canzoneri is the same type. Consequently, critics are of the opinion the fight will be one of the best held here this summer.

Bobby's Always Battling.

Pacho's record this year discloses several defeats, but in the case of Bobby they mean little, for whether he wins or loses his opponent knows he has been in a fight. Barney Ross learned that was true in two combats with Pacho last year. So did Harry Dublinsky, Kid Frattini, Davey Day, Leonard Del Genio, Johnny Morro, Irish Jim Brady, Eddie Marks, Harry Carlton, and Johnny Zodda. Pacho held Dublinsky to a draw at Philadelphia last Oct. 16, beat Frattini at New York Aug. 15, lost to Day at the Coliseum Feb. 21, fought a draw with Del Genio at New York April 15, and beat Morro, Marks, Carlton, and Zodda and knocked out Brady this year. PUNCHER

BOBBY PACHO.

Tommy Barry, FormerGolden Glover Killed

Springfield, Ill., July 20.—[U. P.]—Two boxers, one of them a former national amateur bantamweight champion, were killed and three others were injured as their automobile was sidewiped by a truck near here early today.

The dead boxers are Tommy Barry, 18, Springfield, who was a member of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S 1934 Intercity Golden Glove squad, and Eddie Shea, 23, also of Springfield, a lightweight. The injured are Vaughan Barry, 13, a brother of Tommy, Paul Kurlytis, 18, and Garland Parnell, 18, all of Springfield. The injured will recover.

The five were returning from Jacksonville, where all but Tommy had engaged in an outdoor program last night and had won their fights. The accident occurred when they sought to pass a truck driven by O. M. Scott, Madison, Mo. Riding with Scott was B. M. Clancy, a sailor from the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Neither was injured.

Tommy Barry, sitting behind Shea who was driving, was instantly killed. Shea died an hour later at St. John's hospital. Barry's body was found about 25 feet from the machine, which after turning over several times exploded. His face and head were crushed. Shea suffered a skull fracture.

Barry, son of an Irish father and Italian mother, made a great record in the Golden Gloves tournament. He came up to Chicago as a member of the Springfield State Register's team last year and was runner-up for the 118 pound title. In his intercity bout with New York at Madison Square Garden Barry pounded out a decision over Dave Crawford.

NAVY NET TEAM BEATS ARMY FOR 8TH TIME IN ROW

Washington, D. C., July 20.—(AP)—For the eighth successive time the Navy today defeated Army to win the Leech cup, emblematic of the service tennis championship. So tight was the contest, however, that Navy was forced to rally in the last doubles engagement to pull out a 4 to 3 triumph. More than a thousand spectators, including Secretary of War Dern, saw the matches.

Australia Sweeps Tennis Matches with England

EASTBOURNE, England, July 20.—(AP)—Australia made a sweep of its international tennis match with England today when Jack Crawford defeated H. W. [Bunny] Austin, 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, for Australia's third straight victory.

Previously Crawford won from Fred Perry, the English star, and the Australian doubles team of Don Turnbull and Adrian Quist disposed of G. P. Hughes and C. R. D. Tuckey of England.

A singles match between Perry and Vivian McGrath was stopped by rain with the score one all.

MRS. McCONNELL SIGNED UP BY KILMER TREES

Erica Bock McConnell, a senior girls' Silver Skates Derby winner and a star catcher, has been signed by the Joyce Kilmer Trees of the Chicago Major Girls Softball league.

Teresa Schuh, another softball star formerly with the Harts and Bloomer Girls, will sign a Kilmer contract and appear in Tuesdays game against the Narragan-NorClaire Drug Coeds at Mills Stadium.

The Chicago Major Girls Softball league will stage a triple-header starting at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at Mills stadium. In the first encounter the Commercial Tire Supply Co-eds will oppose the Dennis A. Horan Boosters, Cook county champions. The Narragan-NorClaire Drug Co-eds will meet the Dennis A. Horans. In the third contest the Commercial Tire Supply Coeds will play the Hart Motors.

LORBER'S POLO TEAM TO MEET SOLDIERS TODAY

Herb Lorber's combination North Shore-Olympia Fields polo quartet will oppose an Army team led by Lieut. Col. Harry D. Chamberlain this afternoon at Fort Sheridan. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Lorber's support will include Steve Hammond, Roy Nofziger, and Maj. C. K. Rhinehart. Col. Chamberlin will ride with Lieut. Larry Smith, Lieut. L. K. Ladue, and Lieut. E. C. Greiner.

JOE LOUIS LOOKS LIKE THAT TONIC BOXING NEEDED

May End Old Process of Building Up.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

This Joe Louis, who massaged Primo Carnera out of the heavyweight picture, is persistently making the headlines of the fighting news, but so far no one has been brash enough to dub him a black menace or start the hunt of the byways for a white hope. It may be a bit early for this clamor since Louis is several steps from the heavyweight championship. In the meantime, however, the brown bomber has received and will continue to receive more publicity than any fighter since Jack Dempsey and erudite Gene Tunney.

There's a reason. Joe Louis is not a menace. Indeed, he should be hailed by the fight business which has tottered along with excuses for heavyweights, building up this giant and that only to have the public discover that after all they were straw men. Well, we'll copper this enthusiasm of Louis' punching ability to this extent; Louis hasn't whipped all the heavyweights, but if he doesn't it won't be for lack of trying.

Louis is a tonic to the business. He has shown himself to be concerned only with fighting. He has no eccentricities, no vices. The result is that within the space of one year he has become the one heavyweight people will pay to see.

King Isn't Quite Happy.

King Levinsky, who meets Louis Aug. 7 in Chicago's Comiskey park, probably doesn't particularly desire to meet Louis. Neither does Germany's Max Schmeling, who has the Sept. 18 date in New York, judging solely from obvious chances that both may be soundly licked. But Louis has a public which will pay and Levinsky and Schmeling can be had for the prospect of big purses.

Louis not only is a two fisted fighter but he wants to fight. In three months he will have met Carnera, Levinsky, and Schmeling, a program that would have kept Jack Sharkey, one time heavyweight champion who made a supreme success out of failure, busy for three years. And when Louis has completed this schedule successfully—this is our forecast—Baer can have him, his hands being in condition and his wife permitting, and so can James J. Braddock.

Has Faith in "Roundhouse."

Harold Steinman, Levinsky's manager, signed for the Louis match, aside from financial considerations, because he really believes the King can whip his Maxwell street roundhouse around Louis' head and bowl the colored boy over. The basis of this belief rests on a knockdown that Cecil [Seal] Harris scored during the days at Pompton Lakes before the Carnera imbroglio.

Louis will engage in his second boxing drill this afternoon at the Savoy arena. He will do no training tomorrow. He will board an airplane tomorrow night for Cleveland to be introduced at an amateur boxing tournament there. He will take up boxing in Chicago again Wednesday.

Miss Rawls Adds 880 to Swim Titles

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Wind, rain and lightening which chased away a crowd of 6,000 failed to keep little Katherine Rawls from her second title of the annual women's national swimming meet today. Nor did the storm deter Washington Athletic club of Seattle from setting a new record for the 880 yard free style relay.

It was blistering hot when Mary Lou Petty, Betty Lea, Doris Buckley, and Olive McKean thrilled the crowd by whipping the 1934 championship four from Homestead, Pa.—Johanna Gorman, her sister, Anna Mae, Louise Clark and Lenore Kight—by 50 yards in the new record time of ten minutes, 37.8 seconds. The old record, set last year, was 11:10.

Then Came the Storm.

About that time the sky darkened, lightning started flashing out to sea, and before you could count ten the heat wave was shattered by a terrific storm.

One bolt set fire to a telegraph pole near the crowded pool and the crowd raced for cover.

Miss Rawls, who won her first championship of the meet yesterday when she deposed Anne Govednik of Chisholm, Minn., in the 220 yard breaststroke, swam away from the field of seven in her defense of her own 300 meters individual medley title.

The Miami Beach girl shot into the lead in the first 100 meters of breaststroke, increased her margin on the backstroke leg, and stormed home in the freestyle 100 to win 25 yards over June Burr of Coral Gables, Fla.

Katherine Leads All Rivals.

Miss Rawls' second victory of the meet gave her a total of 13 points in the duel for the individual title while Lenore Kight is second with 11.

Miss Rawls' performances also did much to give the Miami Beach Swimming club a total of 24 points for the unofficial team title. Carnegie Library club, of Homestead, Pa., was second with 22, and Washington A. C., of Seattle, third, with 20. The Women's Swimming Association of New York had 19 points.

880 YARD RELAY—Won by Washington A. C., Seattle [Mary Lou Petty, Betty Lea, Doris Buckley, and Olive McKean]; Carnegie Library club, Homestead, Pa. [Johanna Gorman, Anna Mae Gorman, Louise Clark, and Lenore Kight], second; Women's Swimming association, New York [Elsie Ferril, Dolores Smith, Mavis Freeman, and Dorothea Dickinson], third; Miami Beach Swimming club, Miami Beach, Fla. [Evelyn Rawls, Marian Hopkins, Virginia Hopkins, and Betty Joyce MacMinn], fourth. Time, 10:37.8 [new American record, displacing old mark of 11:10 made last year by Carnegie Library club].

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Right Turn on Red Cuts Auto Toll in Detroit

The recent Illinois legislature passed a bill authorizing municipalities to provide for a right turn after stopping for a red trafic light. New York, Detroit, and Los Angeles have had favorable experience with this maneuver.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., July 20.—[Special.]—Detroit's trafic rule for automobiles differs from those in force in Chicago where red and green lights are concerned. In this city the right to turn on the red light has been found both safer and more convenient, especially where the pedestrian is concerned.

Accidents, a careful checkup shows, have been less; it has been more advantageous to the driver of a motor vehicle, and gives the foot trafic a greater degree of security.

Making a right turn on a red light has the advantage of not blocking foot trafic as much as does a turn on the green, inasmuch as the car driver is expected to stop for the red light before making a turn.

A two year checkup has convinced Detroit officials that there are less serious accidents on the red turns than there are on the green. The law reads that a driver must "always stop at a red signal light before turning right." This rule, however, is not rigorously adhered to, the driver being permitted to slow down to a mere "walk."

VOICE OF TRAFIC

AT TOMAHAWK, WIS.

Des Plaines, Ill., July 8.—I recently motored to northern Wisconsin, and to my misfortune had to go through Tomahawk on U. S. 51. This town has a speed trap, limit 15 miles per hour, and it seems it is for Illinois tourists only, for I saw a number of Illinois cars stopped, including myself. This town profits from the tourist trade, but its end will come from the treatment the tourist receives.

LOOP CRUISING.

Chicago, July 10.—The loop parking ban should be modified to suit the present time. Parking should now be permitted at 5 p. m. Trafic congestion is made worse by drivers who ride around until time permits them to park.

RAYMOND A. KAPTAN.

TAXI STAND OVERFLOW.

Chicago, July 9.—One of the many curses of Chicago is the constant stream of Checker cabs slowly moving across Monroe street toward the Morrison hotel, very often completely blocking the crossing even when the trafic signal is against them.

Am I the only one caught this way when trying to cross or the only one noticing this? Don't the city officials or trafic police ever notice this?

I do not know if it is so now, but in the old days in London, England, a city of eight and a half million people, they had cab stands and the cab stayed there till he was called. People knew where to get a cab, when they wanted one.

DON'T BRAKE PARKED CARS.

Chicago, July 8.—There is an ordinance, I believe, against setting emergency brakes and locking doors at the same time. This practice is one that in itself is a fire hazard, as is well known, but from a personal and selfish point of view, the car is usually left in such a position that an extra car could park if it could be moved. In many blocks all over town as many as five or six cars could be added to each block if other cars could be moved a little backward or forward.

I realize the police are pretty busy in the loop writing out tickets for people that have parked four minutes instead of three, but when they have a minute to spare they could look into the situation. In the blocks surrounding the loop there are many spots that cars could get in if this situation didn't exist, and would add space for at least several cars.

NEED MORE POLICE.

Chicago, July 9.—Preventable automobile accidents are caused largely by irresponsible, smart Alec, horn tooting, or drunken drivers, who do not observe trafic signals and regulations nor the ordinary rules and customs of the road for safe driving.

Enforcement of trafic regulations and ordinary safe driving rules would stop most of the preventable accidents. In Chicago these are not enforced, due partly to a lack of police.

The answer is not superhighways. It is strict enforcement of the law and an increased police force. One may drive most any time the whole length of the three streets named by THE TRIBUNE as contributing the greatest number of accidents without finding a single policeman. Laws and trafic signals do not enforce themselves.

SLIPPERY OUTER DRIVE.

Chicago, July 8.—I believe that I have a wonderful location for a number of wrecking companies and an undertaker. Did you ever drive on the west side of the outer drive going north and try to stop at either Jackson boulevard or Monroe street on a rainy day after going at the terrific speed of 20 miles per hour? If you haven't, and you try to turn left, you will get a thriller that has Riverview outclassed.

I admire the local police for catching at least a few trafic violators, but why isn't something done about the terrible pavement at these spots? I asked the officer on duty, but all he said was that your column could do more if an article were published than all the complaints that the officers have already made.

A. ROSSET.

DAMEN AND FOSTER.

Chicago, July 10.—In corroborating article "Dangerous Foster Avenue," it also is deplorable there are no stop and go signal lights at such a dangerous street car line and through street corner as Damen and Foster avenues, where hundreds of children cross daily. Probably not until some person is killed will the official in charge get busy and order a signal light at this corner.

Peoria, Ill., July 20.—[Special.]—Cricket is invading Peoria for the first time in the 100 years' history of the city. Several of the sportsmen of Peoria are practicing the sport at Detweiler park in the afternoons.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Moving the mass production, low priced airplane a step closer to realization, the United States bureau of air commerce has just completed official tests of the first standard automobile engine to be inspected for a government certificate permitting its use in aircraft.

The government's required 50 hour aircraft engine test as well as the 100 hour manufacturer's test were successfully completed here on a standard 1935 Plymouth engine.

Official records of the test are being forwarded to Washington where they will be reviewed by officials of the bureau of air commerce before the granting of an approved type certificate. Such certificates are required by government regulation before an airplane or engine can be offered for sale to the public.

The Plymouth engine completed the test without a single hitch during its 50 hours of continuous full load operation. The bureau of air commerce has already placed an order with the Fahlin Aircraft company of Marshall, Mo., for an airplane powered with one of the Plymouth engines to be delivered about Aug. 1.

Two hundred Studebaker distributors, dealers, and salesmen from Cook county and vicinity met Friday in a midsummer sales meeting at Medinah Club of Chicago. The meeting was addressed by L. K. Manley, sales manager of the Studebaker corporation; James M. Cleary, Roche, Williams & Cunnyngham, Inc., Studebaker's advertising agency; Wayne Hearne, Studebaker special sales promotion representative, and H. N. Kyser, special service engineer.

A series of more than thirty similar meetings in as many major markets will be staged by the Studebaker "flying corps" of selling, merchandising, and advertising executives.

Chicago, and the rich territory surrounding it, has done more than its share to swell the national index of motor car sales . . . and present prospects indicate that the market for new cars will hold surprisingly firm during the summer months.

This was stated here recently by L. G. Peed, vice president and general sales manager of the De Soto Motor corporation. Mr. Peed came here to preside at a meeting of De Soto executives, distributors, and dealers in this territory. Plans to continue aggressive sales activities during the summer months were outlined at the meeting.

Several hundred Ford dealers' employés will be given trips early in September either to America's exposition in Balboa's park, San Diego, or to Atlantic City, where a Ford exhibit is run throughout the summer on the Steel pier.

The trips will be awarded to winners of a contest from July 1 to Aug. 31 among Ford dealers' parts merchandisers and service managers throughout the country. Service and parts men west of the Mississippi river making the best records upon the standards of performance required for membership in the Ford Service Merit club will go to San Diego, while the men east of the Mississippi with outstanding records will go to Atlantic City.

The winners will be selected from among 15,000 employés of Ford dealers in the United States. Those who make excellent service records, but whose point totals are not sufficient to win trips to San Diego or Atlantic City, will be given other prizes. All expenses for traveling and for two day programs at San Diego and Atlantic City will be provided.

An airplane trip to Detroit, inspection of the Hupp factory, and a driveway in the newly announced touring sedan models will be staged Tuesday by the Hupmobile Illinois company, it is announced by S. L. Davis, president. The expedition will be in charge of L. M. Feehan, wholesale manager of the company, with dealers throughout the Chicago area coöperating.

Most of the flying party will be owners who have just placed orders for the new models. They will be entertained at the factory by Hupp officials, headed by Vern R. Drum, president, and William Hurlburt, vice president in charge of sales.

A committee of twenty members, with H. T. Hollingshead as chairman, has just been named by K. K. Kenderdine, president of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, for the annual Chicago automobile show. The first announcement by the committee makes known that the exposition will be held during the week of Nov. 23 to 30, inclusive.

Five locations for staging the show are under consideration, announces Mr. Hollingshead. They are the International amphitheater at the Union Stockyards, the Navy pier, Hotel Stevens, Coliseum, and Chicago Stadium.

Besides Mr. Hollingshead, who represents Nash-Lafayette, the makeup of the show committee includes W. R. Bellows, Packard; I. B. Burnstine, Chrysler; W. E. Butler, Hudson Terraplane; A. H. Crowley, Lincoln; S. L. Davis, Hupmobile; V. C. P. Dreiske, Cadillac-La Salle; C. L. Gerds, Dodge; Thomas J. Hay, Reo; D. P. Hogan, Duesenberg; Lloyd Johnson, Auburn; R. H. SOUTH DAKOTANS FIND IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Up to Date Methods Are Bringing Tourists.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rapid City, S. D., July 15.—[By mail.]—The U. S. 14 association is marking a new step in the evolution of automobile tourist promotion. In full appreciation of motor travel as an economic factor of major magnitude, the association is furthering usage of U. S. 14 from Chicago to the Black Hills here in the same businesslike manner that a railroad advances its passenger trafic.

Paul K. Myers of Huron, S. D., vice president of the association, said that there has been a noticeable and marked return from newspaper advertising of this route. Ray Bronson of Rapid City, another officer, said that the revived popularity of long distant travel nationally can not alone account for the 50 per cent increase in the number of tourists passing throug this city this year as compared with two years ago, that the sales efforts of the association were entitled to some credit.

Improving Attractions.

In addition to modern advertising methods, the U. S. 14 association, like a railroad seeking additional passenger revenue, is exerting itself to improve the attractions of the highway.

"We've contributed a lot of gasoline tax revenue to the state," said Web Hill, another interested in the enterprise, "sending delegations to the capital at Pierre to petition for the physical betterment of the highway.

"This one road is traveled by 200,000 tourists who bring $4,000,000 a year into the state. If the dust were allayed by some inexpensive oil treatment, this revenue to South Dakota could be increased 25 per cent, or $1,000,000 a year."

A bituminous macadam road, dustless all weather surface, suitable for the light trafic of this sparcely settled region, could be built for an estimated cost of $3,200 a mile. This would make a total cost of $1,808,400 to surface the worst 137 miles, now suffocating travel between here and Pierre.

Association a Year Old.

The U. S. 14 association was organized about a year ago. Its main objective is the obvious one of getting for the communities along its route a larger portion of the two and a half billions spent annually in America for recreational motoring. Its means toward this end are the logical one, advertising and betterment. Chambers of commerce and civic groups in communities along the road are contributing to the promotion fund.

In the early days of automobiles, from about 1905 to 1912, motor travel was promoted by organizing tours of groups of cars. This was the beginning of automobile clubs, as sport and adventure societies.

There followed in later years the organization of hotel and garage men along certain routes. They marked roads as best suited the subscribers to the association, directing travel or misdirecting travel to pass the hotels and garages that were donating to the enterprise.

More recently, the states and the federal government took over this marking of the highways. While drag, politics, commercial selfishness, and governmental inefficiency have perverted the marking in a few minor instances, in the main the official numbers now lead travelers over logical routes.

On Businesslike Basis.

In the last ten years, there have been a few sporatic and abortive efforts of professional promoters to organize commercial interests along some particular route ostensibly to increase tourist usage of the highway. Most of them have been in the nature of rackets, chiseling hotels for advertisements in a special map publication.

Now comes the U. S. 14 association putting this tourist promotion on a businesslike basis.

"From the success we have had in this first year, other highways will probably organize likewise," said Mr. Bronson. "There will be rivalry between these highways with the same beneficial results that are obtained by the competition among railroads, improved service to the patrons."

A logical competitor with U. S. 14 between Chicago and the Black Hills is a route lacking the advantage of a single numeral from Addison street and Lake Shore drive to Yellowstone park via Rapid City. Natives hereabout, familiar with road conditions west of the Mississippi river, in going to Chicago are inclined to favor U. S. 16 from here to Sioux Falls, S. D., thence U. S. 77 to Sioux City, Ia., and thence on U. S. 20 through Dubuque, Ia., and Rockford, Ill., to Chicago. They say it is 50 miles closer and has 150 miles less gravel than over U. S. 14.

Indispensable to care-free driving, the 1935 Chicagoland Road Map is now on sale at the Chicago Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower. Price, 25c; by mail, 30c.

HOUSEHOLDER, MILLS TO RACE AGAIN TONIGHT

Drivers who accounted for two new track records last Wednesday night will appear at the Chicago Midget speedway, Lincoln and Devon avenues in another program of racing tonight, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Eight events have been programmed by Track Director Len Bernard, with the feature at 20 laps.

Ronnie Householder and Curly Mills are expected to clash again. Last Wednesday Householder was the victor, but only after Mill's car was wrecked on the 18th lap.

AL ANDEREGGEN WINS MIDWEST TITLE, 4 AND 3

Defeats Smead in Public Links Final.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Al Andereggen of Big Oaks, who is rapidly making himself Public Links Golfer No. 1 in the Chicago district, yesterday won the 8th annual Midwest Public Links championship by defeating Charley Smead of Sportsmans, the defending champion, 4 and 3, in the 36 hole final match over the Waveland course at the Lincoln Park Golf club.

The victory brought Andereggen the J. Frank Lyman trophy for the second time. Al had won the title in 1931. It also avenged his defeat by Smead in the semi-finals of last year's tournament.

After being held even by Smead through the first nine, Andereggen came into lunch with a lead of 2 up. He increased that to 4 up at the 27th hole, when an intermission was declared because of a terrific downpour. The recess lasted for more than a half hour, after which they went on to finish the match on the 33d green, which was halved in 4s.

Chicago District Star.

Andereggen thus far this year has proven himself one of the ablest amateurs in the district. He qualified for the National Open, won the Knights of Columbus state championship, and won a place on the team which will represent Chicago in the forthcoming National Public Links tournament at Indianapolis.

The gallery which followed the match through the morning round saw plenty of good golf turned in over a course which ranks as one of the best public links layouts in the country. Both birdied the second hole, Al dropping a putt from six feet and Charley getting one down from eight. Al went 1 up at the fourth where Smead missed the green, but he lost the seventh where he found a trap. Each turned the ninth in par 36.

Al Takes 10th.

Smead was 2 down after the 10th, where a trap cost him a 5, but Andereggen encountered the same difficulty at the 12th. Al regained that at the next green, where Charley was short of the carpet, and Al went 2 up with a birdie at the 525 yard 14th, which he reached in 2. Smead replied to this with a 40 foot putt for a deuce at the 15th, but Andereggen came right back by holing out a chip shot for another birdie at the 17th.

In the afternoon Andereggen went 3 up with a birdie on the second, getting on in 2 while Smead was trapping his tee shot. Al took the third, which Smead three-putted, and the fifth with a birdie, laying his approach three feet from the pin. He lost the seventh and eighth, however, falling short on both in addition to a trapped drive at the eighth.

The tenth went to Smead's par, Andereggen pulling his iron shot into a trap. A neat chip shot earned him a birdie and the 11th, but he lost the 12th with a trapped shot while Smead was nearly holing out a 50 foot try for a deuce. A trap and three putts cost Charley the 13th and they halved the next two to end the match.

Yachts Brave Squall in Run to Mackinac

The 38 yachts which yesterday started the annual race to Mackinac Island, the longest fresh water competition for sailing vessels in the world, were approximately 60 miles north by northeast from Chicago late last night, radio dispatches from convoy boats to the Radio Marine corporation reported.

A wind squall struck the fleet just outside of Belmont harbor shortly after the start, but in the ensuing breeze, which prevailed from then on, the boats were making an average of 9 miles an hour, the dispatches said.

The larger yachts were gaining rapidly on the small racers, which were sent away from the Chicago Yacht club earlier than the more sturdy entrants. All craft were reported flying spinnakers and holding fast to the 450 mile course.

Lieut. Comm. L. B. Olson aboard the coast guard cutter, Escanaba, which is accompanying the fleet, said all entrants in the race were within sight most of the time.

VOSMIK FORCES JOHNSON OUT OF BIG SIX BATTING

Joe Vosmik not only ousted Bob Johnson of the Athletics from the American league batting lead yesterday but with the aid of Doc Cramer and Jimmy Foxx, bumped him clear out of the big six. Vosmik hit four times in nine attempts to bring his average up two points to .347 and take the league lead and third in the sextet. Cramer and Foxx also got four hits apiece for gains of four and five points while Johnson failed to hit in six times up and dropped to .342, a point below Foxx. Bill Terry broke the tie with Jim Collins of the Cardinals for the third National league berth, picking up four points with three hits in five times up while Collins remained idle. The standings:

Rena Nelson Defends Title in Golf Meet

The annual championship tournament of the Chicago Women's District Golf association will open tomorrow morning with an 18 hole medal play qualifying round at the Oak Park Country club, home club of Mrs. George C. Davis, president of the organization.

Rena Nelson of Exmoor, the defending champion, will face a strong field which includes such stars as Mrs. June Beebe Atwood of Olympia Fields, Hilda Livengood of Flossmoor, Mrs. Charles Dennehy of Onwentsia, Ellamae Williams of River Forest, Mrs. Lawrence H. Selz of Northmoor, Mrs. Melvin Jones of Flossmoor, Mrs. Lillian Zech of Tam O' Shanter, Virginia Ingram and Shirley Ann Johnson of Sunset Ridge, Mildred Hackl of Midlothian, and Janet and Louise Willard of Exmoor. Miss Nelson indicated recently that she's ready to defend her title by equaling the women's course record of 81 at Barrington.

Make Fast Time.

While comparisons of time for the 100 yard races have not been made, some remarkably fast sprints have been noted. Norm Lewis of River Forest swam 100 yards yesterday in 57.2 seconds. He is qualified in the class E finals. Fodor's qualifying time in class D was 57.4 seconds.

The preliminaries have been held over courses which require turns. In the championships next Sunday all races will be decided over a straightaway course. While record times will be taken, they do not affect the results in any way.

Because of the number of entries today swimmers are asked to report as early as possible. Officials who can attend today also are requested to be on hand promptly. The number of contestants in today's sectional meet exceeds the total number of swimmers in the first 100 yard races five years ago.

Cooper's 135 Leads Field at St. Paul

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—(AP)—Harry Cooper of Chicago shot a 67 for a record breaking 36 hole total of 135 at Keller today to finish one stroke ahead of Ray Mangrum of Los Angeles at the halfway mark of the $5,000 St. Paul open golf tournament.

So low was the scoring over the 6,686 yard rolling championship layout, 153, or only nine over par, was necessary to qualify for the final 36 holes tomorrow. All records for low scoring in the big St. Paul show also were broken, leaving the mere par shooters tied for 16th place.

Tourney Record Is 278.

The scoring orgy also threatened to smash the tournament record of 278 set in 1931 by Horton Smith of Chicago, whose 139 total, five under par, was good for only fifth place today. Ahead of Smith, pressing Cooper and Mangrum, were Bill Kaiser of Louisville and Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., who scored a 68 today with 138s.

Par was broken 14 times today and 13 times yesterday, Cooper and Butch Krueger, the national open early pace setter and baseball pitcher from Beloit, Wis., furnishing the big punch with 67s. Picard and Horton Smith got 68s, while Mangrum bagged a 69 on his second successful par hunt.

Cooper shot one of his finest rounds. His score might as well have been a 64 or 66 as a 67 and his finish actually was a heartbreaker. He made five birdies and 13 pars and missed a birdie-eagle finish by a fraction of an inch.

Misses Putt for Eagle.

On the 17th he made a 15 foot uphill putt for what looked like a sure birdie, but the ball popped in and out to hang on the lip. On the final hole, a 468 yarder, his 175 yard approach landed four feet of the pin for what could have been an eagle three. He ran the putt straight and firm, but the ball stopped dead on the lip to give him a mere birdie.

Sam Parks Jr. of Pittsburgh, new national open champion, played with Cooper and said it was one of the most magnificent rounds he had ever seen. Parks was far off line most of the way, adding a 77 to his first round 73 for a total of 150 that sent him into a tie for 39th place. Cooper was out in 34 and back in 33.

Indiana Women Golfers Start Tourney Tomorrow

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 20.—[U. P.]—Led by Elizabeth Dunn, Indianapolis, defending champion, approximately 125 competitors will tee off in the fourteenth annual Indiana state women's golf tournament here Monday. Miss Dunn's powerful drives are expected to give her an advantage on the 6,243 yard course of the Fort Wayne Country club. Par for the eighteen holes is 72.

YATES TO MEET BLISS TODAY IN WESTERN FINAL

Jones' Protege Defeats Gaines, 2 Up.

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 20.—[Special.]—One of the south's best young amateurs, Charlie Yates of Atlanta, whom Bobby Jones taught the finer points of the game, and 22 year old Rodney Bliss, Omaha, will meet here tomorrow afternoon for the championship of the Western Golf association.

Yates, who was graduated from Georgia Tech last spring and who won the intercollegiate title in 1934, fought one of the hardest battles of his young career today to beat Jack Gaines of Los Angeles, 2 up, in a semi-final match that went the full thirty-six holes.

Bliss Beats Edwards.

Bliss, who was second low amateur, 1 stroke back of Lawson Little, in last year's national open, beat Don Edwards, San José, Cal., who is a member of Leland Stanford university's golf team, 2 and 1.

The Yates-Gaines match was one of the best of the tournament. It was tied five times, once this morning and four times during the hectic afternoon round. Yates had to produce two rounds of par 70s to eliminate Gaines.

While Edwards, a former California state champion, gave Bliss a battle through eleven holes of play in the morning round, he was no match for the tournament medalist this afternoon. Bliss held a 2 up lead at the intermission and was always in command thereafter. His best card came on the out nine this morning, when he shot a 34, one under par.

Bliss came through with one of the finest shots of the tourney when he placed his approach 2 inches from the pin on the par 4 30th hole for an easy birdie.

Yates Out in 34.

Yates and Gaines started out after luncheon all square. They halved the 19th in par 4's, but Jack shot himself a birdie 4, as the result of a fine approach, to win the 20th and go one up. Charlie got a birdie 3 at the 22d to even it, and they remained deadlocked until the 27th, where another fine approach netted Yates another birdie 3 and a lead of 1 up. Yates' medal score for this nine was 34. Gaines had 35.

Charlie drove his second iron shot into the rough at the 29th. This cost him the hole, and the match was squared again. Yates got back his lead at the 30th as Gaines reached the traps. A penalty stroke on the 33d, the result of Charlie moving his ball as he attempted to recover from the rough, squared the match once more. Yates himself called the referee's attention to his error.

Takes Lead with Deuce.

A fine second shot, 8 feet from the pin, and one putt gave Yates a deuce on the par 3 34th, and the Atlanta youngster was back in the lead. A pair of par 5's on the 35th brought them to the home hole with Yates still in front, and when Gaines missed his long putt the match was over.

County Golf Title Is Won by Mrs. Long

Mrs. Rose Long of Jackson park won her second women's Cook county golf championship at Jackson park yesterday when she defeated Mrs. Isabelle Meany of Coghill, 6 and 4, in a 36 hole final match.

Mrs. Long won the city title in 1932, and the county in 1933. Last Monday she led the field in the qualifying round with a medal score of 83.

The lead changed hands in the morning rounds at the end of nine and eighteen holes. Mrs. Meany led 1 up when Mrs. Long three putted on the ninth green for a 5. The match was squared on the eleventh when Mrs. Meany's second was in the water hole and her fourth in a sand trap. Mrs. Meany lost the thirteenth when her approaches fell short of the green and she two putted for a 5.

Mrs. Long Increases Lead.

The fourteenth proved troublesome for Mrs. Meany when her ball landed in the rough on two approaches and Mrs. Long led 2 up. Mrs. Long lost the fifteenth when Mrs. Meany sank a 20 foot putt for a birdie four. The eighteenth finished with Mrs. Long leading 1 up.

The afternoon round started with Mrs. Long winning the first with a par five to lead 2 up. The following eight holes were halved, Mrs. Long scoring a 40 and Mrs. Meany a 41 for the nine.

Wins Three Straight.

The tide turned on the 28th and Mrs. Long won three holes to gain a margin of five up and six to go. They halved the 31st with a pair of 3s to dormie the match.

Mrs. Meany's approach shots were short and her fourth hit a tree and bounded back in the fairway. She reached the green in six, and was down in two putts for an 8. Mrs. Long was in the rough on two of her approaches, and she two putted for a six to end the match.

Frances Sayre, 15 year old Beverly girl, defeated Mrs. Josephine Baltrusis, 1 up in 18 holes to win the championship consolation.

New York, July 20.—Trading in bonds on the New York stock exchange came to a virtual standstill for prolonged intervals today. Sales dropped to the lowest level since Aug. 18, 1934, amounting to $3,684,000, compared with $4,640,000 last Saturday. With many traders absent from the financial district for the short trading period few important price movements developed and the domestic list held within a narrow price range.

U. S. Bonds Are Ignored.

United States government bonds were practically ignored in today's dealings, transactions in that list falling to only $72,300, or the smallest turnover since Oct. 29, 1932. This compared with sales of $200,800 on the previous Saturday. Prices were mixed with advances ranging from 1-32 to ⅛ of a point balanced by declines of the same amount. Three of the treasury issues established new high levels.

Some dribbling liquidation continued in the second grade railroad liens, but for the most part the losses were confined to small fractions. The main body of public utility issues fluctuated with a narrow range in light dealings. Pressure was lifted from Columbia Gas & Electric issues, while a further gain of 2¾ points in Federal Light & Traction debenture 6s again stood out as the high light in that section.

Industrial Group Is Steady.

Murray Body 6½s and Manati Sugar 7½s stood out prominently as individual features in an otherwise quiet and steady industrial group. The former extended its advance ½ point, while Manati Sugar 7½s rose 4¾ points.

Foreign government and municipal loans tended toward slightly higher levels. Chilean governments were particularly well taken, and Italian issues firmed up slightly.

Bondholders Purchase Big South Bend, Ind., Building

South Bend, Ind., July 20.—[Special.]—Irving Feldinger, Chicago, bought for first mortgage bondholders the Mar-Main Arms, South Bend's largest apartment building, today at a sherif's sale. The sale was part of the reorganization plan approved several weeks ago. The real estate sold for $174,000 and the property for $19,000.

HOGS ADVANCE, BUT OTHER LIVE STOCK DECLINES

Prices of Meat Show Sharp Break in East.

Hog prices advanced sharply during the last week and top cattle rallied slightly, but all other live stock was marked down sharply, some kinds touching new low prices for the year. Supplies were among the lightest in recent years, but hot weather and restricted demand for meats at lower prices offset this influence in most branches of the trade.

The largest declines in wholesale meat prices were reported at eastern distributing points. New York reported losses of $1.50 to $2 in fresh pork since Monday. This point sold beef strong to 50 cents higher at the opening of the week, but on the final session sales were made $1 to $1.50 below Monday. Cow beef met a stagnant trade, closing $1.50 to $2 down. Veal broke $1.50 to $2 and lamb meat fell $2.50 to $3.50.

Packers carried light orders for all cattle, but offerings of well finished steers, yearlings and corn fed hefers were slightly below the requirements and these rallied 15 to 25 cents in some instances. Other cattle were pounded down 25 to 75 cents.

The top sale in the steer column was halted at $12, the lowest since the second week in January. Packers paid an average of $9.45 for beef steers, lowest since the week ending Jan. 19. The various classes of steers sold $1 to $4.25 under the high point of 1935.

Packers had not anticipated the severe break in the cattle market. They are losing $1 to $2 on steers they had bought for delivery this month.

Comparative Load Values.

How values compare now with six months ago and with the depression lows for the various classes is indicated in the following compilation [prices for 25,000 pound carloads]:

	Steers.	*Hogs.	Lambs.
Last week.........	$2,362	$2,937	$2,062

Depression low....	1,175	700	1,125

*Hog prices include $562 processing tax. Steers and hogs averaged exactly the same three months ago.

Sheep receipts the last week were light, but demand was even lighter and prices declined unevenly. The week's average at $8.25 showed a loss of 40 cents, with final quotations for best $1 to $1.25 under 12 days ago. Best grades closed at $8.50 against $9.65 in the preceding week.

Hog Prices at High Level.

Despite the high level of pork prices and the setback in wholesale markets after Monday, demand for hogs was brisk all week and every day since last Monday set up new highs for the movement. The peak reached $12.50 on Friday, processing tax included, the highest price paid for hogs since September, 1928, and the highest July mark since 1926. Final quotations were 40 to 50 cents above the previous week's close and 75 to 80 cents higher than the opening sales that week. The week's average at $11.75, tax included, showed 30 cents gain.

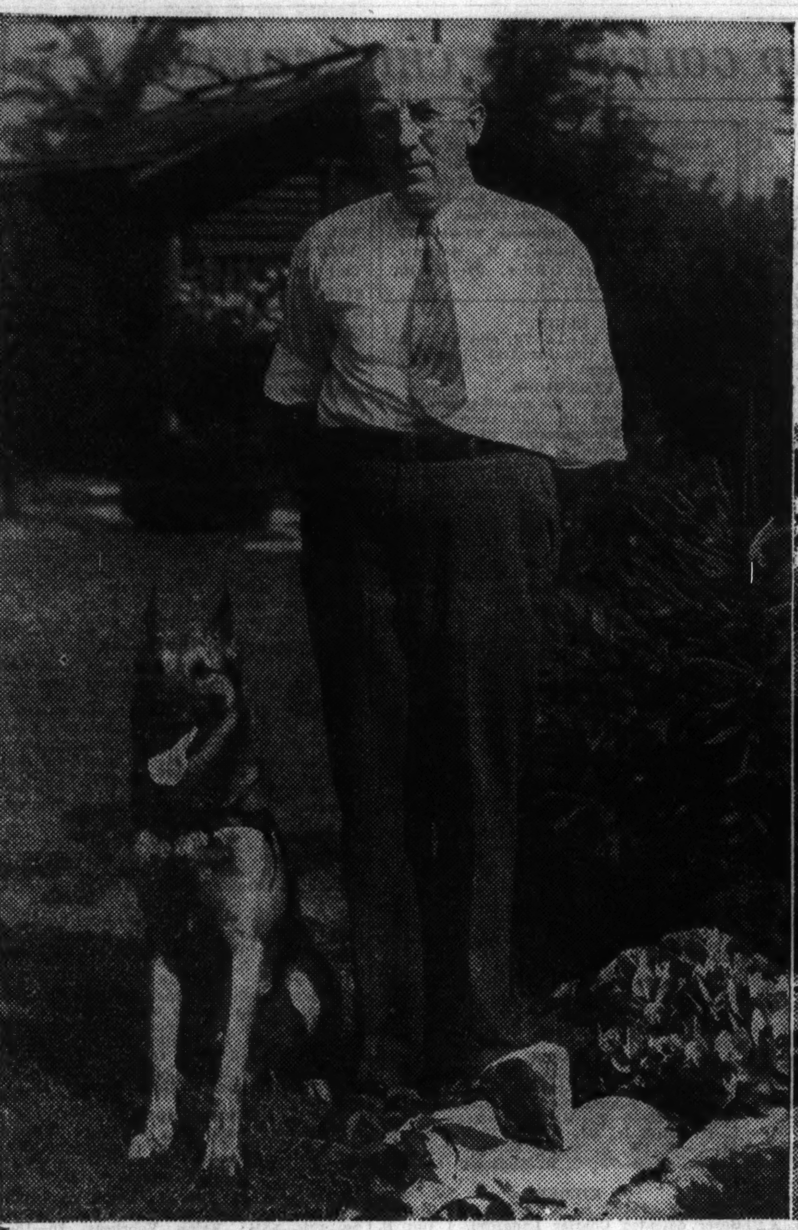
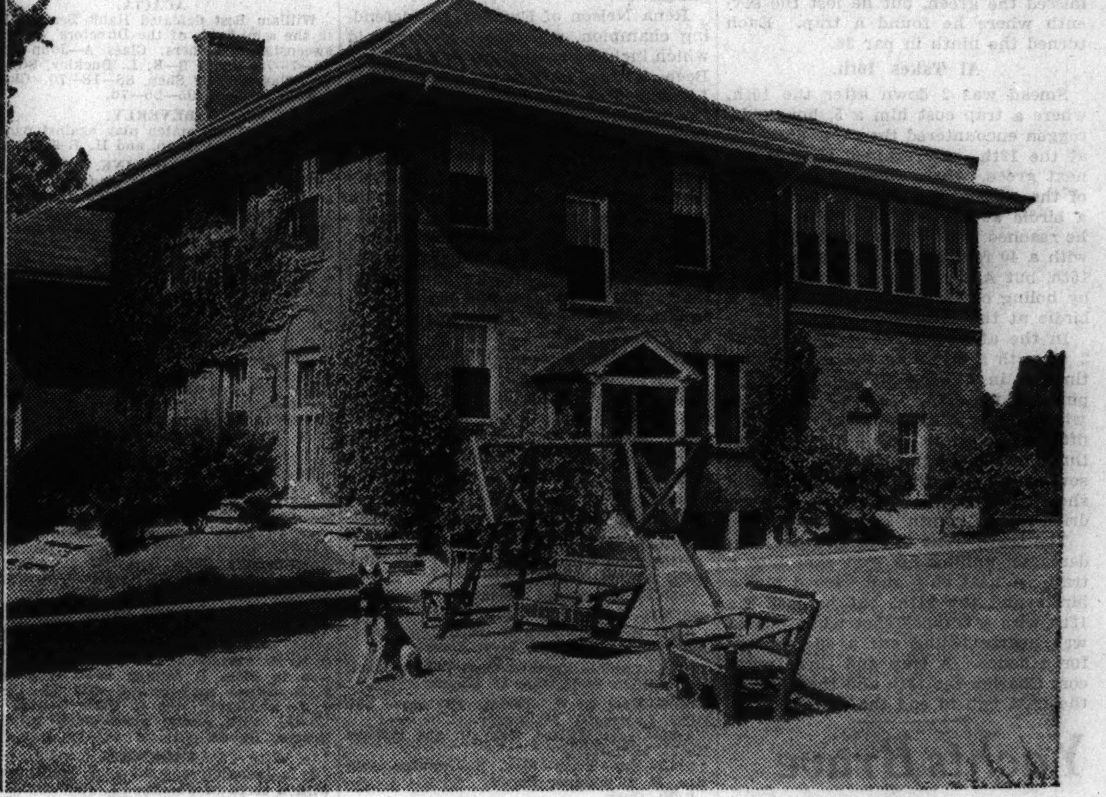
"WHY WE DECIDED TO BUY A HOME OF OUR OWN, NOW"





HERMAN SIEMUND

5940 Forest Glen Ave.,

tells why he thinks now is the time to buy real estate.

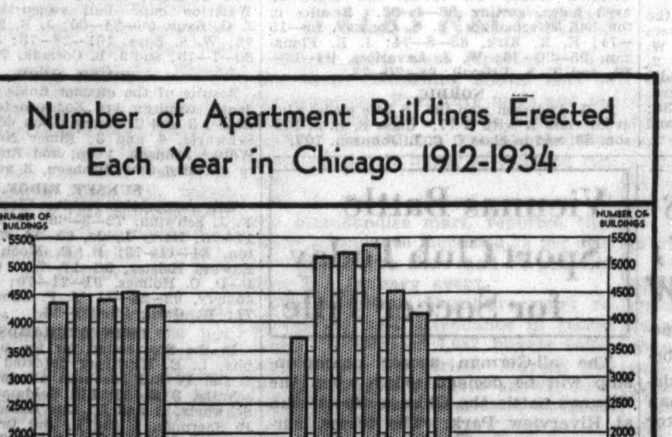
"FOR many years we owned and lived in a 3-flat building on Hermitage avenue, but all our lives we really wanted a house. Prices and expenses of living in a house were high, and at the time we felt we couldn't afford it.

"We have been reading the Tribune for 35 years and I glance at the want ads every once in a while. A year ago I noticed that the price of real estate was getting pretty low, so I thought that perhaps the time was ripe for us to get the house we had always wanted.

"We started in reading the Tribune's want ads regularly, and looking at houses. We looked for six months. One day we saw a house advertised, in Sauganash, which had 96 feet of frontage. I called up the agent, Carlson-Norman, 1773 Wilson ave., and got the address of the property.

"We liked the place. The price was reasonable. So we bought it. My wife and I are gratifying a lifelong ambition, and I don't think we could have found a better place or a better buy. Now is certainly the time to buy real estate."

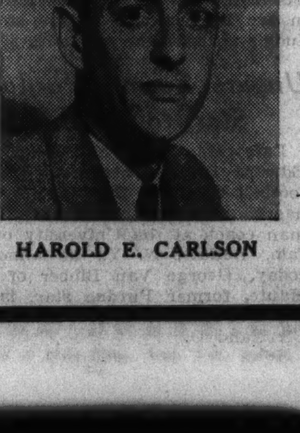
Number of Apartment Buildings Erected Each Year in Chicago 1912-1934



SINCE 1930 almost no apartments have been built in Chicago. This slump in building is now being reflected in rising rents and in increasing competition for the available apartments. Only the home owner can ignore rising rents and a housing shortage.

• Many people who for years had given up the idea of owning their own home are now buying. They realize that, after a long decline, rents again are on the way up. There is no longer a surplus of houses and apartments in Chicago. Building construction has been at a standstill since 1930.

Attractive homes are available in many sections of the city and suburbs, at prices which are well below the cost of building them. To get an idea of what is available, study the real estate offers in the Tribune want ad section.



HAROLD E. CARLSON

"GREATER PART OF WANT AD SALES COME FROM TRIBUNE . . . "

"We are happy to say that daily replies from Want Advertising have done wonders for us during the past 12 years.

"At this time our sales force is very busy selling homes in Sauganash, Peterson Woods and other attractive home sections on the North and Northwest sides.

"By far the greater part of our sales which are traceable to Want Ad sources, come to us through the Tribune."

Yours very truly,
CARLSON-NORMAN, INC.

BUSINESS RISES; COURTS FREE IT FROM SHACKLES

Usual Summer Lull Fails to Appear.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

With business in most lines continuing to show improvement the usual midsummer slump still fails to appear. Prospects for the coming week are similarly cheerful, with forecasts of further improvement in steel and other industries.

Decisions of federal courts holding various provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment administration program unconstitutional, coming on the heels of the unshackling of American business from the restrictions of the NRA, have encouraged industries to forge ahead.

The tax situation continues to grow more acute, with tax increases threatened and the government facing the loss of hundreds of millions in processing tax revenues, but neither the stock market nor volume of industrial output appear to have been held down by these prospects. Most observers believe that the piling up of government deficits is highly inflationary and will result in further dilution of the currency.

Two Causes for Upturn.

It is believed, therefore, that the current substantial upturn in business and the persistent rise in stock prices is due to two causes: first, the natural forces of recovery, now beginning to exert themselves despite governmental interference; and second, the increasing recognition on the part of business men generally that the administration's inflation measures are forcing prices upward and that money had best be spent for goods before they cost more.

Some observers, like Gen. Charles G. Dawes, who on Friday declared that the present upturn in business was the beginning of the genuine recovery which he said last December would begin this summer, believe that the natural forces of recovery—the sheer pressure of buying by people of things they need and have long gone without—will triumph over unsound economic policies of the federal government and that the parade back to prosperity has begun.

Federal Spending Raises Doubts.

The majority of business and financial leaders, on the other hand, although cheered by better business, still look for money trouble because of the fact that the government is spending twice as much as it receives in revenues.

Both groups, however, agree in anticipating further increases in prices.

Here are some of the developments that brought cheer to the business world last week:

Output of steel ingots shot up 4 points, measured by the Iron Age's weekly index, to 40½ per cent of capacity. This advance of 11 per cent followed a rise of 14 per cent in the preceding week. Week-end reports from scattered points indicate a further improvement of about 10 per cent for the coming week. The index price of scrap steel, usually a sensitive barometer of the industry, has risen nearly 30 cents during the last week.

Use of Power Sets Record.

Consumption of electric energy, which has been soaring for several weeks, set a new all time high weekly record for early July, according to the latest report of the Edison Electric institute, published last Wednesday. In that week, ended July 13, electric utility companies throughout the country sold 6.7 per cent more power than in the preceding week and 7.2 per cent more than in the corresponding week of 1934.

Stock prices continued their steady upward march. On Thursday 107 issues scored new 1935 highs on the New York Stock exchange. Profit taking trimmed some of these gains, but, as in the preceding week, stock averages yesterday closed with appreciable gains. As measured by THE TRIBUNE averages, industrials were up 1.10 points.

Business Index Points Up.

Moody's index of business activity for last week, comprising steel ingot output, electric power production and freight car loadings, stood at 74.8 per cent of the 1928 weekly average, compared with 72.2 per cent for the previous week and 68.6 per cent a year ago.

Retail trade shared in the upturn. According to the Dun & Bradstreet weekly survey retail sales in most parts of the country last week exceeded all comparative totals for a number of years. The spread over year ago figures broadened, the estimated increases being placed at 12 to 30 per cent.

Other encouraging developments for the week included the following:

Building permits issued in 65 Illinois cities during June were 30 per cent greater in number and 64 per cent higher in estimated cost than in June, 1934.

Bank Clearings Increase.

An increase of 13.6 per cent in bank clearings was reported for the week ended July 17, compared with a decline of 8.1 per cent in the preceding week, which included the July Fourth holiday.

Railroad freight trafic for the week ended July 13 rose 19.9 per cent, measured by car loadings reported by the Association of American Railroads, but was still 6.1 per cent below year ago levels.

Corporation earnings and sales figures reported during the week were generally encouraging. Continental Can's earnings for the twelve months ended June 30 were $3.93 per share, compared with $3.40 in the preceding twelve months. Wrigley's second quarter profits were the highest for that quarter in four years. Profits, sales, and orders of General Electric company in the first six months were substantially greater than in the similar period last year. Ford Motor sales in the United States in the first half year totaled 634,961 units, compared with 383,683 units in the first half of 1934.

Low Interest Rates Boost Annuity Cost

Prevailing low interest rates, largely the result of the federal government's policy of pushing interest charges down, and a scarcity of first class investments have been important factors causing insurance companies to increase their prices for annuities, according to Chicago insurance authorities.

The movement toward higher prices for annuities, which are purchased by persons seeking to provide for their old age, was started last year by the big New York companies. Since then the New England and western companies have been pushing their prices up and several will put increases into effect on July 31. The increases range from 5 to 10 per cent.

Change Profit Calculations.

When interest on first class bonds and other investments was on a higher level, ranging from 3½ to 5½ or 6 per cent, it was possible for the insurance companies to calculate earnings from 3¾ to 4 per cent on money invested in annuities. But the government's easy money policy forced insurance companies to drop their earnings calculations to 3¼ and 3 per cent, or even lower.

Interest on government bonds and notes has dropped to a point where the return to the investor is negligible. With the government getting its money cheaper, private companies of good standing have been able to reduce their interest charges. The private companies, such as Swift, Cudahy, Commonwealth Edison company, Southern California Edison, and others, have refunded their bonds bearing 4½ to 6 per cent interest with bonds carrying coupons of 3½ to 5 per cent.

Investments Are Limited.

The fact that private companies have not been borrowing new capital and have been reducing their interest load has limited the supply of investments for insurance companies. Consequently the person buying an annuity must make up for the decreased earning possibility of the insurance company by paying more for his protection.

With the present lack of investment opportunities, the insurance companies are piling up huge reserves of cash. They hesitate to invest this surplus cash in such securities as are available because they do not want to tie up their money for long periods at the prevailing low rates. This surplus cash is idle, bringing no return and further complicating the situation.

A minor reason for increasing prices, it was said, has been the knowledge gleaned from long experience that persons having annuities live longer than those who must continue working in their old age. One insurance man said physicians assert that worry over finances contributes to the mortality rate among elderly persons. For this reason the length of time a person may be expected to draw an annuity must enter into prices.

Prepare for Interest Rise.

Some of the leading companies are acting to take care of the future should interest rates again move higher by making provisions for dividends on excess earnings. It was pointed out that payment of dividends will automatically reduce the price of annuities when and if money rates increase.

The same situation covering annuities applies to straight life insurance companies, it was pointed out. Increases in insurance costs largely result from reduction or elimination of dividends paid to policy holders by the insurance companies. Reduction in dividends have run up to 15 or 20 per cent.

STOCKHOLDERS APPROVE WILSON REFUNDING PLAN

The way for refunding approximately $17,000,000 in funded debt of Wilson & Co., third largest meat packer, was cleared yesterday when stockholders at a special meeting formally ratified the issuance of $30,000,000 in new 4 per cent 20 year bonds.

The issues to be retired consist of $16,222,000 first mortgage 6 per cent 25 year sinking fund gold bonds, due in 1941, and $898,000 of 5 per cent subsidiary company bonds. Only $20,000,000 of the $30,000,000 authorized will be issued now, according to present plans.

Only six stockholders attended the meeting, although 1,500,000 of the 2 million odd shares of stock entitled to vote were represented by proxy.

Registration of the issue already has been made with the securities and exchange commission. Public offering is expected about July 26, with Field, Glore & Co. and Edward B. Smith & Co. heading the underwriting syndicate.

JAPANESE TAX VIOLATES PACT, CANADA ASSERTS

OTTAWA, Ont., July 20.—(AP)—Application by the Japanese government of a 50 per cent surtax on Canadian imports to Japan will be regarded as a violation of the Anglo-Japanese treaty of 1911, Prime Minister Bennett announced today.

Japan's action, announced in Tokio yesterday, will be followed by an imposition of a 33 1-3 per cent ad valorem surtax on Japanese goods entering Canada, the prime minister announced.

Japan to Use Trade Mission.

TOKIO, July 20.—(AP)—Japanese business leaders decided today to send a trade mission to Latin America in an effort to maintain a grip on markets, especially in northern South America and the West Indies, where there has been an increasing disposition to restrict Japanese imports.

16 Favorable Dividend Changes Voted in Week

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Dividend actions during the last week produced 16 favorable changes and 3 that were unfavorable, the Standard Statistics company reports. In the previous week the record was 20 favorable against 4 unfavorable.

BIG BANKS WEIGH DROPPING FDIC, SAY REPORTS

Larger Institutions Hit by Deposit Tax.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Big banks, led by the Morgan dominated Guaranty Trust company of New York, may withdraw from the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation after the pending administration banking bill is passed, according to reports circulated here today.

Such action would mean withdrawal of key banks from the federal reserve system and a consequent crippling of the federally controled banking system. No bank can remain in the reserve system without being a member of the FDIC.

Large New York banks are reported to be disturbed primarily because of the provision in the pending bank bill which would force them to pay an annual ad valorem tax on their deposits to the FDIC. The house draft of the bill provides for one-eighth of 1 per cent and the senate draft for one-twelfth of 1 per cent.

Get Little Protection.

Guaranty Trust, Chase National bank, and the National City bank, the three biggest in the country, would each have to pay between 1 and 1⅛ million dollars a year to the FDIC under these "assessment" plans. In return they would get little protection because the FDIC insures only up to $10,000 on each deposit, leaving the great bulk of the big accounts in these three banks unprotected.

How serious the rumbling of revolt among the nation's big banks is officials refuse to say, and the banks themselves officially deny any contemplated defection from the FDIC. The report that such plans are being considered, especially within the Guaranty Trust company, was unofficially confirmed here today. Guaranty Trust at one time virtually served notice on the FDIC that it would withdraw, it was learned. This was during the period of uncertainty over the future of the FDIC.

Banks Become Disturbed.

A so-called "permanent" and more costly deposit insurance plan was to take effect July 1 under the original FDIC law. The pending bank bill would repeal this "permanent" plan, but as June drew to a close and the bank bill with the repealer had not passed, banks became disturbed and were warned by the FDIC to prepare for "permanent" insurance.

The Guaranty Trust let it be known that it would not take steps to qualify for the "permanent" insurance, although it was and is a member under the so-called "temporary" plan.

The Guaranty's position meant not only that the third largest bank in the country, believing "permanent" insurance unsound, would leave the FDIC, but that it would leave the reserve system. Guaranty is an important cog in the reserve system's foreign operations.

This threatening situation dissolved when congress rushed through a resolution postponing the distasteful "permanent" insurance for 60 days, a period long enough to allow passage of the banking bill with its repealing section.

Plans Reported Ready.

Although the immediate crisis dwindled with this congressional action, talk of Guaranty's departure from the FDIC and of other defections did not die out. Guaranty is reported to have arranged to do its clearing largely through correspondent banks rather than through the federal reserve system and also to have catalogued its assets preparatory to withdrawal.

All of the large banks, including Guaranty, have been bitterly opposed to the new "assessment" policy of the FDIC as embodied in the pending banking bill.

WEEK'S BUSINESS GAINS, FEDERAL SURVEY SHOWS

Washington, D. C., July 20.—(AP)—Improved business this week in many parts of the country was reported today by the commerce department. Seasonal influences and unfavorable weather accounted for the largest share of some cities' slumps, the department's survey showed.

Retail stocks generally were low, the survey said, "and a rather general tone of optimism as to fall business was manifested."

New York reported a 9 per cent increase in retail sales above the corresponding week last year. Wholesale markets, too, were more active.

Better weather extended Chicago's retail pickup, and wholesale drygoods houses experienced a "good volume of orders." Hotel business in Chicago was almost as good as it was during A Century of Progress exhibition last year.

A nation-wide survey of trade by a statistical house shows a somewhat unexpected pickup in department store sales during the first two weeks of July. Some of the larger stores in New York reported increases of 3 to 10 per cent over a year ago and gains in other sections of the country were even larger.

Cotton Spinning Lighter, but Exceeds June, 1934

Washington, D. C., July 20.—(AP)—The cotton spinning industry was reported today by the census bureau to have operated during June at 74.6 per cent of capacity, on a single shift basis, compared with 83.4 per cent during May of this year, and 72.7 per cent during June, last year. Spinning spindles in place June 30 totaled 30,035,894, of which 22,709,200 were active at some time during the month, compared with 30,585,726 and 23,027,780 for May this year, and 31,002,964 and 24,690,312 for June, last year.

AUTOMOBILE OUTPUT IS STEADY AT 83,255 UNITS IN LAST WEEK

Detroit, Mich., July 20.—[Special.]—Automobile production held fairly steady this week, totaling 83,255 passenger cars and trucks in the United States and Canada, compared with 83,450 in the preceding week and 65,829 in the corresponding week last year, Cram's Reports, Inc., announced today.

A survey of the plants showed that production at 19 remained unchanged from last week. Three increased their schedules, one remained closed, and one reopened and resumed normal operations. Output of three declined.

Plants which remained at the same levels were Auburn, Chevrolet, Chrysler, De Soto, Diamond T Truck, Federal Truck, Ford, Hupmobile, International Harvester, Lincoln, Mack Truck, Nash, Oldsmobile, Packard, Pierce-Arrow, Plymouth, Reo, Terraplane-Hudson and Willys.

Cadillac-La Salle reopened and produced 400 La Salle models. Declines were reported at Dodge, General Motors Truck, and White-Indiana Truck. Increases were registered by Pontiac, Graham-Paige and Studebaker.

The General Motors group produced 36,250 units against 25,600 last week and 26,955 a year ago. Ford produced 22,025 units, against 20,385 a year ago. The Chrysler group produced 15,450 units, compared with 16,450 last week and 11,935 a year ago.

Chevrolet continued to lead the field in production on an output of 27,500 units, unchanged from a week ago.

POUND AND FRANC GAIN ON DOLLAR; GOLD UNCHANGED

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Improved positions of the French franc and pound sterling against the American dollar marked an otherwise quiet foreign exchange market today.

The pound reversed its recent trend to gain ⅜ cent, closing at 4.96½. Scandinavian currencies rose 2 to 3 points due to the pound's improvement.

Francs rose ⅛ point on short covering by traders who sold the currency at the end of May and are now being called upon to deliver. The close today at 6.63⅝ cents caused the value of the dollar against francs to ease slightly to 99.96 cents, compared with 99.98 cents yesterday. On the old parity of the franc the dollar was worth 59.04 cents, against 59.05 cents yesterday.

Swiss francs improved 2 points to close at 32.81 cents, but Dutch guilders fell 18 points at 68.03 cents. Canadian dollars were 6¼ points higher at 99.93¾ cents. Other leading currencies were unchanged. Bar gold and bar silver prices also were unchanged.

BUSINESS DONE BY CHECKS RISES IN MIDDLE WEST

Business in the Chicago reserve district, measured by the volume of checks drawn against individual account, was well above the preceding week and the same period last year in the week ended July 17, figures issued yesterday disclose.

Debits by 161 banks in 41 clearing house cities aggregated $980,788,000, a gain of 19.4 per cent over the previous seven days, when the total was $821,495,000. Excluding Elgin, Ill., which was not included in 1934 compilations, volume for the 40 cities amounted to $979,294,000, compared with $907,053,000 last year, an improvement of 8 per cent.

Withdrawals in Chicago totaled $585,686,000, against $556,025,000 last year. Des Moines reported $20,575,000, compared with $16,213,000; Detroit, $153,651,000, against $134,661,000; Indianapolis, $36,619,000, against $35,777,000, and Milwaukee, $54,716,000, compared with $54,531,000.

Rails Seek Permission to Continue Fare Cuts

Washington, D. C., July 20.—(AP)—Railroads serving Alabama, North Carolina, Georgia, and Nebraska today asked the interstate commerce commission for permission to continue for six months, after Sept. 30 of this year, their experimental reduction in passenger fares by which they hope to recapture trafic lost to motor transport.

North American Aviation Gets $559,731 U. S. Order

A contract totaling $559,731 for 42 basic training planes and spare parts equivalent to three more planes has been awarded to the North American Aviation company by the war department.

U. S. Now Buys Big Amount of Farm Produce

The increasing importance of the United States as a market for foreign agricultural products is strikingly brought out in a compilation of imports of representative farm commodities by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. The tabulation, covering the ten month period ended May 31, 1935, discloses sensational gains in American consumption of a number of foreign agricultural commodities. Increased imports for the period are shown by 19 of the 28 commodities covered by the survey.

Curtailment of production in this country and accompanying higher domestic prices have opened up a new market for many foreign countries. This production curtailment has been due both to natural causes and to artificial restrictions imposed under the agricultural adjustment program.

Comparison of Imports.

The following tabulation shows imports of 28 farm commodities for the ten month period ended May 31 as compared with the corresponding months of the preceding year.

Wheat Imports Exceed Exports.

During the period the United States changed from a net wheat exporting country to an importing nation.

The increases cover a wide variety of products, including many which are protected by stiff tarifs. Scarcity and high prices here enabled foreigners to send in their products despite the high tarif wall.

In reporting Canadian exports of cattle for June the dominion bureau of statistics last week said that the United States had taken $725,000 of the total of $747,000 reported for the month. In June last year Canada exported only $474,000 of cattle.

TWO FURNITURE SHOWS REPORT SALES RECORDS

Record sales were reported by the two house furnishing shows held by the American Furniture mart and the Merchandise mart, which closed yesterday. In addition the Merchandise show set a new buyer attendance record.

T. J. Reed, general manager of the Merchandise mart, reported that buyer attendance increased 75 per cent over last July's show and 25 per cent over the January event.

The American Furniture mart reported the best attendance in recent years. A total of 7,092 buyers registered during the period. Buying was far in excess of previous shows, Lawrence H. Whiting, president, declared.

Corn Products Refining Quarterly Profit Lower

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Corn Products Refining company and subsidiaries for the quarter ended June 30 had an indicated net profit of $1,747,112, equivalent to 52 cents a share of common stock. This compares with first quarter profit of $2,134,452, equal to 67 cents a share, and $2,103,754 or 66 cents a share in the June quarter last year.

COMMODITY PRICES SHOW IRREGULARITY DURING LAST WEEK

Price gains and declines were about evenly divided in the principal commodity markets last week. All grain futures except barley advanced. Lard and bellies touched a new high price for the season. Cotton, rubber, sugar, and eggs experienced moderate setbacks and barley and cottonseed oil sold at the lowest prices of the season.

The following table shows yesterday's closing quotations on a representative list of commodities, prices at the close of the preceding week, and the high and low figures of the season:

RESENT BUCKET SHOP CHARGES BY CUMMINGS

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—New York state officials, whose responsibility it is to keep Wall street and other parts of the state free from stock racketeers, still are waiting for the denouncement promised almost a month ago by Attorney General Cummings.

According to that federal official, in a statement made on June 25, he has knowledge of 150 bucket shop operators in New York City alone and, at that time at least, he was willing to divulge the information to the proper authorities. Two days later he declared that it was his intention to send the list in his possession to State's Attorney General Bennett.

Bennett and the various organizations charged with the duty of protecting the public from fraudulent securities schemes, did not take kindly to Cumming's implied remarks that they had been lax. The better business bureau felt inclined to call upon Cummings for more details, as did certain representatives of the Securities and Exchange commission. The latter organization, particularly, felt that Cummings had encroached somewhat on its special field.

CHICAGO BANK STOCK PRICES RISE SHARPLY

Sharply higher prices were paid for Chicago bank stocks last week as trading in the issues quickened perceptibly. Continental ran up 9 points to 62 bid, but subsequently reacted to 60 bid, 62 asked, a net gain of 7. First National touched 154, but later eased to 148, which represents an upturn of 21 points for the week.

Northern Trust rose 15 to 485, Harris Trust advanced 5 to 220, Merchandise Bank and Trust gained 2 to 79 and Terminal National closed unchanged at 12 bid to 14 asked. Chicago Title and Trust was also held steady at 104 to 106.

New York bank issues were irregular. The high priced First National gained 5 points at 1,680 bid, 1,720 asked. National City eased from 26½ bid, 28 asked, to 25½ to 27½. Chase National slipped a point lower and Bankers Trust eased a half point. Central Hanover and Guaranty were unchanged while United States Trust fell 15 to 1,785 bid, 1,835 asked.

Roads Watch Zephyr Train Running Costs

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

With the Burlington's Twin Zephyrs each traveling better than 25,000 miles a month between Chicago and the Twin Cities and another Zephyr operating between Kansas City and Lincoln in excess of 15,000 miles each month, the railroad world is watching operating costs of this new streamlined Diesel-electric powered service for guidance in making future investments in passenger train equipment.

Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington, says several years will be required before accurate comparison can be made between the cost of running the new streamlined trains and the old standard equipment. Many factors enter the picture besides daily operating costs. There is the original outlay and the lightweight streamlined train has not been in use long enough to tell how it will stand up as compared with present standard equipment which has stood the test of years.

Operating Costs Compared.

However, in a superficial comparison based on short term results the Diesel-electric train has a decided advantage with respect to operating costs over the old steam train. The per mile expenses of operating the Twin Zephyrs during May and of a five car steam powered train such as would be required to perform the same service follow:

ZEPHYR.
Maintenance of power plant	$.0188
Maintenance of train	.0356
Fuel oil	.0141
Lubricating oil	.0108
Wages	.1709
Train supplies and expenses	.0311
Terminal charges	.0351
Total	$.3164
STEAM TRAIN.
Locomotive repairs	$.1466
Passenger car repairs	.0080
Fuel	.1190
Water	.0068
Lubricants	.0034
Locomotive supplies	.0019
Engine house expenses	.0263
Train supplies and expenses	.0468
Crews' wages	.2360
Lounge car attendant	.0077
Terminal expenses	.0375
Total	$.7120

Operating Cost About Halved.

A study made some time ago on the operation of the Kansas City Zephyr over a twenty day period disclosed that per mile operating cost of the streamlined train was 29.46 cents, compared with 63.75 cents for the steam train it displaced. However, it was estimated normal operation of the Zephyr would cost 34.21 cents a mile.

In the case of the Twin City Zephyrs it is pointed out that the operating cost study covers a period when each of the trains was traveling 440 miles a day. Since then each train has been traveling 880 miles a day in a round trip. The more mileage a train piles up a day the lower is the average per mile operating cost.

Mr. Budd, in commenting on the respective merits of Diesel-electric and steam power in railroad operation, remarked that proponents of steam say this form of power is able to pull trains at an extremely low per ton cost.

Tonnage to Be Hauled Reduces.

"Should we not give more consideration to a form of power that makes it possible to reduce greatly the number of tons to be hauled?" he asked. "In other words, we believe a device which eliminates the necessity for certain work has more in its favor than a device whose proclaimed merit is that it does this work cheaply."

Mr. Budd said one thing which must be considered in comparing the cost of lightweight streamlined and heavy standard train operation is the impact from the pounding of ponderous locomotives traveling at high speed sustained by rails and roadbed. Damage to rails and roadbed from lightweight trains traveling at the highest speeds is negligible, he said, which is a point strongly in their favor.

FAST TRAINS WIN TRAVEL.

Bloomington, Ill., July 20.—[Special.]—A 25 per cent increase in Chicago-St. Louis passenger service since the Abraham Lincoln streamlined train was placed in service on July 1, was announced today by Alton railroad officials.

The Wabash road is credited with an increase of 60 per cent in patronage since it adopted the 5½ hour schedule between Chicago and St. Louis, it was revealed from the railroad's offices here. The C. & E. I. reports a similar increase, while the Illinois Central is 10 per cent better.

GOEBEL BREWING STOCK IS PLACED ON 20 CENT BASIS

A fixed dividend rate of 20 per cent annually—20 cents a share—was approved yesterday when directors of the Goebel Brewing company of Detroit ordered a quarterly distribution of 5 cents a share. In addition the board declared a special disbursement of the same amount, Walter F. Haass, president, said extra dividends will be voted in the future as earnings permit.

Net profit for the six months ended June 30 was reported at $655,105, against $762,462 for the full year ended Dec. 31, last. The half year net is equal to approximately 51 cents a share on 1,281,300 capital shares of $1 par value outstanding.

STOCK PRICES STRENGTHEN IN LATE DEALINGS

Steel, Auto, Building Shares Lead.

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Fresh demand for steel, motor, and building shares gave the stock list a boost in the late dealings of today's short session. Net gains in the leaders, most of which had been under the drain of light dribbling sales for the first hour or more, ran to around a point, with such issues as American Can, United States Steel, Eastman Kodak, and Johns-Manville out in front. The sales total was 429,500 shares.

News developments with a market bearing were of little account and the absence of many traders for the week-end weighed on the popular interest. Up to the last thirty minutes or so the market was a dull affair, with prices holding to a narrow groove and trends generally uncertain.

Oil Shares Uneven.

If there was any feature in the early trading it was an easier trend in the oil shares following yesterday's selling movement, which appears to have been based on quarterly reports on earnings and fears that the oil price structure will not hold. The production of crude oil has been climbing steadily since the Supreme court voided the oil code. Final prices on the group were mixed as they were small.

An individual move to attract more than passing attention was an upturn of more than a point in Corn Products, which has been under selling pressure for the last several days, reputedly on the revelation by the Corn Industries Research foundation that grindings of corn by the refining industry during June were 40 per cent less than they were during the corresponding month of last year. The decline was said to be due primarily to competition of duty-free Asiatic starches, which are offered at prices difficult for American manufacturers to meet, rather than to the high price of corn.

Columbia Gas Eases Again.

Columbia Gas, another weak issue of recent sessions, easing fractionally. Selling in the issue was precipitated by the filing of a $180,000,000 anti-trust suit against the company by the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line.

Blumenthal preferred, a favorite in yesterday's trading, rose a couple of points, due to talk of increased business for the company, a maker of upholstery materials for the auto trade.

North American showed some activity in appreciation of the government order which has just come its way. Other airplane issues did little.

In the automotive section Chrysler and General Motors finished a shade higher after trailing minus signs the better part of the session.

Rails were mixed and inclined to sluggishness.

NEW TOPS MADE BY 41 CHICAGO STOCKS IN WEEK

Forty-one issues on the Chicago Stock exchange rose to new high marks for the year last week as volume of trading climbed to 219,000 shares. A week earlier volume amounted to 199,000 shares and in the same period last year to 109,000. However, the number of issues dealt in was 148, against 163 in the preceding week, and 135 for the corresponding period of 1934.

Fractionally higher prices were attained during yesterday's short two hour session. Crane common featured activity by rising half a point on a turnover of 2,750 shares. Two thousand shares of Central and South West Utilities changed hands at prices steady with Friday, while National Gypsum A moved forward 1¼ points on dealings totaling 1,050 shares.

American Public Service turned in the day's largest advance by rising 2 points to 20. Continental Steel, Houdaille-Hershey B, Ken-Rad, and Kentucky Utilities junior preferred were active on a rising scale.

MOODY'S INDEX INDICATES RISING BUSINESS TREND

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Statistics appearing during the last week indicated rising business activity, according to Moody's index figures for freight car loadings, electric power production, and steel ingot output.

These index figures are adjusted for seasonal variation—that is, if the change from the previous week should coincide with the normal seasonal change, the index figure would be unchanged.

CHANGE IN RULES BOOSTS LIST OF STOCK EXCHANGE

New York Reduces Limit on Size of Issues.

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Trading in issues of a dozen companies has moved from other markets to the New York Stock exchange during the first half of 1935 as the result of two factors—a gradual lowering of the exchange's minimum requirements as to size of listed companies, and the influence of the Securities and Exchange commission's uniform standards for permanent registration of securities on any national exchange.

The tendency of the commission's regulations to divert the principal market for some issues to the larger exchanges was forecast with misgivings during the drafting of the securities exchange act more than a year ago. It was argued that when the registration rules for all exchanges became uniform issues would naturally seek the biggest markets.

Movement Is Not Large.

Thus far, however, with permanent registration largely accomplished, no disturbing number of issues has shifted markets. The more important accretions to the stock exchange list have come from the New York Curb exchange.

In this class are the 6,000,000 shares of common and bonds of Swift & Co., 529,000 shares of the Greyhound corporation, and 1,000,000 shares of the Natomas company. Issues which, prior to their recent listing on the stock exchange had not been traded in New York, include the 1,200,000 shares of the Armstrong Cork company, heretofore listed on the Pittsburgh Stock exchange, and the 343,046 shares of the Acme Steel company from the Chicago Stock exchange.

"Corner" Danger Lessens.

It is this group of companies to which listing on the big board has deliberately been opened by the exchange this year. The first intimation of this innovation was given last winter by Richard Whitney, then president of the exchange, who said that the SEC prohibition of market rigging might eliminate some of the dangers of a "corner" inherent in the listing of small common stock issues.

In the past the possibilities of "corners" and other considerations induced the exchange generally to decline to list issues of less than 200,000 shares and those of companies capitalized at less than $4,000,000 or $5,000,000.

LARD IS STEADY TO LOWER AS TRADERS TAKE PROFITS

Scattered profit taking developed in lard yesterday and prices eased moderately, with the close unchanged to 12½ cents lower. Bellies were dull and nominally unchanged.

Interest of the provision trade at the present time centers to a large extent in the prospective receipts of hogs, and the output of cured product. According to the Iowa extension service, marketings of hogs are not likely to increase before the summer of 1936, and probably not much then.

Cash lard closed at $14.30; loose, $14.17; leaf, $14.50, and bellies at $17.87 per 100 pounds. Prices, in dollars per 100 pounds, follow:

DECISION ON BANKHEAD BILL CAUSES DECLINE IN COTTON

Scattered liquidation developed in American markets yesterday as the result of the Bankhead bill decision in Texas and prices at the lowest were off over $1 per bale. While part of the loss was recovered the close here was at net losses of 10 to 24 points with other markets off 7 to 18 points. Liverpool also reported selling pressure.

Spot cotton closed 10 to 15 points lower with New Orleans, 11.95 cents; Houston, 11.75 cents; Galveston, 11.90 cents, and New York, 12.20 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound follow:

RFC DOUBLES PROFIT IN YEAR; REDUCES LOANS

Disbursements for Relief Expected to Show Loss.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—Earnings of the RFC in the fiscal year which closed on June 30 totaled $41,288,582 as compared with $21,784,386 in the preceding year, according to the annual report of the corporation disclosed tonight by Chairman Jesse Jones. The operating surplus for the 1935 fiscal year was $100,728,694, an increase of $41,288,582 during the year. Officials explained that the surplus presumably will be held to absorb any losses in operations.

Disbursements totaled $2,364,309,001 as compared with $3,062,809,660 in 1934. The disbursements included $506,541,630 to the government for use in relief and on this the corporation expects to have a net loss. They included also $496,193,000 for retirement of RFC notes held by the United States treasury and banks.

Repayments Exceed Loans.

A turn in repayment of loans exceeded disbursements for the first time. Whereas loans to banks and trust companies totaled $272,618,984 in the fiscal year 1935, repayments from banks and trust companies amounted to $391,122,402. Similarly, loans to building and loan associations were $1,101,187 and repayments $31,734,607. Disbursements to insurance companies were only $187,031 and repayments $15,704,103. Distributions to mortgage loan companies were $34,776,296 and repayments, $81,375,531.

On the other hand, the opposite trend was shown with reference to railroads. Disbursements to them totaled $75,185,328, while their repayments were only $14,225,432. In fact, the RFC in recent months has been concentrating most of its attention on the carriers, having decided that aid was necessary for them, although when the fiscal year opened officials hoped that possibly only $10,000,000 would be needed for railroads.

17 Rail Loans Authorized.

Twenty-one loans were authorized to 17 railroads during the year for a total of $130,975,798, although over $55,000,000 of this was not disbursed. This compares with six loan authorizations in the fiscal year 1934 to six railroads for a total of $12,860,504. During the year just closed only one road, the Texas and Pacific, repaid its loan in full. This was for $800,000.

The RFC disbursed only $185,348,752 for the purchase of preferred stock, capital notes, and debentures of banks and one insurance company, as compared with $763,727,021 in 1934.

Progress or Failure.

Industry does not stand still and individual corporations must either progress with it or fall by the wayside. The research laboratory today is a major factor that will determine the future standing of most corporations.

It may be said that change is the only factor in the industrial world that does not change. New products, improvement of old products, and cheaper methods of production have proved touchstones of success in the majority of modern prosperous corporations.

Two examples will illustrate. E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. started originally as a producer of gunpowder for military purposes. Today that product represents only 2 per cent of its total production. It was the company's aggressive development of cellophane, pyralin, imitation lether, etc., that put it in its present prominent position.

International Nickel company of Canada controls about 95 per cent of the world's known nickel supplies. In 1929 world consumption of nickel was 136,000,000 pounds; in 1934, 122,000,000 pounds. The maintenance of consumption of the metal at more than 90 per cent of the 1929 level was due primarily to one factor—research. The company has been intensely active in fostering new uses for its metal. Laboratories are maintained in the United States, Canada, England, Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, and Japan.

The company has promoted nickel for uses that were comparatively unknown in 1929. Alloys have been developed that were unthought of in earlier years.

The railroads offer an interesting picture of research in the making. Diesel electric or oil powered light trains and steam powered, streamlined, heavy trains are laboratory products that have been developed to recapture the passenger service that has been lost to airplanes, buses, and private automobiles.

On the other hand, take Continental Motors, producer of internal combustion engines. When the manufacturers of "assembled" motor cars failed, the company's chief source of business failed. It ventured into the low priced automobile field itself. This involved expenditure of a large sum of money, but was not successful. In straitened circumstances now, the company is still attempting to readjust itself by manufacturing stationary engines, Diesel engines, and trucks.

Street cars, however, are the classic example of immobility of adjustment. The private automobile made severe inroads on their trafic. There was little, however, for the companies to do. Their tracks were down and their cars could run only on these tracks. Perhaps, if they can raise the money, they will take a tip from the railroads and recapture some of their lost business with modern equipment.

FIVE NEW DEAL LAWS HEAD FOR HIGH COURT TEST

Seven Already Declared Unconstitutional.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—(AP)—With a record breaking number of laws swatted out of existence in the last two years by the Supreme court, government officials today counted five new tests of young laws that are marching toward the judicial proving ground.

Seven laws enacted in the Roosevelt administration have been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court in the last two years. Two of these—the railroad retirement act and the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium law—were not sponsored by the administration, but received the President's signature.

Hundreds of Cases Pending.

Hundreds of cases now are pending in District courts over the country involving tests of the New Deal laws. Many of these, however, would automatically be settled by Supreme court decisions on the five cases that are moving rapidly toward the highest court.

Two of these involve the Agricultural Adjustment act and the processing taxes. The others are directed toward the slum clearance projects, another test of the gold clause abrogation, and the Tennessee Valley authority.

The cases are:

The Hoosac Mills case in which a Federal Circuit court in New England held the processing tax unconstitutional because it was an effort to control crops, which the court decided was a state function. A Texas court has handed down a similar decision.

One Concerns Cotton Control.

The other farm act case—the only one already before the Supreme court—is a suit against a railroad because it refused to haul cotton which did not bear tags certifying that the staple had either been grown inside the quota or had been ginned under the taxing requirements of the Bankhead cotton control act.

The slum clearance case developed in Louisville. The court in that district held that the government did not have the right to condemn land for such projects because they were not designed for public use. A Circuit court has just sustained this decision.

The gold clause case—An offshoot of the one in which the Supreme court ruled last session—is the Dixie Terminal case now in the Court of Claims. The claimant asks for payment of interest up to the date of maturity on certain bonds called by the government, claiming that the government broke its contract when it abrogated the clause promising to pay in gold, and therefore that the government forfeited its right to call the bonds.

TVA Decisions Vary.

The Tennessee Valley authority case has already had its ups and downs. It involves the right of the authority to sell power to municipalities. The District court held against the government. The Circuit court has held for the government.

Out of the decisions on these cases, government officials hope, will come a settlement of hundreds of others that are pending in the lower courts. However, it was conceded in official quarters that if the court did not make a broad ruling, any one of these hundreds might move forward to present new angles of the same question to the court. There are 350 processing tax cases now pending.

New Injunctions Granted.

Boston, Mass., July 20.—(AP)—Three Massachusetts textile companies today obtained federal court injunctions to prevent the internal revenue collector here from collecting more than half a million dollars in cotton processing taxes from them until a final decision is reached on the constitutionality of the tax. The injunctions were granted to the Pacific Mills of Boston, the Otis company of Three Rivers, Mass., and the Pilgrim mills of Fall River.

Four in Georgia.

Macon, Ga., July 20.—(AP)—A temporary injunction against collection of processing taxes from four Georgia firms—three of them cotton textile mills and one a dealer in pork—was granted today by Judge Bascom S. Deaver in United States District court. The court previously had issued a temporary restraining order in the cases.

BIG LINERS MAY AVOID USELESS COMPETITIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 20.—The possibility of a working arrangement between the French Line, owner of the $50,000,000 liner Normandie, and the Cunard White Star Line, owner of the liner Queen Mary, to avoid unnecessary competition was indicated by Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, today.

Runciman suggested that in the schedule of sailing for 1936 and afterward alternate weeks be selected. Such an arrangement would mean that the Queen Mary and the Normandie would never be in the same port at the same time and they would never meet on the high seas, always running in opposite directions, well clear of each other, he said.

General Motors Unit to Make New Plane Motor

Indianapolis, Ind., July 20.—[U. P.]—An extensive plant expansion program to enable production of a new 1,000 horse power aircraft engine will be started immediately at the Allison Engineering company, division of General Motors, officials announced today. The plant, pioneer in manufacture of racing automobiles and airplane engines, plans to start production of the new motors within four months.

Texas to Cut Oil Production to New Low for Six Months

Austin, Tex., July 20.—[U. P.]—Because many wells lack a market for oil despite previous restrictions, Texas officials Monday will reduce production to the lowest amount in more than six months. New allowable production total for the state then will be 1,001,427 barrels a day, a cut of more than 80,000 barrels daily.

EASTMAN QUERY STIRS UP DEBATE ON RAIL PASSES

Officials Divide Over Free Service.

That envy of the average citizen, the railroad man's pass, has come under the scrutiny of Joseph B. Eastman, federal transportation coördinator, who some time ago expressed the opinion too many passes were being issued, with the result that the railroads are losing revenue. Eastman recently has been pressing for reports as to just how many people the roads are carrying "free."

The whole question is highly controversial in railroad circles. Many executives maintain passes should be issued only to persons traveling on company business, saying employés in other lines must pay for what they receive from companies for which they work. Other executives assert it costs the roads nothng to let employés ride free provided it is not necessary to add cars.

Union Contracts Provide Passes.

Complicating the situation is the fact that the brotherhoods and unions have provisions in their contracts with railroads with respect to the granting of passes, which they guard jealously.

Coördinator Eastman said a seven day test in 1933 developed that 34 per cent of passengers rode on passes. He said "it is clear that at least 16 per cent, and possibly twice that amount, of the total railroad passage is furnished gratis. At the 1933 average fare this was equivalent to at least $50,000,000, or one fourth of the passenger service deficit."

Railroad men assert the 34 per cent figure is much too high, pointing to investigations made by a number of eastern roads. The New Haven reported 9.62 per cent of its travel was on pass, the New York Central 13.2 per cent, and the Boston and Maine 16.02 per cent.

One railroad official explained the original theory under which passes were issued was that the employés were not paid very much and consequently were entitled to travel as part of their compensation. Now, it was stated, railroad employés are well paid and he said he saw no reason why they should get passes while the public was forced to pay for its travel. He said he believed passes held by railroad employés were a source of irritation to the public.

Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington, said the roads should be compensated for employés traveling on pass for pleasure or private business. He suggested charging employés one cent a mile.

"Our employés would appreciate their travel more if they paid for it," he remarked. "No one thinks much of anything he gets for nothing."

Reports Passes Much Curtailed.

Fred W. Sargent, president of the North Western, said passes have been much curtailed in recent years. He added that it would probably be a wise move if all the roads were to act together in limiting them further. H. R. Kurrie, president of the Monon, asserted passes have been much restricted.

H. A. Scandrett, president of the Milwaukee road, expressed the opinion that the pass subject merited study but he declined to comment otherwise. Another railroad official, who expressed the opinion that all passes should be abolished, remarked that Washington may be held accountable for a large volume of free railroad travel.

FAIR TRADE RULE IN STRUCTURAL STEEL PLANNED

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—The American Institute of Steel Construction has begun a movement to establish standards of fair competition in the structural steel industry, by voluntary action and education, rather than by coercion.

The new code will not be submitted to the federal trade commission for its approval, as it is the consensus of the industry that no advantages would be gained by receiving sanction for nonenforceable rules. At no time did the construction industry operate under an NRA code of fair competition.

One of the principal aims of the new agreement is to give sellers of structural steel as much information as buyers, so that the latter will not be able to deceive the sellers as to prices at which steel may be obtained. This will be accomplished through the establishment of a bid depositary, to be supervised by the institute.

The depositary will receive copies or summaries of bids made by members of the institute. These will be made known to all bidders on a contract after the bidding has closed.

SOUTH AFRICAN BANKER IN U. S. FOR MONEY TALK

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Johannes Postmus, governor of the South African Reserve bank, today visited federal reserve and other banking officials. In banking circles it was understood that Postmus will hold informal discussions on problems relating to stabilization of currencies.

It was known that before his departure from London he had several long conversations with Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England. It is believed he will make known to American bankers both his own and Norman's ideas on stabilization and at the same time get the views of financial quarters and the Washington leaders on the international monetary situation.

Larger 1935 Farm Income Expected to Boost Trade

New York, July 20.—(AP)—The Standard Statistics company says the prospects that farm income during the current crop year will be substantially larger than in the preceding twelve months considerably brightens the outlook for trade in agricultural areas as well as for business generally, during the fall and winter. The organization estimates the value of crops and live stock this year at $8,860,000,000. Almost 1 billion dollars above last year.

Brokers Reopen Branches as Stock Trading Expands

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—The effect of rising security prices and volume of transactions on the stock exchange was reflected last month in the opening of eight new branch offices of member firms. Although the increase from 1,040 to 1,048 was slight, it marked a reversal of the trend which since last July had reduced the number of branch offices by 170.

IOWA FARMERS URGE CORN-HOG PAYMENTS BASED ON PRODUCTION

Ames, Ia., July 20.—(AP)—A substitute for the AAA corn-hog program, providing that benefit payments be based on production rather than reduction, was recommended today by the Iowa farm study committee.

The committee claimed its proposal placed emphasis on sound farming practices that would insure soil fertility rather than on flat crop reduction. Composed of 25 Iowa farmers, some of whom are county corn-hog chairmen, the group was aided by Iowa experiment station specialists in devising the proposal, which said it "should eliminate the injustices of the present program."

Benefit payments of 35 cents a bushel on corn, of which Iowa is the nation's leading producer, would be continued. But production would be curtailed only the amount regarded as necessary to maintain soil health by increasing grass production. Farmers who did not raise the required amount of grasses would receive no payments.

Benefit payments would also be continued at $2.50 per head on hogs but would be based on the number of hogs produced rather than the number reduced, as in the present case.

The committee proposed that for Iowa, the corn acreage be reduced next year 20 per cent from the 1923-'33 average, and that the government encourage growing of legumes and other soil-building grasses on the land taken from corn.

Based also on the ten year average, the state's hog production would be cut 15 per cent rather than the current 10 per cent.

The committee urged "grater authority in administration be vested in county allotment committees" and recommended that each county set aside 5 per cent of its production quota for use in settling disputes within the county instead of by Washington compliance checkers.

Presented before a meeting of corn-hog allotment committeemen the plan was to be forwarded to Washington authorities.

SEC TIME LIMIT HANDICAPS SALE OF NEW ISSUES

Considerable hardship has been worked on underwriters by the securities and exchange act because of the brief time available in which to distribute prospectuses for new security offerings after 12:10 midnight, when the prospectus becomes effective, says Paul H. Davis & Co. The underwriter is precluded by law from making public distribution before that deadline. He invariably offers the securities at the opening of business next day, which leaves only a few hours in which to effect national distribution to members of the selling group.

Few underwriting houses have enough offices to enable them to distribute the prospectuses nationally through their own organization ahead of time. One solution, applied to a recent issue, was effected through a printing concern which has a national group of plants. Packages for all members of the selling syndicate were made up, shipped to associate plants, and held for telegraphic release from New York.

By this means the prospectus was kept in possession of the underwriter until the legal time for release, while delivery was completed to 500 investment dealers before or shortly after the opening of business on the offering date.

PROCESS TAXES PUT IN ESCROW PENDING TESTS

Springfield, Ill., July 20.—[U. P.]—United States District Court Clerk S. T. Burnett will be "banker" of approximately $1,000,000 in processing taxes, to be held by him in escrow until the United States Supreme court rules on constitutionality of the AAA act.

Orders restraining Internal Revenue Collector V. Y. Dallman from collecting the tax were signed yesterday by Federal Judge C. G. Briggle, the chief order being in favor of the Hunter Packing company, East St. Louis, for $388,012.

The court was not called upon to take action in the case of the Stiedl Packing company of Paris, whose attorneys came here to request an injunction but did not do so. Failure to meet certain bond requirements, it was said, was responsible.

HEAD OF CLOSED PARIS BANK IS STILL 'MISSING'

PARIS, July 20.—[U. P.]—Police today searched the Riviera for Coles B. Neidecker, American owner and director of the Travelers Bank of Paris, closed without explanation since Wednesday. Mrs. Neidecker and her two children and two brothers-in-law are en route to Baltimore, but her husband has not been seen since his bank closed.

The Travelers bank branch at Nice closed today on instructions telephoned from Paris by its manager, M. Monferrato. The Cannes bank was instructed to close, but its manager, M. Sonet, refused.

Reports Neidecker was in Marseilles were denied by his lawyer. "Although I have no news of him, I think he has gone to London to seek funds necessary to meet heavy speculative losses of himself and his customers in the New York market," he said.

Manufacturers' Trust Made 'MOP' Board Trustee

St. Louis, Mo., July 20.—(AP)—Judge C. B. Faris of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today approved appointment by Missouri Pacific Railroad officials of the Manufacturers' Trust company, New York, as trustee of the railroad's first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent bonds. The bank succeeds the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, which resigned, effective today, as trustee without giving reason.

Canadian Car Loadings Show Increase in Week

OTTAWA, Ont., July 20.—(AP)—Car-loadings on Canadian railways for the week ended July 13 totaled 45,633, an increase of 5,883 over the previous week, the dominion bureau of statistics announced today.

WHEAT CLIMBS ANOTHER CENT ON CROP NEWS

Advances of Last Week Exceed 5 Cents.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

With the spring wheat harvest two to three weeks away and reports of black rust damage increasing daily, wheat prices rose again in the Chicago market yesterday and closed more than 5 cents a bushel above the level prevailing a week earlier. The day's advance was slightly more than a cent a bushel with September wheat, the leading future, ending at 85⅞ cents a bushel.

Appraisals of the probable damage to the crop vary widely, but all observers now agree that material damage cannot be escaped. The extent of the depreciation will be determined by the weather conditions in the next two weeks.

Take Cue from Weather.

Traders took their cue yesterday from the weather reports for the northwestern states. The official forecast gave promise of cooler weather today, but the above normal temperatures and showers were promised later this week. A stretch of cool weather would materially reduce the danger of rust, which thrives in a hot and muggy atmosphere.

The rust scare has not caused any material broadening in the volume of trading, but it has bolstered the market in a period when prices are ordinarily under pressure from hedging sales. Yesterday's trading was quiet, and the volume was comparatively light.

Closing prices on September futures, with comparative quotations, follow:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$ .85⅞	$ .84⅝	$ .80¼
Corn	.75⅝	.75⅛	.74½
Oats	.31¼	.31⅛	.30⅝
Rye	.45⅝	.45½	.43

While the estimates of the potential damage to spring wheat range as high as 50 per cent, more conservative observers believe that even with material depreciation production will not be reduced below 200 million bushels.

Picture Much Changed.

Three weeks ago prospects in the spring wheat belt were nearly perfect. The section had received generous rainfall after three years of deficient moisture and every indication promised the best returns in several years. Although this picture has been decidedly changed it is not believed that the section will suffer a disaster approaching that which resulted from last year's drouth. The government's July 1 estimate promised a crop of 273 million bushels or considerably in excess of a normal crop. More than 100 million bushels could be cut from this estimate and the crop would still be twice as large as the 1934 harvest.

The Cargill Grain company in a report issued yesterday pointed out that a loss of 20 to 40 per cent in original prospects in the northwest would still leave a large crop.

POLAND TIGHTENS EXCHANGE RULES ON DANZIG TRADE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, Poland, July 20.—The Polish ministry of finance today ordered the customs offices in Danzig territory not to accept Danzig guilders in payment of duties for goods shipped to Poland by Danzig, but only Polish zlotys. Goods for the free city's own use will be taxed in guilders.

This will prevent accumulation of guilders in customs offices controled by Poland. The Poles explain they were compelled to do so in view of currency restrictions and the difficulty of changing guilders into zlotys and transferring the money to Poland.

Polish authorities do not conceal the fact this is a discrimination against Danzig trade, which, due to foreign exchange control, may experience difficulty in obtaining zlotys. Danzigers complain they have already lost a great part of the Polish trade after the railroads refused to accept guilders for shipments to Poland.

CONTAINER CORP. HALF YEAR NET PROFITS LOWER

Container Corporation of America yesterday reported consolidated net earnings of $432,145 for the first half of this year after all charges. This compares with a net income of $598,858 in the corresponding period of last year.

Total depreciation for the period was $569,397, or $77,276 higher than for the first half of last year. Of this increased amount $24,254 applied to newly acquired properties.

Sales tonnage volume during the half year increased 17.4 per cent over 1934 and the sales dollar volume improved 5.2 per cent. The volume has held up remarkably well during June and in July, said Walter P. Paepcke, president. He said better volume was expected for August, September and October.

CO-OPS' CHAIN STORES GAIN ON CORPORATE LINKS

Established corporate grocery chains are encountering steadily increased competition from voluntary or coöperative chain organizations, according to Poor's Publishing company which estimates that in 1934 annual sales of the independent associations equaled volume of the corporate chains for the first time.

Strong competitive conditions are indicated by the survey which shows that at the end of 1934 corporate chains had 52,618 retail outlets while voluntary chains had a total of 103,334 units. Independent grocery stores numbered 130,748.

Week's Transit Revenues Dip, but Exceed Year Ago

Transit revenues for the week ended July 13 as reported to Transit Journal were less than in the preceding week, the journal's indicator standing at 100.82, against 102.88 during the week ended July 6. Some improvement was shown over the same week last year, the journal reported.

PUSH SUIT TO CUT COMMONWEALTH ELECTRIC RATES

State Seeks to Cut 100 Millions of Valuation.

Attorneys for the Illinois commerce commission on Wednesday will begin the presentation of evidence to show that the electric rates of the Commonwealth Edison company should be reduced. The hearing will be before Commissioner Charles E. Byrne at 1 North La Salle street.

It is expected to take two weeks for the testimony to be heard. The Edison company has presented its case, in which it sought to prove a valuation of approximately $365,000,000 and sought rates to bring a 7 to 8 per cent return on this investment.

The commission's experts will present evidence to show that in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 should be cut from the valuation claimed by the company, according to Harry R. Booth, an attorney for the commission. He said that $30,000,000 of this proposed reduction has been improperly added as "going value" to the company's capital account, and if this inclusion is permitted to stand the public will be compelled to pay two profits on this amount.

Will Seek Lower Return Basis.

In addition it is expected that experts to appear Wednesday will testify that between 5¼ and 5½ per cent is a fair return which rates should provide on the utility valuation.

The affirmative case for the commission has been prepared by Attorneys Booth and Irvin Rooks and the commission's rate expert, William A. Dittmer.

Among the experts who will testify for the commission are Dr. James C. Bonbright of Columbia university, who also is vice chairman of the New York state power authority; Dean Ralph C. Epstein of the University of Buffalo; Prof. Paul J. Raver of Northwestern university, and J. H. Matthews, chief engineer for the commerce commission.

"We shall meet every important claim and issue raised by the Edison company," Mr. Booth said. "Our experts will particularly contest the company's claim for excessive valuation—7 to 8 per cent as the return, and the $30,000,000 "going value" claim. We shall endeavor to show that inclusion of this added value would be grossly unfair to the rate payers as the company already has charged this item to operating expense and the rate payers in prior years."

The company's side of the case produced more than 8,000 pages of testimony. Fifty witnesses, including many experts drafted from various parts of the country, appeared and 115 exhibits were offered by utility counsel.

Pleads to Pass on Sales Tax.

The North Shore Gas company yesterday petitioned the commission for the right to pass on to the consumer the 3 per cent state sales tax on its product by increasing its rate to care for the tax after a single day's notice. The Illinois Bell Telephone company filed a similar petition with the commission earlier in the month.

The gas company estimated the amount of sales tax it would pay in a year at $38,580, and declared that the total net income of the petitioner for the year ending May 31, 1935, was $177,460. The figures were presented under the ruling of Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the commerce commission, that utilities seeking to pass on the sales tax must show that payment of such tax by them would be unfair, unreasonable and discriminatory.

2,650 TAVERNS LACK LICENSES; ORDERED CLOSED

Records showed yesterday that 2,650 Chicago taverns lack liquor licenses for the last half of 1935 and Police Commissioner James P. Allman prepared to carry out his ruling that no unlicensed taverns shall be permitted to open for business tomorrow morning.

"The unlicensed places will be closed up," the commissioner said. "It doesn't make any difference how many there are. The department will carry out the closing order as a matter of routine duty. No extra men will be assigned."

Yesterday 300 tavern owners rushed to the offices of Louis Rixmann, city collector, to pay the $300 fee for the last half of the year as the deadline approached. When the office closed at noon 5,716 of the 8,366 taverns operating on June 30 this year had received licenses. Officials believe that many taverns have closed during July, but the number is unestimated.

FALLING LEAVES, NOW, CAUSED BY STURDY GROWTH

Leaves are falling from the trees in the Chicago area to the surprise of residents in view of the season of abundant rainfall and ideal growing weather.

August Koch, chief horticulturist of the Garfield park conservatory, explained yesterday that the falling of the leaves is merely the result of the sudden change from rainy weather to the hot, sunny days of the last two weeks. He explained that growth of the trees has been stimulated both by the unusual amount of moisture and by the warm weather. He said that the mature leaves are being forced off the trees to make room for development of younger growth.

Mr. Koch assured owners of shade trees that they need have no concern about the matter and that the trees are in no danger of injury.

F. J. Streyckmans Decorated by Polish Government

Felix J. Streyckmans, attorney in charge of foreign participation at A Century of Progress Exposition of 1933, yesterday received the decoration of the Golden Cross of Merit from the government of Poland. The decoration was presented by Consul General Waclaw Gawronski of the republic of Poland at the instance of the Polish ambassador in Washington. It was in recognition of services to the foreign government during the Fair. The presentation was in the offices of the consulate.

Convention Leader

Edwin R. Weeks, president of National Association of Music Merchants, will preside at convention and at joint session Tuesday with National Association of Sheet Music Dealers and National Retail Music Instrument Dealers' association.

CEREMONY OPENS OAK ST. STATION AND UNDERPASS

The Oak street comfort station and the Oak street-Michigan avenue-Lake Shore drive pedestrian underpass were opened to the public yesterday morning after a brief formal ceremony which was directed by Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district. The completion of the underpass in time for yesterday's opening was a surprise to park officials who had not expected to open the tunnel until next week.

Park and city officials and other leaders who were active in promoting the Oak street facilities were introduced to the crowd. Mr. Dunham spoke of Mrs. M. L. Purvin, chairman of the bathing beach committee of the Woman's City club, as the one woman in Chicago who has done the most for the development of Chicago beaches. In 1915 Mrs. Purvin began a campaign in which the Lincoln park commissioners were urged to provide comfort facilities at the Oak street and North avenue beaches.

Mr. Dunham and Mrs. Purvin both said the next step in park beach development would be a beach extending from North avenue to Fullerton avenue. The Oak street comfort station was built with park funds and relief labor. Work on the pedestrian tunnel was carried on by the Underground Construction company and was financed by the state highway department.

Mortgage Money Now More Plentiful than Borrowers, Survey Shows

MILLIONS WAIT FOR PUBLIC TO MAKE USE OF IT

Low Rates Fail to Lure Home Builders.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

BYRON V. KANALEY
[Koehne Photo.]

New York reported last week that "the first faint crack in the dam, which has held back the flow of money into the urban real estate market is beginning to appear at last." Unlike New York, however, Chicago's money dam, which never was as high or tight as New York's, began to disintegrate last October. By May of this year it practically was gone and at present the channel of mortgage money is open.

But the money fails to flow despite the removal of the physical barrier. It remains piled up, except for a few trickles, apparently held back by a psycological dam of public indifference or caution.

More Money than Borrowers.

A survey of local mortgage bankers and insurance companies discloses the unusual situation of more money than there are borrowers. Many millions of dollars are waiting for home owners to come in and borrow—and at lower rates than have been seen in a long time—but no rush for funds has occurred.

Never in the history of most mortgage bankers and local representatives of insurance companies has there been such lively competition for the good graces of that almost forgotten man—the mortgagor (the person who wants to borrow money by putting a mortgage on his property). For the first time in many years the home owner or prospective home owner and the property owner in general are being sought by lenders of money.

As a result money can now be had by owners of prime business properties, both loop and outlying, for as low as 4½ per cent, and for homes as low as 5 per cent.

Low Rates for Good Loans.

Those tempting rates, of course, apply to only the best properties and are based on lower value brackets than during the boom days. Practically all insurance companies, which buy home mortgages, lend only 50 to 60 per cent of the appraised present day value. One big eastern company which lends only on business properties and certain religious holdings extends only 33 1-3 per cent of the value.

The average home loan today is at 5 and 5½ per cent, with 6 per cent required on the older properties, and usually for five or ten year terms with the old-fashioned 20 or 25 per cent amortization. Despite much talk about long term loans with complete amortization the public still prefers the old time short term with only partial payment of principal, mortgage men declared.

"I've never seen keener competition by mortgage money for well secured loans than exists right now," said Byron V. Kanaley of Cooper, Kanaley & Co., who has been in the mortgage banking business since 1911. "There's a flood of money, but a scarcity of demand for it. We have plenty of money for high class business properties in the city and suburbs, for $25,000 up to $1,000,000 each at 4½ to 5 per cent. Loans on small homes are being made at 5 to 5½ per cent."

Supply Exceeds the Demand.

"In the twenty-four years I've been in the mortgage business I've never seen it so easy for deserving borrowers to get funds," said Irvin Jacobs, head of Irvin Jacobs & Co., mortgage bankers.

"The investor is in the market, but the borrower is not. We've had all the money that was needed in Chicago for a year, and even before that good loans were in demand."

The Prudential Insurance Company of America has been in the market for a year, according to Donald C. Hulmes, manager. Rates vary from 4½ to 6 per cent. He sees a steady improvement in the market, with more loans being made than a few months ago.

Kent Mitchell, local representative of the New York Life Insurance company, said that company sought good loans and has throughout the depression, except during the height of the local tax confusion. Like others, he reports more funds available than prospective mortgagors. He said there was little call for long term loans by home owners, although his company is prepared to make 15 year mortgages.

Good Loans Hard to Get.

The Equitable Life Assurance society has been making large loans—commercial and reorganization—for a year and a half, according to Thomas B. Black. Within a few weeks its definite policy on small home loans will be announced, he said.

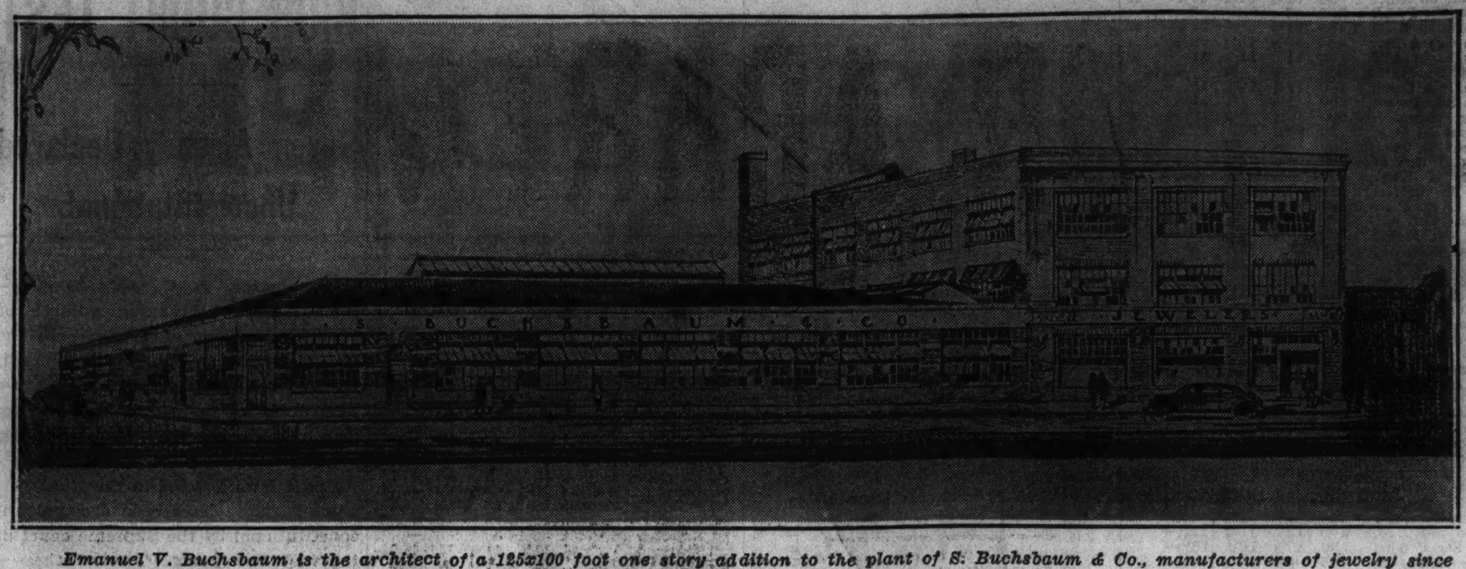
The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, one of the three largest lenders on small homes, has mortgage money available at 5½ per cent for residential mortgages and 5 per cent on business loans. According to the Great Lakes Mortgage corporation, local agency, the Metropolitan has never been completely out of the market. At present it reports inability to get many good loans.

The Bankers Life of Des Moines, represented locally by Dovenmuehle, Inc., has practically unlimited funds at 5 and 5½ per cent for high class home mortgages and construction loans.

"More money is seeking investment than there are borrowers available," said George W. Springer, representative of the Provident Mutual Life Insurance company.

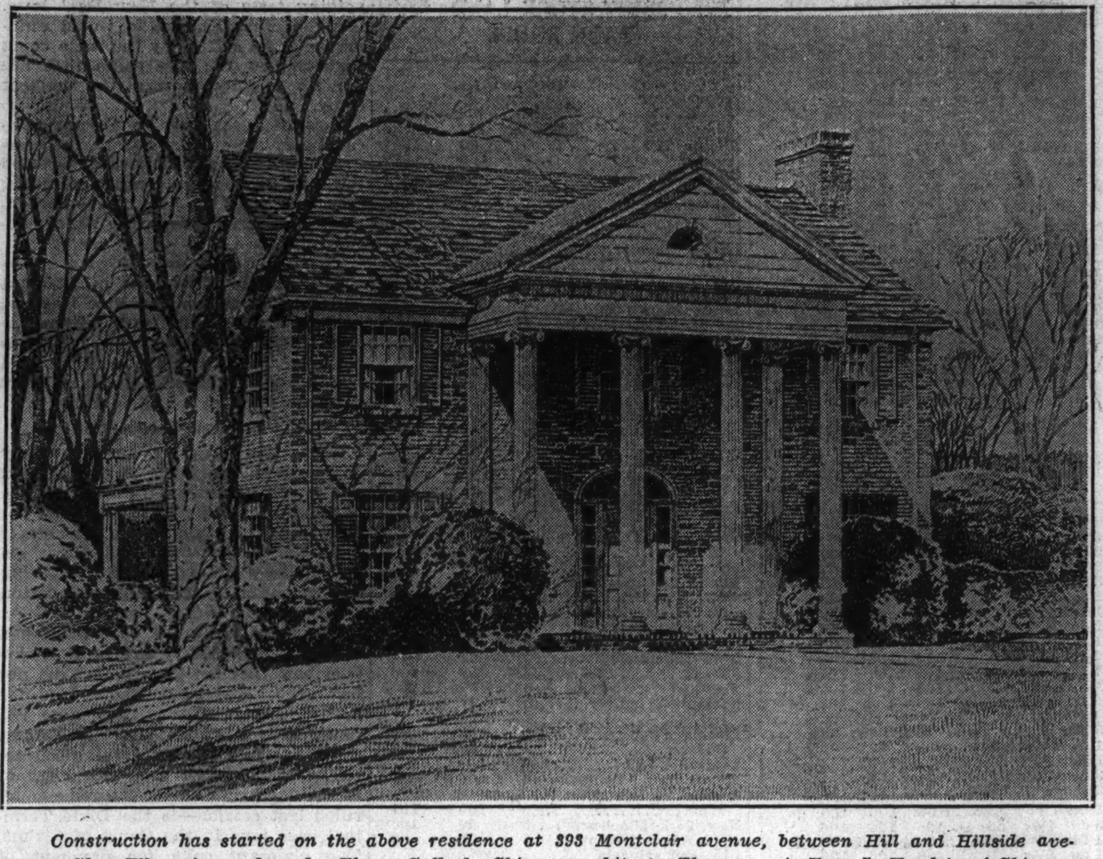
The Republic Realty Mortgage corporation, representing several insurance companies, also said there was plenty of money to lend on small homes.

Jewelry Manufacturers to Expand North Side Plant



Emanuel V. Buchsbaum is the architect of a 185x100 foot one story addition to the plant of S. Buchsbaum & Co., manufacturers of jewelry since 1888, at 243 East Huron street, as shown above. Costing a reported $46,000, this annex is scheduled for completion by Sept. 1. The enlargement of the plant will permit a bigger precious metal division and diamond cutting department, according to Herbert J. Buchsbaum, president.

Now Being Built at Glen Ellyn



Construction has started on the above residence at 393 Montclair avenue, between Hill and Hillside avenues, Glen Ellyn, from plans by Elmer Gylleck, Chicago architect. The owner is Enos L. Hendrix of Chicago, who is a lecturer on accounting at the school of commerce, Northwestern university. Included in the seven room layout is a library, on the second floor, with knotty pine walls and a fireplace. A second fireplace will be built in the living room. Exterior walls will be of face brick. Gas will be used to operate a forced, humidified warm air heating system. Completion is scheduled for October. Arthur Eichenberger of Glen Ellyn has the general contract. Anthony Wuchterl made the picture.

CASH BUYING LEADS TO GREATER ACTIVITY IN WEST SIDE REALTY

Real estate activity with individual cash buyers appearing for the first time in several years is reported by the west side realty firm of A. P. Murphy & Co., located in the Merchants National Bank building, 3158 West Madison street.

"We believe a decided upturn in real estate is here," said A. P. Murphy, head of that firm. "During the last few months many individual buyers, with surprisingly large amounts of cash available, have entered the market for west side property.

"All types of property are being sought and in the last few weeks sales of the following property have been closed: Store and apartment building, 4716 West Madison; three apartment building, 4448 West Adams; twelve flat building, southeast corner Central Park and Lexington; store and flat building, 3313 West Madison street.

"The wonderful increase in occupancy of stores and apartments, as well as the greatly improved rental collections, have gone a long way toward reviving interest in real estate. It has been several years since such activity has been seen."

TRIBUNE TOWER'S COOLED OFFICES LURE TO BUSINESS

Air conditioned office space has been leased in the Tribune Tower by several more concerns, during the last few sizzling days, according to Holmes Onderdonk, building manager. The Monsanto Chemical company of St. Louis, one of the largest concerns of its kind in the country, has taken a suite of offices for its Chicago headquarters.

Oman & Lilienthal, well known Chicago architects, have quit the loop and again have offices in Tribune Tower on the 21st floor. The Powers Granite company, a new concern, also has leased space in Tribune Tower.

The high ceilinged rear section of the 20th floor of Tribune Tower will be remodeled into one of the finest studios of its kind for use by THE TRIBUNE photographic department.

REAL ESTATE BOND PRICES REGISTER DEFINITE UPTURN

Real estate bond prices have made decided gains, according to William J. Wildeman, president of the American Bond Quotation Service, Inc. He said that after declining consistently since February, 1931, from an average of 73.5 realty bonds reached their low in May, 1933, when the average was 19.9. Since then the trend has been definitly upward, he said.

"At the present time the average price on 75 representative issues from all sections of the country is 37.5," he said. "During 1935 to date there has been an advance of approximately 1 per cent each month.

"There has been more activity in these bonds during the last five months than at any time in the last five years. There appears to be genuine accumulation on the part of buyers who are looking forward to substantially higher prices."

County Highway Dept. to Move in Steuben Building

The Cook county board has leased 12,000 square feet of floor space in the Steuben building, comprising the entire 20th floor and part of the 19th, for a term of years for use by the Cook county highway department, now in the La Salle-Wacker building. Possession will be taken on Aug. 1 after alterations. George S. Lurie was broker.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of July 12 to 18, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 28, with a combined cost of $248,835. For the corresponding week of last year there were 23 contracts totaling $440,700.

NEW SHIPPING SERVICE FIRM ENTERS FIELD

What is claimed as a new service for Chicago is announced by the Chicago Consolidating Packing and Shipping corporation, which has leased space from S. P. Platt at 317 West Quincy street, and established a packing and shipping service for out of town buyers.

The service rendered by the new firm, which is managed by T. A. McAmis, is an adaptation of the package car system. It will enable buyers to have goods from several wholesalers shipped in one package at savings ranging up to 50 per cent over ordinary methods, it is claimed.

"Reduction in shipping costs which will be brought about by this new system will add materially to Chicago's advantage as a wholesale center for the middle west," said Glenn G. Hayes, director of the Chicago wholesale market council. "The ready to wear industry is concentrated within a radius of a few blocks of the new firm's office, and out of town buyers will find this service an added incentive to buy here. Parcel post, railway and air express, and railway freight will be used."

$75,000 ADDITION TO BE BUILT FOR WEST SIDE PLANT

Plans have been completed by David Saul Klafter and contracts will be let shortly for a three story addition and alterations to the plant of E. Edelmann & Co., makers of automobile accessories, at 2332 Logan boulevard.

The addition, in the rear of the present building, will provide approximately 25,000 square feet of additional floor space. Of reinforced concrete construction, it will cost a reported $75,000. A feature of the new unit will be an auditorium to be used for sales talks and conferences.

The original plant, designed by Klafter twelve years ago, is to have the front elevation modernized with the use of structural glass and metal.

Victor E. Carlson Is Now with Tax Service Group

Victor E. Carlson, until recently vice president of the Central Appraisal company, has joined the technical forces of the Tax Service association of Illinois as director of valuations. He formerly was with Harry C. Cutmore and associates and the Coats & Burchard company.

National Tea Rents Store at 3301 Milwaukee Avenue

The National Tea company has leased a double store at 3301 Milwaukee avenue from the Continental Properties, Inc., for five years at a term rental of $22,200, according to S. E. Terman & Co., brokers. Remodeling for Oct. 1 occupancy is planned.

At the Realty Board

John Howatt, chief engineer of the Board of Education and chairman of the air conditioning committee of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, will be the principal speaker at the weekly luncheon program of the Chicago Real Estate board next Wednesday noon. His subject will be "Modern Methods of Air Conditioning."

Reports Best Realty Mart in Seven Years

The greatest volume of activity for any period in the last seven years is reported by Smart & Golee, Inc., of Evanston, for May and June. During that time sales aggregating $186,850 were negotiated, according to Norman F. Lighthart, vice president.

The list comprises ten transactions, the largest of which was the sale of a thirty apartment building. The most significant feature of the activity, according to Lighthart, is that three of the eight houses sold were purchased for investment.

"Nothing could better demonstrate that people with money to invest are beginning to realize that the opportunities for investment in homes offer greater promise of security and profit than in any other field," he said.

Among the sales reported by Smart & Golee was the thirty apartment building at 813-21 Washington street, Evanston, purchased by W. L. Taylor.

LOANS UNDER TITLE TWO OF FHA SHOW GAIN

Carroll H. Sudler, FHA district director, reported yesterday that banks and other lending institutions show evidence of increasing desire to secure new business in FHA insured mortgage loans under Title 2 of the national housing act.

For the week ending July 17 a total of twenty-three loans amounting to $146,650 were placed with banks in the Chicago area, approximately 60 per cent of which were for new construction, he stated. This brings the total to date of actual Title 2 loans placed in the district of northern Illinois to 206, amounting to $1,047,675.

Loan commitments issued for the week for new construction numbered ten, amounting to $81,427 of construction cost, according to John O. Merrill, chief architectural supervisor for the FHA. In addition there were twelve applications for loans received calling for construction work to cost $92,447. The construction cost total to date of loans, commitments, and applications for the district is $1,151,803, Sudler stated, for 134 new construction projects, all of which are for residential purposes.

Englewood Jewelry Firm Plans Air Conditioning

Strauss & Co., jewelers, who have been in the Halsted-63d area for the last decade and are now at 6319 South Halsted street, have leased a store with 34 feet of frontage at 6414-16 South Halsted street for five years at an undisclosed straight rental. An extensive modernization program calls for air conditioning, cove lighting, a new store front, and new fixtures. The lessees will take possession on Aug. 1. Elmer C. Krauter was broker. The owner of the building is the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America local union No. 62.

Advertising Publishers Will Move to North Side

Advertising Publications, Inc., publishers of Advertising Age and Industrial Marketing, have leased for five years space at 100 East Ohio street and about Aug. 1 will move their editorial offices from 537 South Dearborn street to the north side. Ross & Browne, managers of the building, were brokers.

28 NEW STATE LAWS TO AFFECT COUNTRY TOWNS

Suburban Group to Study Changes.

Twenty-eight laws passed at the last session of the state legislature which have an effect on local governing bodies have received the attention of the Suburban Area and Country Towns association of Cook county, which has just issued a list of the laws for the information of the various municipalities with membership in the organization.

The association, of which Thomas A. Matthews is executive secretary, and having headquarters in Maywood, will not hold a general meeting until September, and by that time it is expected that the various legal departments of the towns and villages will have had an opportunity to study the new legislation and consider the possibility of its effect.

An important piece of legislation, affecting the suburbs, is that providing for four year terms for city and village officials. Other recent legislation to which the association calls the attention of its members is as follows:

Senate bill 97—Repeals act in relation to locating taverns within 100 feet of mortuary parlors.

To License Used Car Dealers.

S. B. 419—Empowers cities to regulate junk places.

S. B. 420—Gives cities not exceeding 300,000 right to issue bonds to pay miscellaneous claims incurred.

S. B. 431—Amends motor vehicle theft act to permit cities to license and regulate used car dealers.

S. B. 432—Gives president of the village board powers same as those of mayors.

S. B. 433—Fixes salaries of village trustees at three dollars per meeting in towns of less than 20,000; $10 in towns of more than 20,000.

S. B. 473—Gives cities right to license and regulate barber and beauty shops.

S. B. 583—Permits joint acquisition of water works by two or more adjacent cities.

Authorizes U. S. Grants.

S. B. 666—Gives cities right to apply for grants from federal government.

House bill 372—[illegible] franchise [illegible] public service [illegible] shall go into effect for [illegible] days after passage. Requires a referendum if ten per cent of voters for mayor at last election present the council with protesting petition within the 30 day period.

H. B. 377—Authorizes municipalities to issue general obligation bonds without referendum when special assessment collections are in a failed bank.

H. B. 1094—Permits unplatted territory on outskirts to be disconnected from city or village.

S. B. 209—Three per cent sales tax on public and municipal utilities selling gas, water and electricity and telephone and telegraph services, exempting industrial sales of power.

S. B. 252—Permits local governments without a referendum to issue refunding bonds for certain designated purposes.

S. B. 480—Authorizes school districts to issue bonds to build a new school notwithstanding bonds added to existing indebtedness exceed 2½ per cent of value of taxable property in district.

Permits Bank Agreements.

H. B. 29—Permits treasurers of local governments to enter into reorganization plans of banks in which public funds are deposited, or enter into agreement for settlement or waiver of deposits under certain conditions.

H. B. 260—Authorizes school districts under 150,000 to issue bonds to create working cash funds without referendum unless 20 per cent of voters request one.

H. B. 635—Authorizes cities of a population of 50,000 or less to create a working cash fund.

S. B. 64—Repeals the provisions limiting the tax which may be levied for school purposes to the average amount levied for such purposes in the four years preceding June 30, 1932.

S. B. 491—Permits township treasurer to invest township funds in United States, Illinois, and municipal securities, and in bonds of any district in state having authority to levy upon all taxable property in the district.

Interest on Unpaid Salaries.

S. B. 667—Gives school boards right to compromise claims in closed banks.

H. B. 198—Authorizes school districts with 200,000 or less population, to issue bonds until July 1, 1937, for teachers' wages and claims against districts in amounts within constitutional bonding limitations.

H. B. 259—Provides that in school districts of less than 500,000 teachers' salary orders shall bear six per cent interest when no funds are available to pay the salaries.

S. B. 102—Provides for recreational and community centers in parks; referendum on tax of ¼ mill on the dollar for recreation.

S. B. 293—Provides that persons entering into contracts with state or local governments for public improvements, shall execute a bond with sureties in an amount not less than contract price.

H. B. 34—Repeals itinerant vendor act.

H. B. 718—Provides that property owned by city but outside its limits and limits of any other city shall be subject to ordinances of owner city.

Douglas Smith Players to Present "Green Goddess"

"The Green Goddess," by William Archer, will be presented by the Douglas Smith Players Saturday and next Sunday evenings in Le Theatre Intime, 844 Rush street.

These Young Women Promise Day of Fun at Church Picnic

When four such active young women as these put their heads together of a summer's day the result of their efforts is sure to be a success—all of which forecasts a day of entertainment for those attending the annual picnic to be held by Ascension church in Oak Park next Sunday at Thatcher's woods, Thatcher and Chicago avenues, for they are among committee members planning the outing. From left to right: Miss Jeanne Squibbs, Miss Florence Creighton, Miss Jeanne Aicher, and Miss Celeste Hickey. General arrangements for the picnic are being made by the Rev. Thomas J. McDevitt, pastor, and Louis J. Gibson.

Deadline in Music Festival Vocal Contest Is Tomorrow

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

The deadline for entry of Chicago and Cook county singers in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Chicagoland Music Festival vocal contest will be tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. Entrance may be made by filling in the vocal coupon found in this section of the paper or personally visiting the festival headquarters in room 1418 in the Tribune Tower between the hours of 2 and 5:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The deadline for out of Cook county singers will be 6 o'clock Monday evening, Aug. 5.

GORDON SWANSON.

Ready for Professional Work.

Luke Brink, 28 year old baritone, an automobile mechanic, of 3244 North Linder street, when asked to write about himself when entering the contest, said: "There is little I can say about myself except that I was born and raised in the far northwest and came to Chicago about ten years ago. I started studying music some years ago and have studied off and on ever since. My teacher and I both feel that I am now ready to enter professional singing work of some kind, and I feel THE TRIBUNE'S festival contest is about the biggest as well as the best chance any one has to get started."

Thomas A. Zurich, 23 year old singer of 3653 Wabansia avenue, states: "Until two years ago I sang falsetto. I joined a church choir and turned out to be a basso. I solo in church and have taken part in the recent production of Handel's 'Theodora.' Because of the fact that I'm new to the singing world I have faint hopes of winning in the contest. I'll try my best, however, and if not this time perhaps next."

A Maywood entrant is Miss Jean Clapp, 22 year old soprano of 509 South 6th avenue. She recently was graduated from DePauw university at Greencastle, Ind., where she was a member of the Alpha Chi Omega sorority and took part in music activities.

Contests Are Free.

Another ambitious singer who will be heard one of the two nights of the west side contest is Lauretta J. Bellini, 25 year old mezzo soprano of 4922 North Francisco avenue. For the last eight years she has been an employé of the Chicago public library. She said that during the payless pay day periods of the city employés her vocal study was not very steady, but lately she has been taking lessons and singing in the St. Hilary's church choir.

One of the most enthusiastic competitors for the baritone division is Gordon Swanson, 18 year old singer of 1410 North Harding avenue. Recently graduated from Austin High school, he won a scholarship by taking first place in the Chicago high school vocal contest sponsored by the Chicago Music council.

The contests will be held Aug. 5 and 6 in the Midwestern Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue. The public is cordially invited to all TRIBUNE festival contests. There is no admittance charge.

Several hundred west and northwest side girls, 6 years old and up, are practicing each Monday and Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Community Recreational center, 4715 West Madison street, for the festival dance pageant which will be a feature of the festival concert Saturday night, Aug. 17, in Soldiers' field.

Miss Mayblossom Macdonald is directing the girls in a dance entitled "A Field of Daisies." Late entrants may join by appearing at tomorrow morning's rehersal. The doors to the ballroom are open at 9:30 o'clock.

Reserved Seats on Sale.

Reserved seats for 50 cents to the festival entertainment in Soldiers' field are now on sale at THE TRIBUNE public service office at 1 South Dearborn and in Tribune Tower. They also may be obtained by writing to the Festival Ticket Manager, Room 530, Tribune Tower.

Additional vocalists entered for the west and northwest side preliminary contests are as follows:

Sopranos—Marie Dayton, 5307 Quincy street; Gertude Thomas, 2936 North Francisco avenue; Mona Williamson, 4917 Kirk street, Niles Center; Gilbert Pipowski, 2641 West 37th place; Betty Tyson, 4424 North California avenue, and Dorothy Amick, 3237 West Grenshaw street.

Contralto—Anna M. Kapschull, 3912 Gunderson avenue, Berwyn.

Tenor—Albert A. Ralph, 1015 Hannah avenue, Forest Park.

Baritones—Frank Mueller, 3315 Pensacola avenue, and Edward Frandsen, 1744 North Meade avenue.

Dancers Are Named.

Among the west and northwest side girls taking part in the dance pageant are:

Josephine Metcalf, Veronica McBride, Audrey Euchner, Doris Venema, Frances Lukas, Betty Jeanne Woodworth, Dawn Waska, Lorraine Burger, Felicia Tobolski, Irene and Lulu Rhea Goldstein, Marion Felgenhauer, Eleanor P. Lundgren, Lois Raiman, Dorothy Feeney, Virginia Burke, Peggy Lynch, Marjorie Lehmann, Bernice Sylvester, Helen McInnes, Darlene Glosch, Jeannette Gries, Hattie Dellwing, Mildred Thompson, Eva Coleman, Florence Cohen, Eleanor Sansonetti, and Patricia and Marguerite Ziegler.

Mary Kathryn and Loretta Quigley, Muriel Pretzer, Mary and Betty Griffin, Vivian McDowell, Helen Joy Phillpott, Virginia Kostner, Eleanor McNulty, Eileen Boucher, Betty Jane Les Tina, Angela and Catherine Shines, Joan Wintersteen, Marion Downey, Betty Creadon, Wanda Filipowicz, Helen Kalinska, June Grimes, Stella Lazarowicz, Clara Anne Jones, Rhea W. Marek, Dolores Justus, Grace Mulloy, and Charlotta McMann.

Rita Burns, Dorothy Fleischman, Betty Clare Maskill, Dorothy Ann Stalcup, LaVerne Kruse, Norma Hawthorne, Mary Cooke, Marie Strompolis, LaVerne Hageman, Anna Petricek, Anna Mae Browning, Winnifred C. Wake, Lorraine Levey, and Barbara Ann Cox.

YOUNG MEN'S GROUP OF MIDWESTERN CLUB TO GIVE FIRST DANCE

The first major social activity of the newly organized young men's division of the Midwestern Athletic club, an informal dance and splash party, will be held Saturday evening in the clubhouse, 6 North Hamlin avenue.

HAROLD BAER.
[Ebert Photo.]

According to Harold Baer, chairman of the entertainment committee, the dance will be held on the roof garden of the club and guests will be invited to make use of the swimming pool at any time throughout the evening.

"Although we are a new organization, we have made rapid strides, and anticipate becoming the outstanding young men's club on the west side," said Mr. Baer. The organization is an auxiliary of the Midwestern club and was originated by the senior division.

PROVISO REALTY BOARD WILL HOLD ITS FIRST OUTING

Members of the Proviso Real Estate board are planning to hold the first annual picnic of the newly organized group some time in August. Phillips park, Aurora, is the setting receiving most favorable mention for the scene of the outing which will be attended by the 27 members and their families. A. F. Bossy is chairman of the entertainment committee.

The Proviso Real Estate board, formerly the Maywood Real Estate board, enlarged its scope to cover all of Proviso township when it was reorganized last February.

W. H. Babcock of Maywood is president. A. M. Hunter of Bellwood, vice president; F. M. Davies of Maywood, secretary, and E. M. Elbert of Maywood, treasurer.

An ordinance requiring a $5 deposit on water from all new tenants, recommended by the realtors, was recently passed by the Maywood village board, and it is said that the village of Bellwood is considering similar action.

Secretary Davies, representing the oldest real estate company in Maywood, reported midsummer activities indicating a continued desire for home ownership and an increase of prices for homes and rentals. During a recent week, the firm made five sales of homes ranging in price from $4,000 to $7,000. One of the sales was for $5,500, all cash.

Persecution of Jews Subject of J. P. I. Lecture

"Why Jews Are Persecuted" is the subject on which Dr. H. Percy Ward will speak Thursday evening on the roof garden of the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. It is the fifth lecture in his series on "Pressing Problems of the World Today."

Cass Church Retains Rural Identity Through 100 Years

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Though struggling at times in its efforts to perpetuate the influence of its founders, Cass church, at Joliet road and Cass avenue in Downers Grove township, will complete its first century of service this fall, and members of the congregation, several of them descendants of the organizers, have begun plans for fitting observance of the 100th anniversary.

Under the pastorate of the Rev. Herman Renkema, and with the support of a loyal group of workers, the church, at the approach of its significant birthday, finds itself in a stronger position than for many years. Joliet road, with its four lanes of concrete, runs directly past the modest frame structure, but it is a thoughtless motorist who does not catch the spirit of peace on hearing the church bell's toll on Sunday mornings.

In its quiet setting, Cass church, named after an early settler, provides a landmark symbolic of a changeless set of values in a turbulent and troubled world. The settlement, so close to Chicago with its ceaseless progress, has remained a farming section. The stage coach inn, that stood nearby, has long since vanished, leaving only the church, the school house, and the cemetery.

Recall Pioneer Names.

Among the old grave stones in the cemetery is that of Joseph Smart, who had much to do with establishing the church which first held services in a school house. The half acre for church property, as well as the cemetery half acre, were donated by William Smart. The family of William Henry Smart is still active in the organization. Miss Grace Smart is church secretary and Sunday school superintendent, and Miss Ada Smart is church organist.

The late Congressman Martin B. Madden, whose country estate is in the locality, and Mrs. Madden, the former Miss Josephine Smart, are buried in the little cemetery.

The Oldfield and Littleford families, with the Smarts, were active in the church at its beginning and are among the families whose descendants are carrying on the work. At his death, five years ago, Ruben Littleford bequeathed $5,000 to the church which he had attended all his life.

Drop Denomination.

Originally a Methodist group, the church became non-denominational eight years ago. The present church was built 65 years ago. In 1913, after the steeple had been struck by lightning, Mrs. Flora Avery of Oak Park donated a bell for the new tower in memory of her daughter, wife of one of the pastors, the Rev. Winfred Cronk.

For the most part, the church has been served by student pastors. The Rev. Mr. Renkema, present pastor, is a graduate of the Moody Bible institute.

Special music for the 100th anniversary celebration is being prepared by a choir of 50 voices. Effort will be made on the occasion to bring back old members, many of whom live in Downers Grove and nearby towns.

Members of the church board active in planning the anniversary are Homer Andrus, president; L. C. Petermann, vice president; Miss Grace Smart, secretary; and Mrs. Florence Smart, treasurer. Directors are Mrs. Homer Andrus, Mrs. W. E. Littleford, Mrs. Edward Zarn, Charles Oldfield, Warren Littleford, Clinton Cheese and C. H. Smart.

Another Old Church.

Four miles away, another country church, St. John's Evangelical Lutheran, of which the Rev. H. A. Laufer is pastor, celebrated its 75th anniversary last year. This church is located in what was once the town of Lace, and there are indications of what was once a postoffice and a small trading center along the winding gravel road. Among the vanished industries was a cheese factory.

Much progress has taken place since the Rev. Mr. Laufer became pastor in 1927. An activity of the Ladies' Aid has been the interior decorating of the church, the old church tower has been replaced, the parsonage improved, and the church painted. The Luther league was responsible for installation of electric lights.

The recent annual church picnic held on the Otto Kelm farm was attended by persons from Wheatland, Downers Grove, Lemont and Hinsdale.

SEARS-ROEBUCK "Y" GROUPS WILL GIVE CONCERT

A joint concert will be presented by the Men's orchestra and Glee club of the Sears Roebuck Y. M. C. A. Friday evening in the lobby of the building, 3210 Arthington street. The orchestra has 55 members, and the chorus 30.

The annual tennis tournament of the Sears "Y," matches of which are being played every day, will close July 31. A junior tourney for boys also is in progress. A horse shoe tournament is to be held in the near future.

According to an announcement made last week, the annual athletic championship meet of the "Y" has been scheduled for Aug. 24.

Fitzgerald Boosters Now in 3d Place in Softball Loop

The Julian T. Fitzgerald Boosters have climbed to third place, one game out of second position, in the Chicago Major Softball league, it was announced last week. The team, composed of young women, is coached by Douglas Gunkel and sponsored by Julian T. Fitzgerald, president of the West Side Kiwanis club.

Downers Grove Church to Hold Picnic Today

St. Paul's Evangelical church in Downers Grove will hold its annual picnic today on the George Faulhaber farm located on 75th street in Downers Grove township. No services will be held in the church, but an open air service will be conducted at 11 o'clock this morning on the picnic grounds.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

FROM Maywood comes word about a recent graduate of Proviso Township High school, Miss Dorothy Klupping, who is endeavoring to earn her college tuition money this summer. According to our informant, Dorothy was seen earlier this month as a helper on a truck, delivering fireworks during the rush. This ambitious young woman plans to attend McMurray college, where she will specialize in physical education.

Miss Ruth Schulz, 4011 Woodland avenue, Western Springs, is the newly elected president of Psi chapter, Delta Omicron, national music sorority. She recently returned to our town from the national convention of the sorority at Interlochen, Mich.

ONE of the prettiest and largest hollyhock gardens to be seen in these parts is that of Mrs. Anna N. Benson of 532 Anthony street, Glen Ellyn. On a gentle incline near her home are 200 plants, about 8 feet high. The plot is 50 feet wide. Mrs. Benson says that the flowers are at their best each year from July 15 to 23, when more than 20 colorings and shadings may be seen. These range from red through pink, purple, lavender, white, yellow, cream, brown, and peach. Some are so dark as to be almost black.

Golden wedding anniversaries recently celebrated on the west side were those of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Neitzel, 5952 Race avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Osbornson of Oak Park. Mr. and Mrs. Neitzel came to Chicago from Germany in 1880. They have been residents of Austin since 1914, and still are living in the house they took at that time. The couple has nine sons and daughters, and ten grandchildren.

The latest of our townswomen to become engaged are Miss Olive Heim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Heim, 4830 Thomas street, and Miss Freda Siegel, daughter of Benjamin Siegel of 3360 West Adams street. Miss Heim's fiancé is Arthur Schmidt of 925 North Cicero avenue, and Arthur Natenberg is Miss Siegel's.

THE REV. F. E. DAVISON, pastor of the Austin Boulevard Christian church, has been chosen by the Federal Council of the Church of Christ of America as one of twelve delegates from North America to the meeting of the Universal Council on Life and Work. The meeting is to be held from Aug. 18 to 21 in Lausanne, Switzerland. Following the conference the Rev. Mr. Davison hopes to go to Milan, Italy, where he plans to see and study the original painting of Da Vinci's "The Last Supper." Incidentally, the Rev. Davison has made more than 300 lectures on a reproduction of the painting, which was made by Charles Bell of Oak Park. He will sail from New York July 29.

The marriage of their daughter, Adelaide Georgeanna, to William E. Schmidt of Oak Park is announced by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Soffe, 741 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park.

WHEN Jerry E. Jacobson, city clerk of Berwyn, and Mrs. Jacobson recently suggested to Miss Lillian Cerle that they were contemplating a week-end fishing trip in Michigan, Miss Cerle, a sister of Mrs. Jacobson, making her home with the couple, was enthusiastic about the outing, but was reluctant about going along. On the Jacobsons' return they found a note saying that during their absence Miss Cerle had become Mrs. John Williams and was on her way to New York for the honeymoon. All of which goes to prove that with a little ingenuity it is possible to maneuver a quiet wedding.

BABY EDWARD ATZEL, born to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Atzel of 2700 Sacramento boulevard, Tuesday, in the Franklin Boulevard hospital, has not only the regulation two sets of grandparents, but three great grandmothers, and one great grand uncle. Incidentally, Great Grandmother Ann Brady of 2831 North Mobile avenue is keeping the little fellow company during his stay at the hospital. Mrs. Brady is confined there with a broken arm and shoulder. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Atzel, 2700 Sacramento boulevard and Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Rosengren, 1327 North Long avenue. Mrs. Kate Pelke, 2700 Sacramento boulevard and Mrs. K. Rosengren of Seattle, Wash., are the other great grandmothers, and Hubert O'Connell, 1153 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park, the great grand uncle.

NATIONAL ROQUE MEET TO BE HELD IN GARFIELD PARK

Garfield park, possessing what are said to be the best roque courts in the United States, will be the scene of the official national roque tournament, it was announced last week. The tournament will be held for three days, Aug. 12, 13, and 14. According to P. H. Leiderman, recreation director of the Garfield park area, entries will be filed Aug. 12 in the Garfield park administration building. Applications for entry have already been received from Elgin, Aurora, Peoria, Cleveland, Washington, Spokane, and Lincoln and Washington parks in Chicago.

Royal League Will Meet at Annual Picnic Today

Mrs. Cecilia Zabilka, 1315 South Cuyler avenue, Berwyn, and Mrs. Jule Restochil, 3852 Forest avenue, Brookfield, compose the refreshment committee for the annual picnic to be held by the Royal League today in Ehrhardt's grove. The outing is being sponsored by the league's advisory council of Illinois for the benefit of league juniors, who will take part in a field meet and baseball game during the afternoon.

75 CITY GROUPS TO BE AFFECTED BY UNIFICATION

Final Approval Due Next Summer.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

As another move toward the final completion of the merger of Evangelical and Reformed churches of America effected last summer at Cleveland, O., members of seventy-five Chicago churches today will hear for the first time the ministerial announcement of the draft of the new constitution of the merged churches issued by special committee. The Rev. Henry Dinkmeyer, pastor of Bethany church, 4242 North Paulina street, member of the constitutional committee, made public the merger document, said to be unique among papers of that sort.

THE REV. HENRY DINKMEYER.

Important among aspects of this draft, which comes up for final approval at general synod next summer at Fort Wayne, Ind., the Rev. Mr. Dinkmeyer said, is the fact that the constitution succeeds instead of precedes the decision of both churches to merge.

"Instead of drafting a constitution to fit an anticipated merger, the churches agreed to sink all doctrinal and administrative differences, merge forthwith, and let problems be considered later as, in reality, they may arise," the Rev. Mr. Dinkmeyer explained.

Will Effect Economies.

"The proposed constitution, which will be considered by our congregations on Sunday, beyond representing another step forward in the field of Protestant unity, will make the internal management of both denominations, such as schools, colleges, and missions, letters of transfer, powers and personnel of boards and local synods, far more effective and economical."

The new constitution will contain many features which are different from those of either of the former churches. Provision is being made for a full time president as the official head of the church. All the congregations in a given territory, irrespective of former affiliation, language, or other considerations, are to be included in the same synod.

Each congregation is to have an official board, to be known as the consistory. Congregations not at present possessing this will continue to function under their existing organization. The president of the consistory will be the pastor or an elder, and elders or deacons may be either ordained or consecrated to their offices. There is also to be a board of elders to exercise guidance in the spiritual affairs of the congregation and to admit or transfer members.

Plan Biennial Meetings.

The administration of the affairs of the church at large will be committed to the officers of the church, the general council, and the administrative boards and agencies named by the general synod, which last will meet biennially. A moderator chosen by each regular general synod, not the president of the church, will preside over the sessions, and each synod will be represented in the general synod by a minister and one lay member.

The church will enact its legislation through the biennial general synod, except such matters as are specifically referred to synods, areas, consistories, or congregations; but there will be only one church court between the general synod and the congregation.

The Evangelical synod has had twenty-one districts and the Reformed church fifty-eight districts, each known as a classis. It is proposed to divide the church into approximately thirty-five local synods. These synods will be grouped into areas, probably six in all. The area will have no legislative authority, but it will have a full time president, who with the presidents of the synods and several laymen will constitute the area council.

To Aid Placements.

The locating of pastors has been among the most difficult problems in both churches, and it is felt that this placement committee may become an important factor in providing a satisfactory solution. When a minister desires a change of pastorate, or a congregation desires a change of minister, either shall make the request in writing to the placement committee through the president of the synod.

The provisional constitution which was assigned to the committee on constitution by the general synod of the Evangelical and Reformed church on June 27, 1934, has been prepared by four subcommittees.

The first of the four made a study of the incorporation of the church. The Evangelical synod is an incorporation and holds much of its property as a denomination, while in the Reformed church the boards and institutions are separately incorporated and hold property. The second prepared a draft on membership; the third on organization, administration, and discipline, and the fourth has been entrusted with the preamble and the statement of doctrin and worship.

BEACH FESTIVAL ON LAKE FRONT TO LAST 3 DAYS

10,000 Children Will Be Guests Aug. 26.

ROBERT J. DUNHAM.

Business and civic organizations as well as women's groups on the north, northwest and west sides of the city are coöperating with the Chicago park district in sponsoring a three day beach festival at Montrose-Wilson beach the last week in August. More than 60 representatives of the various groups aided in planning the program, which was announced following a conference in Lincoln park last week.

The carnival is designed to develop additional interest in the lake beaches among all residents north of Jackson boulevard and to give orphaned and crippled children of that area an opportunity for an outing. The first day's program, announced for Aug. 26, will be devoted to those children.

Underprivileged children will attend a beach picnic on the Montrose-Wilson sand, reaching the scene and returning in 50 buses to be provided by the Chicago Motor Coach company. Plans for transporting 10,000 children in the buses and private automobiles have been completed.

A stage will be erected on the beach and two one-hour shows will be given for the youthful guests. The shows will be produced from the best talent available in the small parks and directed by park district dramatists. Acts will be selected for children.

A water carnival will be held on the second day of the festival, Aug. 27. Features include swimming, diving, life saving demonstrations, and other aquatic events. Ensignia will be awarded to persons who have qualified in the park district's Junior Life Saving school.

Crown Young Queen.

Selection and crowning of a "Miss Neptune" will be another highlight of the second day. She will be selected from girls under 9 years old who are now attending the free learn-to-swim classes of the park district. Judging will be on ability as a swimmer and appearance. Hours of the Aug. 27 program will be from 10 o'clock to 3 o'clock.

Organizations coöperating in the carnival will have their outing on the final day of the event, Aug. 28, in the form of a picnic. Magnitude of the Montrose-Wilson beach, which extends for more than three-quarters of a mile and is said to be the largest artificial beach in the world, will be stressed on that day.

A "Miss Popularity" or "Miss Chicago Park District" will be selected and crowned as the most representative girl between the ages of 17 and 25 years among the organizations. Each district taking part in the three day program will select a candidate for judging on Aug. 28.

Committee chairmen for the festival were appointed as follows: Frank J. Pomczak, transportation; Si Mayer, refreshments; Mrs. John Hancock, prizes; Austin J. Pritchard, contests; Roy I. Levinson, publicity, and "Uncle" Bob Wilson, entertainment.

Representatives attending the Lincoln park meeting, presided over by Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district, included George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the Chicago park district; Mrs. Henry Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Martha Van Wakeman, president of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Clifton K. Timmons, chairman state law observance, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

Others at Meeting.

Others were Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE staf; William Sherwood, general manager, Chicago Motor Coach company; Dr. Philip L. Seaman, chairman, Chicago recreation commission; J. W. Bier, president, Uptown-Clark Business Men's association; Si Mayer, president, Automobile Club of Illinois; Charles L. Patterson, president, Midtown Kiwanis club; George F. Sexton, past commander, 7th district, American Legion; William C. Calvert, secretary, North Central association; Mrs. Theresa Birmingham, vice president, Business and Professional Women's club; Harry W. Delano, Lincoln Park Kiwanis.

Others attending were A. J. Pritchard, president, Sheridan Center association; George S. Craig, director, Sheridan Center association; Charles A. Amesta, chairman, Sauganash community participation committee; Edward N. Kaercher, North Side News; Roy I. Levinson, chairman, northwest side community participation committee; T. R. Daly, bureau of parks and recreation; T. E. Boswell, president, Rogers Park-Clark Street Business Men's association; Leo A. Lerner, editor, Lincoln-Belmont Booster.

C. A. Bethge, West Central association; Harry Dooley, Chicago Motor Coach company; Irving Felkoff of Felkoff Boys' club; Paul G. Trubel of North Town Booster; A. H. Balser of Austin Booster; Arthur M. Romme, editor, Austin Booster; Miss Katherine Sehe, St. Joseph's hospital; Esther C. Miller, Northwest Town Booster; Mrs. Charles V. Pagano, North Town Business organization; Lena E. Glenny, secretary, Howard District Business association; "Uncle" Bob Wilson of station WIND.

List More Boosters.

C. W. Wermich, publisher, North Center News; Albert Wohlers, publisher, Logan Square Herald; Walter W. Goralski, Central Northwest Booster; Alfred A. Behnke, secretary, Avondale Chamber of Commerce; Anna H. Steinborn, president, Portage Park P.-T. A.; Harry G. Weimer, publisher, Central Northwest Topics; A. H. Krohm, president, Chicago Federation of Business Associations; State Representative Edward P. Saltiel; Frank J. Tomczak, Logan Square district; Victor Kirsch and Orville E. Clark, Sheridan Center association; Mrs. Agnes H. Flugge and Mrs. C. G. Nunamaker, representing north side women's clubs; Herman Roy, D. K. Penny, C. P. Mustard, V. F. Hernlund, and Lee G. Ross of the Chicago park district, and D. F. Kelly of the Fair.

Mr. Kelly agreed to completely outfit the winner of the "Miss Neptune" contest in street wear. C. L. Patterson, representing the Cunningham Ice Cream company, volunteered to provide ice cream for the orphans and crippled children.

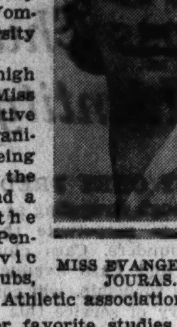
GREEK WOMEN AWARD U. OF C. SCHOLARSHIP



MISS EVANGELINE JOURAS.

Miss Evangeline Jouras, 959 North Lockwood avenue, a graduate of Austin High school, was announced last week as the winner of the first scholarship to the University of Chicago awarded by the Greek Women's University club.

During her high school career Miss Jouras was active in several organizations, being president of the Latin club and a member of the "Y," Inter, Pentong, and Civic Industrial Clubs, and the Girls' Athletic association.

Although her favorite studies were Latin and English, she is as yet undecided as to what subject she will major in at the university. The scholarship, which was opened to high school girls of Greek descent last fall, is renewable yearly upon the basis of high grades.

The Greek Women's University club was organized in 1931 and is composed of women of Greek extraction who are juniors, seniors, and graduates of accredited American colleges and universities. According to Miss Marjorie Harvalis, president, its chief purpose is the promotion of education among Greek girls and women.

FAIR POLICE WILL HOLD PICNIC AND REUNION SUNDAY

The Century of Progress Police association will reunite its members at a picnic next Sunday at Birutes' grove, 79th street and Archer avenue. Free bus service will be provided from the intersection of 79th street and Western avenue every half hour, beginning at 9:30 o'clock. Clarence Berger, Charles Post, Frank Costello and Erwin Rach are arranging the picnic, which is to be the first of a series of annual events.

St. Hedwig's Young Men's Club to Hold Picnic Sunday

The Young Men's club of St. Hedwig's parish will hold its 15th annual picnic next Sunday at the Countryside Athletic club in Mundelein. The group will meet at 10 o'clock in the morning at Hoyne avenue and Lyndale street and will make the trip by bus. John Spychala is chairman. His committee includes Phil Jablonski, Fred Grudzien, John Gordon Jr., and Henry Kutza.

WEST SIDE FETE WILL WELCOME NEW YORK BOXERS

Parade in Garfield Park to Open Ceremony.

Garfield park on the west side will be the scene Wednesday of a welcoming parade and reception for the New York Catholic Boys' club boxers, in which many residents of this community will take part.

Festivities will continue Monday evening, July 29, with a banquet for the New Yorkers and the Catholic Youth organization fighters, to be held in the Midwestern Athletic club under the auspices of the Garfield Park Business Men's association. The Chicagoans are to meet the visitors July 31 in Wrigley field.

Richard M. Lenihan, chairman of the membership and publicity committees of the Garfield Park Business Men's association, heads the reception committee. He announced last week that more than 150,000 are expected to witness the parade and welcome ceremony, which will center about the band stand, just south of Madison street in the park.

2,500 Scouts to March.

The parade will commence at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, and will be headed by the 132d infantry regiment under the command of Col. H. E. Algeo. Some 2,500 Boy Scouts from every parish in the city will be in the line of march. Among the thirty bands to participate will be those of St. Mary's Training school, De La Salle institute, St. Phillip High school, Fenwick High school, and the Zouaves of Visitation parish.

West siders to appear on the speaker's stand are Theodore J. Prodie, president of the business men's group; Ray McCarthy, William M. Druley, and Mr. Lenihan. Among the notables expected to be present are Bishop B. J. Sheil, Alfred E. Smith, Mayor La Guardia, James J. Braddock, Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Gov. Horner, P. K. Wrigley, Mayor Kelly, D. F. Kelly, and Barney Ross.

These and others are expected to be present also at the banquet, of which Carl Stockholm is chairman. Members of the Garfield park club on the banquet committee include A. F. Figatner, Phillip E. Scanlan, Mr. Prodie, Mr. Druley, T. H. Golightly, John A. Halley, Mr. McCarthy, F. J. Brichacek, Joseph A. Hart, and Edward O'Donnell.

Others Aiding Fête.

Others are A. E. Olson, F. J. Finn, A. L. Feldman, John Connery, Dr. M. D. Traxler, George Phillips, O. D. Jennings, Thomas J. O'Brien, Peter M. Kelly, F. J. Skala, Frank Campbell, E. C. Schneider, Russell Jones, E. J. Berg, Wesley Beutler, Archie Marschak, and George P. Madigan.

Also: E. M. Kerwin, George D. Gaw, Walter F. Powers, Walter J. Kelly, Julian T. Fitzgerald, Gene Sweeney, William Sullivan, John E. Sullivan, Walter Buescher, and Paul Healy. Mr. Fitzgerald is also chairman of the clubhouse committee. The boxers will be housed at the Midwestern Athletic club during their stay here.

It is expected, according to Mr. Lenihan, that merchants on Madison street from Western avenue on the east and Austin boulevard on the west, and at the intersections of Western, Kedzie, Pulaski road, Cicero, Central, and Austin, at Madison street, will decorate their stores during the week.

Notre Dame Alumni Hear Plans for Laymen's Retreat

The Rev. Patrick H. Dolan, director of the Catholic laymen's retreat to be held on the University of Notre Dame campus, Notre Dame, Ind., beginning Aug. 1, outlined the history of the laymen's retreat movement before the members of the Notre Dame club of Chicago at their regular meeting Tuesday at Mandel Brothers' grill. At that meeting it was announced that the Notre Dame club would take an active part in the coming retreat. J. P. Henneberry has charge of arrangements.

LEGION EARLYBIRDS

DEADLINE NEARS IN POSTMASTER EXAM AT HINES

Citizens of Two Other Suburbs Eligible.

Applications to fill the vacancy in the position of postmaster in Hines, under United States civil service competitive examination, will close Tuesday. Residence requirements for the examination have been extended to include Maywood and Riverside, and applications are being accepted from residences of these villages who show they meet the residence requirements.

At the request of the postmaster general, the minimum age limit for the position of postmaster at a second class office such as Hines, has been changed so that applicants must have reached their 23d birthday instead of their 25th on the closing date for receipt of applications.

The postoffice at Hines formerly was a branch of the Maywood postoffice, and Iver Hanson was former postmaster. Clifford Neely is now acting postmaster. The position pays an annual salary of $2,400.

According to the application forms, which may be obtained from Fred O. Benn, secretary of the United States civil service commission at the Maywood postoffice, both men and women are admitted to the examinations.

Under the terms of the executive order, the civil service commission will certify to the postmaster general the names of the highest three qualified eligibles, from which the postmaster general may select one for nomination by the president. Confirmation by the senate is the final action.

Along with the scholastic tests, the commission will make inquiry among representative local, business, and professional men and women, concerning the experience, ability, and character of each applicant.

Horticultural Group Will Hear Talk on Cut Flowers

"The Use of Cut Flowers in the Home" will be the subject of a talk to be given by Miss Cecil M. Baunach before the Midwest Horticultural society at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the board room of the Garfield park administration building. Miss Baunach will demonstrate her talk with both home garden material and flowers seasonable in flower shops.

Two P.-T. A. Groups Will Hold Picnic Next Sunday

The Robert Burns and Farragut High school Parent-Teacher associations wil hold a joint picnic next Sunday in McCormick grove, 31st street and First avenue. Games will be played, prizes distributed, and refreshments served. Admittance is free to members of the associations. Mrs. F. J. Rus, 2329 South Central Park avenue, has charge of tickets.

CARR POST LEADS IN MEMBERSHIP DRIVE OF LEGION

Also Completes Record First in State.

Spurred by the first district slogan, "The First Shall Be First," originated by Commander Percy Brautigan, Earl A. Carr post No. 302 of the American Legion, recently came through first in the drive to renew memberships for 1936.

Not only does Carr post find itself first in its district but first to go on record in the state. Recently a check signed by 74 post members was presented by Commander Elect William T. Sloan to Matt Murphy, commander of the Cook county council. The check constituted dues for the coming year, and was signed by two more members than were credited to the post last year.

Carr post, with headquarters in the loop, is composed almost entirely of employés of the Pure Oil company, with places of residence scattered throughout the city and suburbs.

World war veterans of the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital in Maywood will view a vaudeville show Thursday evening, to be presented by the Bryant post of the American Legion. Robert Dunlop, 1644 South 61st court, Cicero, will act as master of ceremonies, and will be assisted by William Suchy, 1801 South 58th court, Cicero.

C. L. Siebert was recently elected commander of Hiram J. Slifer post No. 135, at a meeting held at the Great Northern hotel. Charles J. Murphy was elected senior vice commander, Edward H. Flynn, junior vice commander, and Fred G. Webster, financ officer. The post recently constructed a cabin at the Forty and Eight Convalescent center.

Van Buren post No. 401 will hold its annual picnic on the afternoon of Aug. 3, at Harm's park, 4200 North Western avenue. Entertainment will include dancing, races, games and a round robin between the soft ball teams of Van Buren post, Lincoln Park post and Electric post.

CHILDREN WILL TAKE ROLES IN OAK PARK CIRCUS

Special entertainment planned for the near future at the Oak Park play grounds include a circus on Aug. 9, at Andersen and Aug. 12 at Carroll playground, a pet show Aug. 16, at Barry playground, and an all-sport day and exhibition of handicraft on Aug. 23 at Stevenson playground. Miss Josephine Blackstock, director, said that the circus will include chariot races, dare devil stunts, parades, and exhibits. It is expected that 300 boys and girls will participate.

CONTESTS, TOURS SHOWS FILL TIME OF GARDEN CLUBS

Summer Displays Planned by Suburban Groups.

When the summer sun is high and most organizations have closed up shop for the season members of the west suburban garden clubs are at their busiest with contests, tours, planting, and plans for September flower shows.

Among the most active of these is the Garden Club of Oak Park and River Forest, which planned three contests for home gardens this summer. During the June competition 63 entered. A contest is being held this month, and there will be one in September.

"Entrants are listed under two classifications," said Mrs. Harvey J. Carson, president, "those doing all their own work and those employing outside help. Ribbons are awarded for first, second, and third places, and certificates given to the next few highest. Mrs. S. A. Clark is chairman of the contests."

Opens Garden Center.

The Oak Park and River Forest club has established a garden center in Oak Park this year, where information on all matters pertaining to the art of gardening may be obtained by the public. Plots on the grounds of the Hephzibah Children's tome and the Charleton Day nursery, and two trees, one in Oak Park and one in River Forest, are planted every summer. Tours of gardens noted for their beauty are made throughout the season by members. The club has a roll call of 111.

Plans for the fourth annual show to be held the second week in September in the home of Mrs. John L. Pentecost are now being made by the Elmhurst Garden club. According to Mrs. Maurice E. King, president, there will be a predominance of iris, dahlias, and annuals on display. The next meeting of the Elmhurst group, following which tours of members' gardens will be made, is to be held the first week in August.

Lombard Club Meeting.

Mrs. Richard H. Menz, president of the Lombard Garden club, announced last week that members will meet Friday to hear Mrs. George Kendall of Glen Ellyn speak on "Fragrance in the Garden." This group will hold no summer show. A membership drive is being planned for this fall by the Berwyn Garden club. Mrs. E. E. Cummings, president, will be in charge of the campaign.

The Home Garden club of Wheaton, which will hold its next meeting Aug. 14, recently planted a flower bed in Wheaton Memorial park. The form of the bed took the shape of a star. Red, white, and blue petunias were used. Mrs. D. C. Blair is chairman of the club's planting committee and Mrs. Roy G. Bartlett president of the group.

Forest Park Show Sept. 4.

According to an announcement made by Mrs. William J. Harden, the Garden club of Forest Park will hold its annual midsummer show Sept. 4 in the auditorium of the Curtis school in Forest Park. Mrs. Emil Hirsch has been named chairman of the show. The club will hold its next meeting Aug. 14.

Members of the Maywood Garden club will attend a luncheon Aug. 15 in the home of Mrs. Clayton Pierce of Rogers Park. A luncheon and flower show for members only in the home of Mrs. J. J. Holland of Hillside is being planned for September. Mrs. W. G. McKinney is president of the club.

ANNUAL PICNIC OF RAVENSWOOD CLUB TO BE TODAY

The second annual picnic of the Jewish Men's club of Ravenswood will be held today at Harms Woods in Glen View. A. J. Kimmell, chairman of the club's picnic committee, has announced. The program will include music, dancing, races, baseball, and other games, with prizes to be awarded in the various events.

Members will take their families to the outing and special attractions have been planned for all, including favors and games for children. Those going to the picnic in a party will leave from Lawrence and Francisco avenues at 10 o'clock this morning.

For members outside the party Mr. Kimmell has announced the route as follows: California avenue north to Dempster street, turn west about three miles to Harms road and north to the picnic grove in Harms Woods. Samuel H. Morrison is president of the men's club, Herman M. Mendelsohn is corresponding secretary, and Joseph Caro is recording secretary.

Leads Auxiliary

ROMANCE OF CAMPUS

Mrs. Charles C. Allen, formerly Miss Edith Marie Sloan of River Forest, whose wedding last month was the culmination of a campus romance at Northwestern university. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sloan, 7600 Augusta street, River Forest, and was graduated from Stevens college prior to her entrance at Northwestern. Mr. Allen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Allen, 324 North Marion street, Oak Park, and is a graduate of Culver Military academy. The Allens have made their home in Miami Beach, Fla.

HINSDALE GOLF CLUB DANCE WILL BE ON SATURDAY

Arrange Japanese Scene on Pool Terrace.

A restful and colorful spot in the west suburban area these midsummer days is the swimming pool of the Hinsdale Golf club, which will be the scene of a dinner dance Saturday night. Dancing will take place amid a Japanese setting on the pool terrace. William Wedell is chairman of the entertainment committee.

The pool, opened a year ago, is now at the height of its short but busy season. Adjacent to the clubhouse, the pool, with its blue floor that gives the water a blue-green effect, is surrounded by the open country of the golf course and the green foliage of the wooded grounds. On both sides of the flagstone terrace are varihued sun umbrellas for the comfort of spectators.

Lake Is Beautified.

With a full membership, the club is enjoying the most intensive activity of its entire history, and guests of the members, visiting Hinsdale from all parts of the country, have commented on the recreational facilities.

A project this summer of the committee appointed by President J. Harvey Irwin is the beautifying of the lake in the midst of the golf course. Flower beds have been planted and tan bark walks built about the body of water.

During the day the youngsters have use of the pool with its art marble walls which other clubs have copied for their own swimming pool projects. At 4:30 o'clock each afternoon the young folk turn the pool over to their elders. The pool has an underwater lighting system. Attendants are a coach, a guard, and two maids.

Summer Residents.

Those who have taken rooms at the clubhouse for the summer season are Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Jackson, of Chicago and Miami Beach, Fla., returned for their fourteenth year; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Rickards and daughter, Miss Miriam, of the Edgewater Beach hotel; Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Conway of 1400 Lake Shore drive; B. E. Ward of the University club; J. P. St. Clair and K. F. Montgomery of the Belmont hotel, Louis Jacoby of the Union League club, Chicago, and Dallas, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. McIntire of Hinsdale, and R. F. Bostleman of La Grange.

Des Plaines Will Hold Infant Welfare Clinics

The next infant welfare clinic will be held in Des Plaines at the Health center in the Central school, Thacker and Center streets, between 12:45 and 2:45 o'clock Tuesday evening.

HONEYMOON IN BLACK HILLS

Mrs. William R. Dunk is the former Miss Elaine Marie Le Verb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Le Verb, 601 Lake street, Maywood, whose marriage took place recently in St. James church, Maywood. The couple, now motoring through the Black Hills of South Dakota, Montana, and Yellowstone National Park, will return Sept. 1. Mr. Dunk formerly resided at 315 South 6th avenue, Maywood.

SCOUTS TO LEAVE HIGHLAND PARK FOR CAMP TODAY

The last contingent of Scouts and parents of the North Shore Area council will leave Highland Par this evening for the third camping period at Camp Ma-Ka-Ja-Wan at Pearson, Wis. The period will open tomorrow and close Aug. 3.

Heading the list of activities for campers are the regular hikes taken to the northern woods along marked trails through natural beauty. Every camper at Ma-Ka-Ja-Wan receives personal instruction in swimming under the supervision of Red Cross life guards.

The handicraft department is popular also. The program also includes canoeing, boating, rowing, sailing, fishing, playground activities, baseball games and other activities. Campfire programs provide entertainment in the evenings.

MYSTERY DRAMA TO BE PRODUCED AT LAKE ZURICH

"The Bells," an early English mystery play by Sir Henry Irving, will be revived next Saturday night by the Lake Zurich Summer Theater players in their playhouse at Lake Zurich.

Last night the players encamped at Lake Zurich presented an old English comedy, "The Beaux Strategem," by George Farquhar. The first play of the season, "Another Language," drew a capacity house a week previous, Fred Bray, manager of the company, reported.

Recent additions to membership in the colony include Miles Sullivan, Ibb Tenant, and Miss Jane Haskins of Highland Park; George Miller and Mrs. George Dunlap of Barrington, Norman Watson of Northbrook, Miss Birdine Morris of Aurora, Miss Mary Clinch of Elmwood, Miss Imogene Kaufman of Wilmette, Don Lamson of Evanston.

DANCE AND FIGHT SHOW TO CLIMAX WESTMONT FETE

Festival Proceeds Aid Fund for Lights.

With dancing and boxing bouts, Westmont's four day summer festival will come to a close tonight. Much interest has been aroused over the competition for a silver loving cup and the title of Miss Westmont in a popularity contest.

Races in the lighted ball field, centrally located, have preceded the boxing bouts, which will go into their finals tonight. Along Cass avenue, between Irving street and Burlington avenue, merchants have erected colorful booths. Dancing to a seven piece orchestra has been held on the street.

The purpose of the festival, with Harry Berkowitz as chairman, has been the raising of funds to maintain the ornamental street lights in the business section, and during the four days the advantage of the lighting system has been demonstrated.

Westmont again will take on gala attire during the week of Aug. 10 to 18 when Westmont post No. 338 of the American Legion will hold its annual carnival, proceeds from which will be used to complete the Memorial building now under construction on North Cass avenue.

VOX POP BOSSES ARE RADIO'S ACE TIME WASTERS

They Glorify the American Pedestrian!

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Two weather beaten gents from Houston, Tex., who answer to the names of Jerry Belcher and Parks Johnson, are occupied these Sunday evenings with a pioneer effort to glorify that great American, the Man in the Street, and at the same time to help pass the time for that other sterling citizen, the Man in the Armchair.

Now radio is much concerned with time wasting. And in efficient time wasting is a major yardstick their program, which they call the Voice of the People, is just about perfect. In addition to wasting listeners' time they succeed also in wasting the time of the passersby, whom they seek to interview, the stander-arounders and the hanger-oners.

In fact, they waste everybody's time, including the sponsor's. And they do the latter so effectively that when he counts up the added cakes of yeast sold at the end of the next week he surely will count it more than well wasted.

Little Preparation Necessary.

Vox Pop is a great show from the point of view of the guys who run it as well as the listeners. No rehersals, practically no advance preparation. Thus Belcher and Johnson may go to the ball game practically every afternoon—in fact they say they do.

Late Sunday afternoon they go forth with a sturdy microphone and plant it on a convenient and busy sidewalk in New York. [Incidentally, the sponsor would make quite a hit by moving them to a different town each Sunday.] The exact spot they keep a closely guarded secret until the very end of the broadcast. Last Sunday, for example, they set up in the Grand Central station.

There's a good reason for keeping still about the location. Listeners in the neighborhood, if the broadcast point were announced, might otherwise bolt from their armchairs to the wide open mike, creating not only a trafic hazard but ruining the windy informality of the program.

The success of their interviews ought to be largely credited to the astounding triviality of the questions asked. Does a pig's tail curl to the right or left? How many legs has an octogenarian? Have you ever been bitten by one? Are a cow's horns in front or behind her ears? Does a horse rise with its front or hind feet first? What side of the front door is the door knob on? Have you ever seen a one armed paper hanger? In what month does a woman talk the least? [February!]

Catch Folks Off Guard.

They like to catch people off their guard. They feel that they are more or less inclined to take down their hair if the questions are not of earth shaking importance.

Their method of operation is something like this: They make a personal tour of likely spots for a broadcast. After selecting one they approach the owner of a nearby building through which a telephone connection would need to be made and get permission, first swearing him to secrecy. Finally lines are ordered from the phone company.

Just before going on the air the two interviewers circulate separately among the folks passing by and get a few to agree to be interviewed. They are very positive when the question of plants and stooges is brought up.

"Absolutely not," they say. "That would be the exact opposite of what we want to do in this show and would defeat our purpose."

Seldom Embarrass Subjects.

While Belcher is interviewing one person Johnson is getting another ready for the mike. They seldom embarrass the persons they put on the air. Occasionally, if they run into a pompous figure, they may deflate him a little. Such was probably the case last Sunday when they encountered a lawyer who estimated the average vocabulary as 2,000 and his own as 8,000.

The attorney was asked to define "poise," which he did satisfactorily. Then he was asked whether he could maintain his poise if he were told that at that very moment there was a big tear in the seat of his pants!

They ask many questions that are incorrectly answered. But they make very little comment on the answers. They consider this point very important. You see, they never forget their radio audience and they have the feeling that in every living room is one person who knows all the right answers, and is itching to tell them. They couldn't show up their subjects, you see, without often showing up the wise guy in the parlor, too. And there might be too many of them to risk offending.

Houston's Big Problem.

A high point of their career in Houston was the question, "If I could do a job in four days and you could do it in three, how long would it take the two of us to do it?" Houston is still wondering about that one.

They don't worry much about off color remarks on the air. They keep away from folks who are eager to get before the microphone. Most passersby are genuinely scared of the mike the first time they face it and are likely to confine themselves to answering the questions asked them.

Once a sailor tried to spring an old navy joke about a ship. They knew the story and signaled the engineer at the controls, who cut off the microphone for a few seconds.

Rey Noble to Be Saluted on Crosley Follies Hour

Rex Griffith, formerly a staf tenor with W-G-N, will be one of the featured soloists on the "Crosley Follies" tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System. Griffith will sing the currently popular ballad "Thrilled." Rey Noble, brilliant English maestro, will be saluted by Follies orchestra directed by William Stoess. The orchestra will present a symphonic adaptation of Noble's theme songs, "Goodnight, Sweetheart" and "The Very Thought of You."

RADIO NEWSREEL

Here are Joe Sanders' "Three Jacks," Jack Gillespie, Jack Swift, and Jack Cathcart. The trio is heard nightly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system with Sanders' orchestra from the Blackhawk restaurant. Gillespie and Cathcart also play trumpets.

Things look bad—but they'll be worse. Betty Winkler is the lady in distress and Don Briggs (right) is plotting destruction for Sidney Ellstrom (center). They are reaching the awful climax of a Lights Out episode, heard Wednesday nights on NBC.

W-G-N TO CARRY GOLDEN VOICE CONTEST FINALS

A host of young women are entering THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Golden Voice Want Ad-Viser competition, in which three new members for the newspaper's phone room adtaking staf will be chosen following a final hearing over W-G-N. There will also be $300 in cash awards to be apportioned among the runner-ups.

Full details of the competition, first announced last Thursday, appear elsewhere in today's SUNDAY TRIBUNE. The 15 candidates who receive the highest scoring in the preliminary trials will be invited to participate in the final Golden Voice competition on W-G-N on a night yet to be selected.

The radio audience will be invited to vote on the candidates' voices, and this vote will be taken into consideration in deciding the winners.

MARGOT REBEIL TO BE SOLOIST ON "SYMPHONETTE"

Salerno Also Featured on New Series.

With Margot Rebeil and Lawrence Salerno as soloists and the new W-G-N chorus furnishing the ensemble vocal parts, Henry Weber and the W-G-N Concert orchestra, beginning this week, will present a new series of musicals on the regular "Symphonette" hour heard at 9:15 each Thursday evening. Raphael Spiro, violinist, will be presented on the program as the instrumental soloist.

Miss Rebeil and Salerno and the W-G-N chorus will be heard in a "Victor Herbert medley" which has been specially arranged by Alfred G. Wathall and Adolph Hoffman.

For her solo offering in the early part of the "Symphonette" program Miss Rebeil will offer "Maids of Cadiz," by Delibes. Miss Rebeil is making a return appearance on W-G-N, having presented a program with Mr. Weber's orchestra some weeks ago. She is well known on the concert stage and in opera in California.

Mr. Spiro will be presented in Fritz Kreisler's great violin number, "La Gitana."

Included in the orchestral offerings will be the First Movement of Beethoven's "Symphony in D major," the ballet music from the opera "Aida," by Verdi, and "Persian Dance," from the opera "Khovantchina," by Moussorgsky.

Tuesday evening, at 9:30, Salerno and the orchestra will present a half hour concert. The Neapolitan baritone will offer four songs—"Du bist wie eine Blume," by Schumann; "Ay, Ay, Ay," by Gounod; "Love Song," by Stewart, and "Mariska," by Lehar.

Attilio Baggiore's concert with the orchestra at 9:30 Wednesday evening will be featured by the tenor's presentation of the "Dream Melody" as a part of the orchestra's paraphrase on the music of Herbert's "Naughty Marietta."

A program made up entirely of works of Antonin Dvorak will be presented by the W-G-N Concert orchestra at 6 tonight. The program will be announced by Maestro Weber, who will tell something about the life and the music of the great Dvorak.

The program: The overture "Carneval," "The Old Mother," from "Four Gypsy Songs"; the Scherzo from the "New World Symphony," the Largo from the same work, and 'Bacchanale."

The orchestra also will be heard in the "Musical Travelog" at 8:15 p. m. in an all-Bohemian musical program and in the "Evening Concert" at 9:15 o'clock.

GARDEN EXPERTS TO BE PRESENTED ONCE EACH WEEK

W-G-N will present at 1 p. m. on Thursdays during the remainder of July and until Aug. 15, prominent members of the Garden club of Illinois who will speak on late summer and early fall flowers and plants. The schedule of speakers is as follows:

July 25—Mrs. Joseph Harrington, "Garden Centers."

Aug. 1—Mrs. Herman Black, "Lilies in the Garden."

Aug. 8—Mrs. O. W. Mandeville, "Flower Arrangements."

Aug. 15—Mr. George Bell, "The New Peonies."

Mrs. Harvey J. Carson will be heard in a ten minute talk on the "Oak Park and River Forest Garden Contest" at 11:15 this morning.

BETWEEN BROADCASTS

Two members of the cast of "Helen Trent," the W-G-N and CBS dramatic sketch, engaging in a bit of recreation during their off time. They are Virginia Clark (left), who plays the title role, and Catherine Hibben, who takes the part of the nurse.

WILLIAM MILLER IS NEXT SOLOIST OF 'NORTHERNERS'

William Miller, popular Chicago radio tenor and a member of the Northerners octet, will be the soloist on the Northerners' program at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N. Mr. Miller will offer Handel's "Where E'er You Walk" as his solo contribution to the half hour program.

The octet, directed by Harry S. Walsh, will be heard in "We'll Make Hay While the Sun Shines," "We's a Listenin'," a humorous fantasy of an old Negro church service, and the beautiful "La Paloma." The string ensemble will offer "Minuet" by Bolzoni and 'From the Canebrake," by Gardner.

For the closing number on the program, the entire company will present selections from "The Fortune Teller" which will include the well known "Chorus of Hussars" and "Gypsy Love Song."

'LIFE CHALLENGE' IS SUBJECT ON MIDDAY SERVICE

"Religion's Life Challenge" will be the topic of discussion on the W-G-N midday service at 12:35 p. m. for the coming week. The representative men who will be heard are: Tomorrow—Peter E. Hoey, St. Mary's Catholic church; Tuesday—George B. Kimmel, president Evangelical Theological seminary, Naperville; Wednesday—Charles H. Hightower, pastor, First Lutheran church, Mount Morris; Thursday—Morris Teller, rabbi, South Shore Hebrew congregation; Friday—Erdmann Smith, minister, Austin Baptist church; Saturday—J. Clyde Forney, pastor, Highland Avenue Church of the Brethren, Elgin.

GENE BURCHELL AT 19 IS VETERAN RADIO ORCHESTRA LEADER

GENE BURCHELL.

A saxophone given him by his parents on his 14th birthday—"to keep him out of mischief"—started Gene Burchell, youngest of the big time maestros, on his career as an orchestra leader.

Only 19 now, he is filling his third summer engagement at the Hotel Netherlands Plaza, in Cincinnati. His music is broadcast daily at 1:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from WLW.

Although he didn't know one note from another when he received the sax, Gene quickly mastered that instrument and then broadened his study to include the clarinet, flute, oboe, and piano.

His first big "break" came shortly before his graduation from high school, when he entered and won a contest conducted by Paul Whiteman. He still treasures the baton with which the King of Jaz presented him.

Earl Hill's Banff Band to Play at 10:30 Tomorrow

Earl Hill's Banff Springs hotel orchestra will present 30 minutes of music from Canada's famous resort over W-G-N, the Mutual Broadcasting system, and the Canadian radio commission network at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

HAROLD STOKES TO PRESENT HOST OF SINGING STARS

Three Variety Shows Are Scheduled.

Three brilliant variety shows will be presented by Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra this week. Lynn Cole, Dorothy Adams, Barbara Parks, the Doring Sisters, Kenny Strong and Sally Jo Nelson will appear as soloists.

Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock Miss Adams, Cole and the Dorings will be presented with the orchestra on "The Parade of Melody" program. Miss Adams, a newcomer to W-G-N, will offer two songs, "Every Little Moment," and "What Is There to Say." Miss Adams was a premier danseuse in several Shubert stage productions before entering radio. She was formerly associated with Rex Maupin's orchestra when Rex directed the orchestra at KYW.

Cole will sing "An Evening in June," and "I Couldn't Believe My Eyes," while the Dorings will be heard in "You're So Darned Charming," and "Footloose and Fancy Free." The orchestra will include the new Leo Shuken medley of "April" tunes.

Miss Nelson and Maestro Stokes will combine their vocal talents with the dance orchestra on Wednesday evening at 8. Miss Nelson will sing "Just We Two," and will join Stokes for a duet version of "And Then Some." Stokes will present the new, catchy toytown novelty, "Ufty, Mufty and Gufty."

Strong, high voice tenor, and Barbara Parks, the distinctive new hot-cha singer who is featured in the floor show at the Blackhawk restaurant, will be the soloists on the Promenade program at 7 o'clock Thursday. Kenny will offer "When Day Is Done" and "Tell Me That You Love Me." Miss Parks' tunes will be "Rain," and "Lost My Rhythm."

The dance orchestra will present its regular Sunday evening feature, "One Quarter Hour In Three Quarter Time" at 7 tonight. "Love Me Forever," from Grace Moore's new motion picture, and an original waltz melody written by an unknown local composer, "Let's Steal a Little Kiss," will be included on the program.

TONY CANZONERI TO BE HEARD ON RYAN SPORT HOUR

Golf, horseracing, baseball, boxing and football will occupy prominent positions on the W-G-N sports hours this week. Tony Canzoneri, lightweight boxing champion, will be heard on Quin Ryan's sports hour at 9:07 o'clock tonight. Dick Metz and Harry Cooper, golf professionals, will be presented on Tuesday night and Paul Keester, prominent jocky, will be heard on Ryan's show Thursday night.

Jack Britton and Packey McFarland, coaches of the Chicago and New York Catholic Youth organization teams, both famous fighters in their day, will be presented on Bob Elson's sport review at 6 o'clock on Saturday. Benny Leonard, one of the greatest fighters of all time, will be Elson's guest Thursday night at six, and Tuesday night, Arch Ward, sporting editor of THE TRIBUNE, and a prominent Big Ten coach will discuss the selection of the All-star college football team that will meet the Bears at Soldiers' field on Aug. 28.

RE-ELECTION OF LINCOLN, TOPIC OF ROSES, DRUMS

Episodes depicting what happened throughout the nation on the cold, rainy day in November, 1864, when Abraham Lincoln was reëlected President of the United States will be dramatized during the Roses and Drums episode over WENR and an NBC network at 4 p. m. today. Heading the cast will be Charles Webster as Lincoln, Porter Hall as Gen. McLellan, Roman Bohnen as August Belmont, Charles Dow Clark as Horatio Seymour, and Helen Clair, John Griggs, and Reed Brown Jr. in their regular young dramatic rôles.

"Ruddigore," Satiric Light Opera, on Radio Today

"Ruddigore," the Gilbert and Sullivan light opera written as a satire on the gloomy melodramas of the late eighties, will be heard during the National Light opera broadcast over WENR and NBC network at 1:30 p. m. today. Principal rôles will be taken by Ed Wolter, Fred Hufsmith, George Rasely, Muriel Wilson, Carol Deis, and Ivy Scott. Harold Sanford will conduct.

Margery Graham to Read "House of 1,000 Candles"

"The House of a Thousand Candles" by Meredith Nicholson, will be read beginning tomorrow by Margery Graham on her "Book of the Week" program which is presented at 9:15 a. m. each week-day morning.

THREE CONCERTS FROM PARK ON W-G-N THIS WEEK

Three concerts originating in Grant park on Chicago's lake front will be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system this week.

Tuesday at 8 p. m. W-G-N and MBS will broadcast the music of George Dasch and his concert band for a half hour. Included on the program will be the overture "Phedre," by Massenet; Strauss' "Tales from the Vienna Woods," "Andante Cantabile" from Symphony No. 5, by Tschaikowsky, and the well known march "Pomp and Circumstance," by Elgar.

Peter Cavallo's concert will be heard from 8 to 8:30 p. m., Thursday. The program: "Prelude to Act III., of Lohengrin," by Wagner; overture "1812," by Tschaikowsky, and modern paraphrase of Friml's "Indian Love Call."

Saturday evening Glen Bainum's concert band will be heard in a fifty minute concert from 9:10 to 10 p. m.

The concerts also are heard over the Yankee network as well as Mutual Broadcasting system on Tuesday evenings. The series will continue until Sept. 1.

HEIDT TO PLAY FAVORITES ON DANCE CONCERT

A sparkling program of old and new favorites will be presented by Horace Heidt and His Brigadiers at 8:30 tonight on the dance concert program from the Silver Forest of the Drake over W-G-N, the Mutual Broadcasting system and the coast-to-coast Canadian radio commission network.

Lysbeth Hughes, singing harpist; Alveno Rey and his singing guitar; Art Thorsen, the King Sisters and Jerry Bowne, as the Radio Ramblers, and Harold Woolsey, the whistling vagabond, will be featured, along with Bob McCoy and Charles Goodman.

Heidt is heard in special programs at 10 every night except Thursday on W-G-N. Mondays the orchestra presents a program of waltzes and old time favorites; Tuesdays, rumbas and tangos; Wednesdays, all Hawaiian music; Fridays, the "Just Around the Corner" program made up of new tunes; Saturday, "Hit Songs of Tomorrow," and Sundays at 8:30 p. m., the "Dance Concert."

LANNY ROSS TO OPEN STATE FAIR CONCERT TODAY

Lanny Ross' State Fair concert, featuring the celebrated radio tenor, with Helen Oelheim, popular young contralto as his first guest artist, and Howard Barlow's orchestra will make its bow over WLS-NBC at 6 tonight.

The new series will be heard on subsequent Sundays in half hour programs during the time made available by Jack Benny's vacation. Solos which Lanny will offer on the first program will include "I Wished on the Moon" from "The Big Broadcast of 1935," "Eileen," "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair," and "Home on the Range."

Miss Oelheim, who was recently engaged by the Metropolitan Opera company, will sing "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier," and will be heard in a duet with Lanny singing "Home to Our Mountains" from "Il Trovatore."

NBC String Symphony to Present "In the Far West"

"In the Far West," a descriptive serenade in four movements by Granville Bantock, will be given a complete performance by the NBC String Symphony orchestra, Frank Black conducting, during the concert over WLS and an NBC network at 7 tonight.

Double Header Today.

Two ball games between the New York Giants and the Cubs will be played at Wrigley field. W-G-N will broadcast both games beginning at 1:30 p. m. Bob Elson will be at the mike.

TRAFIC SAFETY CAMPAIGN OPENS IN FOREST PARK

New Commission Drafts Educational Drive.

HUGH A. PTOLEMY.

With the appointment of Hugh A. Ptolemy as chairman of its new safety and trafic control commission, Forest Park has swung into a carefully planned campaign to reduce accidents within its borders to a minimum.

Mr. Ptolemy, choice of Mayor Charles Hussey and members of the village board for the position, has had many years' experience in industrial safety work, and under his direction the safety division of the Public Service company has established an outstanding record. Mr. Ptolemy has been a resident of the suburb for 27 years. Local officials have announced their decision to back his program for the village 100 per cent.

Campaign of Education.

Four committees have been appointed by Chairman Ptolemy to carry out his two-part program of school and home safety and trafic safety. Committees of these two divisions will make recommendations based on a study of present day problems and the findings of a third committee on accident reporting and statistics.

In Mr. Ptolemy's opinion, public education will be an important phase of the campaign and he has appointed Walter Grottke and Henry Lebovitz for this task. Mr. Lebovitz will also be secretary of the commission.

Other committee appointments include: John C. Lyons and Howard Prenter, accident reporting and statistics; Arthur Stuhlfier and Howard Prenter, school and safety, and Erwin Thoendel, Clarence Quandt, Joseph Unger, Sam Sansone and Rudolph Burkart, trafic safety.

Make Safety a Habit.

"By constantly doing the safe thing people gradually make safety a habit," said Chairman Ptolemy, "and as a result their first impulse in emergencies will be to act correctly. To make safety a habit requires constant reminding and the stimulation of public consciousness to safety problems.

"So that the commission may compare its accident experience with other towns, we have entered the trafic safety contest of the National Safety organization.

"Our commission, no matter how broadly constituted, can not accomplish the community safety job alone. The task will be completed only when the principles and practices of safety have been thoroughly 'sold' to community groups and organizations."

9 WEST SIDERS RECEIVE LOYOLA HONOR RATING

Nine west side young men closed their freshman year in Loyola university's school of medicine with an average of 85 per cent or better, according to an announcement last week.

They are William T. Ahern, son of Mrs. Catherine V. Ahern, 1519 Jackson boulevard; Alfred Benson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Othil Benson, 215 East Park boulevard, Villa Park; Leonard S. Ceasar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Ceasar, 225 North Central avenue; Frank P. Mangan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mangan, 4349 Washigton boulevard.

Others are Frank L. Matousek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Matousek, 5132 West 25th street, Cicero; Raymond Norfray, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Norfray, 3233 South Wesley avenue, Berwyn; Hobart H. Todd Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Todd, 134 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park; James West, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond West, 206 Pleasant street, Oak Park; and James Zvetina, son of John Zvetina, 7749 West Roosevelt road, Forest Park.

ENGAGEMENT MADE KNOWN AT PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clayton Unger of Naperville announce the engagement of their daughter Grace Luella to Owen Elman Skelton of Lansing, Mich. Both Miss Unger and Mr. Skelton are graduates of the University of Michigan. Miss Unger is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and Mr. Skelton of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. This announcement was made at a formal dinner party given at the home of Miss Unger for twenty-four of her young women friends last Wednesday.

SUBURBAN BOYS EARN MONEY FOR SCOUT JAMBOREE

29 Youths to Attend Capital Gathering.

Anticipation of attending the First National Boy Scout Jamboree to be held at Washington, D. C. in August, is occupying the minds of 29 youths from the west suburban council, with headquarters in La Grange.

Capt. William Schwedler, scout executive, reports that a few of the scouts have earned all expenses of the trip. In other instances, those who have registered for the crusade to the national capital are winners of contests held by their troops. The jamboree, to be attended by 30,000 boys from all parts of the world, has been talked about in scout circles for a year past, and enthusiasm has intensified during the last four months.

One scout has been depositing his accumulating funds with Capt. Schwedler to relieve him of the temptation of spending the money for other purposes. The west suburban group will leave over the Pennsylvania road. Excursions from all parts of the country will be timed so that the entire gathering of scouts may be ready for breakfast together on the morning of Aug. 21.

To Occupy Army Tents.

Announcement has been made that all the resources of the army and navy have been put at the disposal of the committee on arrangements at Washington to assure that scouts will be properly housed in army tents, fed, and given the best of medical attention. The camp will be located adjacent to the Mount Vernon Memorial highway at Arlington, Va.

The first day of the jamboree will be featured by a review of the scouts by President Roosevelt. Leaders of the scout movement to be presented to the visitors will include President Roosevelt, National Commissioner Dan Beard, Dr. James E. West, and possibly Baron Robert Baden-Powell, organizer of the scout movement. The introductions will be climaxed with bonfires and a display of fireworks.

Capt. Schwedler said that the list of registrants had not been completed, but that it already included scouts from the following towns along the "Q":

Argo—David Harris, Norman Ramsden, John Primovitch, and Eugene Bojanski.

Five from Berwyn.

Berwyn—Jack Hull, Norman Reichert, Elmer Promnitz, Harold Foedler, and Harry McCartney.

Downers Grove—John Lyman and John and William Harkness.

Hinsdale—Evan Thomas and Henry Kirchner.

La Grange—John Mehagan, Charles and Don Kralovec, James Tyson, Robert Grimm, and Everett Bartholomew.

Riverside—Robert Savel, Robert Saxe, Robert Taylor, and John Hoaglund.

Western Springs—Hugh Frenzel, Clayton Morgan, and James Peterson.

Westmont—John Croak.

On Wedding Trip

Miss Josephine Quinlan, daughter of Dennis Benedict Quinlan, 216 North Leamington avenue, became the bride of Edward Hurley Welch recently in a ceremony held at St. Thomas Aquinas church. Mr. and Mrs. Welch are now motoring through Canada and the eastern states.

MIDSUMMER BRIDE

Mrs. Harold Martin Beard, the former Elinor Laurette Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Jacobs, 1536 Austin boulevard, whose recent marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Taylor Beard of Oak Park is announced.

Five West Siders Qualify in Tribune Swimming Meet

Five west siders whose training headquarters are at the Community Recreation center, 4721 West Madison street, qualified last week in THE TRIBUNE's 100 yard swimming meet preliminaries. They are: Miss Patsy Heekin, 4520 Van Buren street; Miss Peggy Connelly, 211 North Kilbourn avenue; Miss Lorraine Johnsen, 4456 Washington boulevard; Miss Dorothy Fitz, 4342 Washington boulevard, and Joe Connelly of 211 North Kilbourn avenue. Finals in the meet will be held next Sunday in the Lincoln Park lagoon.

Austin Bible Class Will Discuss Story of David

"How Did King David Suffer Because He Stole Another Man's Wife?" is the question to be discussed by members of the Pastor's Bible class of the Austin Presbyterian church, 5720 West Fulton street, who will meet at 10 o'clock this morning in the church.

USE DAILY UNIT PLAN FOR AUSTIN ADULT CLASSES

Continue Registration During Summer.

Adult education classes throughout the Austin district are being continued during the summer months, according to an announcement made last week by Floyd Mulkey, local counselor, who said that courses are being arranged so that each day's work will constitute a unit, thus making it possible for new students to enroll at any time.

Classes in family relationships and psychology are now being organized at the North Austin Lutheran church. The first will meet from 2 until 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoons, and the second from 2 until 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoons.

Aid Voice Students.

Instruction in voice culture and chorus work is being given at the Columbus park fieldhouse. Groups meet from 7 until 10 o'clock on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings, and also from 2 until 4:30 o'clock Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. At the Austin Y. M. C. A., courses in music appreciation, class piano for beginners, and chorus have been organized. Classes in bookkeeping and shorthand meet there also.

For those who are artistically inclined there are classes in painting and drawing, which meet in the Columbus park fieldhouse, La Follette park fieldhouse, Austin Town hall, and the Byford school.

Classes Are Free.

Both recreation and instruction is provided by the dramatic group recently organized in Austin Town hall, which meets from 7 until 10 o'clock on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Courses in psychology, psychology of personality, child psychology, public speaking, and modern social problems are being presented at the Austin Branch library. A new class in sewing has been scheduled and will meet in the library from 1:30 until 3:30 o'clock Tuesday and Friday afternoons. All courses are free to persons more than 16 years old.

ENFORCE BERWYN PARKING LIMIT ON CERMAK ROAD

As the result of agitation for some time past, the city of Berwyn recently put into effect a one hour parking limit on Cermak road between Lombard and Oak Park avenues. Temporary signs have been placed on light posts calling attention to the ruling, which applies between the hours of 3 and 10 p. m., with the exception of Sundays and holidays, when there will be no parking limit.

Enforcement of the ordinance under a squad assigned by Chief of Police Joseph Pilat resulted in the issuing of a number of tickets. Motorists now are becoming accustomed to the ruling, and the wide business street has been cleared considerably of double parking.

Customers at the stores are finding the ruling much to their advantage. It was found that motorists from Berwyn and nearby suburbs were accustomed to parking their cars along the street and leaving them during the day while they took the elevated trains into the Chicago loop.

GUEST ARTISTS WILL APPEAR AT SYLVAN THEATER

Leola Aikman, soprano, a member of the Chicago Civic Opera company; Evelyn Teander, pianist, and a group of dramatic pupils will appear as guest artists at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in Symphony Woods, outdoor theater in Western Springs.

Sketches by pupils of the Walton Pyre studio will be given in two parts, one a group of readings by Edward Downs and the other a playlet, "The Impertinence of the Creature," in which Miss Ruth Scott and Glen Strayer will take part.

Next Sunday a series of one act plays, to be given under the direction of Everett Mesenbrink of Hinsdale and James Edmonds of La Grange, will be opened. A twilight concert, preceding the plays, will be presented by members of the Symphony Woods orchestra.

FAIR POLICE WILL HOLD PICNIC AND REUNION SUNDAY

The Century of Progress Police association will reunite its members at a picnic next Sunday at Birutes' grove, 79th street and Archer avenue. Free bus service will be provided from the intersection of 79th street and Western avenue every half hour, beginning at 9:30 o'clock. Clarence Berger, Charles Post, Frank Costello and Erwin Rach are arranging the picnic, which is to be the first of a series of annual events.

Spring Grove Parish Will Hold Homecoming Festival

St. Peter's parish, Spring Grove, will hold its annual homecoming chicken dinner and carnival next Sunday afternoon. A band concert will be a feature of the program. The Rev. J. L. Daleiden is pastor of the parish.

DU PAGE COUNTY SHOP WILL HELP WORK FOR NEEDY

Charities Solicit Goods for Repair and Sale.

Just what to call the new establishment opened in Glen Ellyn by the United Charities of Du Page county has not been definitly decided. Among the suggestions for a name have been "The Rummage Shop", "The Economy Shop" and "The Opportunity Shop."

"The idea," explained Mrs. Norma G. Fleming, executive secretary of the association, "is to provide a clearing house for discarded furniture, bedding, dishes, books, clothing and other articles that are useful. Such articles will be solicited throughout the couty, collected, renovated and sold at low prices."

Mrs. Fleming added that proceeds from the sale of the articles would directly benefit the United Charities in its welfare work, which endeavors to give people an opportunity to help themselves.

Basement Is Donated.

"Anything, regardless of its condition, can be used," said Mrs. Fleming, "and we would like to have persons with something to offer contact us by telephoning Glen Ellyn 105. We have been donated the use of a basement of a store on Main street for handling the articles and we hope it will develop and become as successful as similar projects in other parts of the country.

"Many Du Page county people are sending their discarded articles to organizations in Cook county, and we are appealing to them to benefit their neighbors.

"Not only could we help families through funds derived from the shop, but there are many women, expert at needle work, who desire to utilize their skill and thus escape going on the dole. The shop offers an opportunity for the sale of their work."

Mattresses Needed.

Mrs. Fleming said she hoped that many persons with articles about the house would contribute them to the project.

"Many persons with old matresses would send them in, I am sure," she said, "when they realize that there are families obliged to sleep on straw. We have already received children's clothing that is as good as new. A second-hand gas stove has been appreciated. This will be the first county-wide shop of its kind, and with cooperation will develop into something decidedly worthwhile."

Softball Conference Will Hold Dance Wednesday

The Chi-Oakville softball conference will hold a summer party and dance at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in Moose hall, 446 North Parkside avenue. The group is sponsored by Jack Kelly, president of the Officials' association.

A WOMAN RULES WHOLE UNIVERSE AT PLANETARIUM

Visitor Sees Night Sky from Dusk to Dawn.

This is the fourth of a series of stories pointing out the wonder spots where the children of Chicago may pass a day with profit and pleasure. Another will be printed next week.

She commands the sun, the moon, and the stars. She can, if she wishes, bring the sun up in the west and put it to bed in the east, halt the moon in its stately nocturnal ascent, and make the stars shine brightly at noon. She can and, in fact, does control the whole universe.

In the interests of strict truth it must be added that the universe in the case is a man-made one and that the seemingly omnipotent woman is Miss Maude Bennot, assistant dirctor and lecturer of the Adler planetarium and astronomical museum. Strangely enough, however, those facts would not be too readily apparent to the uninformed man, woman, or child suddenly deposited under the museum's great dome while Miss Bennot is at work.

Not a little of the impressiveness of the Adler planetarium demonstrations lies in its close semblance of reality.

Sees Stars Appear.

A feeling of awe comes over the visitor as he sits in the circular lecture hall and, to the soft strains of music from a concealed phonograph record, sees a realistic sun sink behind a realistic painted silhouette of the Chicago skyline, watches an artificial twilight gather, discovers stars gradually appearing in the darkening dome, and finally, unhindered by smoke, building obstructions or clouds, beholds overhead the full majesty of the night sky.

After an hour's lecture, during which Miss Bennot identifies the various star constellations and by their positions illustrates the solar motion of the earth and the other major planets, the process of nightfall is reversed. The velvet black of the "sky" begins to pale, the big and little dippers, Cassiopeia, Leo, Scorpio, Tarsus, and the other star groups disappear, and one sits through an enactment of the dawn.

Purpose of Founder.

Altogether, the lecture demonstrations are well calculated to carry out the purpose of their founder, Max Adler—"to further the progress of science, to guide to an understanding of the majesty of the heavens, to emphasize that under the great celestial firmament there is order, interdependence, and unity."

They are moreover a tribute to the great ingenuity of man. The instrument which makes them possible is a sort of glorified stereopticon, like a dumb-bell in shape, which from its position in the center of the lecture hall projects on the inner white surface of the planetarium dome the intricate phenomena of the sky.

Five years were spent in developing the complex instrument. Its overall length is 12 feet—the weight of its movable parts nearly a ton. A 1,000 watt lamp centrally placed within provides the illumination for the projectors, including those for the naked eye stars [about 9,000 in number], the sun, the moon, the planets, the milky way, and the Magellanic clouds. The control board of the intricate mechanism serves as the lecturer's desk.

Show Old Sundials.

Equal in interest to the planetarium are the exhibits of the astronomical museum. They include an unexcelled collection of globes, sundials, early telescopes, and a strolabes, all produtes of the most skilful craftsmen of the 15th, 16th, and 17 centuries. Astrolabes are instruments for determining the altitude of heavenly bodies.

The bridge of a ship with requisite instruments of navigation — steering wheel, gyroscopic and magnetic compasses, sextant, and other apparatus—is another unusual exhibit. The museum also has more than a hundred time keepers, including sundials of varied design and beauty, 24 hour glasses, and 20 clocks.

The telescope, most important instrument of astronomy, is represented by the Mensing collection of 41 pieces, one of which is one of the oldest intact telescopes in existence. Several telescopes of recent date and an operating model of the United States naval observatory completes the exhibit.

Show Telescopic Photos.

Seventy-two large transparent photographs from negatives made with the world's greatest telescopes are mounted in niches in the walls on the main floor. Those of the south hall are devoted to the solar system, while those of the north hall picture the phenomena of the sideral [star] system.

The planetarium and museum are located in Burnham park, half a mile east of the Field museum and the Shedd aquarium, with which institutions they make up Chicago's famous trinity devoted to the study of "the heavens above, the earth beneath, and the waters under the earth."

Sixteen lectures are given at the planetarium each week. On Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday, the lectures are given at 11 o'clock in the morning and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, on Tuesday and Friday at 11 a. m. and at 3 and 8 p. m. There are also two lectures on Sunday, one at 3 o'clock and the other at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. School children are admitted free in the mornings. Children under 5 years are not admitted to the planetarium chamber.

Tell Legends of Stars.

The subjects of lectures for the rest of the year are as follows: July, "Summer Constellations of the Home Sky"; August, "The Southern Sky and the Southern Cross"; September, "The Seasons and Annual Journey of the Sun"; October, "The Great Processional Cyclone"; November, "Objects of Special Interest in the Sky," and December, "Architecture of the Heavens."

The summer program of lectures is especially suited to children as it is more elementary than technical in character and includes the narration of myths and legends associated with the star constellations.

How to Keep Children Off the Streets

George Chritton III. and his brother Jack, 636 Belleforte avenue, River Forest, are kept amused at home. The sand box, tennis racket, balls, and other playthings make the back yard alluring. The Chicago Motor club, which is conducting a contest for the best back yard play yards in Cook county, says this work will save the lives of many children.

'Little Fellows' Will Fete Bill Stelzer, Their Friend

BY BETTY BROWNING.

WILLIAM F. STELZER.

"Well, now I can give all my time to helping out the little fellow."

A chuckle from deep within and a glint of humor in his small, keen eyes did not detract from the sincere enthusiasm of Bill Stelzer's voice as he spoke of his recent retirement after thirty years in the service of the Chicago postoffice.

"A vacation first — yes. I've got time for one now—and then to work. It'll be a full time job, no pay, but what would I do with money? Haven't any time to spend it. The five oldest kids can stand on their own feet. Just the two still at home. Money would only go to their heads."

Money is one of the things that Bill Stelzer openly scorns. He has frequently met the charge of "racketeer" and "chiseler" on the part of opponents in civic battles with the proud boast that he can't be bought.

Known As Speaker.

Audiences which always fill to overflowing the Lawn Masonic temple in Chicago Lawn when Bill is going to speak, are used to hearing him open upon how such and such foe offered him such and such a sum for his silent relinquishment of the bone of contention.

Bill has yet to be silenced. There is a bulldog-like tenacity in his persistence in speaking his mind in the face of what to one less persevering might seem defeat.

The Lawn Civic association's fight against the operation of an ice manufacturing plant in its territory is entering its fifth year. Through court after court the case has dragged, and still the plant operates. Yet Bill is certain that he will stop it yet. His enthusiasm is unflagging, his oratory undiminished.

Blocks Assessment.

He is proud of being an expensive foe. Back about 12 years ago there was that first fight when property owners along Hamlin avenue were assessed for repaving a stretch where the gas company had made installations. Bill not only blocked the assessment, but he forced the city and the gas company between them to put in a new pavement.

It was his first whiff of the smoke of battle. Soon afterward he organized the Lawn Civic association, which he has headed ever since. This claims to be the largest civic group in the city, with a paid membership of 4,200, split up into branches in Gage Park, Englewood, Argo-Summit, and among the north side Italians.

His greatest triumph was scored in 1929 against the Grand Trunk railroad, which as a result of the association's efforts elevated its tracks from 59th to 67th streets without closing the intervening streets, as originally had been planned.

Aids Home Owners.

More recently, Bill has fought in behalf of the small home owners of his territory. He states proudly that not one of the association members has lost his home. Information has been given out at an office opened especially to meet this need, and Bill himself in many cases has interceded to get loans extended. There are 200 families whose homes have been saved through the association, he estimates.

His fight for legislation to lower taxes on homes has carried him several times to the floor of the state senate, where he has spoken in behalf of his home owners. In order to get time for these Springfield trips, his visits to the city council, and other civic duties, Bill has worked on Sundays and forfeited his vacations for the last two years.

Politics for Bill? Not much.

"Office holding is no good," he remarked. "They'd say I'd been doing this work all these years just to get myself a berth. And my hands would be tied. No, I'd rather be on the outside, putting the screws on the politicians to do what the people want."

For "Little Fellow."

"The people" is an expression that crops up frequently in Bill's talk. Another is "the little fellow."

"There'll always be the little fellow and there'll always be the big fellow. The only way you can keep the big fellow from gobbling up the little fellow is to organize the little fellow—then he can give the big fellow a run for his money," is another bit of Bill's philosophy.

Some 7,000 of Bill's "people" are planning to make an occasion of his formal entry into full time civic activity by giving a testimonial dance for him Wednesday evening.

The Cook County Civic council, a federation of 147 organizations formed two years ago by Bill to get lower taxes, is giving the party, together with the Lawn Civic association. In order to give the members an opportunity to attend conveniently, the party is being held centrally at Guyon's Paradise ballroom, Washington boulevard and Pulaski road, rather than in Bill's home territory on the southwest side.

Born in Chicago.

It is to be largely the "little fellow's" tribute.

Bill Stelzer was born 53 years ago at 28th and Canal streets, then practically at the city limits. At 10 he got his first job as cash boy at Mandel Brothers' store. Later he was a messenger boy, and for a time the stocky, husky lad was a blacksmith's helper at the Illinois Central yards.

Successively he became a machinist, and a clerk, then at 18 was secretary of the Metal Workers' union. Before he entered the postoffice, at the age of 23, he was also secretary of the Metal Workers' council for a time.

HOLD HOSPITAL BENEFIT PICNIC IN RIVER GROVE

The board of directors and the ladies' auxiliary of the Lutheran Memorial hospital, 1116 North Kedzie boulevard, will sponsor a picnic for the benefit of the hospital today on the grounds of the Bethlehem church in River Grove. After church services, beginning at 10:45 o'clock in the morning when the Rev. W. H. Lipmann will preach, a hot dinner will be served and the afternoon program will feature games and races.

TALL TOTEM POLE REMINDS SUBURB OF OLD COWBOY

Jack O'Dea Is Buried at Former Track.

A totem pole on the grounds of St. Alexander school, Villa Park, serves the utilitarian purpose of supporting telephone wires, and is a reminder of Jack O'Dea who spent his last two years at the parish house. Mr. O'Dea assisted the boys of the school in designing and painting the replica of Indian craft. He had known the west during its most colorful era, and those who heard the stories of his personal experiences treasure them as something more fascinating than may be found in any book.

Mr. O'Dea, known as Jack Taylor in wild west show circles, started west again after a visit to his native Chicago four years ago. He stopped at the parish house and stayed there until his death two years later. Horses were supplied him and he taught the boys of the school to ride in western fashion.

Tales of the Plains.

Youngsters soon recognized that their tutor was no "drug store cowboy," and though a modest man, bits of interest concerning his career on the plains were gradually unfolded for eager ears.

Since his death additional data about Jack Taylor has revealed how genuine were his achievements in the saddle. It is known that he was not only one of the last of Buffalo Bill's wild horse riders, but that Mr. Cody had given him the classification of a "No. 1" rider. Years ago, out in Denver, he won a bet by answering a challenge and successfully riding the famous outlaw horse, Steamboat.

Jack Taylor was approaching 60 when he came to Villa Park to await "the last roundup." His contribution to the youngsters who knew him at the Villa Park school was first hand knowledge of life on the range. He was buried at Holy Sepulchre cemetery on the site of the old Worth race track, and it is said that his grave occupies the spot where the paddock once was.

Bought Horses for United States.

During the Spanish-American war the man who left Chicago as an adventurous boy of 14, having developed a knowledge of horse flesh, assisted the government in obtaining mounts for the cavalry.

St. Alexander's parish prizes the totem pole that Jack Taylor helped fashion for his pupils, and it will continue to be a reminder of the kindly man's association with the school.

St. Alexander parish, of which the Rev. H. Kennedy is pastor, will hold its annual picnic Aug. 11 at Green's garden, 31st street and York road, Fullersburg, near the site of the old dam which is being restored as a CCC project.

DE PAUL SCHOLAR

MISS HELEN CAMPBELL.

[Doose Photo.]

Miss Helen Campbell, 4121 Washington boulevard, has been awarded a scholarship for her junior year by the De Paul university's college of liberal arts and sciences. An officer in the Women's league during her freshman and sophomore years, Miss Campbell was awarded the scholarship on the basis of excellence in studies, extra curricular activity, and coöperation with the student and faculty groups.

BOOKLET TELLS VACATIONERS OF CHICAGO SIGHTS

Lists Points of Interest and Summer Events.

The annual exodus of Chicagoans to vacation spots the world over, from the pine fringed lakes of northern Wisconsin to Salzburg and its music festival, is under way. Yet most of the city's population must spend the summer at home and make the most of what many of them might choose to consider a bad bargain.

With these latter in mind the Chicago recreation commission last week issued a 32 page illustrated booklet, "Recreation in Chicago," setting forth concisely the attractions of the "vacation city of the world." The booklet will do much, it is hoped, to put an end to the familiar paradox of residents of a city knowing the least about its points of interest.

Intended also as an inducement to outsiders to come here for their vacations, the pamphlet describes museums of popular as well as scientific interest, foreign districts recapturing the old world atmosphere, industrial plants open to tours, art galleries and conservatories ranking with the finest in the world, parks and playgrounds, social agencies, universities, sports, and amusement centers.

Hope to Rouse Interest.

It is the hope of the recreation commission, according to Edward L. Burchard, executive secretary, that the wide distribution of these booklets may help to bring back to Chicago a large number of the 25 millions who attended the Century of Progress each of its two years, besides selling Chicago to Chicagoans.

Railroads serving the Chicago area have ordered thousands of copies of "Recreation in Chicago" to distribute in Chicagoland and the middle west. No copies are on sale by the commission, Mr. Burchard said, but arrangements are being made for their distribution through civic and social agencies. The Chicago Association of Commerce, in particular, has promised to coöperate in distributing the booklets.

"Lake Michigan with is tempering breezes, endless miles of boulevard, the placid charm of well kept parks, office buildings towering hundreds of feet into the blue, the stir and hum attendant on life in the world's trade, commercial and transportation center, boating, swimming, steamer excursions, and bridal paths.

Gives "Bird's Eye View."

"Stage productions, concerts, and the cinema; lectures and summer courses in the universities and schools of art and music; treasures in art galleries and libraries, inexhaustible sources of knowledge for the scientifically inclined in laboratories, planetarium, aquarium, zoos, museums of industry, natural history, and science."

Thus we are introduced to Chicago in "Recreation in Chicago"; given a bird's-eye view, as it were.

Among the features of the booklet are a list of events scheduled to take place during the summer, suggested itineraries and programs for short visits to the city, detailed summaries of the recreational facilities, and a map with points of interest indicated.

The cover design, an airplane view of Lake Shore drive with sporting activities figured on the green waters of Lake Michigan, was suggested by Charles Kelly, director of the Art institute art school. The editorial work was done by Mr. Burchard, Lewis E. Hibbard, Dorothy E. Sparks, and O. E. Palmquist. Mayor Kelly is honorary chairman of the commission.

FOUR WEST SIDE U. OF I. STUDENTS RATED PERFECT

Four west side students of the University of Illinois college of liberal arts and sciences made perfect scholastic averages for their work during the second semester of the academic year, according to an announcement made last week by Dean M. T. McClure. They are Jerome Greenblatt, 1428 South Central Park avenue, a freshman; Robert H. Levin of 2116 Cortez street, a sophomore; Miss Vernice W. Shiels, 5418 Washington boulevard, a freshman, and Miss Janet H. Vernon, 2247 West Adams street, a sophomore.

Children Will Compete at Forest Park Theater

Beginning next Saturday a series of children's discovery contests will be held under the direction of Miss Mary Idelson in the Forest theater, Forest Park. Talented young boys and girls will be selected to appear on these programs and compete for awards.

WE CAN'T HOLD OUT MUCH LONGER, MEN- THEY MEAN TO KEEP US HERE TILL WE STARVE-
WHAT EVER GAVE THEM THE IDEA WE WERE EVIL SPIRITS?
LAWSY- IF AH WAS A SPIRIT- AH'D GO HAUNT ME SOME NICE WARM HOUSE IN ALABAMMY-
CONVINCED BY THE TREACHEROUS MECHANIC, RUSTY, THAT CAPTAIN DUKETTE AND HIS MEN ARE EVIL SPIRITS - THE ESKIMOS HOLD THEM PRISONERS -
SIDNEY SMITH
EVIL DEMONS VERY WEAK- THEY DIE SOON-
EE-UK! RED-HAIR WHITE MAN OUR FRIEND- HE KNOW THEY BAD SPIRITS-
WELL- WITH THE KID DONE FOR AND THE REST OF THAT GANG STARVING, THE CHIEF OUGHT TO BE TICKLED WITH THE JOB I'VE DONE - IF ONLY THEY'D PICK ME UP - I CAN'T UNDERSTAND WHAT'S KEEPING THEIR PLANE-
MEANWHILE- CHESTER AND KOODLOO- THE INJURED ESKIMO HAVE STUMBLED ONTO AN ABANDONED STONE HUT - A CACHE OF BLUBBLER, OIL AND CANVAS WARMS AND FEEDS THEM-
IT CAN'T BE VERY FAR TO ETAH FROM HERE - AS SOON AS THE DOGS ARE RESTED WE'LL - LISTEN TO THAT! AN AIRPLANE!
IT MUST BE HELP- OH- IF I CAN ONLY FIND SOME WAY TO SIGNAL THEM-
I KNOW - I'VE GOT IT- I'LL SOAK SOME OF THOSE CANVAS RAGS IN WHALE OIL AND MAKE A FIRE -
THIS OUGHT TO DO IT- IF THEY NOTICE THE FIRE, THEN THEY'LL SEE THESE STONES ARRANGED LIKE AN S.O.S. - IF ONLY THEY FLY OVER, THEY CAN'T MISS IT-ATTRACTED BY THE FIRE - THE MYSTERY SHIP CIRCLES OVER CHESTER'S CAMP-STAND BY TO LAND- THAT MUST BE OUR MAN DOWN THERE-
SOS
BUT I THOUGHT WE WERE SUPPOSED TO PICK RUSTY UP AT ETAH -
HE MUST HAVE CHANGED HIS PLANS - WHO ELSE COULD THAT BE SIGNALING TO US FROM HERE?
WHAT DOES THIS MEAN? WHO ARE YOU? HOW DID YOU GET HERE
MY NAME IS CHESTER GUMP- WE WERE TRYING TO FLY AROUND THE WORLD FROM POLE TO POLE- BUT OUR PLANE CRASHED- EVERYONE ON BOARD HAS BEEN LOST EXCEPT ME-
ALL LOST EXCEPT YOU-EH? IN THAT CASE THERE'S NO NEED OF OUR WASTING ANY MORE TIME AROUND HERE- HA! HA! ADIOS-MY LAD- WE HAVE A LONG FLIGHT AHEAD-
BUT YOU'LL HELP ME GET POOR KOODLOO TO A DOCTOR- WON'T YOU?
STOP! STOP! PLEASE- WON'T YOU COME BACK? YOU CAN'T LEAVE US HERE TO DIE LIKE THIS -

MR. CLAUDE CLAPTRAP TO SEE YOU, SIR-
HELLO, CLAPTRAP- SIT DOWN- I'LL GET TO THE POINT- YOU'RE THE POLITICAL BIG SHOT IN THESE PARTS- WELL, I DON'T WANT ANY FAVORS- I'M GOING TO DO YOU A FAVOR- GOING TO KICK IN A MILLION DOLLARS FOR YOUR COMING CAMPAIGN-
WHEW! THAT'S GREAT, SLUGG- B-BUT--- ER--- ISN'T THERE SOMETHING I CAN DO FOR YOU IN RETURN?
NO! I MERELY WISH TO SERVE THE BEST INTERESTS OF THIS, OUR GLORIOUS LAND, BY ASSURING THE ELECTION OF SUCH STERLING PATRIOTS AS YOU AND YOUR WORTHY FOLLOWERS-
BALONEY! IT SOUNDS GREAT, AND WE CAN USE THE DOUGH- BUT WE CAN'T WIN A CAMPAIGN WITH MONEY ALONE- CAN'T BUY ENOUGH VOTES- WE MUST BE FOR SOMETHING-
AH; RIGHT THERE IS WHERE YOU'RE ABSOLUTELY WRONG, CLAPTRAP-
YOU CALL YOURSELF A SMART POLITICIAN- NEVER BE FOR ANYTHING IF YOU CAN HELP IT- OPPOSE EVERYTHING- PROPOSE NOTHING- BE AGAINST SOMETHING OR SOMEONE-YEAH- YOU'RE RIGHT- BUT WHO OR WHAT CAN WE BE AGAINST?
HM-M- LET'S THINK REAL HARD- IT MUST BE BIG- SPECTACULAR- WHO'S THE BIGGEST FIGURE IN THE PUBLIC EYE TO-DAY?
WHY, OLIVER WARBUCKS, WITH HIS EONITE-- BUT---
WOW! YOU'VE HIT IT- WARBUCKS- WHY HADN'T I THOUGHT OF HIM? IT'S PERFECT, DON'T YOU SEE?
B-BUT HOW CAN WE ATTACK HIM? WON'T THE PEOPLE--?
NO- LISTEN- THE GREAT SECRET HE POSSESSES SHOULD BELONG TO THE COMMON PEE-PUL- NO ONE MAN SHOULD HOLD SUCH TREMENDOUS POWER- HOW DOES HE DARE SET HIMSELF UP AS A MONSTER, CONTROLLING THE LIVES AND HAPPINESS OF MILLIONS?
GREAT!

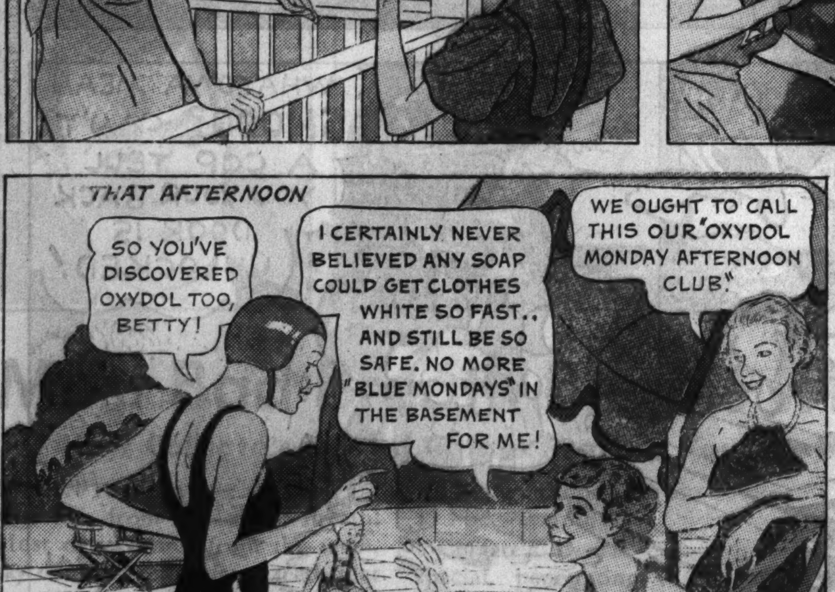
DEAR, DEAR! I O'CLOCK ALREADY, AND SHE ISN'T EVEN HALF THROUGH!
BETTY! IT'S SUCH A GRAND DAY! LET'S TAKE THE CHILDREN TO THAT NEW OPEN-AIR POOL!
OH GRACE, I'D LOVE TO! BUT THIS WASH WILL TAKE 2 HOURS YET.
BUT—
NONSENSE! I'LL SHOW YOU A WAY TO GET THAT WASH OUT IN NO TIME... AND HAVE WHITER CLOTHES, TOO.
OH, I'VE HEARD ABOUT THOSE "NO-SCRUB" GRANULATED SOAPS, BUT THEY MUST BE TERRIBLY STRONG IF THEY WORK WITHOUT SCRUBBING OR BOILING.
NOT THIS ONE. IT'S A NEW KIND CALLED OXYDOL... MADE BY THE IVORY SOAP PEOPLE. IT'S ABSOLUTELY SAFE... YET IT SOAKS OUT DIRT IN 15 MINUTES.
OXYDOL
15 MINUTES LATER
IT'S WONDERFUL! JUST 15 MINUTES' SOAKING AND THESE SHEETS ARE LOVELY WHITE. BUT ARE YOU SURE IT'S SAFE ON COLORS?
SEE THIS LITTLE PRINT FROCK OF BARBARA'S... HOW FRESH AND BRIGHT IT IS? I'VE WASHED IT IN OXYDOL AT LEAST A DOZEN TIMES!
MY! THEY SMELL SO FRESH AND SWEET... AND THEY'RE SO MUCH WHITER THAN BEFORE!
AND DID YOU NOTICE WHAT A LITTLE SOAP I POURED IN... OXYDOL'S AWFULLY ECONOMICAL.



THAT AFTERNOON
SO YOU'VE DISCOVERED OXYDOL TOO, BETTY!
I CERTAINLY NEVER BELIEVED ANY SOAP COULD GET CLOTHES WHITE SO FAST.. AND STILL BE SO SAFE. NO MORE "BLUE MONDAYS" IN THE BASEMENT FOR ME!
WE OUGHT TO CALL THIS OUR "OXYDOL MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB."

THOUSANDS CHANGING TO THIS FAR FASTER, FAR WHITER-WASHING WAY

"No-Scrub, No-Boil"—Yet White Clothes Come 4 to 5 Shades Whiter! And Colored Things Wash Fresh And Bright Without A Hint of Fade

TODAY thousands who used to spend long, hot washdays in the basement, are finding new freedom through this remarkable new fast-washing soap invention. You'll actually be astonished when you try it!

OXYDOL is an utterly new kind of laundry soap, perfected by the makers of gentle Ivory. It is the result of a patented process which makes mild, gentle soap much faster acting . . . 2 to 4 times whiter washing. Just 15 minutes' soaking to the tubful . . . no scrubbing, no boiling . . . and your white things come so white it will amaze you!

Yet OXYDOL works with utter safety to colors, clothes and hands. Even sheerest cotton prints, soaked for 25 hours through 100 consecutive washings, come out brilliant, fresh, and like new!

With OXYDOL you get thick 3-inch suds instantly—even in hardest water. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt, and stains, 2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.

No wonder women everywhere are switching to this marvelous new laundry soap, and discarding old-fashioned bar soaps, chips, and flakes.

Finds Oxydol Cuts Her Washing Time In Half

. . . But Leaves Colors Like New!

"When I think how I used to slave over the washtub those long, hot washdays, I wonder how I ever got along. OXYDOL saves so much time and backbreaking drudgery, it's almost a miracle. 'I can't go Monday, that's my washday' is a forgotten phrase at our house since OXYDOL came along. And it not only saves time, but gets my white clothes whiter than any soap I've ever known.

"But the greatest thing about OXYDOL is how mild it is. It soaks out dirt, but leaves the colors like new! I've washed my cotton print dresses time and time again without a hint of fading."

SANDRA SAVES HER JOB!

AN ADVERTISEMENT FOR COLGATE'S DENTAL CREAM

DON'T EVER SEND MISS LEE AGAIN TO TAKE MY DICTATION! HER WORK IS GOOD, BUT HER BREATH..!
CAN HE MEAN ME?
SORRY YOU OVERHEARD, SANDRA...COULD IT BE YOUR TEETH?
MY TEETH? CAN TEETH CAUSE BAD BREATH?
SO SHE SAW HER DENTIST
YES, MISS LEE, MOST BAD BREATH IS CAUSED BY DECAYING FOOD DEPOSITS IN CREVICES BETWEEN THE TEETH!
AND FOLLOWED HIS ADVICE—
HE SAID COLGATE'S SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM GETS AT THE CAUSE OF BAD BREATH—THOSE HIDDEN FOOD DEPOSITS. M-M-MY MOUTH DOES FEEL CLEAN AND FRESH!
AND THEN...
NOBODY HERE BUT THAT MISS LEE..? WELL—SEND HER IN!
VERY GOOD, MISS LEE! I'M SORRY—I—ER—THAT IS, I'M GOING TO WANT YOU TO DO A LOT MORE OF MY WORK IN THE FUTURE!
WELL, I GUESS THAT PROVES THAT COLGATE'S DENTAL CREAM HAS ENDED MY BAD BREATH —AND MY TEETH HAVE NEVER BEEN SO BRIGHT!

Most Bad Breath Begins with the Teeth!

How Colgate's Dental Cream Protects You

DON'T be too sure that you are free from unpleasant breath! Most of it comes from the teeth, say dentists—often from teeth that seem surface bright—but are really only half-clean!

For most bad breath—like dull, dingy teeth and much decay—comes from unseen food deposits in crevices between the teeth.

Colgate's Dental Cream has a special, penetrating foam which thoroughly cleans those hidden crevices—emulsifying food deposits and washing them away.

At the same time, a soft, grit-free ingredient gently polishes enamel, quickly restoring lost lustre.

Get a tube of Colgate's Dental Cream today—for cleaner, brighter teeth and a pure, sweet breath.

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK
If you are not satisfied after using a single tube of Colgate's Dental Cream, return the empty tube to Colgate's, Jersey City, N. J., and we will refund TWICE what you paid.

10¢ BRINGS THIS EASY WAY TO MAKE CHILDREN LIKE BRUSHING THEIR TEETH!

Children like to brush their teeth with Colgate's—the peppermint-flavored toothpaste! This decorated kit contains a dainty, colored-handle, Cellophane wrapped toothbrush, juvenile size, and a full 10¢ tube of Colgate's Dental Cream. You can have the entire kit for 10¢ in stamps to cover postage and packing. Mail the coupon today.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES
by Milton Caniff
THE DRAGON LADY IS HOLDING US PRISONER FOR SOME SINISTER PURPOSE OF HER OWN! - WONDER WHAT IT IS?
WELL, NO MATTER WHY TH' DRAGON LADY'S KEEPIN' US HERE! - I WISH SHE'D LET UP TH' GUARD LONG ENOUGH TO GIVE US A CHANCE TO ESCAPE! -
NO CHANCE OF THAT! - BUT THERE MUST BE SOME WAY OUT! - I WONDER..
EVERY PIRATE CAN BE BOUGHT! - WE HAVE ENOUGH FRIENDS OVER THE WORLD TO RAISE A BIT OF MONEY - ! - MAYBE WE CAN RANSOM OUR WAY OUT!
SHE'S NEVER MENTIONED MONEY - BUT IT'S WORTH A TRY! - LET'S GO ASK HER - !
THIS ABANDONED MONASTERY SHE USES AS A FORTRESS GIVES ME THE CREEPS! - YOU ALWAYS EXPECT TO GET A KNIFE IN YOUR BACK!!
THE DRAGON LADY'S A DANGEROUS PERSON, TERRY! - IT'S TOUGH FOR US TO HAVE TO BE HELD PRISONER BY A WOMAN!
WELL, GENTLEMEN! - YOU LOOK TERRIBLY SERIOUS! - WHAT BRINGS YOU HERE?
WE DON'T KNOW WHY YOU'RE HOLDING US HERE - BUT WE ARE PREPARED TO PAY FOR OUR RELEASE!
REALLY? - I DID NOT KNOW YOU WERE MEN OF MEANS! - HOW MUCH RANSOM CAN YOU PAY?
WE HAVE NO CASH - BUT I THINK WE COULD RAISE $1,000! - IF YOU WOULD ALLOW US TO CABLE TO THE UNITED STATES!
$1,000, EH? - WOULD YOU GENTLEMEN MIND COMING WITH ME? - I WANT TO SHOW YOU SOMETHING!
THIS IS A PART OF THE FORTRESS MY MEN HAVE NEVER SEEN!! - I FOUND IT ADVISABLE TO SORT OF DO AWAY WITH THE COOLIES WHO BROUGHT THIS BOOTY HERE!
WHAT A MESS O' MONEY!
GOLD!
THIS IS THE RESULT OF A RAID ON A RICH VESSEL BOUND FROM AFRICA TO NEW YORK!
I DISCOVERED A MAP OF AN ANCIENT PIRATE TREASURE ISLAND THAT YIELDED THESE LITTLE TRINKETS!
CAN'T! - I'M BLINDED BY TH' BARRELS O' BULLION!
LOOK AT THEM WADS O' WAMPUM!
THESE COINS AND JEWELS I KEEP CLOSE AT HAND TO USE WHEN I HAVE TO PAY FISHERMEN TO THROW BODIES FAR OUT TO SEA! — YOU KNOW! — JUST AS A MATTER OF GOOD TASTE!!
IT'S A MOUNTAIN O' MAZUMA!
...NOW! - WHAT WAS IT YOU GENTLEMEN CAME TO SEE ME ABOUT?
PURELY A SOCIAL CALL, MISS! - SEE YOU IN THE FUNNY PAPERS!!!

LOOK! OUR PLANE IS BEING STOLEN!
SOMEBODY BESIDES THE GOVERNMENT FOUND OUT ABOUT THAT PLANE AN' BEAT US HERE AN' REFUELED IT!
I'LL BRING HIM DOWN, JACK!
RAT-TAT-TAT-TAT
HE'S OUTRUNNING US-- WHEN HE REACHES THE STRATOSPHERE, THAT PLANE WILL DO 400 MILES PER HOUR! IT'S NO USE, CAP'N!
OH YEAH! MAYBE TRACER BULLETS WONT STOP HIM BUT THIS WILL!
THIS NEW DIRECTIONAL RADIO BEAM WILL "BLOW UP" THE IGNITION ON A PLANE! HERE GOES!
OFF
BANG
OH BOY! IT WORKED-- HE'S COMING DOWN! LAND QUICK!
HE'S HEADED FOR THE WOODS! HALT!
BANG
HE SURE GOT AWAY FROM US, CAP'N!
YEAH-- THAT'S TOUGH LUCK!
HA! THEY STOPPED ME THIS TIME, BUT I MUST GET THE SECRETS OF THAT PLANE--- AT ANY COST!

MORE ENERGY? GEE, HOW CAN I GET IT?
BY GETTING PLENTY OF EXERCISE AND SLEEP, BY EATING THE RIGHT KIND OF FOOD, TOO... FOR BREAKFAST EAT GRAPE-NUTS LIKE I DO. IT'S ACES FOR MAKING ENERGY SAY, RED, GIVE ME ANOTHER ORDER OF GRAPE-NUTS. IT TASTES JUST AS GOOD AS DIZZY DEAN'S SMOKE BALL LOOKS!

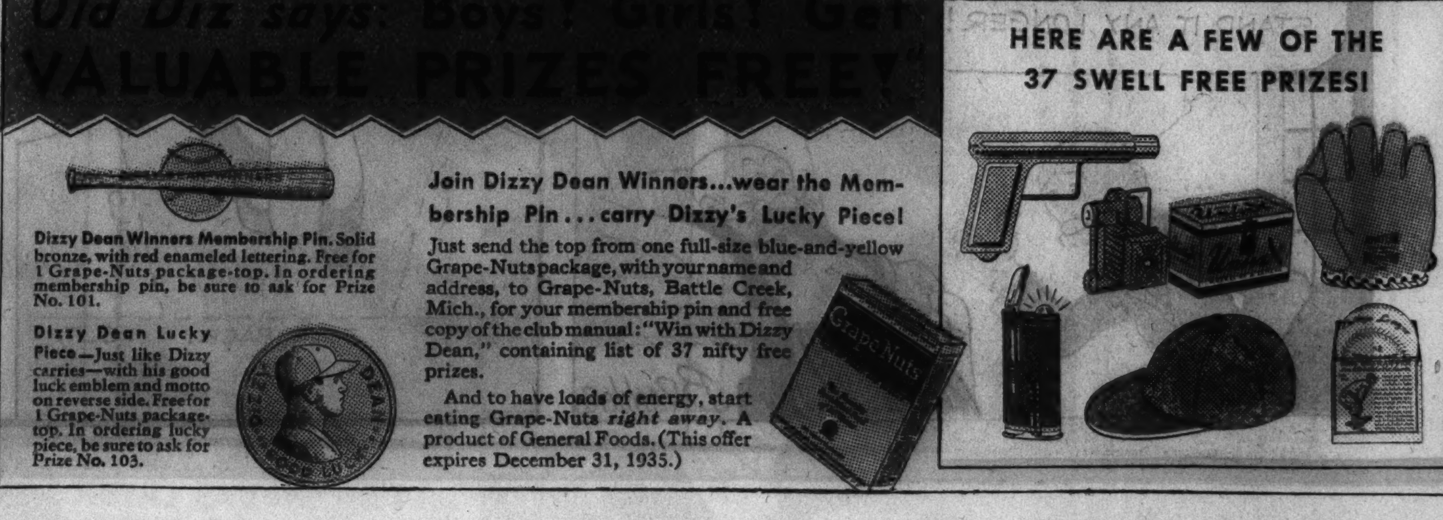
Crisp, crunchy Grape-Nuts has a rich, nutlike flavor all its own..no other cereal is like it. And two tablespoons, with whole milk or cream, provide more varied nourishment than many a hearty meal. That makes it economical to serve.



Old Diz says: "Boys! Girls! Get VALUABLE PRIZES FREE!"

Dizzy Dean Winners Membership Pin. Solid bronze, with red enameled lettering. Free for 1 Grape-Nuts package-top. In ordering membership pin, be sure to ask for Prize No. 101.

Dizzy Dean Lucky Piece—Just like Dizzy carries—with his good luck emblem and motto on reverse side. Free for 1 Grape-Nuts package-top. In ordering lucky piece, be sure to ask for Prize No. 103.

Join Dizzy Dean Winners...wear the Membership Pin...carry Dizzy's Lucky Piece!

Just send the top from one full-size blue-and-yellow Grape-Nuts package, with your name and address, to Grape-Nuts, Battle Creek, Mich., for your membership pin and free copy of the club manual: "Win with Dizzy Dean," containing list of 37 nifty free prizes.

And to have loads of energy, start eating Grape-Nuts right away. A product of General Foods. (This offer expires December 31, 1935.)

MR. COFFEE NERVES
WELL, MY ADVICE IS ... CUT OUT COFFEE FOR 30 DAYS AND SWITCH TO POSTUM. YOU'LL SEE THE DIFFERENCE!
WELL, ALL RIGHT... I'LL TRY IT, DOCTOR —IF YOU SAY SO!
CURSES! THAT BLASTED MEDICO KNOWS THAT POSTUM ALWAYS DRIVES ME OUT!
CARL IS PLAYING A MARVELOUS GAME — BUT AREN'T YOU AFRAID HE'LL BLOW UP?
NOT A CHANCE! SINCE CARL SWITCHED TO POSTUM HE'S FELT SO GOOD THAT NOTHING UPSETS HIM!
A FEW WEEKS LATER

"WHY was coffee harming me, Doctor?... I thought it was only children that shouldn't drink it!"

"Children aren't the only ones, Carl. Many grown-ups too find that the caffein in coffee disagrees with them. It can upset nerves, cause indigestion or keep you awake nights!"

If you are bothered with headaches or indigestion or find it difficult to sleep soundly—try Postum for 30 days. Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink... and may prove a real help. SEE WHO'S THERE, BLAKE!
HA! IT'S TOBY, THE SKIRT TRACY SAID WAS TO BE HIS INTERMEDIARY. WELL- WHY DIDN'T YOU MEET US WHERE YOU WAS SUPPOSED TO?
I-I TRIED BUT THERE MUST HAVE BEEN SOME MIX-UP IN THE INSTRUCTIONS. I WAITED ON THE WRONG CORNER.
HOW DID YOU GET OUT HERE?
I TRAILED YOUR CAR IN A CAB-THEN WALKED PART OF THE WAY. HERE'S THE LETTER TRACY SAID TO GIVE YOU.
SO, THIS IS HIS OFFER, EH- LET'S SEE... "YOU MUST RELEASE TESS TRUEHEART IMMEDIATELY -ALSO LEAVE TOWN AND STAY AWAY PERMANENTLY -YOU AND YOUR ENTIRE GANG."
DOES THAT FLATFOOT THINK HE CAN BUST UP MY BUSINESS LIKE THAT! HE NOR ANYBODY ELSE IS MAKING BOOKIE JOE LEAVE TOWN. YOU CAN TELL HIM TO TAKE HIS COMPROMISE OFFER AND--
THE LETTER
NOW GET OUTTA HERE, UNDERSTAND
OH NO-JOE! NOTHING OF THE KIND! STICK 'EM UP, YOU BUMS- ALL OF YOU!
I PURPOSELY MIXED UP THE INSTRUCTIONS SO I'D GET A CHANCE TO GET INTO YOUR QUARTERS HERE. I WANT TO SQUARE MYSELF WITH THE POLICE BY TAKING YOU AND YOUR GANG AND TURNING YOU IN.
WHAT TH-?
NOW-WHERE'S THAT TRUEHEART GIRL-WHERE HAVE YOU GOT HER HID?
WHY- ER... RIGHT OUT THIS WAY.
MEANWHILE..
WE'VE BEEN DOUBLE-CROSSED.. TOBY'S WALKED OUT ON US! SHE'S BEEN GONE TWO DAYS... AND NOT A WORD! SHE'S PROBABLY JOINED RIGHT IN WITH BOOKIE JOE. I MIGHT HAVE SUSPECTED..
WHERE ARE YOU GOING, TRACY?
TO THE FAIR-GROUND STABLES! WE'VE GOT TO TAKE A CHANCE ON RESCUING TESS ALIVE... WE'VE GOT TO SHOOT IT OUT WITH THAT GANG.
POLICE
WHAT ARE YOU DOING WITH THAT LANTERN? STOP!
YOU'LL TAKE NOBODY IN-AND YOUR COP FRIEND WILL NEVER GET TO SEE HIS SWEETHEART ALIVE AGAIN. SHE'S TIED UP IN THE HAY LOFT OVER YOUR HEAD!
HELP! TOBY- IS THAT YOU? ..TOBY!

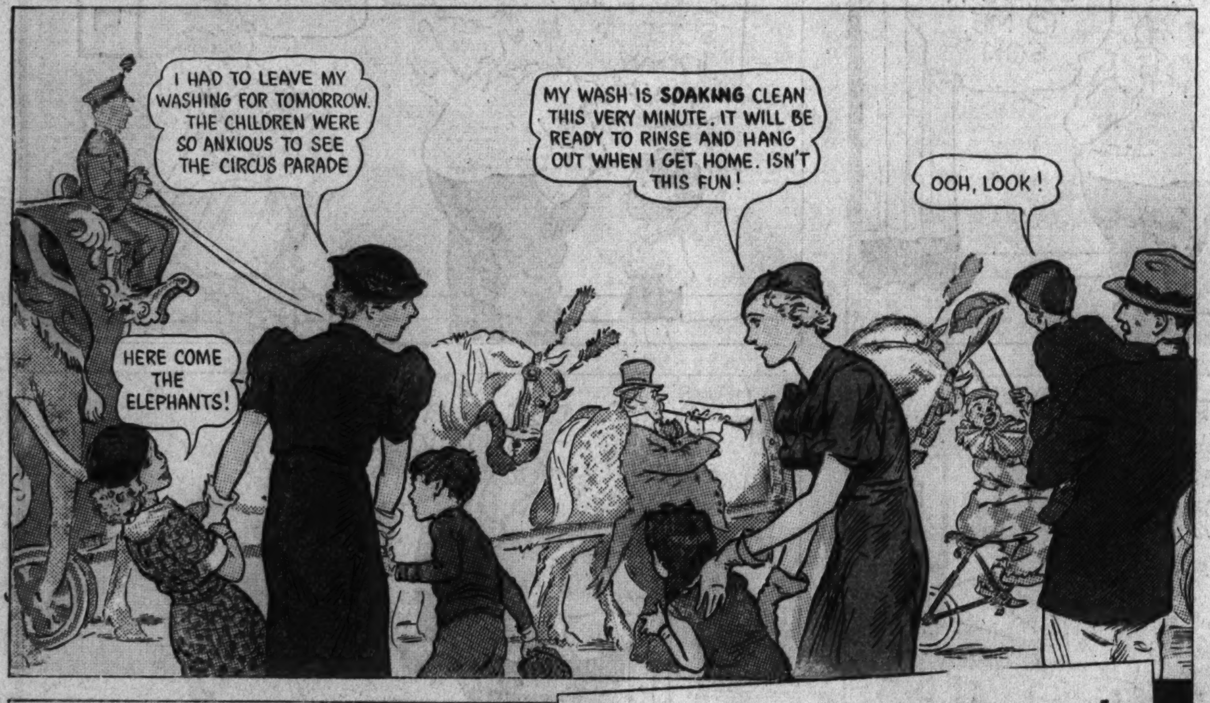
NOW SHE HAS TIME FOR PLAY-ON WASHDAY



I HAD TO LEAVE MY WASHING FOR TOMORROW. THE CHILDREN WERE SO ANXIOUS TO SEE THE CIRCUS PARADE
MY WASH IS SOAKING CLEAN THIS VERY MINUTE. IT WILL BE READY TO RINSE AND HANG OUT WHEN I GET HOME. ISN'T THIS FUN!
OOH, LOOK!
HERE COME THE ELEPHANTS!

SOAKING CLEAN? YOU MEAN YOU DON'T SCRUB THE CLOTHES—YOU DON'T BOIL THEM?
WHY WASTE ALL THAT ENERGY, WHEN RINSO ALONE GETS CLOTHES SO MUCH WHITER? SCRUBBING RUINS THE CLOTHES—RINSO SAVES THEM. LOOK, HERE COME THE CLOWNS!

It's no "circus" to scrub clothes—why do it?

Take it easy next washday. Use Rinso. Its lively suds soak out dirt without scrubbing or boiling. White clothes come as white as snow. Colors come bright and fresh as new. No washboard scrubbing is necessary. You may merely have to give stubborn edges a little hand rubbing. This "no-scrub" way saves the clothes—saves money—saves YOU!

Wonderful in washers

Rinso gives rich, lasting suds —even in hardest water. Grand for dishes and all cleaning. Easy on the hands. Recommended by the makers of 34 famous washers. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Try it!

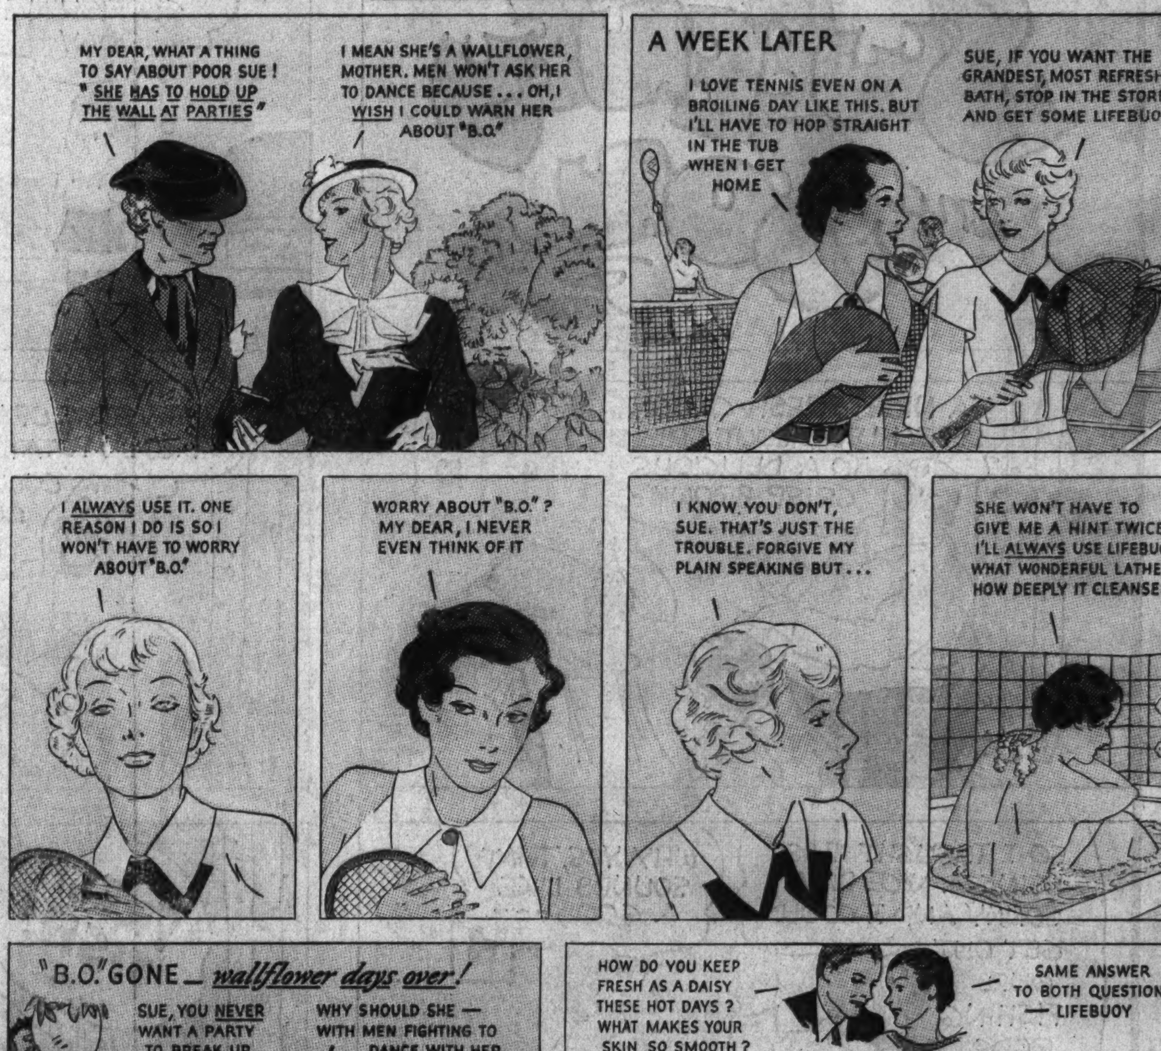
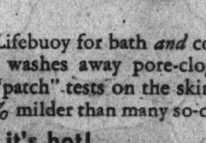
WHY SUE SHOULD HAVE WORRIED



MY DEAR, WHAT A THING TO SAY ABOUT POOR SUE! "SHE HAS TO HOLD UP THE WALL AT PARTIES"
I MEAN SHE'S A WALLFLOWER, MOTHER. MEN WON'T ASK HER TO DANCE BECAUSE... OH, I WISH I COULD WARN HER ABOUT "B.O."
A WEEK LATER
I LOVE TENNIS EVEN ON A BROILING DAY LIKE THIS. BUT I'LL HAVE TO HOP STRAIGHT IN THE TUB WHEN I GET HOME
SUE, IF YOU WANT THE GRANDEST, MOST REFRESHING BATH, STOP IN THE STORE AND GET SOME LIFEBUOY
I ALWAYS USE IT. ONE REASON I DO IS SO I WON'T HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT "B.O."
WORRY ABOUT "B.O."? MY DEAR, I NEVER EVEN THINK OF IT
I KNOW YOU DON'T, SUE. THAT'S JUST THE TROUBLE. FORGIVE MY PLAIN SPEAKING BUT...
SHE WON'T HAVE TO GIVE ME A HINT TWICE. I'LL ALWAYS USE LIFEBUOY. WHAT WONDERFUL LATHER! HOW DEEPLY IT CLEANSES!

"B.O." GONE — wallflower days over!
SUE, YOU NEVER WANT A PARTY TO BREAK UP
WHY SHOULD SHE — WITH MEN FIGHTING TO DANCE WITH HER



HOW DO YOU KEEP FRESH AS A DAISY THESE HOT DAYS? WHAT MAKES YOUR SKIN SO SMOOTH?
SAME ANSWER TO BOTH QUESTIONS — LIFEBUOY

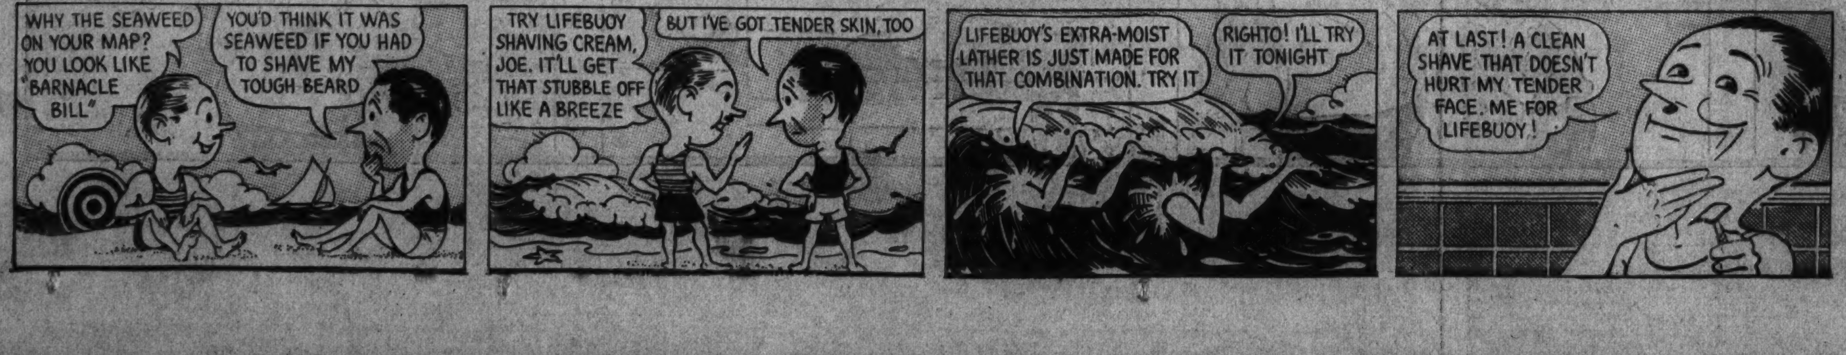
Be wise! Adopt Lifebuoy for bath and complexion. Its rich, deep-cleansing lather washes away pore-clogging impurities, brings new radiance. Yet "patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women show it is over 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps."

Gracious, it's hot!

How one perspires! How easy for "B. O." (body odor) to offend. Bathe often with Lifebuoy. It purifies pores, stops "B. O." Lathers abundantly in hardest water. Its own clean, pleasant scent vanishes as you rinse.

Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau

LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP



WHY THE SEAWEED ON YOUR MAP? YOU LOOK LIKE "BARNACLE BILL"
YOU'D THINK IT WAS SEAWEED IF YOU HAD TO SHAVE MY TOUGH BEARD
TRY LIFEBUOY SHAVING CREAM, JOE. IT'LL GET THAT STUBBLE OFF LIKE A BREEZE
BUT I'VE GOT TENDER SKIN, TOO
LIFEBUOY'S EXTRA-MOIST LATHER IS JUST MADE FOR THAT COMBINATION. TRY IT
RIGHTO! I'LL TRY IT TONIGHT
AT LAST! A CLEAN SHAVE THAT DOESN'T HURT MY TENDER FACE. ME FOR LIFEBUOY!

Men! Here's the low-down on clean, close, easy shaves

Lifebuoy Shaving Cream lather holds 52% more moisture. It softens tough beards quicker, more thoroughly—and keeps them soft. Makes close shaving easy and pleasant. It's decidedly milder than other shaving soaps, too—soothes sensitive skin. Try it — feel the difference!

"Operators Wanted"

PREPARE AT DeLEE with MME. LOUISE

Exclusive beauty shops want operators who have been trained the DeLEE way under Mme. Louise. Madame Louise, internationally famous hairdressing and beauty culture expert, will aid personally in training you for a BETTER POSITION and a larger income.

You, Too, Can Have a Good Paying Position

Why worry about finding work? Why wear out your shoes answering ads? Why struggle along with low pay? Learn beauty culture at DeLEE and qualify yourself for a good paying, pleasant position. No matter what you have been doing—teaching, bookkeeping, stenography—you can learn beauty culture and assure yourself a happy, prosperous future. Previous experience or a high school education not necessary.

Visit DeLee First

A visit to DeLEE won't obligate you. It will open your eyes. Come in and talk with the DeLEE dean, and let her explain just how DeLEE prepares you for a BETTER POSITION AND MORE PAY.

BOTH DAY AND EVENING CLASSES.

Open Mon., Wed., and Fri. evenings.

YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Would you be interested in starting in business for yourself without one cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men were previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shop workers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in net profit as much as $50 for a single day.

We are an old line, nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constant, increasing demand.

Now here are our requirements—you must be under 50, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side of Chicago, northern Indiana and northeastern Illinois.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and if selected will be trained at our expense in our methods, which are successful.

There are no strings attached to this offer, as we even pay rent, light, heat, telephone, girl hire, consign your merchandise, and finance your accounts.

Apply Monday only between 1 and 3 p. m. Ask for Mr. Leonard, Suite 404, Maryland Bldg., 63d-st. and Maryland-av.

MEN.

Due to our increasing business, we will employ 6 men for our Evanston organization. These men must be satisfied with approximately $30.00 per week during their training period. They will be required to work 10 hours daily. They must have the finest character references.

Those men selected will have the opportunity to meet and talk with experienced men in our sales organization who are being paid as high as $100.00 per week and more. This is not just another job, but a genuine opportunity for those we select to become permanently associated with the most unusual, fastest-growing organization in the United States.

See Personnel Mgr., 905 Chicago-av., 2d fl., Evanston, Ill., Monday morning, July 22, between 9:30 and 12.

If

—you can absorb new ideas quickly,
—you are willing and eager to do the things necessary to qualify for executive position in organization now being formed,
—you are content to start on a moderate income while qualifying for better things, —you are between 25 and 40, neat appearing and used to meeting the public,
—you may fit into one of the several department store or other retail branches of nationally known appliance manufacturer. Commissions paid in advance weekly. Apply after 9:30 a. m., Room 234, 35 E. Wacker-dr.

ARE YOU
COMING TO CHICAGO?

During the World's Fair thousands of people made a discovery they have not forgotten. They learned it was just as cheap to take a furnished apt. as it was a hotel room.

If you are coming to Chicago for a day, a week or permanently, consider THE ADVANTAGES of living in a 1, 2, or 3 room furnished apartment.

The Bryn Mawr, one of Chicago's largest apartment hotels, is only 1 block to Edgewater Bathing Beach and 1 block to "L" and bus. Complete Hotel Service. Telephone calls only 7 cents. Large living rooms and closets. Completely furnished kitchenettes, including Range, Refrigerator, Silverware, China, Ironing Boards, Table Linen, Daily Maid Service.

1-2-3 rms., $2.50 per day up; $18 per wk. up. Permanent, monthly rates start at $45.00.

ON THE LAKE SHORE
IN EVANSTON.

It's rather nice to live in a house built high on a walled-in terrace sheltered from the noise and dust of the street, and where the view to the north and the south is into thick woods and over beautiful lawns, and to the east, out over the colorful waters of Lake Michigan. A little secluded spot, yet it's right in the midst of Evanston, within 25 minutes by motor or train from Chicago's loop; a marvelous retreat, both summer and winter, for a busy business man who cannot afford to spend much time commuting. We have 2 such houses for rent. Each of 12 rooms; large living rms. and porches; 2 car garages, and everything that one needs in a marvelous home. One furnished, the other unfurnished. You may not believe it, but a pair of cardinal birds live in the woods the year round.

California.

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution for many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity, where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. Agricultural Development Department, Santa Fe Railway, 900A Railway Exchange, Chicago.

What Should You Do with Your Money?

If your money is lying idle in a bank or safety box you sometimes wonder if there isn't a place you could put it where it would still be safe and yet bring in a decent return.

Let us suggest an investment where your money can draw big interest and bring you in a handsome salary besides. We refer to the business of operating coin controlled automatic phonographs.

You can buy these phonographs brand new from us on deferred payments. We finance 85% of your equipment, deliver the instruments to you already to install, in such locations as taverns, cafes, roadhouses, confectioneries, restaurants, drug stores, and any place people dance. Single instruments often take in from $50 to $75 per month. The intake is all cash; you have no credit losses. Overhead is negligible. No previous experience is necessary on your part. Hundreds of folks like you with $500 cash to invest have entered this business and made an immediate success. No one has yet failed to get his money back and a handsome profit in addition. Co-operating to make your success is an old established concern, which enjoys highest financial rating. Write us at once.

Simple Process Preserves Luscious Summer Berries in Jams and Jellies

By MARY MEADE.

JULY is the berry canning month. Cherries, currants, gooseberries, blueberries, huckleberries, raspberries, and sometimes blackberries are usually most plentiful in this part of the country at this time of year. As a result, many midwestern kitchens are already fragrant with cooking fruit, and gay with colorful glasses of home canned sweets and sauces.

Even rosily confused and inexperienced young cooks are turning out excellent berry jellies and jams nowadays. With or without the addition of commercial pectin substances, these fruity sweets are pleasantly simple to concoct, following the few simple rules that govern home preserving.

Say, for instance, that it's a sparkling berry jelly that's to seek its resting place on your pantry shelves. The first business is to extract the juice of the berries. All they need is a careful washing and looking over before they go into the preserving kettle. Crushed, they need no added water for this first cooking, especially if a pectin substance isn't added. In the case that a commercial pectin is used, some recipes occasionally call for a little water in the extraction.

Cook Only Long Enough to Soften.

Once in the kettle, the berries should be cooked only long enough to soften them. Long cooking allows the fresh fruit flavors to escape, darkens the color, and may so transform some of the natural pectin of the fruit that its jellying power will be weakened. From one to three minutes is the general rule for boiling berries whose juice is to be extracted for jelly.

Next the juice is separated from the pulp by straining the liquid through a wet jelly bag. The bag should be allowed to drain for at least an hour, without any attempt to hurry it along by squeezing. Cloudiness is a result of such overhaste. The juice, thus separated from the cooked berries, may need to be strained, perhaps several times, to insure sparkling clearness.

Not more than six or eight cups of jelly should be cooked at one time, for best results, and the volume of the preserving kettle should be four or five times greater than the amount of juice.

Add Sugar at Boiling Point.

When the strained and measured juice is again boiling, the sugar should be added as soon as it reaches the boiling point. The two should be cooked together rapidly for a bright, clear product, for slower cooking gives a dull, dark jelly of inferior texture and flavor.

The "sheeting" test, as every experienced jelly maker knows, is the simplest way of telling when a jelly is cooked, when a commercial pectin has not been added. When a small amount of the juice drops from the spoon in a congealed sheet, the jelly is done and should be removed from the heat at once.

While the jelly glasses are coming out of their sterilizing bath in boiling water, the hot sirup stands in the kettle. Then and not before does it need to be skimmed to remove any foreign substances or coagulated proteins. Skimming several times during the cooking is likely to waste juice as well as time.

On the other hand, if you'd have berry jams for your winter delectation, the process is even simpler. The cleaned berries are measured into the preserving kettle, the measured sugar is added, and the mixture is stirred until the sugar is dissolved and the kettle boiling. As with jellies, the boiling should be rapid to preserve bright colors and natural flavors. When the fruit is clear and the mixture thickened, the jam has finished cooking. If you want it to have a jellylike consistency, the "sheeting" test may be applied.

After the cooked jam leaves the heat it must be cooled for a short time to give it that slight stiffening which enables it to hold the berries in place and prevent floating.

So far nothing about the methods employed when berry sweets are made with commercial pectin—or, for that matter, nothing of any actual suggestions for making up this summer

Silks and Satins Bring a Touch of Suavity to Summer Wardrobes

By RHEA SEEGER.

MIDSUMMER silks and satins, just in time for the shopping lull that inevitably comes between frilly cottons and diaphanous chiffons and the fall tweeds and wools. Nice, long, slinky satins that cling revealingly to the figure; satins in bold, bright colors for contrast against summer sun tans, in pastels, in ice cool shades of green and blue, and in breath-taking all white that is the last word in smooth, classic sophistication.

Summer silks that rustle so enticingly are the flowered taffetas, soft and supple as bits of chiffon, taffetas of this year's vintage that are but distant relatives of the stiff, stand alone creations of last season's successes. Lovely, feminine, and most picturesque, they are the summer heart breakers without an equal.

Gowns of Satin Stress Yardage.

Gowns of satin stress yardage. Skirtlines are cut with a fine, lavish swoop of the shears. Other satins achieve fulness with sunburst plaited skirts, skin tight and low cut bodices, handsomely decorated with a duet of glittering jeweled clips Gleaming, shining, unquestionably these midsummer dress parade clothes of satin are the most glamorous in any wardrobe. Plain one color satin gowns are extremely effective but don't pass the flowered satins by in your shopping tours. They are just as exciting as they look, for flowered satin is as soft and as easy to drape as anything of chiffon or silk. Fullness is introduced in the skirt with circular cut godets, some directly in front, some at the sides, and some at the back. Most of them have short trains, easily managed now after a season or two of practice.

Four new summer models have been photographed. At the left, a long, molded evening gown of flowered satin. The back is open, the halter neckline keeping the gown high and draped in front. Fullness is achieved with rippling, circular insets directly in the front, and there is a short train at the back. The background, in one model, is a cool, icy blue, the flowers are soft, blurred motifs in darker shades of blue and blue green.

Center left . . . One of the most beautifully romantic of the summer taffetas. One version shows a gunmetal gray background splashed with moderately sized flowers and leaves in soft old rose and old blue tones. The skirt hugs the figure to the knees, where it billows out in a circular cut flounce. The huge, picturesque sleeves are attached to the shoulders with deep plaits and puffs above the elbow.

Creamy Ivory Striped with Gold.

Center right . . . Satin—in one frock a deep, creamy ivory striped with gold—has stripes meeting in front in deep Vs. The skirt is flared around the ankle line, the bodice is molded to the figure and accented with a bunch of gold colored flowers. The sleeves are plaited, short, and sharp. This supple striped satin is a bit heavier than the flowered satin, but drapes and flatters the figure just as effectively.

At the right . . . Another lovely flowered taffeta, also made to reveal the long, slim lines of the figure. A huge bustle bow matches the flaring large bow at the back of the halter neckline. And this skirt, too, has fullness with deep, circular cut flounces. One model is a French flowered taffeta in soft blues, pale greens, and old rose shades against a silvery dark background.

All these are to be found in a smart Chicago shop in a collection of other equally charming midsummer evening gowns.

Slender Draped Gowns Are in Lead for Fall

Paris Adapts Styles of Turkey, Persia, and Greece for Moderns.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Contrary Paris, in the midseason fashion shows that give us a strong whiff of fall styles, came out strong for a program of wider daytime skirts, and pared down evening skirts. All of the dressmakers threw away those billowing evening skirts they'd been making, and to a man, or woman, hewed to a slim and more or less slinky line.

Draped dresses are all over the fashion lot. The draped skirts that appeared in these pages from the spring French style parade were the forerunners. There are a good many evening dresses that are draped after the styles of ancient Greece. There are some that are draped in the oriental Turkish or Persian manner. There are scads of them draped more or less like the fashions of early 1900.

The lady who wears a molded evening dress will be Miss Fashion for fall, 1935. Her gown may be of dramatic black velvet, gathered into [illegible] around the waistline and hips, or full in the Greek way at the skirt front. It may have a V-shaped, deep square, or halter, neckline. Its wearer may have flowers—possibly camelias—at her bosom or on the hip. She may have long sleeves if she wears a dinner dress, and she may wear a drapery or veil over her head. She is likely to wear a long evening cape over her dress.

Uncrushable, Transparent Velvet Is Highly Important.

Evening materials for the season ahead are varied, so you will have a leeway in your choice. Velvet will be important, with uncrushable, transparent velvet a favorite, followed by [illegible] velvet. Lamés and metal brocades, particularly those that combine [illegible] or color with silver, will be [illegible] for the grand evening dress. Drapable silk crêpes and flat clokeys will be fashionable and practical. Chiffon [illegible] and moires will also be much in the picture, and lace, too.

Flowers on Evening [illegible] a Sign of Elegance.

Evening colors for the cool season [illegible] veer to rich shades, with the most beautiful purply-blues like periwinkle, but darker, in the lead. Black and white will be in strong, the mauve to purple tones will appear, and reds in pure American beauty and zinnia tones will be worn, as well as dark reds. Blues in medium and [illegible] tones, and soft pinks are present in minor quantities, and pure golden yellow is here. Dresses in the Greek inspiration are always most beautiful in white, and white is at present a tremendous favorite with extra chic women. Veronese and other pure, transparent greens are shown by the Paris dressmakers for evening.

You will want to wear some ornamental flowers, or a veil headdress in or on your hair this season. Flowers on your evening gown will be a sign of chic and elegance.

Paste jewelry is back in fashion for evening, with old-fashioned brilliants made into necklaces, bracelets, earrings, and brooches first on the list. Chanel's flower spray brooches and big earrings set with colored stones are a new jewel note. Strands of pearls from Mainbocher are bringing pearls back. Schiaparelli's hanging earrings of multiple gold chains play up ear hangings in styles. Jewel studded belts will be worn on Greek draped evening and dinner dresses.

Schiaparelli Features Daring Color Contrasts.

High and low heeled evening sandals will be at the foot of evening fashions, and some women will wear twenty button kid gloves with their 1900 draped evening frocks.

The sketches show you some of the new Paris dresses and wraps that herald the fall mode. Schiaparelli's dramatic zipper closed, dove gray crêpe evening dress is at the lower left. Mauve and golden flowers hang over the zipper at the left side. The halter bodice is characteristic, and the fenceband at the hem in back, shown above, is a new detail.

Daring color contrasts will be as important for evening as for daytime. The Schiaparelli dress and cape, second from the left, feature this. The dress is a rich, purply-blue satin draped and tied in a bow at the waistline, and the lower skirt and train are in pale ruby color, called "ruby rose."

Alix Combines Greek and Harem Influences.

The Patou frock and cape, upper center, have also a strong color contrast, being pale gold with vivid green details. The dress is full in front, and has a draped bertha and scarf of green.

Lucien Lelong's manner with drapery is shown second from the right and upper left. The bodice is draped along the shoulders and this drapery makes a cape across the back. The dress is made of American beauty red crêpe.

The sensational number at the right is Alix' latest evening silhouette, which combines the Greek influence with harem drapery at the bottom of the skirt. The tunic is pure Greek. This dress and its tunic are made of pale blue jersey net, and the tunic may be removed leaving the dress with its shirred and fitted, hip length bodice and its skirt that is caught into harem panels at the hem.

SYMBOLS OF NEW AUTUMN TRENDS

Paris Snapshots

- Fur evening capes for the coming season will be as popular as ever. White ermine capes draped to remind you of the Hindu sari are coming in. Silver fox capes made of many petals of that rich fur are novelties for autumn evenings.
- Spiral wound long capes, made of velvet or rich brocade, are announced for evenings in the fall.
- The newest sports fur coats in Paris are made of brilliantly splashed black and white goat skin. They are knee length and swagger.
- Wonderful for summer cruises and traveling are Anny Blatt's hand knit evening dresses, done with silk floss.
- The evening gown with long, tight sleeves, or with bouffant sleeves, is to be important in first fall styles. It will be a boon to the woman who has little need of a low cut gown.
- Diadems made of mirror glass, designed by Antoine, were the sensation of the recent gala at the Ambassadeurs in Paris.

A FRESH AND FRAGRANT DESSERT

Luscious July blueberries find no more appreciative reception any place than they do between the flaky crusts of a berry pie. A dash of tart lemon juice in the filling brings out their fresh, rich flavor to perfection. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

bounty. So, to bring down two birds, here are several excellent jelly and jam recipes, using commercial pectin.

SOUR CHERRY JELLY.

3½ cups cherry juice
7 cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

Mix the sugar and juice in a large kettle, and bring to a boil over intense heat. Add the pectin at once, stirring constantly, bring again to a full rolling boil, and hold for a half minute. Then remove from the heat, skim, and fill sterile glasses. Seal with hot paraffin immediately.

GOOSEBERRY AND RED RASPBERRY JAM.

4 cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

Crush about a pound of ripe gooseberries and add a fourth cup of water. Stir until the mixture boils, cover, and let simmer for ten minutes. Crush a quart of ripe raspberries. Measure the prepared fruit and sugar into a large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full boil over a hot fire. Boil hard for one minute, stirring constantly, remove from heat, and stir in the pectin. Skim, pour quickly, and paraffin hot jam at once.

BLACKBERRY AND RHUBARB JELLY.

4 cups fruit juice
7½ cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

[The juice is formed by cooking one and one-half pounds of ripe rhubarb with a quart of blackberries.] Combine the juices and sugar, mix well, and bring quickly to a full boil. Add the pectin, stirring constantly, and continue vigorous boiling for a half minute. Skim, pour into hot clean glasses, and seal immediately with hot paraffin.

Auto Hammock Lightens Baby's Travel Discomforts

THE problem of how to travel by motor with comfort when an infant is in the party is easily solved by investing in a baby auto hammock. These little items are available in two sizes. They are strong and safe, made of durable khaki with adjustable straps and cushion springs that have just enough buoyancy to keep the wee bairn in good humor.

Indeed, these hammocks are ideal for the baby when a screened in porch is the extent of his traveling. They are built high enough on each side, making it impossible for child to spill out when swaying to and fro.

Adviser Offers Modest Budget for Furniture

Suggests Fund Needed to Equip Quarters of Single to Three Rooms.

By Doris Blake.

NOW for the cost of setting up housekeeping "on one's own." We already have given an idea of what the betrothal ring, the wedding ring, and the linen trousseau might cost. Furnishing the one room apartment, the two or three room, on moderate sums, is a problem confronting us today.

In compiling expense lists, our object is to keep the cost down to a minimum expenditure, since this is not a year or time in which putting up a front like the Joneses is entertained as the idea of young couples on the eve of the great adventure. However, we aimed also to present the possible expenses in as constructive a manner as possible.

We repeat that we can give only an approximate price listing, and without taking into account February and August furniture sales, during which time there may be quite an appreciable reduction in the items listed herewith. Nor have we figured on special sale prices offered by stores throughout the year on articles of household furnishing. We would suggest only that young couples keep an eye open for these sales.

ONE ROOM.

Twin studio divan, opens to two single or one double bed	$ 39.00
Drop leaf table	15.00
Four chairs for table and side chairs at $5 each	20.00
Lounge chair	20.00
One occasional chair [comfortable enough to replace another lounge chair]	10.00
Coffee or end table	5.00
*Rug	30.00
Draperies at $5 a pair	10.00
Secretary	29.00
	$168.00

*You can buy good remnants of broadloom for small quarters.

Standard walnut and mahogany used in above calculations and in those to follow, unless otherwise specified.

TWO ROOMS.

Living Room.

Two piece; can get from $69 up; average expenditure between $100 and	$120.00
One coffee table	10.00
One secretary or bookcase [$29] and little desk around $20	49.00
Two-in-one console	39.00
Wing chair	39.00
Four Duncan Phyfe design chairs [serve for bridge, dining, and occasional chairs], around $9	36.00
Rug, around	50.00
Draperies, around $8 to $10 a pair; two pair	20.00

This room totals around $350, subject to reduction with painted bookshelves, draperies one can make herself, and better prices at sales.

Bedroom.

Three piece walnut bed, chest, dresser	$ 69.00
Bed springs	17.75
Mattress	25.00
Boudoir chair	5.00
Vanities	20.00
Chaise longue	20.00
Rug	20.00
Bed spread and drapes, around	12.00
Curtains, around $2 a pair	4.00
	$193.75

THREE ROOMS.

Living Room.

Same plan as for two room apartment, except omit console table and four side chairs.

Use a pair of end tables on either side of sofa at $10 apiece	$ 20.00
Use interlaced back Chippendale chair for desk	15.00
Nice occasional chair	15.00
Extra ottoman, use with lounge chair	9.00

Bedroom.

Same as two room

Dining Room.

Acceptable sets, 10 pieces [china, buffet, table, armchair, five side chairs, and server], $129.50 to	149.50
Rug from $50 to	70.00
Drapes [$10 a pair]	20.00
	$239.50

You are advised to get as handsome rug and draperies as possible for the dining room to relieve the flatness of dining room furniture, picking up the predominant color in the rug to repeat in draperies. These figures necessarily are approximate, so you're fairly safe in figuring:

For one room	$150.00
For two rooms	500.00
For three rooms	800.00

This is without the kitchen, which we will discuss separately.

If you are planning a modern apartment, as we hear many smart young couples are doing, the costs may be estimated on the above basis for the modern type furnishings for the one, two, and three room apartments.

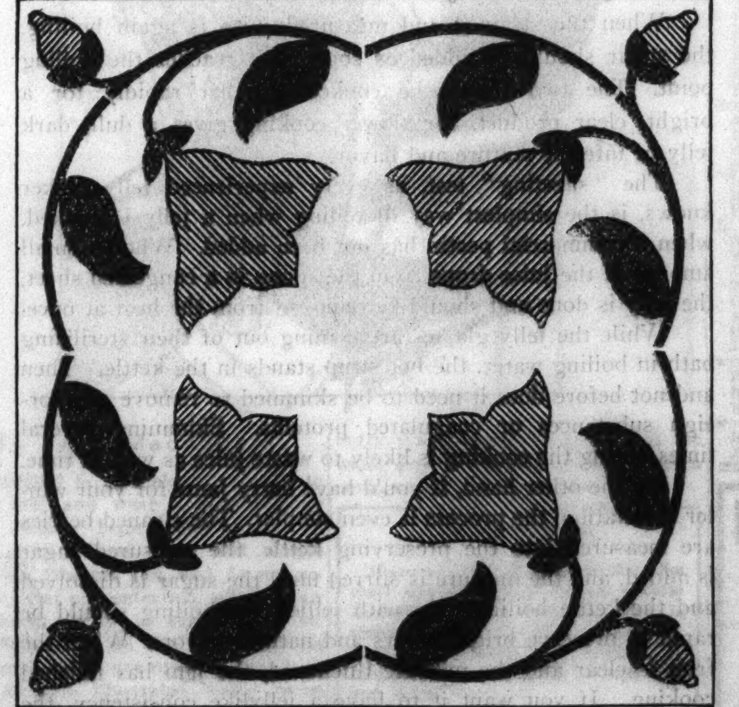
"Bluebell Wreath" Quilt on Way to National Fame



BLUEBELL WREATH

By Nancy Cabot.

For your blue room, "Bluebell Wreath" is a quilt which is not so new, but one which has been found only occasionally in widely separated communities of the United States and which should be among our best known and most popular designs. The entire wreath may be placed against a soft pink, any delicate tinted, or white background. Since the block is large, measuring twenty-four inches square, only six applique and six plain blocks are required for the entire coverlet.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Avenues of Fashion

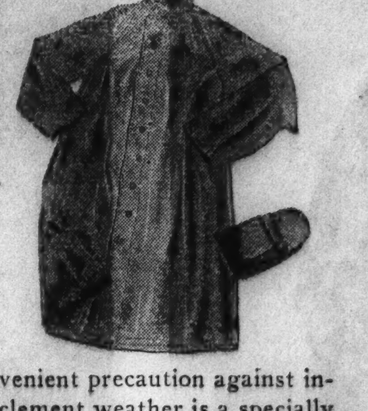
GOOD advice to the summer vacation sojourner is to avoid extremes of either too much or too little in the way of accessories and other paraphernalia . . . particularly happy is the vacationist who has thought far enough ahead to prepare for fair weather or foul.

Articles should be selected not only for their suitability as to fashion but also as to their practicality, convenience and occupancy of small space.

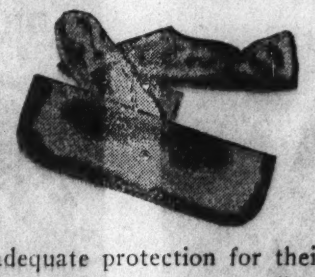
READY FOR RAIN

Summer storms must be anticipated on any vacation program. A sound and convenient precaution against inclement weather is a specially treated silk raincoat that folds compactly into a bag of the same material, no larger than a well-filled tobacco pouch!



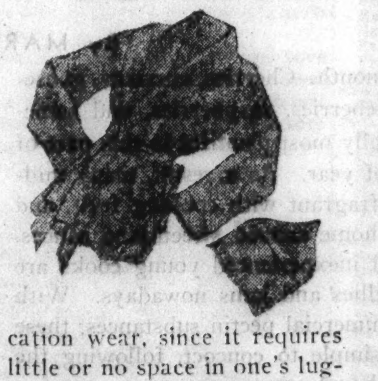
MINIMUM OF SPACE

In the same breath we should and do recommend pullman slippers, which are adequate protection for their intended purpose, as well as suitable for hotel and private guest rooms. Incidentally, these also fit into a minimum of space in their own envelope container.



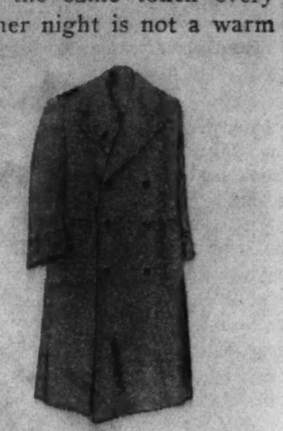
CONVENIENCE IN THE BAG

Any one who has ever forgotten to take along a robe on any sort of trip—and particularly a summer vacation—will not need a warning in this direction. Most suitable for the purpose is a silk foulard robe, which again is an ideal article of apparel for vacation wear, since it requires little or no space in one's luggage and folds to almost unbelievably small size. Foulard silks in robes are obtainable not only in neat necktie patterns but are likewise available in bolder, madder print patterns, including the Paisley family, always a classic pattern for robes.



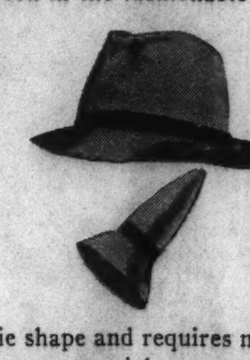
WARMTH WITHOUT WEIGHT

By the same token every summer night is not a warm one, and many are the evenings when a soft camel's hair coat provides needed protection. Camel's hair has the unique quality of warmth without burdensome weight.



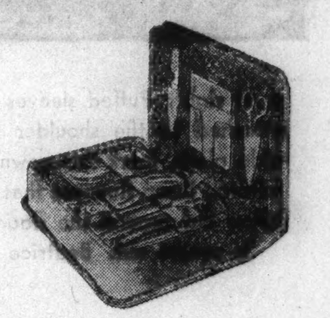
LIGHT HEADED AND RUGGED

The problem of the vacationist's headwear is well solved by a hat of extremely lightweight felt that may be worn in the fashionable porkpie shape and requires no hatbox or special compartment, as it may be tightly rolled to occupy minimum space. It is recommended in gray-green and brown shades, which look well with most summer outfits.



KITS ARE COMPLETE

Conveniences of the toilet are best carried in a kit that is designed to hold all the essentials. The modern version of the toilet kit is equipped with containers of proper size to hold all the requisites.



TIME UNDER CONTROL

What with time on one's hands, it is most difficult to account for the hours of the day; as an assurance that one's engagements may not be tardily kept, a traveling clock is a handy companion. The model sketched is eminently practical and is protected by a well padded leather case.

Home Treatment For Keeping Skin Young

MERCOLIZED WAX is the one beauty aid you can afford because this single preparation embodies all the essentials of beauty that your skin needs. It cleanses, softens, bleaches, lubricates and protects. It is so simple to use, too. Just pat it on your skin each night as if it were an ordinary cold cream. That's all. Mercolized Wax seeps into your pores and dissolves grime and dust and all impurities. It absorbs the discolored surface skin in tiny, invisible particles, revealing the beautiful, soft, young skin that lies beneath. It clears away freckles, tan, oiliness, sunburn or any other blemishes. You use such a tiny bit of Mercolized Wax for each application that it proves an inexpensive beauty investment. Beauty cannot be taken for granted. It must be cared for regularly if you want to hold it through the years. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin.

POWDERED SAXOLITE dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel quickly reduces wrinkles and other age signs. It is a refreshing, stimulating astringent lotion. Use it daily. At all drug and department stores.

Psychological Suicide Trait of Middle Age

Imperative to Maintain Beauty Care and Avoid the Tendency to Slump.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

THIS is mothers' day in this department. Not the national holiday, devoted to honoring mama, with remembrances of this and that sort! Just our own little mothers' day. Nevertheless, we're going to give mothers, middle-aged mothers, that is, some sage advice, inspired by a famous mental hygienist who knows the moods of depression and melancholy that often beset the woman who feels that the years have caught up with her, and are ready to "throw" her at any moment.

To begin with, that kind of talk just doesn't belong in this day and age at all. So, the first suggestion is to refuse to believe that your best days are over. Your gay, young days, perhaps, yes! But not your best days, unless, of course, you've already committed what our authority insists upon calling psychological suicide, or you're planning the fatal deed.

Comparison with Likeness of Ten Years Ago May Be Helpful.

Here's a little something the middle-aged woman might do to give her impetus to live with renewed vim and vigor. Just drag out a photograph of yourself taken ten years ago. Compare it with your appearance today. That ought to set you to thinking, if you're that much better and smarter looking now than ten years ago, why can't the next ten and twenty show as happy a comparison? True, you won't look as young, really, as you did at 30, say. But you probably will look a great deal smarter, snappier as to clothes, coiffure, and figure.

Now, we are referring, of course, to the woman who has kept herself up. The others, the "psychological suicide" group, naturally, will have no such inspiring picture to spur them to effort, mainly because they've been slipping for a long time. We'll have to give our time to them another day. It's the first group with which we're concerned today.

Loss of Self-Esteem Ruinous to Charm of the Middle Years.

Basically, the trouble is a loss of self-esteem. Comparisons with younger women may cause it, particularly when one heretofore has been used to a good deal of flattery on her appearance. Or, the awareness that one can not lead so hectic a life as formerly. Perhaps the fact that one no longer can wear the smaller sized frocks effects a letdown. And then the fact that one is getting on in years has its overpowering moments. For the last named "bad moment" there's only one weapon of defense, and it is to keep so constructively occupied that one hasn't time to entertain any blues singer and to spend a little more time taking care of her personal and physical appearance.

Now, as never before, the well manicured nails do matter, the hair ditto. Skin, teeth, and eyes need close watching. The diet and a little exercising become matters of vital concern if you want that "lift" that enables you to meet your social and occupational problems smiling. Neglect of these items at this time creates the middle-aged fatalities among women.

The approved plan is not to try to look years and years younger, but to look the youngest and smartest the age legitimately permits, which is pretty darned youthful and smart looking, when one looks around and sees it illustrated in some outstanding women of accomplishment today.

Spectator Sports Frock in Shirtwaist Tradition Uses Clever Stitching.

By Clotilde.

THIS smart variation of the traditionally popular shirtwaist mode employs stitching to accent its chic. The rever collar and brief, tailored sleeves present this detail to great advantage.

This spectator sports frock is especially lovely created in flattering dusty pink, with Dubonnet contrast in the chiffon scarf and pocket handkerchief. The belt also may continue the theme of this delightful shade of red.

Washable satin crêpe is a perfect fabric for the frock, while plaid gingham, checked seersucker, multicolored poplin are other materials adaptable to this design.

This pattern, No. 2978, is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting for scarf.

For the fashion wise. The summer edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions is on sale. It includes disarming modes for vacation trunks, sports togs, beach wear, and evening models, with special patterns flattering to mature figures. The price is 15 cents; 10 cents when ordered with a pattern. Address Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

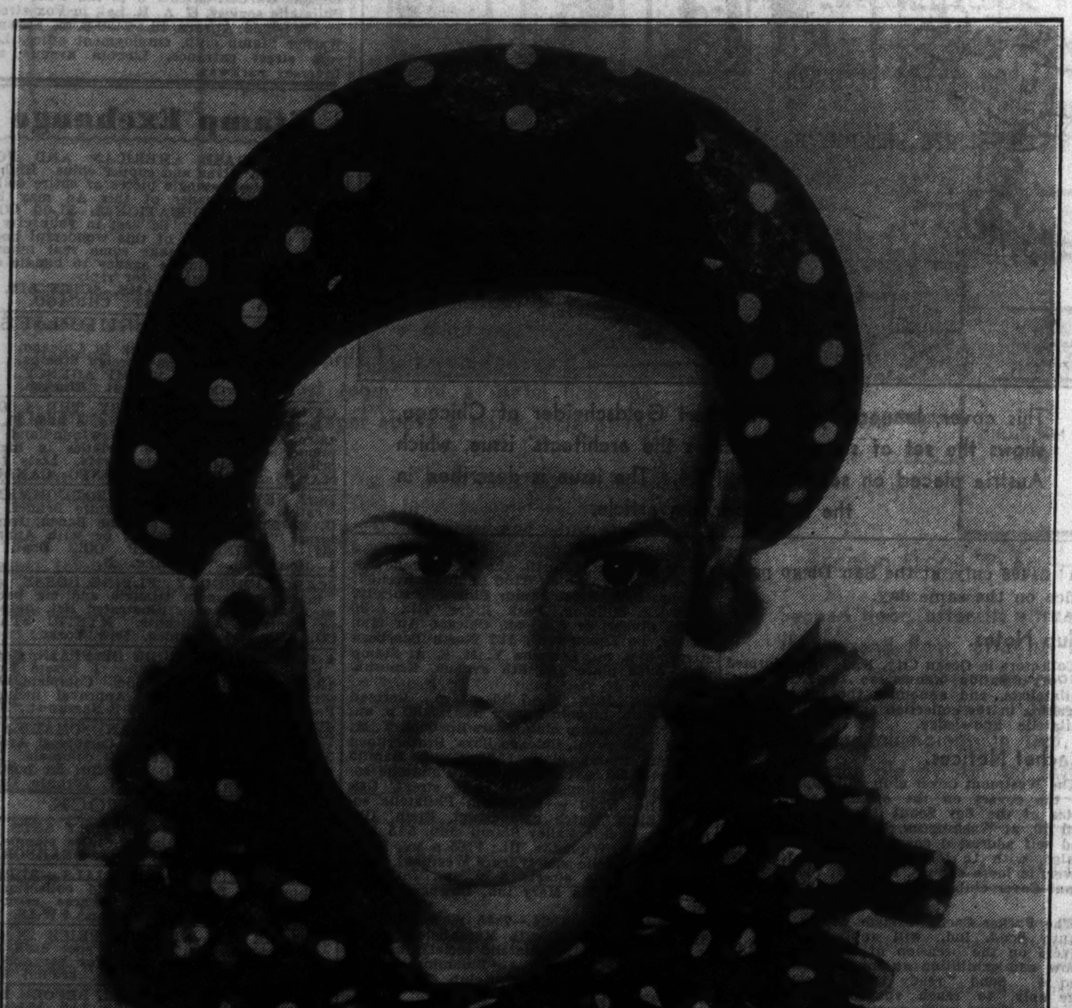
EPHEMERAL ACCENTS IN ORGANDY



Midsummer smartness that can be used for color and contrast with all white daytime clothes. The hat is of filmy black organdy embroidered with snowy white dots, an off-the-face model matched to a neck ruff of the white dotted organdy. Two black velvet bows and a head band of velvet trim the hat, and the ruff ties either at the back or front. From a Chicago shop.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Decore of Mae West's Boudoir a Perfect Expression of—Mae West.

By Eleanor Nangle.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—In a row of ten million dressing rooms on all the movie lots strung together you'd know in a second when you'd come to Mae West's. It's pink and white and perfumed, and feminine with an ooh-la-la air.

There are downy chairs covered in pink satin; a pink chaise longue, also in satin, with lacy pillows. The carpeting is gray. The draperies are white, and here and there are occasional white and gilt pieces to break the boudoir monotony of pink. You pass a triple mirror screen to get to an alcove that shelters the dressing table—a luxurious pink satin skirted affair with a huge mirror framed in lights.

La West is a busy woman, which is one reason why that dressing room is indelibly imprinted on what mind we have left after the Hollywood whirl. We did some waiting there but didn't mind it a bit. We never consider a moment on a movie lot a moment wasted.

A cigaret is only a prop in any Mae West photograph. La West declines to smoke. The vitality that is the secret of her appeal is carefully preserved by rigorous attention to her health, which has been superb.

Twenty Carat Diamonds Definitly La West's Style.

Finally, after some switching of appointments and some scurrying on both sides, we meet one of the most talked of women in the world. Miss West knows her opulent type. She wears a mustard colored crêpe afternoon dress, with skirt to the ground, a black velvet beret that pops well out over the forehead, and a luxurious fur neck piece that's almost that same shade of yellow as the dress.

The fur, we learned, is "canary Marten." We hadn't known about that before. We tried to count the skins, but it seemed rude so we gave up. However, the diamond on her right hand is a mere matter of twenty carats, and the stones in the broad bracelet that circles her left wrist and the clip at the neckline of her dress would make your head whirl. She's cr-razy about diamonds; always was. And they do suit her.

How can you analyze Mae West's appeal? She's got it certainly. Her mouth is a study. It's fairly large, definite in outline and expressive as the dickens. Her gray blue eyes, shaded by heavy, dark lashes, have a knowingness that's—well, that's an education. Her skin is like a baby's—luminous and pink and white. Her hair is obviously bleached but it has life and luster. Her figure is definitly on the round side and a girdle is one of the things she doesn't wear. She's a commanding figure — you'd never pass her up as part of the wall decorations in any room.

Superb Health Her Beauty Secret.

Beauty secrets? She "just grew." She doesn't bathe in milk or have rub downs with precious oils. She's superbly healthy—and she thinks health is the only beauty secret. And she's got health; the glow she has could come only from that. She'll be one of those ageless women. She's as relaxed as a panther. As she says herself, she never walks when she can ride; she never stands when she can sit and she never sits when she can stretch out. She has no nerves. She even denies herself the questionable luxury of getting mad or of getting excited. Take a tip from that, ladies.

She has the gift, due to poise as well as faint buxomness, of looking taller than she is. She's only five feet five. She adds two inches, by heels, when she's on the screen. Her weight, she says, is 125. She looks heavier. She treasures the milky whiteness of her skin and never suns it. Her makeup is removed with cream and then with bottled, soft, water and soap. Her hair has survived bleaching because she takes excellent care of it; the night before a shampoo a mixture of three oils is rubbed into it and allowed to remain until the hairdresser tends to it. She goes in for brushings, too.

Voice Is Deep, but Carries a Lilt.

A fairy godmother must have bequeathed her that voice. It's deep but unlike most deep voices it has a lilt in it. She loves a laugh and there's an innuendo, humorous or otherwise, in her voice whenever she speaks.

No dentist has ever extracted more than a tooth cleaning fee from her. And that's straight because, on invitation, we looked—thereby earning the distinction of having looked Mae West in the mouth. She has never had a filling, nor even a treatment. This she attributes to her magnificent health and to the fact that her mother made her tooth conscious. She takes calcium now to keep up the good work.

Her favorite and most becoming costume colors are black and white, but she can wear all colors well. She dislikes green, though. Her favorite reds are the orange key. She wears orange red polish on her long, strong nails and coats the nails from rim to tip because she likes that illusion of length.

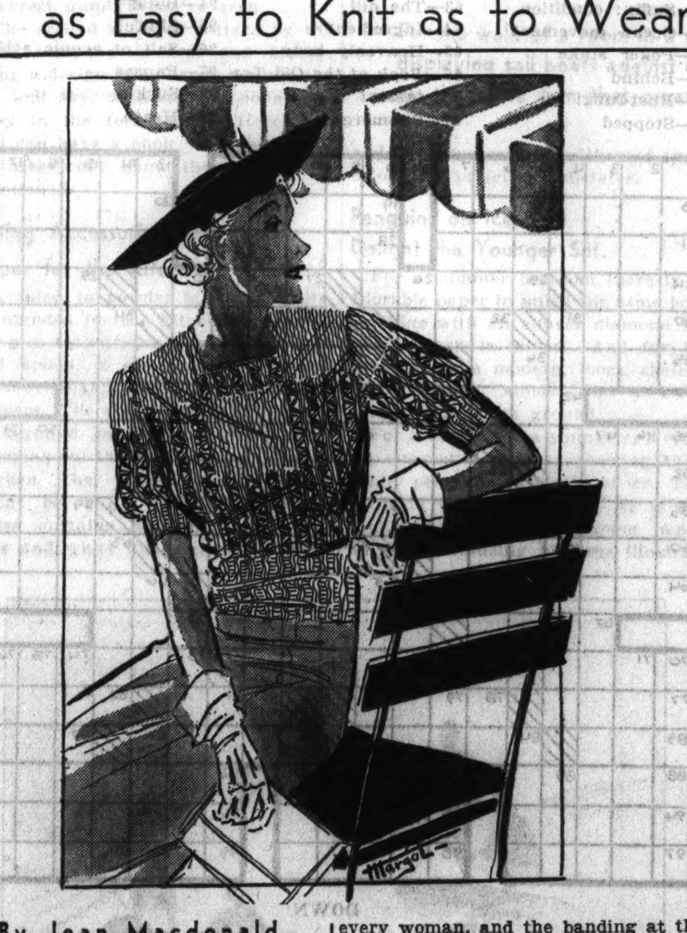
Rococo Pervades Every Aspect of Her Life.

She wears her platinum hair in bangs, fairly heavy ones that she fluffs out across her forehead toward the right temple—a tawny effect that's excellent for her type. The hair in back is fairly long and hangs in loose, luxuriant ringlets.

Illness is only a vague memory; she had measles when she was a youngster, she recalls, but that's all. She doesn't get tired—but then she works at not letting herself reach that stage. Loads of sleep, plenty of healthy, plain rations, and enough fresh air to keep the eyes bright are the mainsprings of her vitality and her peculiar come-hither charm.

In life, in clothes, and in the accoutrements of living she likes the rococo. Her compact is solid gold, with huge initials in diamonds; her house is a splendid array of rooms done in the opulent manner; her bed is heavily canopied; her favorite period is the Lillian Russell one. Heavy perfumes are invariably her choice. She loves the plush and ostrich aura of the '90s—and will have a grand time making her next picture, which will be called "Klondike." Charm has a thousand interpretations, she thinks. In some women it's serenity; in others it's the electric quality. She believes absolutely in making the most of yourself, in not missing a trick that would make you a standout in your own class. She admits frankly that she's dramatized herself. If you'd be glamorous, says Mae, you should make the most of your possibilities, treasure your health, laugh a lot—and fall in love often!

Plain, Lightweight Sweater as Easy to Knit as to Wear



By Jean Macdonald.

THERE is still plenty of time to knit and wear a good looking sweater before the summer is over. These plain and simple knitting jobs are fun, and do not require great concentration, which is an important factor in summertime relaxation. With all the new yarns on the market, the one most adaptable to the sweater illustrated today is a crinkly, lightweight wool.

The body of the sweater is worked partly in a good looking and easy pattern and partly in the stockinette stitch. For fall the sweater may be made in one of the seven popular shades—ox blood, rust, green, seal brown, wood lilac, violet, and marine blue. The style of the sweater is one which is always good for daytime occasions. Square necks are flattering to every woman, and the banding at the waist and around the sleeves gives a snug, well fitting silhouette.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instruction for knitting the short sleeved, square necked sweater illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Be sure to include the following measurements:

Sally Invites Youngsters to See White Sox Play St. Louis Team

By Sally Joy Brown.

HUNDREDS of little faces with delighted ear to ear grins—that's what I think of every time I announce a baseball party, because I know that's just the way you youngsters react to even the word "baseball"!

Mr. J. Louis Comiskey, the owner of the Chicago Sox, always has been generous with his invitations to boys and girls, and when he said he'd be delighted to have me bring 100 boys and girls out to Comiskey park I didn't lose a minute in saying we'd be there Friday, Aug. 2.

So that's my next date with all you children who would like to have some fun! I'll have tickets for 50 girls and 50 boys, and if you think you'd like to march in the gate with one of those, follow these instructions:

Write a letter to me, telling me why you think you'd like to see our Chicago Sox play St. Louis on Aug. 2. Each boy or girl must write his or her own letter.

All letters must reach me by next Thursday, July 25, in order that I may select the winners. If you succeed in winning an invitation your name will be printed in next SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE.

Here are the lucky fifties who have won invitations to our party next Thursday. Each will receive a personal invitation from me to attend our party at the Palace theater on July 25.

Some "Don'ts" for Pile Sufferers

If you are a sufferer from Piles or some other rectal disorder, read carefully the following list of "don'ts"—prepared by Dr. T. G. McCleary, world known rectal specialist. Don't neglect a well defined rectal ailment and expect it to get well. Don't use an ointment for temporary relief, believing it will produce a permanent cure. Don't wait until your whole system is undermined before you consult a competent rectal specialist. Don't take the grave chance of cancer or some other incurable condition developing before you decide to do what you should do now. Dr. McCleary has prepared a book that describes all rectal conditions and the mild McCleary treatment. It will be sent free to any rectal sufferer.

Use the following address: Dr. T. G. McCleary, 3914 Elms Blvd., Excelsior Springs, Mo. Use a postcard or write a personal letter, describing your case if you so desire.

Children Need Rest as Well as Play in Summer

Observance of Few Simple Rules Insures Healthy and Happy Vacations.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

WITH the hot weather in full swing, it will be helpful to many mothers, and especially the less experienced ones I know, to have here, all in one place, suggestions for the care of the children [and babies] in summer.

Summer—to most children—means freedom from school and homework, long hours of play, the exhilaration of a body freed from heavy winter coats, and caps, and overshoes, and mittens, the joy of feeling cool wind and hot sun on bare skin or lightly clothed bodies. And, if they are children who do not live in the city, the feel of grass and hot stones under their feet, swimming, paddling, sailing, gathering flowers and fruits—one could use up the column's allotted space with a recital of summer's happinesses, if one didn't stop, perforce.

More Than One Rest Period Necessary.

If a few simple, common sense rules are kept in force by the mother, and in the case of babies, certain health-guarding precautions in the preparation of his food, summer can be a happy, healthy season for the whole family.

Suppose we list the things we should keep in mind to make summer such a time.

Sleep and rest. Children have longer hours for play in summer and play hard, often in spite of extreme heat. No matter how difficult it may be, don't let the children slip up on their proper quota of sleep. Heat in itself is often exhausting and children need to be particularly guarded because they do not sense their own tiredness.

Do not let up on their nap, either, and in the case of the older children, arrange short rest times beside the one after lunch.

Plan Quiet Play for One Part of the Day.

Play. In hot weather it is wise to plan some quiet play for part of the day. Children will often play violently all day long even in the hottest weather, and we have to protect them from themselves. Books are a help, also card games, toys, checkers, pasting up scrapbooks, and so forth. These will keep the children quiet for part of the day, and amused, too. Sandboxes, with pails, and shovels, and water, are also deservedly popular.

However, children also need vigorous play, and this should be provided for, too, and can be indulged in freely when the weather is not so hot.

Food. See that the children drink plenty of water. Their liquids can also be in the form of orangeade, lemonade, tomato juice, and other fruit and vegetable drinks. Of course they should not have drinks that are too cold.

Keep to the usual safe standbys—plenty of fresh vegetables, both leafy and green, ripe fresh fruits, milk, and so forth. Just because it is hot do not tend to give them too many cold foods. Many an upset stomach can be traced to this. Even giving them hot cereal during the summer is often a wise decision.

No Need to Eliminate Sugar in Hot Weather.

If they eat uncooked fruits or vegetables, be sure that they are thoroughly washed in pure water. Food should not be bought which has been exposed to dirt and dust, flies, and so forth, but sometimes this cannot be avoided.

Do not feel that sugar should be cut out during hot weather. Children often need the energy foods during this time, though too much of sweets, particularly candies, is bad for them.

Weaning the baby. Even if, when summer is here, it is time to wean the baby, consult your doctor before doing so. He may advise continuing to nurse him through the summer, or part of it, or giving him some breast feedings.

If your baby is on a bottle, be especially careful in preparing his food, obeying the doctor's rules for boiling milk, water, and so forth. Many of the baby's summer illnesses can be traced to carelessness in preparing his food or to what he is fed.

Vary Clothing According to Weather.

Cod liver oil, and so forth. Consult your doctor about whether or not to continue these during the summer months.

Clothing. Dress the children according to the weather. When it is extremely hot decrease their clothing. When it is cooler, see that they do not get chilled. This is particularly important in the case of the baby.

For the little children [say, 6 or under] a sun suit, shoes, or sandals are sufficient in hot weather. When it is cooler they may need cotton underwear, their dresses or rompers, or overalls, short sox, and shoes. Sweaters may be needed when it is chilly or damp.

Nightgowns should be of some thin material with short sleeves.

Sun suits can be made of fish net for the upper part, with short trousers attached, or a one piece bathing suit cut décolleté, or merely a pair of bloomers or shorts with crossed suspenders.

The children's bed clothes should not be too warm or heavy. These can sap their energy and make them restless. In the city changes of temperature during the night are unusual, but in some country places it often gets cold around two or three in the morning and this should be borne in mind.

Five or Six Hours in Sun Not Too Much.

Sun and exposure. Children should be out of doors as much as possible during the summer, and in the sun as much as the heat will permit. In this way they can store up sunshine against the winter months when their bodies are denied the ultra-violet rays of the sun. Five or six hours out of doors in summer is not too much for children up to 6 years. During the middle of the day they should be in the shade, though, if the weather is extremely hot.

See that your baby or the older children do not get quickly sunburned. Exposure to the sun should be gradual. Do not put them into sun suits until the face, neck, and arms are partly tanned, and when they do get into sun suits, expose them gradually. A gradual tan and not a deep sunburn is what is best for them.

Baths. You will probably find it best, both for the baby and the older children, to give them their daily bath in the late afternoon. It is cooling and restful then, when they are most in need of it.

See that your house is screened in summer. Flies, mosquitoes, gnats, and other insects cannot only be annoying but dangerous. If this is not feasible, at least the kitchen and bedrooms can be screened. If wire netting is too expensive, mosquito netting or cheese cloth is adequate.

We have many booklets and leaflets on summer care which can be obtained by sending a self addressed, stamped envelope for each one desired. These cover "Traveling with the Baby," "Care of the Baby in Summer," "References to First Aid Booklets," and "Sunbathing the Baby." Many of these are valuable all year round, also, to parents living in the suburbs and remote country places.

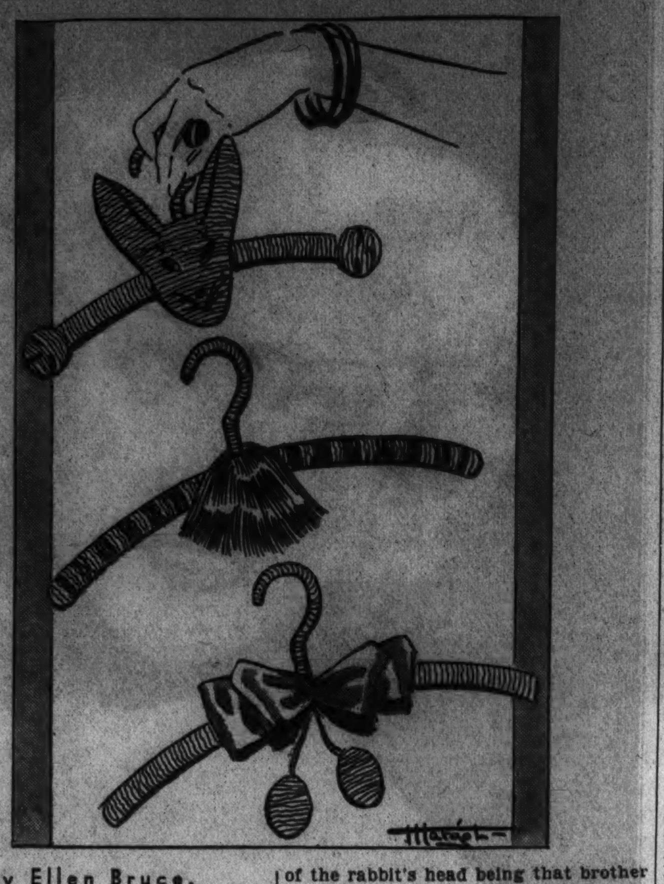
Crochet Covers Hide the Ugly Lines of Plain Coat Hangers



By Ellen Bruce.

COAT hangers, in many closets, are a motley assortment of wire, wood, and nickel jangling around on a rod. The few respectable covered or hand painted ones sprinkled among them seem to be hiding in the corner when the hostess blindly grabs for something on which to append her guests' wraps. The unsightly wooden ones may be miraculously improved with the aid of a crochet hook and a ball of mercerized cotton, silk, or rayon thread. In short, put covers on them. It's a simple operation and one which will improve any closet one hundred per cent.

The first hanger at the top is for the youngsters' clothes. The psychology of the rabbit's head being that brother or sister can be easily prevailed upon to hang their coats on br'er rabbit. For the hall closet a group of striped crochet coat hangers are suitable for all manner of guests. The last hanger is distinctly feminine, w. . the soft satin bow and two clever sachet bags attached to the ribbon.

A negligible amount of material is required for any of the three hangers. One or two balls of thread will make one of all three types of hangers illustrated.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the coat hanger illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

TODAY we present a few miscellaneous requests which probably can, and we sincerely hope will, be filled by almost any number of our readers. Won't you see if you can help in one or more of the following cases?

That old carpet which has been recently replaced by a new rug can be used nicely by Mrs. S. who writes:

"Dear Miss Brown: Would you please be kind enough to help me get a carpet or rug and some linoleum? My husband has been out of work since last fall and we had to break up housekeeping. At the present time my husband, my mother, and I are living in furnished rooms, but if we could secure just one or two small rugs we could get a stove heated flat for less rent than we are now paying. This is the first time I have had to ask for assistance and hope that you will help me to help myself."

"Dear Miss Brown: I am working but am unable to afford a bed for my little girl. She is 2½ years old and recently came home after being in the hospital for two weeks. She is much in need of a bed of her own because of her health, and I will appreciate your help in securing one.—MRS. J. K."

Mrs. M. F. sends the following request: "I am writing to you in regard to my sister's need. Her husband has recently been committed to a state hospital for the insane, and she has three small children, boys 7 and 4 and a girl 3. She has had to apply for relief. She does her own washing but is without a wringer or ironing board. I have children of my own to support, and as I go out cleaning by the day, I am unable to do much for my sister. She has been doing her washing in the bathtub and ironing on the kitchen table. Any housewife knows how inconvenient this is. Her children need shoes and clothing, which her relief organization is unable to supply at present. I realize that your desk must be laden with requests, but I wouldn't write to you if her case weren't urgent."

F. W., married and the father of a child, has had no work for some time. He has been unable to replenish his supply of clothing and is much in need of a suit, size 36, and shirts size 14. His height is 5 feet 7, his weight 124. Have you any discarded clothing you can pass on to him?

From an invalid: "Dear Miss Brown: I am coming again to you, since you were kind enough to obtain some oil paints some time ago. Now I ask if you will please request a sketch easel for me. I am a shut-in, and would like to do some painting, and it is the only piece of equipment which I lack."

E. D.

A discarded easel will help this elderly woman to pass her time working at her hobby. The address is on the south side.

Dame Rachel Crowdy Has Lived Adventurous Life

DAME RACHEL CROWDY, the only woman member of the British royal commission on armaments, has had a busy and adventurous life. She was chief commandant of the V. A. D.'s in France during the world war, and from 1919 to 1931 did valuable work for the league of nations. She has been fired at by Chinese bandits, escaped unscathed from a serious motor accident in France, lectured for two months every night in a different town in the United States, and one of her hobbies is sailing small boats.

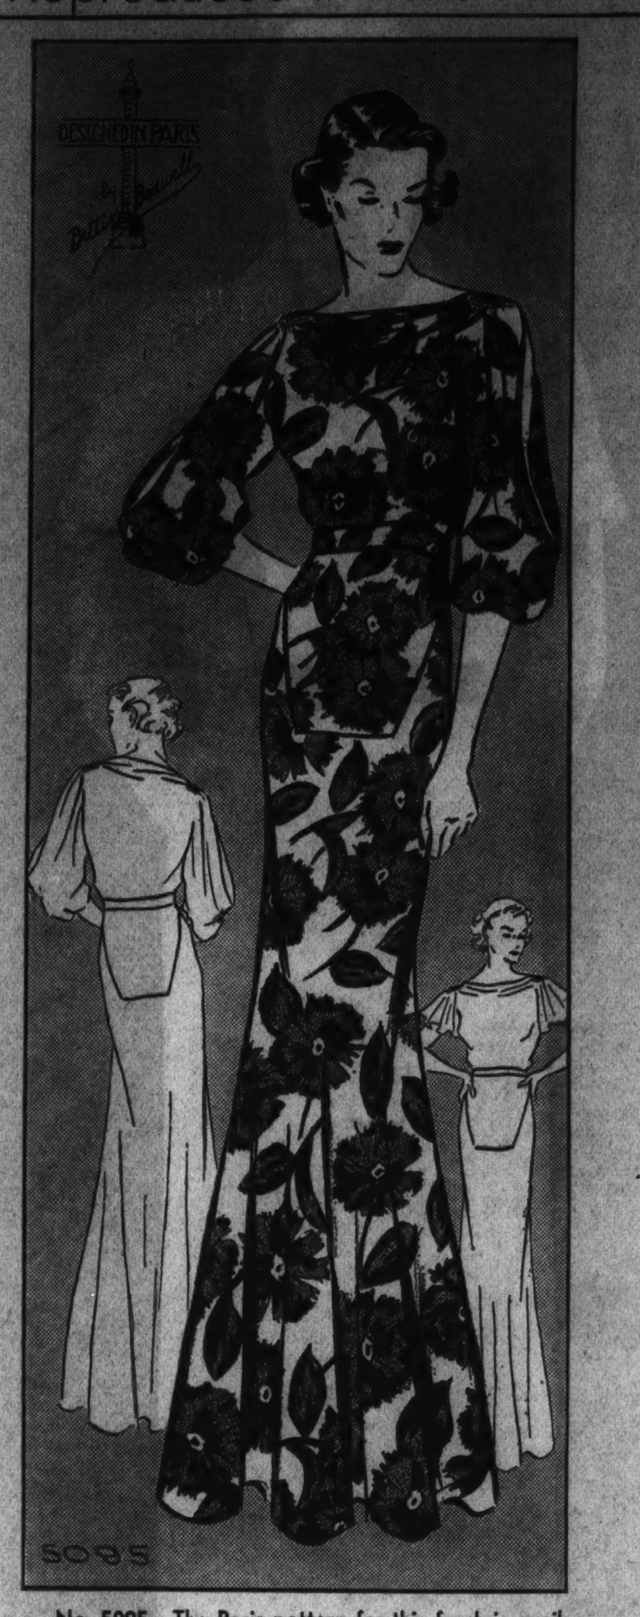
Party Frock of Princess Is Reproduced in Paris Pattern



No. 5095—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—This pattern is adapted directly from a dress made by a Paris dressmaker for a princess to wear at the famous garden party of the king and queen of England this summer. It seems to me that the dress is good enough for a princess, and not too difficult for you or me to make for ourselves, and I have adapted it.

The original model was made in brilliant, printed crêpe de chine in greens, violets, and blues on a white ground, and you can get such prints in your stores if you want to copy exactly. This dress would be lovely in any printed silk, or in plain material in pastel or bright color. If you are a brunette and want to make this dress, you will find that clear yellow, violet, and hyacinth are lovely for you. For the blonde, the pastel colors of blue, pink, green, and violet are delightful, or brilliant red rather than dark red. For the brown-haired girl almost any color is becoming, and she will look particularly beautiful in violet or periwinkle blue.

You can choose whichever sleeves you prefer. The original model had the longer sleeves.

Masculine Apparel and Wedding Problems Are Up for Discussion Today.

By Helen Bartlett.

THE postman has been busy these last few days bringing us quantities of mail. And in order to get the solutions back to you as promptly as possible we will answer some of the questions in this column. This gives all of our interested readers an opportunity to know the right and wrong about the oft repeated questions that come to this desk.

Miss A. B. inquires about what a gentleman should wear to a dinner-dance on a summer Saturday evening. She wants to know whether a business suit would be suitable.

Dinner dances, particularly in the large hotels, are rather dressy affairs. Summer formal is the correct attire for men. Business suits are hardly formal enough. White flannel trousers with a navy blue or Oxford gray coat or black tuxedo trousers with a white tuxedo coat are the two possible costumes. They are equally correct.

While we are on the subject of men's apparel we will answer the letter of G. W., who asks about the correct accessories, such as shoes, ties, and linen, to be worn with white flannels or with the white dinner coat.

With white flannel trousers and a dark coat are worn white buckskin shoes, plain white linen shirt, and turn down collar, dark four-in-hand tie, and straw hat. And with the black trousers and white tuxedo coat black shoes are correct, a white linen shirt with perhaps slightly starched plaited bosom, turn down collar, and black bow tie.

A prospective bride, Miss E. J., has this question to ask: "Are the bride's or bridegroom's initials used in the monogram to be engraved on the trousseau linens and silver?"

It has now become optional. Formerly only the girl's maiden initials were used in her monogram for the trousseau linens, principally because girls started collecting their trousseaux and embroidering the monograms when they were extremely young, long before they had any idea about when or whom they might marry. Nowadays most brides sensibly use the initials of the name they will bear. Such a monogram is composed of the initials of the bride's first name, maiden name, and husband's last name.

And finally we want to settle this question from Mrs. T. H.: "Are men ever invited to showers?"

The answer is "no, no; positively no." Showers are strictly girls' affairs. Even the prospective bridegroom, if it is a bridal shower to which you refer, should not be expected to come. The various escorts might be invited to come in later in the evening, if the shower is given in the evening, to partake of the refreshments and see the girls home. But they should not be invited to the shower proper and be expected to bring a present to the bride.

Capricious Summer

By Eleanor Jewett.

Summer has got mixed up with fall!
It hardly knows how to be hot at all;
From sixty to ninety it leads us a dance—
Thermometers have not the slightest chance
Of keeping one temperature. I'd like to know
Why this funny summer is treating us so.
And rain? There's enough to drown
kitten and cat,
And what, can you tell, is the good of all that?

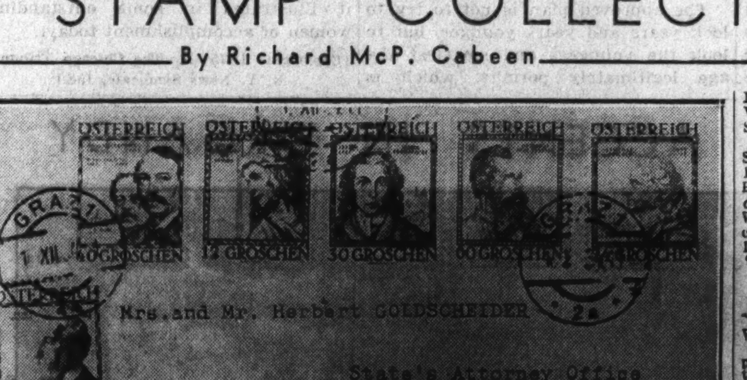
Sweet Corn Service Set Borrows Its Decore from Use

WITH the season at hand when succulent sweet corn is eaten off the cob, hostesses welcome appropriate serving dishes of good quality china for the occasion. A huge platter with small service plates to match has a design of lovely shaded green husks and perfectly molded ears of luscious golden bantam corn against a green background. So realistic are the ears of corn, that a far sighted guest could easily be fooled when reaching for the second or third helping of this popular vegetable. These sweet corn service sets are new and smart in design and will add a gay note when this seasonable vegetable is on the menu.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen.

Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions about stamps, except questions concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamp Exchange contains offers to buy and sell. Please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.



This cover, loaned by Mr. Herbert Goldscheider of Chicago, shows the set of stamps known as the architects' issue, which Austria placed on sale late in 1934. The issue is described in the accompanying article.

THE Austrian postoffice, on Dec. 3, 1934, placed on sale a semi-postal stamp issue known as the architects' set, which followed the precedents of beauty and skilled workmanship established in the previous issues honoring musicians, poets, and artists. The issue was sold at double face value, the excess being given to charity and not to needy architects, as many suppose.

There are six values in the issue as shown on the cover illustrated in this column. Three values show early architects, and three show those of more modern times. The 12gr. stamp has a portrait of Anton Pilgram, a 16th century designer who was responsible for the chancel and organ loft of the cathedral of St. Stephan in Vienna. The 24gr. shows Fischer von Erlach [1656-1723], architect of the St. Charles church in Vienna. The 30gr. bears the portrait of Jacob Prandtauer [1651-1726], who rebuilt the monastery of St. Florian, near Melk, and the Benedictine monastery at Melk. The 40gr. shows Von Siccardsburg [1812-'68], and Van Der Noll [1813-'68], co-designers of the State opera at Vienna.

The 60gr. stamp gives a portrait of Heinrich von Ferstel [1828-'83], architect of the university and of the Votive church which was built in memory of the escape from assassination of Emperor Francis Joseph, in 1853. The remaining value, the 64gr., has the portrait of Otto Wagner [1841-1918], city planner, and architect for the Postal Savings bank, the Steinhofer Memorial church, and many others. He was a leader in the Austrian movement to separate architecture from traditional influence, "L' Art Nouveau" of the late 19th century.

San Diego Plates.

The stamps commemorating the Panama California International exposition are printed from six plates numbered 21405, 21406, 21407, 21408, 21409 and 21410. The first order was for 75,000,000 stamps, and it is assumed that successive orders will double or triple this figure. In that event new plates may be required. The stamps are printed on the rotary press and consequently have no straight edges. Stamps from all plates were available at the Philatelic Agency in Washington on May 29, and from plates 21405 and 21406 only, at the San Diego post-office on the same day.

Club Notes.

Collectors in Ocean City, N. J., have formed an organization known as the Associated Philatelists, and announce the intention of engaging in the collection and distribution of philatelic knowledge.

Cachet Notices.

The Westmont Cover club will apply cachets to the covers on the opening and closing dates of the Boy Scout Jamboree, Aug. 21 and 30, at Washington, D. C. Send stamped and self addressed covers, unstuffed and unsealed, with 1c forwarding charge for each cover, in loose stamps, to F. W. Bloch, Westmont Cover club, Westmont, Ill., by July 31.

The Parker Cachet system, Myers building, South Bend, Ind., will apply a cachet to covers on the occasion of the Midwest Air show and exhibition at South Bend, Aug. 3 and 4. Send "ready to go" covers, 6¾ size only, to reach sponsor by Aug. 1. Famous flyers will participate, and autographs will be solicited, although not promised.

American Stamp Digest.

A new monthly publication, the American Stamp Digest, will make its appearance on Sept. 1. Kent B. Stiles is the editor; Ernest A. Kehr, managing editor, and D. D. Runes, Ph. D., publisher. It will be distributed by the American News company from the offices of the National Scientific Publications at 325 W. 103d street, New York, N. Y. The magazine will contain a complete international news service for collectors and original contributions on philatelic subjects.

Repaint House When Gloss Has Disappeared

Blistered, Cracked, and Peeling Surface Demands a New Protective Coat.

Booklets by Louise Bargelt, "Modernizing the Kitchen" and a "New Deal for the Old Basement," 3 cents at Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. 5 cents by mail.

By Louise Bargelt.

THE magic of paint must sometimes be seen to be fully appreciated. Painting is an old, old art, and has been used since the days of the pharaohs, not only to decorate but to protect. Moreover, aren't we told that long before Egypt's dynasties rose and fell, Noah's ark was "pitched within and without to guard against the floods." Pliny assures us that the early Greeks used boiled wax to preserve their ships, that neither the sea nor the wind nor the sun could destroy the wood. And geologists claim that American Indians appreciated the protective value of paint and used red pigment mixed with grease to prevent sunburn and black paint around their eyes to shade them from the sun's glare.

So there is nothing new or revolutionary in the idea of painting a house, inside and out, its trim and fences and lattice work and posts. It has been done for so many years it should be almost instinctive with us now!

First of all, before starting to paint, we have to watch our neighbors! Observe the colors of the houses around us, for we can't live entirely to ourselves, unless we want to live at odds with our surroundings. Our house color should not clash with the homes on each side of us.

Paint Protects Brick Against Water and Cold.

As to the question—when to paint—that should depend entirely on when our house needs it. There is a gleam to paint which protects, and as long as surfaces are smooth and glossy, so long have they a barricade up against the insidious attacks of time and weather. But once these surfaces become dry and chalked and cracked, when they show signs of blistering and peeling and wearing down to the plain wood, then the time to paint is at hand.

If a house is brick, painting will protect it against water, and even a bit of heat may be saved in the winter by thus keeping its surfaces dry. Where mortar is crumbling between the bricks, point up the structure before painting, and remove any efflorescence by dry brushing.

By painting stucco we increase its durability and decrease its moisture absorption. Disfiguring water streaks which sometimes show on the outer walls of a stucco house after a rain can be eliminated by a coat of paint.

Damp Weather Harms Wet Paint.

Gutters, spouting, and water conductors should be painted inside and outside. Usually it is best to keep them the color of the house, by way of keeping them in their place—and not letting them become too conspicuous.

Wet weather and paint are no pals, and won't mix. Paint is even averse to any dampness and moisture in the air. So watch your weather reports before you open your paint can. A sudden loss of gloss or chalking shortly after the work is done often can be traced to the presence of moisture in some form—frost, fog, or rain—during the time the paint was applied or when it was drying.

When a paint coat wrinkles or runs or sags it is nearly always due to the fact that too thick or heavy a coat of paint has been applied. Excessive humidity or temperature change during drying also can cause the above conditions. Most cases of wrinkling can be avoided by brushing out the coat to a thin, even film.

In most applications of paint, several thin coats will last longer—if plenty of time for drying is given between—than a fewer number of thick coats.

Creosote Preserves Underground Section of Fence Posts.

Creosote is an antiseptic, hence its value as an excellent preservative for wood fence posts below or above the ground. It kills the fungus growths which tend to rot wood.

If possible, maintain a harmony of color between house and garden and all the accessories of the yard, such as pergola, fence, trellis, and garden furniture.

When a chimney seems to cut a house in parts, try painting it the same color as the structure.

One rule without exception—all porch and garden furniture should be spotlessly clean before painting. Since any soap left on furniture after washing will damage the finished work, try washing it first with water to which ammonia has been added.

To obtain good results in the painting of a porch floor, make sure that the cracks are well puttied and that each coat of paint is well sanded after painting.

Stippling Used for Modern Paint Pattern.

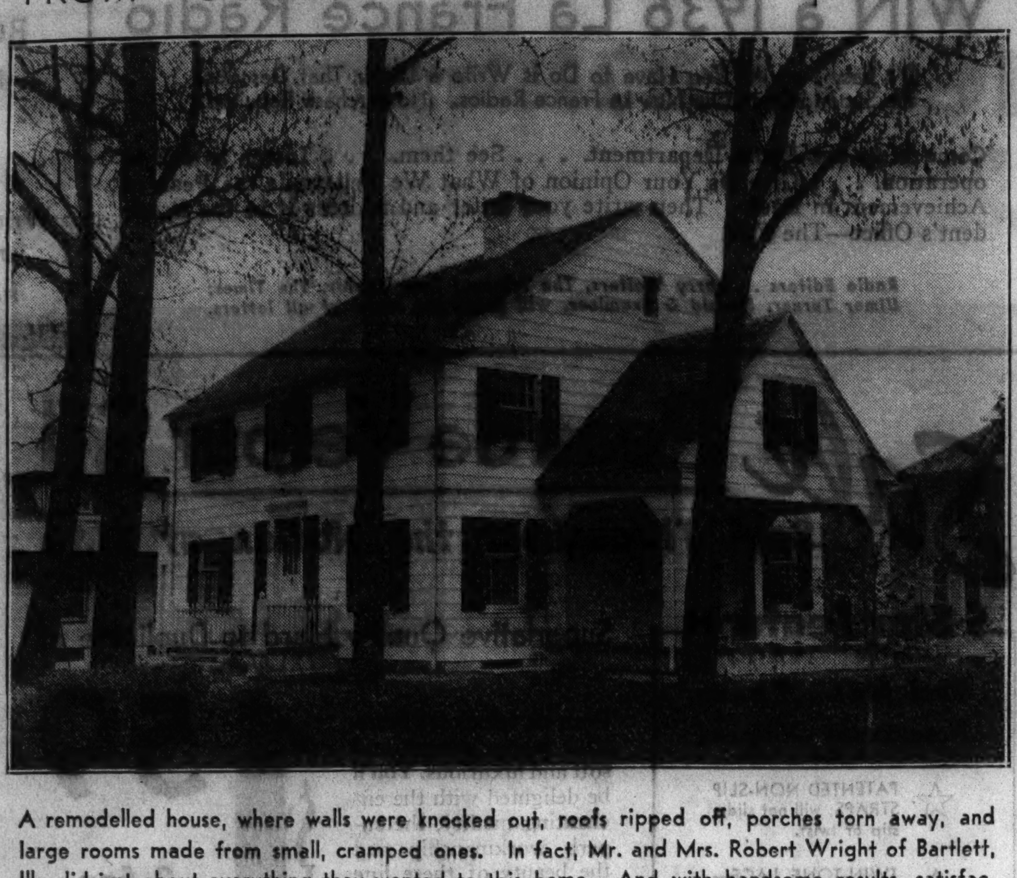
A man writes from Paducah asking how to achieve a modernistic pattern with paint. Since this may interest those who incline to the modern and are interested in decorative painted wall finishes—here is the process:

After a wall has been given a good coat of flat paint which has thoroughly dried, cut a guide from some regular stencil paper. This guide can be in the form of a square or semicircle or triangle. This will be the only tool required, except a paint brush and some paint.

Press this guide against the wall, holding it with the thumb and fingers of left hand. Strike the edges of this card guide with the bristles of a brush, which has been dipped in paint and worked fairly dry. As in the case of stippling, carry this stippled effect from the edge of the card on to the side wall and let it fade out at a distance of from two to four inches from the edge of the guide. Then remove the guide, place it at an angle, and continue the stippling process until the wall is covered with a uniform group of interlacing stencils.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N Saturday at 10 o'clock.

FROM CRAMPED TO SPACIOUS QUARTERS



A remodelled house, where walls were knocked out, roofs ripped off, porches torn away, and large rooms made from small, cramped ones. In fact, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wright of Bartlett, Ill., did just about everything they wanted to this home. And with handsome results, satisfactory to every one. Architect for the modernization, Elmer Gylleck, 10 North Clark street, Chicago.

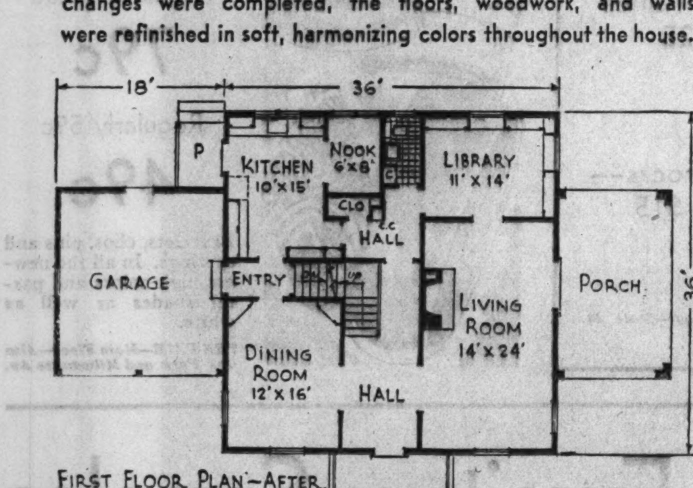
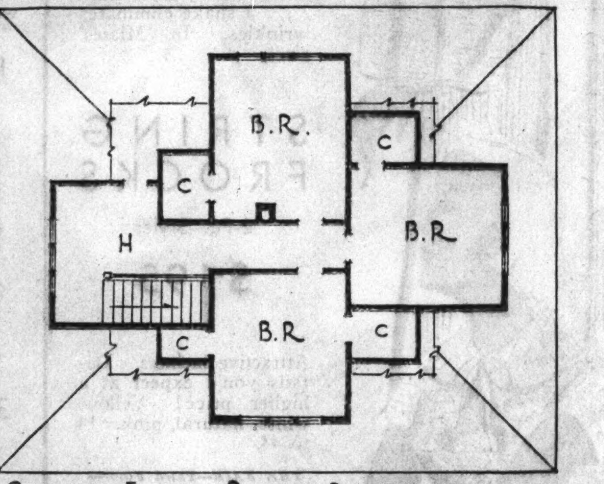
FIRST FLOOR PLAN — BEFORE

First floor layout, before modernization. The first dividends in this renovizing program were cashed when the two small bedrooms were eliminated along with the square living room, long, narrow porch, and old-fashioned bath and kitchen. This gave a new look to the interior. Afterward, when the structural changes were completed, the floors, woodwork, and walls were refinished in soft, harmonizing colors throughout the house.



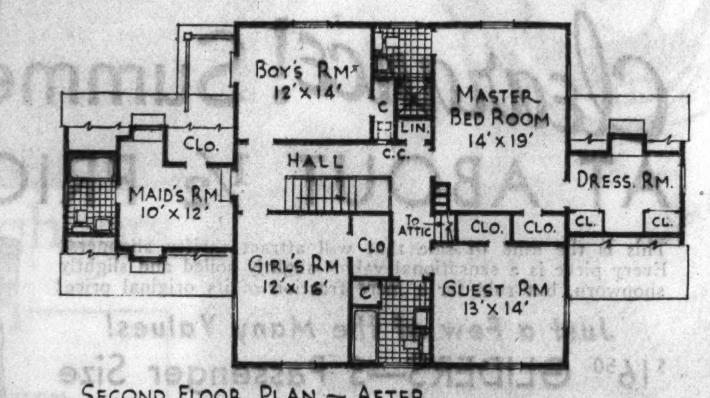
FIRST FLOOR PLAN—AFTER

First floor plan, after modernization. A modern layout appears, with spacious living room, a quite captivating, pine paneled library, with cupboards built into the wall, a large kitchen and sunny breakfast room, and a useful first floor lavatory with washable wall paper above a wainscoting of tile.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN — BEFORE

Second floor, before alteration. Going up—for more light and air and space and convenience! All of which is needed, as can be seen from the floor layout, with its three small bedrooms with three small closets—no bath in sight anywhere.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN — AFTER

Second floor, after its alteration. Plenty of things happen to this second floor, after its roof is lifted, and five bedrooms appear. The master bedroom has a large dressing room, and the large bath is tiled. There is new hardware, lighting, heating, and plumbing. In fact, it is an all new house—created from the old by skill anr taste, patience and good judgment.

Fine Furniture Now Priced for Modest Budget

Economy No Longer Means Shoddy Construction and Cheap Designs.

"What's Wrong with Your Rooms?" a booklet by Edith Weigle, explains pleasing and balanced arrangement of furniture. If you'd like to change the appearance of your living room, or if you have any problems in placing certain pieces send for this booklet. Price 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

"I WANT simple, well styled furniture, but I can't afford it," complained one young married woman. But that was some years ago.

This is the open season for good pieces at low prices. One famous Grand Rapids company [known for its marvelous construction, woods, and finishes] recently brought out a whole new line at such remarkably low cost that even the retail dealer put on his glasses and looked twice when he saw the tags in the wholesale room display. We wrote about this furniture and ran a picture of some of it in this column.

Today we want to show you extremely attractive furniture being shown in Chicago and also in stores throughout the country. In Chicago it is shown in room settings arranged by an experienced decorator. You'll see an adorable little green, white and yellow breakfast room or dinette, a living room, a dining room, and two bedrooms. The dining room has an unusually well styled set of solid maple pieces, 18th century English in feeling rather than the early American with which we are all so familiar.

QUIET DISTINCTION

This attractive, excellently styled living room furniture is a new line being marketed at low prices. You can see it in a series of charming room settings in Chicago.

Everything in this room is priced so low it takes your breath away. The accessories are charming. The wall paper is cream with a green swag pattern; the window draperies, ruffled green glazed chintz.

Desk Takes Place of Living Room Table.

A view of the living room is shown today. Isn't it comfortable and pretty? A green broadloom rug is on the floor. The wide window has cream toned Venetian blinds under flowered cretonne draperies in soft colors on beige.

A simple sofa and matching chair are in green. The handsome wing chair is done in a brown material having a tiny nosegay pattern in cream. An exceptionally well styled Chippendale mahogany arm chair with cream lether seat is placed on the other side of the kneehole desk, thus completing an interesting grouping. The desk takes the place of the usual living room table, a new note and one as practical as it is charming.

"Borax" No Longer Only Possibility for Slim Budget.

Against a wall you see a mahogany table which, with the leaf down, may be used for dining, drawing up the pair of lether covered side chairs nearby, and adding others.

A pair of etchings in natural wood frames is hung above this table. The lamps have white shades, and white accessories add other bright notes.

When you realize that stores in hundreds of towns will carry these items you see how important it is to create really well styled, simple furniture such as this. It means the woman who wants an attractive home can have it at low cost. She is no longer compelled to buy the ugly, overornate, overstuffed, oversized pieces dubbed "borax" by the trade and "just too bad" by her friends.

Wall Papers Follow the Seasons; New Designs Capture Moods of Summer

Patterns for Cottages Show Figures at Play or Sailboats and Sea.

By Claire Winslow.

MANUFACTURERS of wall papers, like makers of fabrics for draperies and slip covers, are summer-conscious this season. Thanks to their efforts, it's possible not only to choose from a charming variety of cool, fresh colors, but also to have on the walls and at the windows smart and fetching designs of warm weather inspiration.

A New York company, known for its artistic and beautifully colored papers, is showing two brand new patterns for the cottage in the country or at the shore. One of these is gay, with lively human figures playing tennis, swatting a golf ball, racing along the sands, lounging under a big umbrella on the beach, and diving into the deep. Against a beige or a gleaming silver background [take your choice] the figures are accents of color: Scarlet, green, blue, yellow.

This wall paper would be delightful in a game or sun room, or on the panels of a screen. It is one of the cleverest numbers we've seen.

The second summer pattern by the same company is cool and breezy, being a design of sailboats against the sea and sky, with an occasional bell buoy in the foreground. Here, too, you can have a choice of colors. The pictures today show the papers just mentioned.

Dining Accessories Dot Paper for the Kitchen.

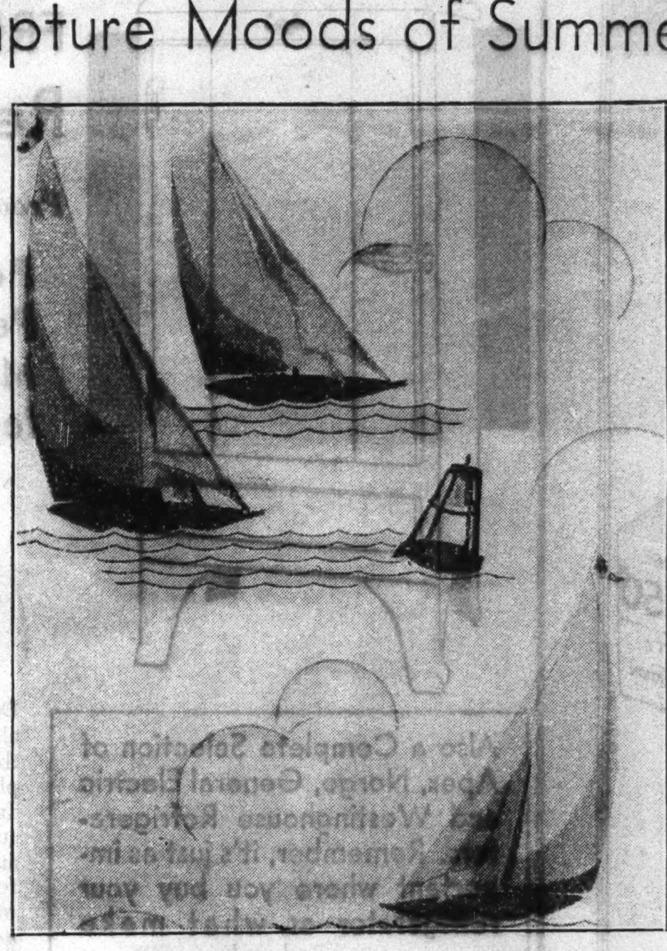
A third, in powder blue and white, is intended for the kitchen, its theme being a teakettle, a cup and saucer and spoon, a candlestick, a cream pitcher, sugar bowl, and salts and peppers. The objects are in white, the background in the soft, light blue. Carrying out this color scheme in your kitchen, the woodwork and doors might be white, the ruffled dotted Swiss curtains matching this tone. Blue and white linoleum on the floor and furniture painted either of those colors, as preference dictates.

Penguins on Ice Will Delight the Younger Set.

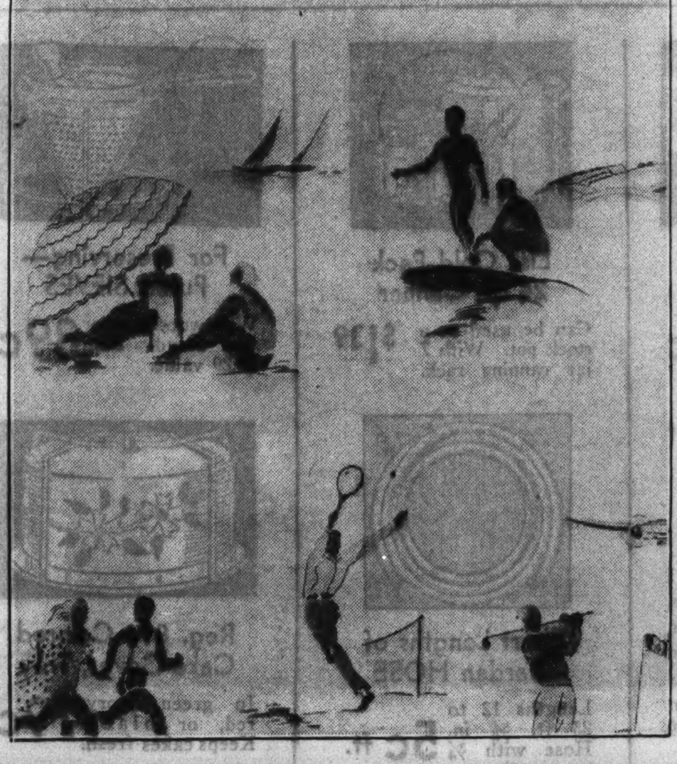
For a summer bedroom there is an adorable paper in much the same powder blue with an allover diamond lattice pattern in silver. And for the living room a modern, loose, sketchy flower design, almost like a water color, on a white ground.

For a screen for a youngster's room we suggest a number showing three funny penguins on blocks of ice. This is made by another firm, as is the sophisticated private barroom paper, on which amusing pictures illustrate jokes printed beneath them. The sketches are in red on white, the printing matching. Of course, a paper like this furnishes endless entertainment for your guests.

"New Curtains and Draperies," a booklet by Claire Winslow, answers questions about the correct length of each and tells of new fabrics, popular colors. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.



For the walls of a room in a cottage at the shore this wall paper displaying sail boats against clouds and sky is ideal. It is offered by the same firm that creates the other design shown today.



Wall papers follow the seasons. Here's a brand new one for the summer cottage, showing figures athletically inclined. It comes in two engaging color combinations and is made by a well known New York company. Your dealer can get it for you.

Trays Mounted on Wheels for Convenient Serving

WHEN refreshments are served on the porch a two tiered arrangement of trays on wheels will make serving a joy for the hostess. These trays are removable and the folding base is equipped with little castors. The trays are attractively enameled in black and bright Chinese red or blue, plain walnut finish, or any of the popular tints. They are also treated to resist stain, which is a most important feature.

The larger cart has a framework with sections that, when placed securely upon the upper tray, will hold glasses and bottles steady. This arrangement converts the modest serving tray into an attractive miniature bar, reserving the lower tier for food. The inventor of these splendid trays had a mind for adding comfort where space is limited, for when not in service they may be taken apart, the base closed up to convenient size, and tucked away.

Grouped with this "find" in tiered trays is a nest of nifty tables. Smart and practical is this trio made of wrought iron with glass tops. They are available in white or a refreshing shade of green.

Simple Storage Units Impregnated with Cedar Oil

THE housewife at her wits' end for the need of a moth proof storage place for her woolen blankets and winter wearing apparel during the warm weather, will be glad to know of the wonderful "buy" of chests and closets for this purpose. These are made of heavy composition boards, thoroughly impregnated with cedar oil, making them safe from the havoc wrought by destructive moths. The closets hold twelve garments, and the chests hold from three to five blankets depending upon their size. They can be fastened securely with locks. They are sold in sets, consisting of one closet and two chests. These storage containers were seen at a State street department store.

Straw Mat Offers Neat Protection for Knees of Gardener

IF you're one of the thousands of women who kneel prayerfully in gardens, weeding and watching your flowers and digging about with trowel and fork, and if your knees sometimes rebel, why not get a straw, woven mat to protect them and your dress from the earth? These gadgets are huge, round, and equipped with woven handles, so you can take them about from spot to spot. They are nice, too, for porch step sitters, if you have any in your family.

Grandmother, 73, Manages Baseball Team

MRS. ANNA WALSH, 73 year old grandmother, has been managing the Walsh Aces, a semi-pro baseball team on Long Island, N. Y., for twelve years.

Mrs. W. T. Piatt, nurse in the field for humanitarian service, has gone to Nyasaland, South Africa, where she will have charge of the native hospital and dispensary in the care of 200 lepers. She served a year as head of a hospital at Esperanza, Sonora, Mexico.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, July 22.

Keep everlastingly at the garden or the weeds will get away from you. They grow rapidly during rainy, hot weather, and every moment that can be given to the hoe or cultivator should be utilized. Make cuttings of roses now. Select stems that have flowered, cut them into lengths of from 6 to 8 inches long, and place them in a wide mouthed bottle of water. In a few weeks roots will appear from the base of the cutting, after which each cutting may be potted or carefully lined out in the garden.

Tuesday, July 23.

Do not allow the stronger growing perennials to spread so rapidly as to smother other kinds. Simply take the spade and dig out the surplus. Many kinds of shrubs can be increased from cuttings at this time. Make cuttings from half ripened wood, or wood made this spring. Some cuttings root more easily if taken with a "heel." This "heel" should be small, as too deep a cut in the old stem may injure it. Remove a part of the leafage to reduce the transpiration, place all cuttings of a kind together, and plant them close together in rows in a spent hotbed or coldframe. Sand is an excellent medium in which to root the cuttings. Place the sash over the frame and cover it with cheese cloth for a short time.

Wednesday, July 24.

Specimens of shrubs with curled leaves have been frequently seen recently. On examination they are found to be infested with aphids or green fly. A contact poison must be used to kill these pests. Tobacco concoctions or pyrethrum will do the work. Spray or dust about ever eight days, or oftener, until there is no trace of the fly. Buy a canister of weed killer and see how easy it is to keep the gravel walks clean.

Thursday, July 25.

Pinch back the hardy chrysanthemum and note how quickly the plants thicken up by sending out more numerous stems which will be the flowering wood in autumn. The stems will be shorter, with more buds. Give these plants some liquid food occasionally and watch them grow. The bearded iris may be transplanted at any time now. Take divisions with at least three buds and transplant 9 inches apart. Place the rhizome about an inch beneath the surface.

Friday, July 26.

All home gardens should have a strawberry bed, if there is room enough. The best system is the matted row. Potted plants may be purchased for fall planting. Set the plants 18 inches apart in the row, with rows 3 feet apart. Strong runners may also be used, if selected and transplanted immediately. It is wise to plant a few of the everbearing varieties. Progressive and Superb are good everbearing sorts. Use a few of each. There is still time to sow a packet of carrots, beans, turnips, swiss chard, beets, endive, kale—and why not some sweet corn, radishes, and lettuce for late, crisp products.

Saturday, July 27.

Remember that the plants in window boxes should be frequently given food, as the soil soon becomes depleted. A commercial food is excellent, easily procured, and applied. Training tomato plants to stakes and removing the side shoots is good practice and will give a better crop. Opening up the plant will enable the sun's rays to reach the fruit. Study the flowering habit of climbing roses before pruning. The rule is to prune after flowering. A usual method is to cut out the cane that has flowered to encourage a new cane to develop for the base of the plant. This is the cane that will flower next season. Plants growing on trellises should have the shoots cut back whenever necessary during the growing season.

"Crime at Blossom's" in Glencoe; News of Theaters

PLENTY TO THINK ABOUT

Mr. Paul Lukas' thoughtful expression is not without reason. "The Age of Indiscretion" (Apollo) gives him plenty to think about. Including Madge Evans. This handsome Hungarian is one of the most popular cast players.

Miss Landis in Light Comedy on North Shore

Dublin's Abbey Theater Gets New Deal; Quarrel with O'Casey Ends.

By Charles Collins.

"THE CRIME AT BLOSSOM'S," current as the second production of the North Shore Drama festival and hastily reviewed by wire from the cloakroom of the Central school playhouse in Glencoe on the night of its première July 12, hardly requires postscript comment. It is a thin piece of work in the Oxford "don" vein of literary comedy—a little theater play in spite of the fact that it calls for a cast of twenty-one players: It serves well enough, I will grant, for summer theatergoing, but as festival material it is more or less negligible.

The performance, however, gives fresh emphasis to the fact that these productions in Glencoe are thoroughly professional and have players of well established reputations in the leading rôles, Jessie Royce Landis, guest co-star, gives a brilliant demonstration of her skill as the "Muse of Murder" in the second act of this play. J. W. Austin and Edith Atwater of the resident company are also effective contributors to the well-balanced interpretation. Ernest Glendinning, the other co-star, is not completely at home in the rôle of the lazy, horticultural young husband of the story; he is a driving, energetic American comedian miscast as an ineffectual, dilly-dallying Briton. But he is an actor who gives importance to the Glencoe project, for he has been active on the American stage, frequently in stellar position, for thirty years.

Schedule for North Shore Plays.

A few words of information about the schedule for these productions are in order. Each play is staged for twelve night performances, omitting Sundays; therefore "The Crime at Blossom's," which started on Friday, July 12, will continue until next Thursday night, July 25. The première of the third play in the series, André Obey's "Noah," is dated for Wednesday night, July 31. The interim between closings and openings on the schedule is occupied with intensive rehersals.

The guest star for "Noah" will be Burgess Meredith, who is unknown in Chicago but who has won honors in New York. He is Katharine Cornell's latest discovery, and had a prominent rôle in her production of John Van Druten's "Flowers of the Forest" in New York last spring. Two members of the New York cast of "Noah"—an affair of last winter—have been engaged by Ben Guy Phillips, director of the festival. They are Harry Bellaver, for the rôle of Ham, and Margaret Arrow, for the rôle of Mama [Mrs. Noah].

A New Deal for Abbey Theater.

Word comes from Dublin to the effect that the first step in a "New Deal" for the Abbey Theater company has been a reconciliation with Sean O'Casey, the Irish dramatist who moved to London and became highbrow and symbolic after his meteoric rise to fame with "June and the Paycock," "The Plough and the Stars," and "The Shadow of a Gunman"—all important items in the Abbey's repertory. It was the rejection by the Abbey directors of O'Casey's "The Silver Tassie," in 1929 that soured the young man and caused him to turn toward the higher life in London, uttering harsh words about his compatriots. This feud has been ended. The return of O'Casey to the national theater of his native land will be celebrated in August with a production of his rejected opus.

Furthermore, the new board of governors of the Abbey want the organization to climb out of its rut of peasant plays. They hope to see some "progressive" work on the stage of the famous little playhouse; they even indicate that a dash of the "moderne" now and then would be helpful. They are opposed to old-school stage settings, and yearn for Abbey backgrounds designed and painted in the "decorative" and "stylized" manner. They would also like to get some new blood into the company.

So when the Abbey Players return to Chicago, two or three years hence, their characteristic flavor may have changed. I am already slightly jittery at the prospect of Irish drama with a Greenwich Village coloring in its atmosphere.

Leslie Howard

AFTER his presentation of "Hamlet" next fall Leslie Howard plans to make a motion picture based on the life of the late T. E. Lawrence, "Lawrence of Arabia." The actor expects to persuade Warner Brothers, his Hollywood employers, to produce the film.

Howard has also acquired another dramatic idea. He owns the script of "And Now Good-by," dramatized by Philip Howard [no relation] from the book by James Hilton. This will not be done until late next season.

"Hamlet" is to open in New York in October after a short tour and will run for not more than twelve weeks.

ENGLISH ACTOR IN GLENCOE PLAYS

J. W. Austin, an English actor of wide experience, is prominent in the productions of the North Shore Drama Festival, at Glencoe. He appeared as the Highland guide in "Mary Rose," and is now playing a curate in "Crime at Blossoms."

Three Actors Give Title to 'Men on Horse'

MUCH has been written about "Three Men on a Horse," but all through the long run of the play here no one has answered the ever recurring question, "Who are the three?"

Here are the facts about these actors:

Matt Briggs, who acts Patsy, the burly leader, has the longest rôle in the show. He ran away from home at 14 to join "Slaves of the Mine," a melodrama. It was six years before he got back to Brooklyn, his home, and then he quit "the road" for two years of study at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Broadway has seen Briggs in a dozen hits. Chicago remembers him principally in "Brothers," with Bert Lytell, and as the villainous Steve in "Broadway." Last season before joining "Three Men on a Horse" he was in three other plays on Broadway—"Kill That Story," "So Many Paths," and "Nowhere Bound." Previously he had scored in "Twentieth Century" and "Wonder Boy."

Owen Martin, who is Patsy's first lieutenant, looks Jewish, but hails from County Armagh, Ireland. He went to school in Brooklyn and became an exercise boy at the Belmont race track. He wanted to be a jocky and fate met him half way with a rôle in "The Futurity Winner," biggest vaudeville act of its day. As a youngster he was an end man in a minstrel show with Frank Tinney. In recent years he has become a "type" actor.

Martin acted for twelve weeks in Chicago with Al Jolson in "Big Boy," and later had twenty weeks here with "Little Accident." Last season in New York he scored in George Abbott's "Small Miracle."

Martin Gable, smallest and loudest of the three chiselers, is a grandnephew of Max Gable, a Yiddish star. For seven generations the Gables were traveling players in Austria. Born in Philadelphia, he is 23 years old and a graduate of Lehigh university. For a season he attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts while playing in "Man Bites Dog" in New York. Last season he played there in "Sky's the Limit."

Texas Play Contest.

A prize of $250 is being offered by the Dallas Woman's club, as a feature of the Texas centennial celebration, for the best original unproduced and unpublished one act play written by a native Texan or a resident of Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, or New Mexico. The play will be staged by the Dallas Woman's club in celebration of Texas Independence day.

Mohawk Festival

THE Mohawk Drama Festival, scheduling four comedies for the four weeks between July 23 and Aug. 17 on the new landscape stage at Union college, Schenectady, N. Y., will open next Tuesday night with a performance of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," The "Lysistrata" of Aristophanes, in the Gilbert Seldes version, will be given the following week; "Rip Van Winkle," in the Joseph Jefferson version, is scheduled for Aug. 6 to Aug. 10; "Master of the Revels," a new play by Don Marquis, will be produced on Aug. 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn will be seen in the leading rôles. In "The Merry Wives," Mr. Coburn will give his characterization of Falstaff and Mrs. Coburn will play Mrs. Ford. Frederica Going will appear as Mrs. Page, Neville Westman as Mrs. Quickley, Mary Hutchinson as Ann Page, Hart Jenks as Ford, John Burke as Page, Henry Buckler as Shallow, Curtis Cooksey as Pistol, Leroy Operti as Bardolph, Warren Parker as Nym, Bram Nossen as Sir Hugh Evans, William Packer as Slender and Sherling Oliver as Fenton.

For ensemble and ballet a number of dancers from the Chicago Opera company and other ballet organizations have been engaged, including Blake Scott, Mischa Pompianov, Bernard Day, Katherine Wilson, and Mildred Betz. Ensemble and ballet features will be under the direction of the Marmein sisters, Phyllis and Irene.

Stage Lectures

JOHN VAN DRUTEN, the English dramatist, will appear on the lecture platform of Northwestern university's school of speech to lecture July 30, Aug. 1, 6, and 8 on the subject, "Plays and Playwrights."

He is the author of a number of plays, beginning with "Young Woodley," written in 1925 and produced for an eight months' run in New York, followed by another eight months on tour. He has had five other plays produced in both England and America—"After All," "Diversion," "There's Always Juliet," "The Distaff Side," and "The Flowers of the Forest." His plays produced only in England are "London Wall," "Somebody Knows," and "Behold We Live."

Van Druten has written two novels, "Young Woodley" and "A Woman on Her Way," both published in America, and has contributed to English and American magazines. He has worked in Hollywood on three motion pictures.

Clymas Troupe on Program at the Coconut

Lydia and Joresco Stars in Continental Room; Night Club Shows.

THE CLYMAS TROUPE, in the new show at the Coconut Grove, uses every member of the cast from Gus Van, star singing comedian, down to the chorus girls, in their act. Loretta Clymas resembles Ann Harding. Joe Clymas, French-Hungarian, got the idea for his act of acrobatic pantomine and dancing twelve years ago when he was lightweight boxing champion of Europe and he and his second conquered sixteen men in free for all fight in a Budapest café.

● The ballroom dancers, Lydia and Joresco, who opened in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel last Friday evening, are supported by Jackie Green, juvenile impersonator of theater stars. He is also a singer. Horacio Zito's contract as band leader has been renewed. Sid Pritikin, guitarist, is soloist with Zito's band.

● Veloz and Yolanda, the dancers, are breaking all records for attendance in their run at the Empire room of the Palmer house. They will remain at least until Aug. 1. Supporting the stars are: Cardini, magician; "The Three Nonchalants," a comedy trio, and the Veloz and Yolanda orchestra under the direction of Shep Fields. Veloz and Yolanda dance in the first and third shows only.

● Horace Heidt, California band leader, has prepared many novelties for his Sunday night dance concert program from the Silver Forest of the Drake hotel in response to suggestions from radio "fans" who have followed his nightly broadcast. Alveno Rey, singing guitar artist; Lysbeth Hughes, singing harpist; Alyce King and the three King Sisters; Harold Woolsey, whistler; Art Thorsen, bass violinist; Bob McCoy, and a glee club are featured in the nightly floor show.

● Harry's New York cabaret started a series of weekly amateur contests yesterday afternoon. The prize is a week's engagement in the floor show. The contests are conducted by Freddy Marcus, master of ceremonies, who replaces Earl Rickard. The regular floor show, starring Trudy Davidson, continues. An entire new show will open in two weeks.

● Pianist Ted Fio-Rito, whose orchestra and troupe of entertainers are the attraction on the Beach walk of the Edgewater Beach hotel, carries a $300,000 insurance policy on his ten fingers. His output as a song writer includes "King for a Day," "Laugh Clown, Laugh," "No. No. Nora," "There'll Come a Time," "Three on a Match," "Charlie, My Boy," "I Never Knew," "Love Bird," "Toot, Toot Tootsie," "When Lights Are Low," and "Sometime."

● Riverview park's many shows include the "Fountain of Youth" and "Venus on the Half-Shell," which were sideshows in the Streets of Paris at A Century of Progress. The "Congo" show contains a group of African natives, illustrating their jungle customs.

● A show called "Song of France" was added to the "Carnival of Gypsies" program in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel last Friday night. The musical score for the first part features melodies from the operetta "The Vagabond King."

● The Vanity Fair café will reopen next Thursday night as a summer garden and night club. This resort was the old Bismarck Gardens, famous for decades; then the Marigold Gardens, an early post-war night club. The title of Vanity Fair is not new, but the decorations will be up to the minute.

Al Kvale, well known dance band and orchestra leader, will be in charge of the music. The other entertainers will be Ann Rush, prima donna; Charles Mason, tenor; Ballantyne and Pearce, ballroom dancers; and Darlene Walders, acrobatic dancer. Al Mann and David Branower are the managers.

SPENDS SUMMER ON CHICAGO STAGE

No one can tell Marjorie Lytell that Chicago isn't a first class summer show town. She is spending the entire summer here, acting the heroine of "Three Men on a Horse," now in the seventeenth week of its record breaking run at the Harris.

New War Play

ARTHUR HOPKIN'S first production of the coming season will be Sidney Howard's dramatization of "Paths of Glory," the novel of the war by Humphrey Cobb. It will employ a cast of 71 actors, and will have a multitude of scenes. The plot of the novel considers the plight of three soldiers, selected to be shot as warnings to their comrades, because of apparent cowardice during a minor engagement in the world war.

MUSIC MASTER AT THE STEVENS

Horacio Zito, orchestra leader for the cabaret and dance music in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel, came to Chicago after a long engagement at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York City. He is an Argentinean by birth, and is an expert conductor of all forms of Spanish-American numbers.

Gala Bill at State-Lake; Variety Show

THIS week marks the second anniversary of the State-Lake theater under the management of Jones, Linick & Schaefer. The program of its stage show is led by Billy House, singing comedian of such Broadway shows as "Murder at the Vanities," and "All the King's Hor[illegible] He offers a comedy sketch [illegible] "Holidays," and also serves [illegible]ster of ceremonies.

Other acts on the bill are the Four Albee Sisters, singers and dancers; Heller and Riley, comedians; Dezso Retter, called "The Man Who Wrestles with Himself"; Lange and Morgner, in a novelty; Mignonne, a dancer; Verne Buck and the State-Lake ballet.

Ed Sullivan, Broadway columnist, is making his Chicago bow as an entertainer at the Palace theater this week. He chaperons a new night club revue which contains Dixie Dunbar, who was Ray Bolger's dancing partner in "Life Begins at 8:40"; Joan Abbott, a pretty singer; Betty Jane Cooper, who dances with the Lathrop Brothers; Tito Coral, Mexican baritone; the Stanley Twins, with their shadow dance, and Peg-Leg Bates, colored dancer. Visiting stars from night clubs are introduced by Sullivan from the stage.

The Chicago theater's stage show of last week hold over this week. It offers the character actor, Leo Carrillo, and the "Hour of Charm" all-girl orchestra and singing ensemble, under the direction of Phil Spitalny.

Jack Fine impresario of the Midget Village at A Century of Progress, is offering "The Band Box Revue," at the Oriental theater. It contains ten acts from vaudeville, including Allen Reno, master of ceremonies; Cecilia Blaire, acrobatic dancer; Rodney and Gould, comedians; and the Burke Sisters.

Lincoln Drama.

The theater of the University of Iowa will produce "Prologue to Glory," a new play about the early life of Abraham Lincoln, by Ellsworth Prouty Conkle, on July 25. Ceremonies of corner stone laying for the new university theater building will be held the next day.

Western Premiere.

Under the direction of Dr. Lester Raines of the New Mexico Normal university, "The Golden Bough," a play by the late Mary Austin, was staged on July 15 in Las Vegas, N. M. It tells a story of ancient Rome.

Pemberton Proclaims Legitimate Stage Alive and Growing

Stage Full of Vigor, Says N. Y. Producer

Brock Pemberton Calls Legitimate Theater Expanding U.S. Institution.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The state of the theater, present and future, is evidently a subject of considerable consideration with many older playgoers. Much of the mail that comes to me these between-season days is weighty with questions as to what the future holds for the legitimate drama.

My own opinions and prophecies have been given freely enough in these columns. An effort to confirm them, or to discover their weakness, led me last week to consult with a producer who is probably in a better position to know the prevailing state of affairs than any other. That would be Brock Pemberton, who has represented his associate producers on various code committees in the attempt to straighten out the theater's problems in their relation to New Deal and similar investigations, and is high in the council of the organized producers in New York. Mr. Pemberton was frankly outspoken and rather positive in his opinions.

Would Drive Malingners from the Playhouses.

"In spite of the ululations of countless calamity howlers the theater is not dead," he said. "Its economic pains prostrated it for a few years, but it is on the road to recovery. The vitality of the past two seasons and the promise of even greater vigor the coming year should confound its detractors into silence. It is my observation that the only thing dead in the theater is the individual who proclaims it so. If I were dictator, those who, departing to the cinema or some other field, maligned the theater would never be allowed to return. I'd have them on the list and they certainly would be missed."

I asked about the chances of the government's taking an interest in the conduct of the theater in the matter of including it in the subsidies to be drawn in the interest of recovery, as has been planned with other industries.

"Apparently the theater is going to be allowed to stage its comeback without governmental aid," he answered. "In spite of apparent sympathy and willingness in Washington to help, little has been done to date. From all appearances we were about to be handed a slice of the four billion plum cake, or rather a crumb, when the Supreme court made every one in Washington painfully conscious and cautious.

Work Relief Means Nothing to Professional Theater.

"Work relief on a broader scale and a charter for a national theater are the only handouts to date. The former means nothing to the professional theater except that some of its people, in most instances the less accomplished ones, will be given subsistence in return for performances scarcely calculated to encourage theater going. The latter gift may mean something, but probably will not. More than high aims and subscriptions are needed to make such a venture successful. If dilettantes instead of professionals run it, it won't be worth the cost of the paper in the congressional record it takes to tell about it.

"It's curious the theater should be the eternal Patsy. It is one of the few industries unable to get relief through any of the various alphabetical groups. As if nonsupport were not punishment enough, the theater is taxed higher than almost any other business. The 10 per cent tax on tickets, a hangover from the war, is easy to collect. Also it gives the lawmakers a certain sense of self-righteous gratification to plaster a so-called luxury. Bring on another war and let' em see whether the theater is a luxury or a necessity.

Radio Dramas Open to Spectators Serious Menace.

"But the tax isn't the worst feature of the theater's raw deal," he went on. "Three playhouses on tributaries to Broadway have been taken over by radio in the past two years. That they were good playhouses heretofore, devoted exclusively to the drama, isn't particularly important because there are still plenty more for the uses of the drama. What is important is that in these three auditoriums radio broadcasts are given nightly before free audiences. Is there any justice in taxing us out of existence and allowing an advertiser to pay a competitor to give a free show? Wouldn't sponsors howl if we stood outside their places of business and gave away samples of their product?

"We have consulted every known governmental board and each has passed the buck. What goes over the air isn't commerce, according to the federal trade commission, while the Radio Communications board apparently is interested only when its rules of decency are violated.

"Forbidding free shows would not correct the situation, as a five or ten cent admission charge would get around this. To get to the root of the evil it would be necessary to proclaim that radio entertainment was designed to be heard through a loud speaker at points distant from its source. If any one must listen to the radio, and most of us do on occasion, let him do it in private. A radio's place is in the home."

We spoke of another current activity in the theater, and one that happens to lie pretty close to Mr. Pemberton's own interest. Of recent seasons he has fathered chiefly the production of light comedies, beginning with "Strictly Dishonorable" some seasons ago and continuing with "Personal Appearance," which was an outstanding comedy success this season.

"Why is it," he demanded, "that in the annual distribution of prizes, ranging from the Ten Bests to the Pulitzer or vice versa, comedy and its interpreters are slighted for the more serious drama and its practitioners. When august judges go into a huddle to pin a medal on a play it's ten to one they will come up with almost any old specimen of serious import rather than with something triflingly gay, while the majority of critics in listing best performances go arty and choose the portrayers of the meanest, saddest, most tearful characters?

"A good comedy is just as difficult to write as a good tragedy and its effect on the world is as visible and important. Likewise, it requires more skill to turn in a finished comedy performance than it does to tear a passion to 'atters, as some one so aptly phrased it. In trying out beginners for rôles we find many of them can give an effective simulation of temper. Only a few can handle laughs."

Critic Answers Comedy Is Seldom Important.

I think the answer to this argument is that in the selection of prize plays the importance of the plays selected is given first consideration. Their importance, that is, to the theater; their importance as dramatic literature, rather than as theater entertainment. Granting that it requires as much intelligence and as much skill to write a salable light comedy as it does to write a serious drama or a drama of significant social import or definite philosophic content, the values of the play produced are seldom of equal importance.

The Pulitzer committee on play awards, for example, would probable feel pretty conscious of having accepted their responsibilities lightly if they were to give the annual prize to such a comedy as last season's "Sailor Beware" or "She Loves Me Not" and passed by such contestants of serious quality as "Men in White," which won the award, or "Mary of Scotland," which was the first choice of the advisory committee. "Personal Appearance" may conceivably outlast "The Old Maid," which was given first choice this year, as it already has passed "Valley Forge" and "The Petrified Forest," but even Mr. Pemberton would be forced to admit that neither in the quality of its writing nor in its importance as drama can any legitimate basis of comparison be struck between these plays.

Thinks Investments of Movie Magnates May Help Stage.

I asked Mr. Pemberton what he though of the most vital "trend" that has recently developed in the theater, discovered in the apparent determination of motion picture capitalists to acquire by purchase a controlling interest in the production of legitimate plays.

"Something new is undoubtedly happening in show business," he answered quickly, "and it may develop into something important. The picture companies are finally investing in the legitimate theater through financing individual plays or the programs of individual producers. They have done this sporadically in the past, usually to their sorrow, but now there is a concerted movement on.

"The motivation is economic. One company has made money the past season this way, so others must try it. If the movie makers will only give the matter a little thought this policy of investing some of the money the public and the bankers have lent them may prove to be the salvation of both branches of the industry. And don't let any one tell you their branch doesn't need saving from bad pictures, double features, and public apathy. On the other hand, if they thoughtlessly invest in the theater merely as an economic exigency it will lose or make them a little money, and that will be that.

Interchange of Actors and Plays Can Be Invaluable.

"The movie men have foolishly looked on their legitimate stage brethren as rivals and enemies and therefore fit for nothing but extermination, whereas, since the legitimate theater must train all the actors, directors, and writers for the cinema, it would be a smart thing for the cinema to encourage the stage.

"But beyond this elemental fact is one which opens a limitless vista. The screen can extend the life of its players and renew their enthusiasm by alternating them between screen and stage. The new public these screen advertised players will attract will revitalize the theater. Thus casting problems of both will be helped and stage plays will become even more valuable screen vehicles.

"But if the movie moguls do not let the theater men run their end of the show, if they do a Hollywood with Broadway, or if they choose scripts because they think they will make good movies, and not because they are good plays, they will lose their money. And that is probably the last thing a movie man wants to do."

That, so far as this department is concerned, ends the discussion. I go now to board a plane for California. The next voice you hear, if any, will be from the air.

"TIMES SQUARE LADY"

Strong oak. Clinging vine. In other words, Helen Twelvetrees and Robert Taylor as they appear in "Times Square Lady." The lady looks content, we'd say, and the gentleman rather as if he liked being a great big bulwark. At the Oriental.

Ticket Champion

JOHN S. HALE, company manager of "Three Men on a Horse," challenges any box-office man in Chicago to beat him at counting tickets. In a test at the Harris theater he counted 1,203 ticket stubs in 10 minutes 17 seconds.

In thumbing the tickets Hale flips off eight of them, another eight, and then nine for a lightning count of 25 tickets. Therein lies the trick. He makes his count by rhythm. This manager has employed his ear and touch system for 30 years.

Careful Producer

HERMAN SHUMLIN, producer of "The Children's Hour," now in the seventh month of its New York run, cannot be called a prolific impresario. Unlike many managers, he is not dedicated to the theory that he must stage at least three plays each season to retain his professional identity. The record reveals that in the last five years only four plays bearing his trademark have been acted—"The Last Mile," "Grand Hotel," "Clear All Wires," and now "The Children's Hour."

"The Last Mile," "Grand Hotel," and "The Children's Hour" are tragedies. All have been box office hits and have enjoyed long runs. "Clear All Wires," a melodramatic farce, was a moderate success.

"The Children's Hour," with a theme hitherto taboo in the theater, promises to run an entire year in New York. In thirty weeks its box office receipts have never been less than $10,000.

Teachers Lose Least Income in Depression

Survey Shows Profession Has Better Purchasing Average Than in 1929.

SURVEYS made by the National Education association indicate that teachers, as a class, have lost less in dollars and cents income than persons engaged in most other professions during the depression. In fact, teachers are better off today, on the average in purchasing power, than they were in 1929, owing to the sharp drop in the cost of living after that year, and the slight drop in their salaries.

The surveys showed, however, that in spite of this seeming economic advantage, teachers do not have incomes which guarantee reasonable security. Reports from 2,358 individual teachers in thirty-seven cities all over the country showed an average income of $2,043. This is higher than the national average when rural teachers are included, but even out of this sum, experts believe, a teacher could hardly save enough for comfortable old age.

Average Capital Accumulated Not Adequate for Retirement.

After thirty-five to forty years of teaching, it was estimated, single women, under typical conditions, might expect to accumulate a capital of $10,000 on the average, and married men $17,000.

"These amounts," the survey report states, "are distinctly inadequate to provide, at age 60 retirement, incomes equal to the average current expenditures reported by all men and all women teachers in this survey. They also are much smaller than the $26,610 recommended by the American Provident society as a suitable reserve at age 60 for persons who will reach an income of about $3,000 at the peak of their earning power."

Junior High School Instructor Teaches Mathematics New Way.

A junior high school teacher has improved on the old method of teaching mathematics. Instead of proposing the more or less irrelevant problems about papering a room and calculating the percentage of gain on the sale of a pound of tea, this teacher has been asking his pupils such questions as: "How much do you cost your parents?" "What is a reasonable amount for you to spend on your clothes?" "What is the present value of your old tennis racquet?" "How much would you have to earn in later life to obtain the things you want most?"

"THE CALL OF THE WILD"

"The Call of the Wild" is the name of the latest film in which Loretta Young is appearing. And here Miss Young has a listening attitude that implies she hears said wild calling. Rather a unique dress she's wearing. The picture opens at the United Artists' Wednesday.

First Player Returns to Screen as an Extra

THE possessor of the first name ever to appear on the screen, Florence Turner, recently went before the cameras again, to the tune of $7.50 per day as an extra player. In 1910, two years before Mary Pickford began her career as America's "sweeheart," Miss Turner and the late James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world, made a one reel picture.

Stage Designer.

Sergei Soudeikine has been engaged by the Theater guild to design the settings for the opera version of "Porgy." Brought to America by Morris Gest to decorate Balieff's "Chauve-Souris," the painter has done the sets for a long list of operatic presentations at the Metropolitan.

A DECISION YOU MUST FACE
● You can't sidestep the task of choosing a school for your boy or girl. It is often unwise to let the young people themselves decide, for they are too often swayed by inadequate considerations. In school natural talents and abilities can be stunted or brought to full power. ● If you are having difficulty in deciding on a school, get in touch with the Chicago Tribune School Bureau. You can obtain expert, individual consideration of your problem. The information which the Tribune School Bureau can give you is based on first-hand, personal knowledge of schools of all types. Perfect Drum Parts Clinch Sousa's Title of March King

Perfect Drum Scores Make Sousa's Fame

Their Excellence the True Basis of His Claim to March King Title.

By Edward Moore.

IN view of the succession of excellent band music concerts in Grant park these evenings, and perhaps even more in view of the multitude of drum and bugle corps contests that will be taking place soon for the Chicagoland Music Festival, this department desires to quote from a speech made this year by William F. Ludwig at the convention of Kappa Kappa Psi, a college band fraternity, at Indianapolis.

Mr. Ludwig raises the question why, when there were and are many fine bandmasters, the title of march king should have applied only to John Philip Sousa. "What is it that Sousa had that the others did not?" His answer is that Sousa wrote perfect drum parts and insisted on their proper interpretation.

Lusby Contributed Music to Sousa Marches.

"Check this for yourself," says Mr. Ludwig. "Compare the drum part of a Sousa march, 'Semper Fidelis,' 'Thunderer,' 'Stars and Stripes,' or any of that caliber, with other marches, including European or American compositions, and you will find the drum parts surprisingly indifferent to the rest of the score: in fact, so indifferent that often a drummer could play the drum part of one march and it would suit another just as well."

Sousa was not a drummer, but he had a boyhood friend, Frank S. Lusby, who became an expert on the drum. Together they composed drum and bugle corps marches and an instruction book for the two instruments, now out of print. It is based on the rudiments of drumming, and contains a number of drum and bugle marches. One, "With Steady Step," Mr. Ludwig says is the same as the drum and bugle parts of the "Semper Fidelis" march, and since the drum part is unchanged he believes that Lusby wrote it and probably the drum parts to other Sousa marches that followed. They are all strictly rudimental, he adds, as a military march should be, in order to bring out the strong, rhythmic impulses of a fine, spirited march.

Rudimental Drummer Plays Any Part Correctly.

The rudiments of drumming are the important consideration, in Mr. Ludwig's belief. They are the elementary principles, the equivalent of the scale that the drummer must know. "They come first, not jaz. The drummer who starts with jaz gets in such a deep rut that he will probably forever remain there. You cannot use jaz in the concert band. A rudimental drummer will play a correctly arranged drum part as it should be played; he will play a poorly arranged drum part better than it is written because he will use rudiments even though they are not indicated. A jaz drummer will pay no attention to a good drum part or a poor drum part. He creates his own and actually thinks he can do it better than the man who composed the march."

In conclusion, Mr. Ludwig says, "Better drums and better drummers make better bands. Play up your marches, play them in the tempo in which they are written, not to exceed 128 to 132 [beats per minute], not 155, as some do to cover up. You will be detected just the same. Speed is not a smoke screen for blue notes and bad rhythm."

In the belief of this department, Mr. Ludwig's final remark applies to many more branches of music than bands.

News of Interest to Lovers of Music.

Among other comments on the nightly concerts at Grant park a pair are relayed to this desk from Vox Pop. G. A. Stannard writes: "The organizations and individuals responsible for the current series of excellent concerts in Grant park deserve a big hand of applause. May this be the first year of an annual series of such musical events."

And Mrs. Bessie Koranda says: "I personally enjoy the band concerts, as I am a little hard of hearing, and although I like the symphony very much, the band is my favorite, and I am very sorry I cannot come out every evening and enjoy the beautiful out of doors, too. Grant park is an ideal recreation spot, just the right place for those concerts. So I thank every one of the parties who take part in making us happy and helping us to pass the hot days, for music is cooling, comforting, and soothing.

"And last, please, will you have one of the cornetists play 'Lucia di Lammermoor' as a solo. Also play a number of Sousa's marches, also patriotic music, also some southern pieces, and, too, some Bohemian songs. I know this is a large order, but if you knew what a thrill I get and how happy I am as I am now listening to today's program by Conductor Grabel, you would be well rewarded. Only I can hear only half, as that is all that is broadcast."

Rudolph Ganz is booked for several appearances in the east as conductor and pianist early next month. On Aug. 4 and 7 he will be the guest conductor of the National Symphony orchestra at Washington, D. C., on the second of which dates Miriam Winslow and her dance group, booked to appear at the Studebaker theater next November, will also be on the program. On Aug. 8 and 15 he will broadcast a full piano concerto at each of the two appearances under the direction of Frank Black. On Aug. 11 he will play the Tschaikowsky concerto at the Berkshire festival under the direction of Henry Hadley, and an appearance at the Philadelphia summer concerts is still under negotiation.

Percy Grainger, pianist and composer, will appear as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra next season, after an absence of four years. This will be his sixth engagement as soloist with the orchestra, and nine of his compositions are listed in the orchestra's répertoire.

Ambrose J. Wyrick, tenor, will feature "The Ninety and Nine" at the homecoming service of the La Salle Baptist church tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

GRACE WEARS WINSOME LOOK

As we were looking through our files the other day we happened on this picture of Grace Moore. It was such a winsome one that we decided it deserved a break this Sunday morning. So—here it is. Miss Moore's new picture, "Love Me Forever," is being held over at the Chicago for another week, you know.

New Records Bear Music of Early England

By Edward Moore

FOR some weeks an issue from the recording of Columbia has been arousing curiosity as to its contents, and this would seem to be the appointed time for examination and investigation. The caption reads "Music of the Chapel of King Henry VI., sung by the Nashdom Abbey singers conducted by the Rev. Don Anselm Hughes, O. S. B., and recorded in Nashdom Abbey, Burnham, Bucks, England." There are two disks, 7318-M and 7319-M. Another disk, 9088-M, has traditional music of about the same type, though without information as to its exact period.

It all forms an interesting page from the past. Here is church music from a time considerably before that of Henry VIII. and Elizabeth, when music in England, both sacred and secular, was at its peak historically as regards England and actually as regards the rest of Europe. Several of the excerpts are accredited to King Henry VI. himself, a Gloria in Excelsis, a Sanctus, and a Benedictus. Another composer is Nicholas Damett, whom you perhaps will never have heard of, and the other works are traditional and anonymous.

They are all disarming in their gentle naiveté. Being composed according to the ancient modes, they bear a slight resemblance in manner to Gregorian music, though they are far less florid and more conventionally rhythmic. Part writing had begun to make itself known, but this part writing is more in the nature of discant than the later and more complex counterpoint. At the same time students who are wrestling with the rules of strict counterpoint will find how many times there is approval of the empty fifths and octaves that puzzle the young these days. These records will probably never carry a vast popular appeal, but they ought to be of considerable interest to specialists in the music of the church.

Columbia is also presenting considerable music of a later date. On No. 7314-M you will find that persuasive conductor, Sir Hamilton Harty and the London Philharmonic orchestra in a lively performance of the overture to Smetana's opera "The Bartered Bride." It is a piece much to the taste and abilities of Sir Hamilton, and his orchestra is in full sympathy with him. For unless this work is played up to tempo it becomes tiresome beyond all telling. But Sir Hamilton was never known to lag in tempo in all his life, and the chuckling, chattering vitality of the piece comes out splendidly.

Of the smaller sized records there is also an entertaining selection. Lotte Lehman, the first rate singer who has been publishing her reminiscences in a Vienna paper, telling how pleased she is to find a vast improvement in the musical taste of America, sings the Czardas and Couplet from Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus." It is not altogether her best singing, since she has an occasional tendency to swoop into a note, but it shows her fine voice, not to speak of two bits from one of the most charming specimens of all operetta writing. It is No. G-4101-M.

Tragedy Haunts Hollywood's Clowns in Private Life

Nurse Broken Hearts 'Neath Painted Smiles

Vince Barnett Latest Unwilling Heir to Comedian Trouble Complex.

By Rosalind Shaffer

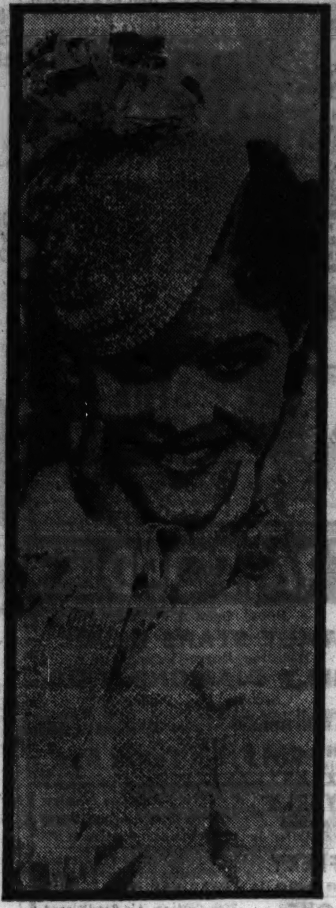
HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Hollywood has one superstition that has been reconfirmed by the recent difficulties of Vince Barnett, screen comic.

That is that Hollywood clowns are always the hard luck boys, with breaking hearts under their painted smiles.

The funny men of Hollywood ever since the days of Roscoe Arbuckle have seemed to be lightning rods for trouble.

Financial troubles, wife troubles, sweetheart troubles, professional troubles, legal troubles, accidents, and scandal drop right into their laps with unerring aim.

IN STAGE SHOW AT THE PALACE



Dixie Dunbar, attractive dancing soubrette, appears in the current vaudeville show at the Palace theater, in which Ed Sullivan, a Broadway columnist, makes his bow as master of ceremonies. Miss Dunbar was last seen in Chicago as Ray Bolger's partner in "Life Begins at 8:40."

Arrested for Drunkenness Trying to Do a Favor.

Barnett, who was tried with his wife, Genevieve, before Municipal Judge Ona Falconer [a woman judge] on charges of drunkenness in a movie house lobby, told a sad story of being smacked by the hand of the law when he replied that he "had just been doing the theater a favor" when the cop asked him why he was there. As a matter of fact Barnett had been doing a favor to the showhouse by turning out for a personal appearance, but the arresting officer didn't know that.

"Fresh, huh?" said the cop, and Vince went down, so he says, before a punch that was not pulled, as is usual in the case when the film town's professional ribber gets into his staged fights around town or before the camera.

Mrs. Barnett, too, said she suffered a couple of slaps from the minions of law and order who had been summoned to straighten out a poster tearing episode in the theater lobby where Barnett had been making personal appearances.

Last year saw a series of incidents that any one would be justified in referring to as "bad luck." March saw Barnett in the Trafic courts with three tickets which he tried to explain away to the judge as examples of policemen's humor. The judge didn't laugh but threw the funny man in jail for ten days. When the "ribber" squawked that he had to work in a film the sentence was lifted to impounding his car for the same period of time.

Injures Ankle in Effort to Rescue a Sparrow.

In the autumn when Mrs. Barnett was just out of two months in the hospital following a major operation she came home to find Vince in bed with a badly injured ankle. "A sparrow fell from its nest and in my haste to put it back I tripped over the lawn sprinkler," he explained. That's as good a story as any and you can use it yourself some time with no royalties charged on it.

In February of this year Barnett had to submit to some pretty rough fun at the hands of Dr. Frank Nolan, to whom Barnett had paid a bill of $85 in nickels and dimes. Barnett, made up as a jocky, had been skating at a roller rink with a party of friends when he was seized by Dr. Nolan and two attendants, forced into a strait jacket, and carried off to the city psychopathic ward, sirens screaming all the way. Dr. Nolan said Barnett was crazy and was impersonating Barnett the actor, but finally released him. Barnett is quoted as saying he did not think it at all funny. So much for Barnett and the antics with which he makes the movie colony laugh.

Bills and Taxes Make Ates' Life Miserable

Earlier in the year Roscoe Ates, whose crowded sibilants have caused much hilarity in movie theaters all over the world ever since he began his stuttering in "Cimmarron," came in for his share of difficulties. An overdue income tax shortage showed up. The preceding year Ates lost his wife of many years through a suit brought by her which charged him with being the typical funny man at home, that is, a surly, grouchy, unsocial person.

Last September Ates was sued on a huge furniture bill, and in December a check given by him was basis for another suit. In April, 1934, Ates was in an auto accident and his companion, Pauline Milam, who also has been his stage partner, was seriously injured. Early this year Mrs. Effie Griffin, mother of Miss Milam, sued and obtained custody of Miss Milam's 3 year old daughter on the ground her daughter was not a proper person to care for her own child.

Langdon's Divorces a Source of Worry.

Many of the other funny men of films have been dogged by embarrassment and disappointments. Who now hears much about Harry Langdon, who used to be a great star, said to be the second to no comedian on the screen, even Chaplin?

All sorts of legal involvements, over everything from love to business, wiped out Langdon's sizable fortune and an earning power that once netted him $5,000 a week when he left films to tour in vaudeville.

Langdon's baby face and insouciant air did not save him from a flurry of charges following each of his successive divorces, first from Frances Langdon and second from Mrs. Helen Walton O'Brien Langdon. Langdon was sued by Mrs. Walton O'Brien's former husband for collection of a series of notes totaling $15,000 which the husband had accepted from Harry. After his marriage to wife No. 2 had straightened some of his complications, Langdon became so pressed for alimony by his first wife that his second wife later testified he developed odd habits of going about with $1,000 bills and thumb tacks, sticking them under tables and upholstered chairs so that nobody could find them and legally attach them. Langdon was sued by business managers for shares in vanished profits from his films, sued by furniture companies, by a real estate company, which he sued back, by the Hollywood Athletic club for unpaid room rent and club dues, and by various tradesmen.

Dean, 350 Pounds, in "All Hands and Feet."

Man Mountain Dean, 350 pound professional wrestler, is taking a flight into films again, this time as the character All Hands and Feet in "Cappy Ricks Returns," by Peter B. Kyne, for Trem Carr productions. The main difficulty was finding a size sixty jacket for Dean and a jersey. It was finally especially made for him by a local woolen mill. His shoes were furnished by Dean himself.

Mary Pickford announces herself as entirely taken up with production of two films. The details of them have not yet been determined upon.

SHE'S NOT AFRAID OF JACK HOLT

That he-man portrayer, Mr. Jack Holt, is just a big, rough and ready, take-it-or-leave-it construction engineer in his latest picture, but Florence Rice, as you can see, isn't a bit afraid of him. When he comes blustering around, she tells him exactly where-to-head-in! And, as you can see, one word from her makes him just an old softy. (State-Lake.)

Jack Holt at Best in Fond Father Role

Acting Gives Emotional Moments to "Awakening of Jim Burke."

"THE AWAKENING OF JIM BURKE." Produced by Columbia. Directed by Lambert Hillyer. Presented at the State-Lake theater.

THE CAST.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

When it comes to making one of those father and son pictures, Jack Holt knows what it's all about.

In "The Awakening of Jim Burke" Mr. Holt is seen as a rough hewn construction engineer.

The job he's in charge of is far from the place where reside his frail, divorced wife and his little son, whom she is educating to be a violinist.

By order of the court, Jim is entitled to so many months of his son's company after the latter has reached the age of 12, I believe.

Rough Engineer Confronted with Violinist Son.

Jim Burke has a lady [Mamma, is it a lady?] friend whose aim is to marry him.

THAT'S the general layout.

Comes a telegram to Jim announcing that, if he desires, his boy will come to visit him for the prescribed time. . . . He's delighted at the thought of seeing the youngster again . . . the lady urges against it, however, and Jim is about to wire "no" when Florence Rice, who doubles as telegraph operator and shopkeeper, says something to make him change his mind. . . . And so Jim, the rough and ready, the tough bozo who rules his men with a hand of iron, finds himself confronted for the first time since babyhood a sensitive, gently nurtured lad with the temperament and pliable hands of a violinist!

Finale as Audience Desires It.

The death of young Jim's mother makes the lad's return to his old life impossible. . . . The finale is as you'd have it—I think.

This film is one of those spotty affairs. It has moments of keen emotional interest. It has others that drag. But the acting is excellent and the picture, while not so good as some, is better than a heap of others.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

All About Nationality and Career of Lyda Roberti.

Dear Miss Tinée: I would be pleased if you would enlighten me on a matter often discussed at our home. Of what nationality is Lyda Roberti? Also the important facts about her.

Thanks you. Sincerely,

MARIE SIMONS.

Editor's note: Glad to oblige you. Lyda was born in Warsaw, Poland, educated in Russia, France, Germany, Egypt. In America she became a Fanchon and Marco chorus girl. She has appeared in "You Said It" on the stage, and on the screen in various pictures, including "Dancers in the Dark," "Three Cornered Moon," "The Torch Singer," and "The Kid from Spain."

A Theater Manager Writes of Fans and of the Films.

Dear Miss Tinée: May a theater manager crash your "Voice of the Movie Fan" column? What a pleasure to hear from the fans and get their candid opinions on pictures, stars, and plots. You are to be congratulated for starting such a column, and I'll bet that every theater manager in the city eagerly scans it each Sunday.

The letters printed in a recent Sunday issue were gems! Did you note the intelligent attitude taken by all three writers? I raved about that paragraph in Sydney Barker's letter, in which he wrote: "In criticizing the drama the critic must be able to separate the artist from the individual, and is basically concerned with the merits of the play, the ability of the player, and his fitness for the rôle. It has nothing whatsoever to do with the probability that the actor or actress has any resemblance to barnyard life."

If I could only keep filling my house with people who take that attitude.

I am thankful that I operate the theater that I do. It is located in a high class neighborhood and my patrons are of high intellect. I discuss pictures with many of them daily. Many of them understand our booking situation and do not hold the theater directly responsible for showing some mediocre picture. I am paying now for "shelved film" pictures, mostly in class C, that I did not want my patrons to see. The good will that I am building up will benefit my employers in the long run.

With the aid of the mothers and the parent-teacher association the children need not see any pictures that are objectionable. We have found that handling the children intelligently and treating them kindly brings one the good will of the entire family. For the past two years, on Saturday matinées, I have been giving the children extra cartoons and comedies to look at, and don't think those youngsters don't appreciate a good show! My box office will testify to that.

Please continue with the "Voice" and make it bigger, if possible. I am sure that every manager will be grateful and the "fans" will have a great opportunity to cut loose with good, candid criticism.

Kindest regards,

STANLEY LAMBERT.

Editor's note: Thanks for your interest and your letter, Mr. Lambert.

Paragraphs of Praise for Beauty of Film "Evergreen."

Dear Miss Tinée: When I was in Canada last summer I dropped in at a theater in some town there and saw an English picture, "Evergreen." I left hoping that it would come to this town so that I could see it a second time. It has been a long time arriving, but last week I went to see it again. I hope somewhere, some time, I will come across it at least once more, although I rarely go twice to a picture, much less three times.

A picture out of which I can get as much the third time as the first is "Forty-second Street." In my opinion that was top stuff from half a dozen angles, perhaps because I have been earning my living all my life in an art line.

Another picture I never tire of is "One Night of Love," with Grace Moore.

As to "Evergreen." Wasn't it lovely and a blessed change from the heavy twelve year old stuff we see so much of?

Jessie Matthews, a fine little actress, spontaneous, exotic to such a degree that I cannot imagine an American actress not letting one down in the part after one has seen her in it. She is so different, so interesting and pleasing, and in that part, at least, so feminine and so much the lady that I cannot get her out of my head. And what a glorious dancer she is and, what is rare with dancers, a more than fair singer, in addition.

What does it matter that the story may, perhaps, be far fetched. A play is only a peg on which to hang and drape artistry and flashing intelligence; like a song, the least value of which is the song itself, something the bovine grade of intelligence never perceives.

Who this Emily Picker is I don't know, but I can imagine from her letter to you about "Evergreen" about what sort of stuff SHE would pick. She says she really got a rude jolt out of your review of the play. If she could see nothing in the play that is rare, beautiful, and desperately hard to find it will take more than one jolt to enlighten her. Do I not know? I have been thirty years handing out "jolts" in the endeavor to make dull eyes shine; thirty years trying to awaken the "living dead," and have about concluded that it cannot be done.

JOHN R.

Editor's note: Varying opinions are what make our column interesting.

Paul Robeson Had Leading Role in Movie of "Emperor Jones."

Dear Mae Tinée: Who played the lead in the movie "Emperor Jones?"

Thanking you, I am, very truly yours,

R. M.

Editor's note: Paul Robeson. You're welcome.

BitsaBOUTem

THE LONGEST BATH in movie history was taken, they say, by Rosita Diaz for a scene of "Rose of France." Rosita sat in a bathtub for nine hours clothed only in lather. Glycerin was added to the water now and then to keep Rosita's skin from drying out and to make the soapsuds shine so's they'd photograph well. No, Mabel, Cecil De Mille was not directing the picture. Which item adds to strange facts of history. . . . HARRY CAREY, favorite of silent days with "western" fans, is at work again on a series of prairie dramas. And we'll see him, too, in Samuel Goldwyn's "Barbary Coast." In the San Bernardino dam break, which swept away his entire ranch and all his buildings, he lost a fine collection of western Americana, including his greatest treasure, the gun that once belonged to BILLY THE KID.

ROGER PRYOR says every time he smashes a superstition he has a run of good luck. Add an extra place, please; we'll invite a THIRTEENTH for dinner tonight. . . . RUDYARD KIPLING, who hasn't seen a movie since "Ben Hur," broke his record as the world's most disinterested man in movies the other day. He came out of his shell and allowed himself to be interviewed by Arthur Hornblow Jr., who will supervise the screenization of his novel, "The Light That Failed." Sidney Howard adapted the sale. . . . PAULINE FREDERICK has been signed for the rôle of Señora Moreno in Fox's production of "Ramona." . . . CHARLIE CHAPLIN has announced that he means to make a talking picture. Direct it, not act in it.

KATHARINE HEPBURN is moving into an eight acre estate with a tennis court and swimming pool. She says as how she wants to be able to go hiking on her own property.

By FRANK CIPRIANI

WHEN on June 25 a jury in the federal court in Chicago returned a verdict of guilty against Attorney Louis (Curly) Piquett, it virtually ended the long and bloody case of John Dillinger. All of Dillinger's criminal companions but one—John Hamilton—are dead or in prison. Dillinger himself was assassinated by government agents one year ago tomorrow.

The jury's verdict against Piquett carried a prison sentence of two years and a fine of $10,000. He is now appealing. He was convicted of harboring Homer Van Meter, Dillinger's No. 1 machine gunner, in the home of James Probasco at 2509 North Crawford avenue, where both Van Meter and Dillinger submitted to plastic surgery to change their facial appearance. The government indicted Piquett separately for sheltering each man. Last January Piquett won an acquittal on the Dillinger half of the case by pleading he was the gunman's lawyer. He could not so plead in the Van Meter case.

Admittedly Piquett, ex-bartender and ex-city prosecutor under William Hale Thompson, was Dillinger's legal brain. From March 3, 1934, when the Hoosier desperado escaped from the county jail at Crown Point, Ind., until shortly before his death, the two maintained frequent contacts. Several times Piquett could have caused Dillinger's arrest, but as his lawyer he was not legally required to do so.

Lawyer Informed of Escape Within a Few Minutes

It was early in February, 1934, about five days after Dillinger's capture in Tucson, that Piquett entered the case. The nation's No. 1 public enemy was being held in the Crown Point, Ind., jail. Piquett represented him in court. He visited him in jail. He was, in fact, one of the last two men to visit him there. He received word in his downtown office of Dillinger's escape only a few minutes after it happened. He saw Dillinger in Chicago twice that same day while police sought him.

In following months Piquett and Dillinger—as lawyer and client—met occasionally and otherwise communicated with each other. Later, Piquett admits, he began to fear Dillinger, especially after he had urged him to surrender.

Dillinger's own attitude is, of course, buried with him, but may be interpreted from the following letter from him to Piquett, if the letter is authentic. Police hold a copy of it. Dated June 20, soon after the facial lifting in Probasco's home, it purports to read as follows:

"No doubt you know by this time how I feel toward you. You know I sent you money to pay everyone that I owe. Now I find out you have never paid any one of them one cent. I'm telling them I have sent you the money. And when they come to you, you can tell them why you did not pay them. So far as I'm concerned, you and I are through. Johnny."

At his trial Piquett said he received $3,000 soon after the facial operations, but insisted the money was for legal services and not for anything he did in the face lifting. Capt. John Stege, who headed a special Chicago police detail in the search for Dillinger, has quoted Piquett's alleged comments on the June 20 letter as follows:

"Well, he [Dillinger] is right. I did not do the right thing. I was busted and I owed office rent and office help."

According to the jury's verdict, Piquett strained the ethics of his profession in representing Dillinger. Piquett insists, however, he did only what any other lawyer would have done. He says he planned to surrender Dillinger, but that his hopes were thwarted by the determination of federal men to kill his client.

Louis Piquett, Dillinger's attorney, convicted by the government of harboring Homer Van Meter, a member of the gang.

It is said that Dillinger wanted to surrender. From a high authority in the state's attorney's office it was remarked as recently as last week that Dillinger would have been arrested peacefully if he had not been killed—so peacefully, in fact, that he could have been taken to headquarters "for 7 cents fare on a street car." But many people did not want to take Dillinger alive, and accordingly they assassinated him — the word is used advisedly — as he left the Biograph theater at 2433 Lincoln avenue July 22 last.

Many rumors have arisen over the legal execution of the Indiana outlaw. In fact, dozens of rumors have cropped up over every phase of the entire case. They start with his escape from the Crown Point jail. Here are a few of them:

1. Dillinger used a real gun—not a wooden one—in his escape.

2. His delivery was arranged by a group of men, for which they received $6,500.

3. These men protected him while he was a fugitive.

4. They later wanted him killed for two reasons: (a) His money ran out; (b) alive, he might implicate them in his flight.

5. Policemen Martin Mulvihill and Martin O'Brien of East Chicago, mysteriously murdered May 24, 1934, were killed because earlier they had unwittingly interrupted a meeting of the conspirators, who feared they "saw too much."

6. Dillinger arranged to flee Chicago in a Chicagoan's car on July 23 and go to Mexico. The price was to be $10,000.

These are only a few of the many insinuations. The government investigated all of them, but could substantiate none of major importance. Some of them will be touched upon as they fit into the pattern of known facts simply to show a possible scene behind the scenes which federal men investigated.

As previously mentioned, the conviction of Piquett virtually ends the Dillinger case. Joseph Fox, last but one of the original gang, was captured in Chicago June 4. Mrs. Anna Steve, sister of Fugitive John Hamilton, was sentenced to three months in jail at Sault Ste. Marie June 7 for harboring Hamilton and Dillinger. Reports persist that Hamilton is dead, but police believe he is still alive and in Chicago.

First Ventures Into Crime When 19 Years Old

A review of Dillinger properly begins in 1902, the year he was born on a small farm twenty miles southwest of Indianapolis. His mother died when he was three. His father, a man of good stock, remarried and moved the family to Indianapolis. There Dillinger spent most of his childhood. Later the family moved to Mooresville, in Morgan county, home county of Indiana's present Democratic governor, Paul V. McNutt.

Until 18 or 19 America's future public enemy No. 1 led a normal life. Then came poolroom associations and a change. One summer night in 1924 Dillinger and Ed Singleton, village ne'er-do-well, robbed Frank Morgan, town merchant, of $555.

They were caught. Singleton shrewdly bargained with prosecutors, pleaded guilty, and escaped with a minor sentence. Dillinger, pleading only intoxication as his excuse, was given a sentence of ten to twenty years. The inequality of these punishments, it was said, turned him against society.

Pendleton reformatory housed Dillinger for several years. There he cultivated the friendship of the tougher inmates. He became intractable and later was transferred to the state prison at Michigan City. There, too, he sought the friendship of the more hardened criminals, particularly Hamilton and Harry Pierpont.

In May of 1933, after nearly nine years' incarceration, Dillinger was paroled by Governor McNutt on the plea of Mooresville citizens that he was a fit subject for rehabilitation. The parole was a routine affair, but, as it turned out, probably the most expensive one ever granted in Indiana.

When Dillinger left Michigan City, revenge, not rehabilitation, was in his heart. He immediately communicated with two old cronies, Hilton O. Crouch and Harry Copeland. Less than a month later they were robbing banks at Daleville, Montpelier, and Indianapolis for a total of $29,100.

By this time Indiana police were much disturbed over the activities of the farmer boy they had so recently paroled. As yet, however, he was only a local problem.

Weeks passed and Dillinger managed to evade arrest. He possessed an operating fund, and now he prepared for his next move, the freeing from prison of his friends, Hamilton and Pierpont, in accordance with an agreement they had made months before. Dillinger knew the prison thoroughly. There were only 120 guards to handle more than 2,000 convicts. Sixty-nine of those guards were relatively new appointees who had replaced as many experienced men through alleged political maneuvering by the dominant state Democratic party.

Judge William Murray of the Circuit court at Crown Point, who refused to transfer Dillinger from the jail to prison.

At midnight Sept. 10, 1933, Dillinger tossed three pistols over the high wall of Michigan City prison, expecting his friends would find them at dawn. However, another convict found them, and, seeking to ingratiate his way into the good favor of officials, turned them in. Prison bosses promptly ordered solitary confinement for Danny McGeoghegan, former Chicago hoodlum, serving a 25-year term. They never suspected the real culprits, Hamilton and Pierpont.

Undismayed, Dillinger bought more guns—seven this time, packed them in a package of merchandise consigned to the prison, and sent word through the "grapevine" that the weapons would arrive Sept. 20. The shipment arrived with the day and was quickly shunted aside by Walter Detrick, a trusty and escape conspirator. He later distributed the guns.

Two days later Dillinger fell into the hands of Ohio police as a suspect in bank robberies at Dayton and Bluffton, O., and was locked up in the jail at Lima in charge of Sherif Jess Sarber.

Dillinger was still in jail there on Sept. 26 when ten of his ex-prison pals shot their way out of Michigan City. The ten were Pierpont, Hamilton, Detrick, Joseph Jenkins, John Burns, Edward Shouse, Russell Clark, Joseph Fox, James Clark, and Charles Makley. James Clark was caught at Hammond on Sept. 29. Jenkins was killed at Bean Blossom, Ind., next day. Shouse was captured at Paris, Ill., on Dec. 20. Eugene Teague, an Indiana state policeman, was killed in that incident. Detrick was nabbed in Bellwood, Chicago suburb, Jan. 6, 1934, when police killed his companion, Theodore Klutas.

Immediately after the prison break Burns and Fox separated and came to Chicago, where Burns was seized last Dec. 17. Pierpont, Hamilton, Makley, Russell Clark, and Shouse formed a unit and planned to liberate Dillinger from the Lima jail.

While the fugitive convicts, headed by Pierpont, were perfecting their plans to liberate Dillinger, Governor McNutt and other high Democrats in Indianapolis were defending themselves from the nation-wide criticism for the prison break. Governor McNutt vowed to get an explanation of it. One explanation was offered by former Gov. Harry Leslie.

Governor McNutt, Leslie charged, had played spoils politics by changing wardens and firing veteran prison guards in favor of political appointees.

"It takes years to become a good guard, able to deal with convicts," the ex-governor said. "The old guards were fired because of politics and replaced by men without qualifications."

John's Pals Return a Favor and Kill a Sherif

The scandal was dying out when on Oct. 13 Pierpont, Makley, and Clark invaded Sherif Sarber's office in Lima, posed as Indiana deputies, and said they had come to return Dillinger to Michigan City prison as a parole violator. When Sarber demanded their credentials Pierpont shot and killed him. Five minutes later Dillinger was speeding back to Indiana.

This was war. The entire country became aroused. Twenty-four hours later Dillinger and his men calmly raided the police station at Auburn, Ind., and then the police building at Peru, getting from both fresh supplies of guns and bulletproof vests. He also recruited Copeland and Leslie Homer, paroled Indiana convict, to his gang. On Oct. 23 the hoodlums raided the Central National bank at Greencastle and took $75,000.

The desperadoes then moved on to Chicago, careful to avoid the recently organized "Dillinger squad" commanded by Captain Stege. Stege always was on Dillinger's trail, and almost got him in a dentist's office at Irving Park boulevard and Keeler avenue on Nov. 14. But Dillinger, aided by a girl, shot his way clear.

Dillinger continued to elude detectives, and on Nov. 20 he and his men moved to Racine, Wis., raided the American Bank and Trust company, and fled with $27,000. In this raid the bandits shot Police Sergeant Wilbur Hansen and H. J. Graham, a cashier. Bandit Homer was later arrested for this crime and sentenced to 28 years in prison.

The gang then worked back to Chicago and on Dec. 13 took $8,700 from the safety boxes of the Unity Trust and Savings bank at 2909 North avenue. Police now found warmer clews, and next day Police Sergeant William Shanley trapped Hamilton and a woman, Mrs. Elaine De Kant Dent, in an auto repair shop at 5320 Broadway. This was tragic. Hamilton shot and killed Shanley. Police now vowed to shoot the Indiana desperadoes on sight, and a week later raided a north side apartment and shot to death three criminals, Lew Katzewitz, Sam Ginsburg, and Charles Tolden, supposedly—but not actually—connected with the Hoosiers.

The Christmas holidays came, and the outlaws remained passive for a month. On Jan. 14, 1934, they popped up in East Chicago, Ind., very familiar territory. Dillinger, Hamilton, and Pierpont raided the First National bank there. While they were inside, police arrived, and one policeman, Hobart Wilgus, ventured into the bank. He was disarmed. Sight of the police outside did not fluster Dillinger.

"Don't hurry," he told Hamilton and Pierpont. "Get all that money. We'll kill those cops outside." Dillinger's accomplices scooped up $15,000. Then all three rushed outside. Policeman William P. O'Malley tried to block Dillinger's path. He was slain with machine gun bullets. The desperadoes escaped, although Hamilton was wounded.

Next Dillinger, Pierpont, Clark, and Makley headed for the southwest, hoping to cut through to Mexico. They arrived in Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 22 with Opal Long, Mary Kinder, and Evelyn Frechette, alias Anne Martin. On Jan. 25 Tucson police seized Makley on the street, Pierpont in a tourist camp, Clark in a bungalow, and Dillinger as he was about to enter a cottage. The three girls also were seized.

Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin bid for the gang's extradition, Indiana for the O'Malley murder; Ohio for the Sarber killing, and Wisconsin for the Racine robbery. Finally, Gov. B. B. Mouer of Arizona awarded custody to Indiana, the understanding being Indiana would keep Dillinger and surrender Makley, Pierpont and Clark to Ohio. This eventually was done. Wisconsin was frozen out after Indiana had charged possible corruption in that state's effort to win extradition of the prisoners. The girls were released.

On Jan. 30, Dillinger was taken from Tucson to Chicago by plane, in custody of Carroll Holley, undersherif of Lake county, Indiana, and Police Chief Nicholas Makar, of East Chicago. In a following plane were Robert G. Estill, Lake county prosecutor, and Detective Wilgus. More than 100 Chicago police met the Dillinger plane at the Chicago airport, and half of them escorted the party to Crown Point.

John Hamilton, only member of the original Dillinger gang still at large. There have been rumors of his death.

Late that night Dillinger was taken to the jail. There he blandly posed for pictures, putting his hand affectionately on Prosecutor Estill's shoulder. The latter put his arm around the gunman's neck—a quite informal picture of friendliness. At midnight Dillinger was behind the bars.

Nominal custodian of Dillinger was Sherif Lillian Holley, who had succeeded to the office of her husband, Sherif Roy Holley, after his murder in a fight with a maniac. For the first few nights she stayed up long after hours to see that her instructions as to Dillinger's custody were obeyed.

"Sometimes I didn't get to bed until 4 in the morning," said Mrs. Holley. "I wanted to be sure there could be no error in guarding Dillinger."

Soon afterward reports began reaching Lake county authorities that Dillinger might try to escape, or that friends might attempt to free him. Mrs. Holley finally took notice of these reports as did Prosecutor Estill, and accordingly the latter petitioned Circuit Judge William J. Murray of Crown Point to transfer Dillinger to the state prison at Michigan City. But Judge Murray held the jail was strong enough. He ruled, furthermore, he had no right to remove Dillinger unless mob violence threatened.

Three Dictators Rule Shanghai

China's Gang Chieftains

By JOHN POWELL

Shanghai, China.

IN SHANGHAI three men are all-powerful. This triumvirate constitutes the so-called invisible government, which controls the below-surface activities of China's chief port and industrial metropolis. It has been stated that these men represent in China what Al Capone and other notorious gang chieftains represented in America. Undoubtedly Shanghai's submerged dictators exert a powerful influence for both good and evil.

They are Chang Hsiao-ling, Wong Kin-yung, and Dou Yu-seng, rulers of the "Ching-Pang," or Blue society, most powerful secret organization in China and possibly in the world. The organization was originally revolutionary in character and was formed in the days of the empire with the object of overthrowing the Manchu dynasty.

After the first revolution in 1911 the Ching-Pang degenerated into racketeering and gradually extended its control over the opium trafic, gambling, and prostitution in the Shanghai district.

At the time of the Nationalist revolution in 1927 the Ching-Pang again became patriotic by helping the Nationalist generals to establish their authority in the Shanghai district. Since then the society has become increasingly respectable. Today its leaders are bankers, manufacturers, and patrons of charitable institutions.

Recently the three rulers of the society were awarded the highest government decoration, the Order of the Sacred Jade, by the Nanking government. The accompanying picture of the trio was taken on the occasion of their being decorated.

Of the three leaders the one on the right in the picture, Dou Yu-seng, is the best known. Recently Dou completed a new bank building and office block in the Shanghai French concession. It is one of the handsomest structures in the city. In addition to a bank and other interests, Dou also controls most of the Chinese newspapers in Shanghai. He is 42 years old and started life as a peddler. He was born in a small village near Shanghai.

Two years ago, when Dou celebrated his fortieth birthday, he staged a parade which cost more than $100,000 and tied up trafic in the city for half a day. At the same time Dou built a temple or ancestral shrine in his home village. The shrine is a center of tourist interest.

Airplanes and Air Transport

From Bombay to London

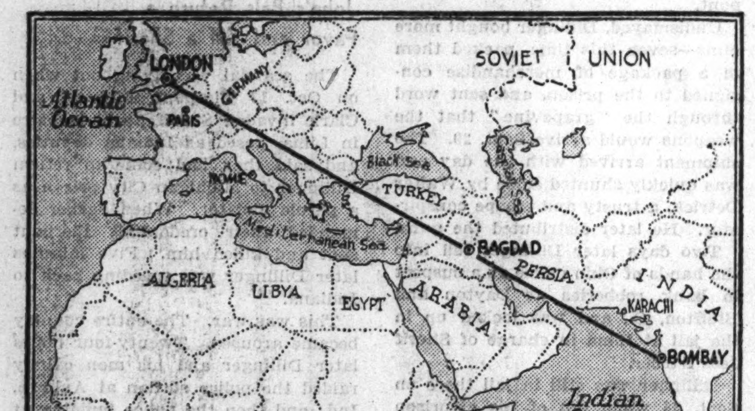
By WAYNE THOMIS

ONE phase of aviation in which England and European countries are well ahead of the United States is sport and club flying. This probably is true because the various European nations have seized upon club training of civilians as one source of a reserve of pilots who would be invaluable as military flyers in case of war.

On this premise England, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, and other nations have provided direct subsidies to aid civil and sport flying. Funds are provided to purchase club machines and to pay salaries of former army pilots who are detailed as instructors. Several of these governments are willing to pay a substantial percentage of the cost of any private airplanes their nationals are willing to purchase.

As a result there is much club activity and many interclub and intraclub competitions throughout Europe. Among these are the annual flight around Europe, in which clubs from all countries enter teams; the British King's cup race for club and private owner machines; the German Rundflug, a race competition similar to the King's cup race; and the international exchange flights which are frequently made.

These last are generally flying parties in which members of, for example, an English flying club are invited to fly to France as guests of some French flying group for a given week-end period.



Route flown by the Bombay Flying club pilots on their ten-day journey from Bombay to London.

One of the latest of such peaceful air raids into a foreign countryside was organized by the Austrian Aero club and the Hungarian Aero association. The two groups extended mass invitation to private and club pilots of England, France, Greece, Italy, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, and Holland.

Forty-six planes gathered in Switzerland on Friday, June 7, with pilots and passengers from all of the above countries. Forming a really impressive air fleet, they soared over the Alps and descended upon Vienna. After refueling there they continued to Matyasfold airport at Budapest, where they arrived at noon Saturday.

The remainder of the day was spent in and near the old and picturesque city. The following day the group took off for Siofok, on the shore of Lake Balaton—the "Hungarian sea." Bathing, a formal dinner, a dance, and a return flight to Budapest ended the week-end party.

Similar social flights have been made in England, France, and Poland by various flying club groups.

The best instance of serious flight training by a club group is provided by the Bombay, India, Flying club. Modeled on many of the British flying organizations, its members are largely Indians, and most of them take the practical flying training in order to prepare themselves for commercial flying on the Indian National Airways.

Their training is thorough, and at the end of the course they make an annual pilgrimage by air to England—a casual jaunt of 5,300 miles. This practice was initiated in 1933, when five machines flown by nine students and their instructor covered the distance in short flights during a 12-day period. Last year seven students and the instructor flew it in 10 days.

The flight this year was led by A. C. Gazdar, the Indian instructor of the club, who received his air training in England. Three machines and four students took part.

They left Bombay in the club De Haviland Moth training planes on June 4. These airplanes are light open cockpit biplanes, each powered with a De Haviland four-cylinder-in-line air-cooled motor developing 120 horsepower. Their extreme range, even with special auxiliary tanks installed, is 450 miles, and their cruising speed is slightly under 100 miles an hour.

The route followed was along a part of that flown by the pilots who left England on the MacRobertson race to Melbourne, Australia, last October. The student pilots flew from Bombay to Karachi, and thence from Jask to Bushire to Baghdad. Turning slightly more to the north, they continued in easy stages across Asia Minor, Greece, Austria, Hungary, and France, arriving at Heston airport near London on June 14.

During the flight the club members serviced the machines themselves, worked out their own navigational problems, and made practical application of the meteorological studies undertaken as part of their training. They flew over mountains, jungle, desert, and, for a short distance, the open sea.

All the students are to stay in England for several months to receive instrument and radio instruction in schools near London. All four of the students are hopeful of landing jobs as pilots with the Indian Airways, which is rapidly expanding an air mail and passenger transportation system.

Early Science Marked by Endless Arguments

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

THE ELEMENTS (Part II.)

THE Greek and the medieval scientists were just as inteligent as those of today, and they had the same world to examine. Yet their science was remarkably sterile of material results when compared with that of the present time. They produced just as many bitter arguments and almost as many obscurely written books, but nothing in the way of great chemical factories, with their varied wealth of products that we now enjoy.

Perhaps one of the reasons to account for this lack of practical results is that the earlier scientists preferred to argue about philosophic implications rather than to weigh and measure the things they observed. It is only since men have sought quantitative measurements that they have found knowledge reliable enough to warant practical application. Perhaps our list of 92 elements is not much nearer the truth than their list of four. But at any rate the facts we have learned from weighing these elements have enabled us to predict fairly accurately the chemical behavior of matter and have given us a far more profound knowledge of nature than they ever had.

About the year 1800 chemists had observed, by weighing the starting and final products of chemical reactions, that elements combined with each other in such a way as to indicate that they existed in certain definite weight units. For example, a given weight of carbon unites with exactly twice as much hydrogen to form methane as it does to form ethylene, or with exactly twice as much oxygen to form carbon dioxide as to form carbon monoxide. This led to the advancement of the atomic theory, which stated that the ultimate particles of matter, the molecules, consisted of small numbers of atoms of the different elements, the atoms of any one element being similar and having their own particular weight.

At that time there was no known method of weighing a single atom, so that the chemists of the time had to content themselves with assigning to each element a number proportional to the weight of an atom of that element. These numbers, called atomic weights, were obtained by comparing the relative weights of various elements that reacted with each other.

The practical importance of the atomic weights is obvious, since they tell us exactly the weights of any elements or compounds to use in any reaction we may desire to carry out. To explain their theoretical significance, however, it will be necessary to digress from the subject for a short time.

If you were to give the average scientist a dozen assorted objects he would immediately start to classify them. Almost from the beginning attempts were made to divide the various elements into groups according to their physical or chemical properties. Now, while there are quite a number of resemblances between individual elements, there are too many cases in which an element can be placed in more than one class and cannot definitly be assigned to any one.

During the 1860s four men, De Chaucourtois in France, Newlands in England, Mendeleeff in Russia, and Meyer in Germany, independently and almost simultaneously hit upon a surprising relationship between the atomic weights and the properties of the elements.

They found that if the elements be listed in the order of increasing atomic weight, those of similar properties recurred periodically in the list. Among the lighter elements this similarity appeared in every seventh one. Thus the second, ninth, and sixteenth resembled each other, as did the third, tenth, and seventeenth, and so on.

Inasmuch as there is no readily apparent reason for such a relationship between the elements and their weights, the suggestion of these men provoked a storm of ridicule from many of their contemporaries. One waggish scientist went so far as to suggest that they try to correlate the properties of the elements with their alphabetical order (a rather dull joke, but not bad for a scientist). But we must not regard these skeptics as being entirely blind to an obvious relationship. As originally enunciated the evidence was not nearly as simple or free from discrepancy as the description given above might indicate.

For one thing, among the heavier elements those similar do not recur in periods of seven, but of higher numbers. Then, too, there apparently happens to be no place for the important element hydrogen in this arrangement. There also were a few pairs of adjacent elements that had to be interchanged to get them in an order consistent with their chemical properties. Occasionally it was necesary to leave vacant places to get the elements in the right order.

Mendeleeff, the Russian, to whom goes most of the credit for the discovery of this chemical law, vigorously defended it against these objections. He suggested that the fact that several elements appeared to be out of place was the result of the inaccurate measurement of their atomic weights. This has since been found to be true in some but not all of the cases.

As for the gaps in the list, Mendeleeff suggested that they belonged to elements that had not been discovered. If such were the case, it would be possible, by comparing the properties of the similar elements that were found in the same group with one of vacant places, to predict the properties of an undiscovered element.

Mendeleeff had sufficient faith in this law to risk his scientific reputation in a number of such predictions. He drew up a list of several then undiscovered elements, in which he not only described in detail their physical and chemical properties but also prophesied where they might be found. And, more fortunate than most prophets, he lived to see all of his predictions verified with astonishing accuracy by the subsequent discovery of these elements.

The practical importance of Mendeleeff's generalization was clearly demonstrated about forty years ago when two British chemists, Rayleigh and Ramsay, discovered the element argon as a constituent of air. The properties of this gas did not permit it to be placed in any of the then known groups. The two discoverers reasoned that it must be the first known member of a hitherto undiscovered group. Accordingly they undertook an exhaustive search for the other members. Within a few years they had succeeded in discovering the elements helium, neon, krypton, and xenon, the first two of which have since developed considerable industrial importance.

However, a scientific law of this nature should be completely accurate, and there still remained the cases of a few elements which occupied the wrong positions in the table. Careful investigation had shown that the fault did not lie in inaccurately determined atomic weights. The difficulty was cleared up about 1912 by the researches of Rutherford and Moseley in England. Their work indicated that an atom consisted of a positively charged nucleus surrounded by a swarm of electrons sufficient to balance the positive charge. This charge is the same for all atoms of the same element, but differs between atoms of different elements.

Now, if the elements be listed in order of increasing nuclear charge they fit into Mendeleeff's arrangement perfectly. It is quite easy to see a connection between the properties of an element and its nuclear charge, since the latter determines the number of surrounding electrons and hence the entire outside structure of the atom. Thus it appears that there is actually no direct relation between chemical properties and atomic weights. The former are accurately determined by nuclear charges, while the latter merely happen to be very roughly proportional to these charges, much as the populations and areas of cities are related.

There is one more fundamental relation between the elements to be mentioned. Let us examine the following list of the ten lightest elements and their atomic weights:

Hydrogen	1.0078
Helium	4.002
Lithium	6.940
Beryllium	9.02
Boron	10.82
Carbon	12.00
Nitrogen	14.008
Oxygen	16.0000
Fluorine	19.00
Neon	20.183
Sodium	22.997
Magnesium	24.32

There is one thing about these figures that we cannot but notice. Most of them are very close to whole numbers. This was first observed more than a century ago, and the theory was advanced that all of the elements were built up out of hydrogen atoms. But such a theory must hold good in every case, and unfortunately there are a few elements (such as magnesium in the above list) that are about as far as possible from being in accord with it. So this fascinating theory was regretfully abandoned.

But about twenty years ago the British physicist Aston demonstrated that a large number of the elements were actually mixtures of different varieties, or isotopes, of the same element. These isotopes were practically identical in all properties except atomic weight. Thus ordinary chlorine of atomic weight 35.5 was in reality a mixture of three parts of chlorine of weight 35 and one part chlorine of weight 37.

Now, all of these isotopes happen to be whole numbers. The old hydrogen atom theory was at once revived, and during the last few years has received experimental confirmation. Hydrogen nuclei, fired at high speed at atoms of other elements, can combine with them to form atoms of heavier elements.

And so science progresses. A generation ago the world was believed to be built up of 92 elements. Now it appears that the fundamental building stones are nothing more than hydrogen nuclei and electrons. This view may be the final one. It is difficult to see how the simplification can be carried much farther.

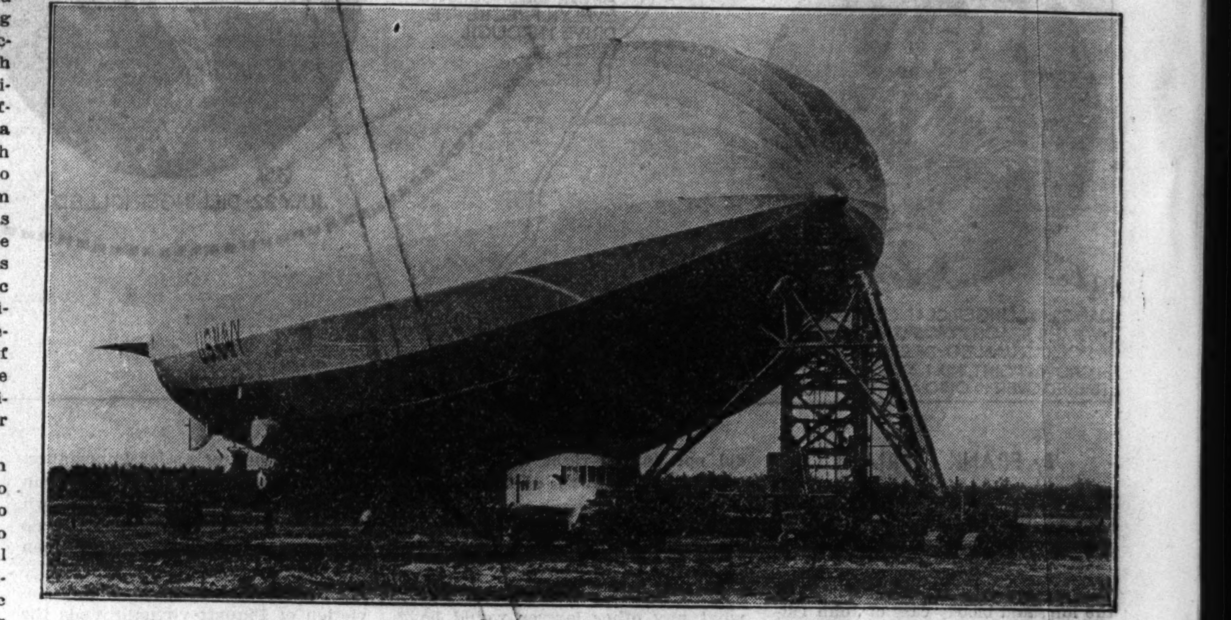
Magnesium, one of the lighter of the elements, is employed for a number of purposes. One use is in the photographer's flashlight.



One of the most important uses of the element helium is in the inflation of dirigibles. Being noninflammable, fire hazards aloft are greatly reduced. Helium was discovered about forty years ago by two English scientists, John W. S. Rayleigh and Sir William Ramsay. (Acme photo.)

JOHN KEATS, famous English poet, was born in London Oct. 29 or 31, 1795, and died in Rome Feb. 23, 1821. It was while laboring in the solitude of the Isle of Wight that he began the first book of "Endymion," from which is taken "A Thing of Beauty Is a Joy Forever." Though still under the age of 26 when death overtook him, Keats was celebrated for his many poetical works, of which his great Odes stand alone in literature, new in form and spirit.

A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER

A thing of beauty is a joy forever;
Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness; but still will keep
A bower quiet for us, and a sleep
Full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet breathing.
Therefore, on every morrow, are we wreathing
A flowery band to bind us to the earth,
Spite of despondence, of the inhuman dearth
Of noble natures, of the gloomy days,
Of all the unhealthy and e'er darkened ways
Made for our searching: yes, in spite of all,
Some shape of beauty moves away the pall
From our dark spirits. Such the sun, the moon,
Trees old and young, sprouting a shady boon
For simple sheep; and such are daffodils
With the green world they live in; and clear rills
That for themselves a cooling covert make
'Gainst the hot season; the mid-forest brake,
Rich with a sprinkling of fair musk-rose blooms:
And such too is the grandeur of the dooms
We have imagined for the mighty dead;
All lovely tales that we have heard or read;
An endless fountain of immortal drink,
Pouring unto us from the heaven's brink.

The Eastland Disaster - 20 Years Ago Next Wednesday

Survivors Recall the Deeds of Heroism

By JOSEPH U. DUGAN

A reproduction of a remarkable photograph of the Eastland, overturned in the river, taken by Fred Eckhardt, a member of the Tribune photographic department, appears in the picture section.

In a vacant store on Clark street near the river an information bureau was established shortly after the Eastland capsized. Here lists of the victims and survivors were compiled and information disseminated to relatives and friends.

TWENTY years ago next Wednesday Chicago was the scene of a major disaster. The lake passenger steamship Eastland overturned in the Chicago river at the Clark street bridge. More than 2,400 men, women, and children were aboard, and 812 of them lost their lives. Survivors of the catastrophe as well as all other Chicagoans need no reminder of the horrors of that terrible accident. What most prefer to remember twenty years after is the record of heroism, sacrifice, and human sympathy which that day brought forth.

The Eastland had been chartered by employés of the Western Electric company to take them on an excursion to Michigan City, Ind. Many of the living survivors still are employés or are relatives of employés of the same company. A reporter talked the other day with a group of Western Electric workers, all of whom were aboard the Eastland when it overturned. Their stories are typical of those told by all of the men and women who were saved.

Escapes by Fraction of a Second

The names of the survivors in the group and their stories follow:

Miss Rose Smoller, 1453 Addison street:

"I was in charge of a group of young girls, and we got to the docks after the Eastland had almost completed loading passengers. I got on the boat with only a few of the girls, and the man taking tickets told the rest of my party they couldn't get on. I decided in that case that I and the girls with me would get off rather than separate the party. I had an argument with officials at the gangplank, but we pushed ourselves through and got back to the dock.

"It seemed only a moment later that we heard the most piercing screams I have ever heard in my life. I couldn't believe my eyes and I guess my mind just went numb as the big boat rolled over into the river. It seemed like several minutes before anyone on the dock had completely realized what had happened, but I guess it was only a few moments. After that the confusion was terrible. The details of the next few hours are jumbled in my mind. I remember trying to be of help on the dock and later in a warehouse where they took unconscious victims. I am quite sure that if we had known anything about artificial respiration we could have saved many of them."

Finds Pleasure on Trip to Alaska

Walter H. Flinn, 3332 Home avenue, Berwyn:

"For nineteen years after our experience on the Eastland my wife and I kept away from boats. Then last year, after a great deal of persuasion on my part, we took a trip to Alaska. I'll admit we got aboard the ship with misgivings, but that feeling wore off and we enjoyed the voyage immensely.

"The day of the Eastland accident we were on the forward boat deck, near the captain's cabin, and, fortunately, on the dock side. As the boat started to go over we were able to scramble over to the dock side railing and hang on. We were dangling there with water right below us. I knew we couldn't hang on long. I was somewhat of an athlete in those days and decided to try to swing myself over the railing. On the first try I lost my hold and fell down onto the captain's cabin. One leg went through a window and I was straddling the top of the cabin. By that time I was getting exhausted, but I managed to get up again and could just reach the rail. On the next try I pulled myself over it. I was then in a secure position to pull my wife up to safety, but she had such a strong hold on the rail that I couldn't break it. We were both crazed, I guess.

"Nothing I could say or do would make her loosen her grip on that rail. I beat on her knuckles and pleaded with her, but it was no use. Finally another man came to my assistance and between us we managed to break her hold and pull her up. Both of us had been badly cut and bruised, and our clothing was torn to shreds. My wife did not recover from the shock for many weeks."

Lisle Goyette, 1835 South Grove avenue, Berwyn:

"When I boarded ship to go to France a couple of years after the Eastland disaster I guess I was the most scared guy in my outfit. All the way across I had the jitters every minute. Then one night I was on guard on deck. Another ship in our convoy got off course and was headed straight for us. I saw the bow of the other ship headed right into the side of our ship. I let out a yell you could have heard a mile. Then the other ship veered away and a crash was avoided by inches. But my nerves were completely shot and I was twice as jittery as I had been before. Yes, I was thinking all the time of my experience on the Eastland. My father, my two brothers, and I were all on the Eastland when it went over. My youngest brother was drowned. I was in the baggage room below decks when the boat capsized. It seemed to me the boat went over all of a sudden. I didn't realize what had happened. Somehow I managed to get up to the side that was out of water and was pulled out."

Miss Ethel Stephenson, 5416 Kamerling avenue:

"I was only a little girl at the time of the Eastland disaster, but I remember it vividly. I was on the Eastland with my father. We were sitting on the river side, outside of the cabin deck. My father's chair was right in front of a cabin window. When the boat went over I grabbed his shoulders and we both went up through that cabin window in the water. We came to the surface inside of a big cabin and my father realized the object clinging to his back was me. He made his way to a rail or something that he could hang to and after a while we were pulled out."

Frank Terdina, 3727 Wesley avenue, Berwyn:

"I was on the second deck on the river side when the Eastland went over. When it lurched I jumped into the water. For a moment or two I was under the overturned deck, but in those days I was a good swimmer and I managed to get out from under. When I came to the surface I thought I could make it to the other side of the river, but after a few strokes I was so exhausted I knew I couldn't. I turned back and grabbed at some floating wood. By that time the river was filled with floating débris and people struggling in the water. I managed to hang on a chair until I was picked up and pulled aboard a small boat."

Miss Jennie Turbov, 1939 Grove avenue, Berwyn:

"Three other girls and myself went aboard the Eastland together. We found seats on the river side of an outside deck. When the boat first started to tip the only thing I noticed was that a man sitting behind us seemed to be pushing his chair against the back of mine. I was annoyed, not realizing he couldn't help it. Then without any warning we were all thrown against the rail and knew that the boat was going over.

"Without thinking, I stood up and jumped into the water. I remember one of the girls screamed at me, 'Jennie, don't jump!' I guess I lost consciousness as soon as I was in the water. The next thing I remember was holding on with all my strength to a man's feet. I was under water, and the man tried to kick me loose, but I didn't let go. Then I lost my senses again and I don't remember anything else until I was ashore with a blanket wrapped around me. I was taken to the Iroquois hospital and later driven home. One of the other girls in my party was saved, but two of them were lost."

William H. Cawnt, 337 North Brainard avenue, La Grange:

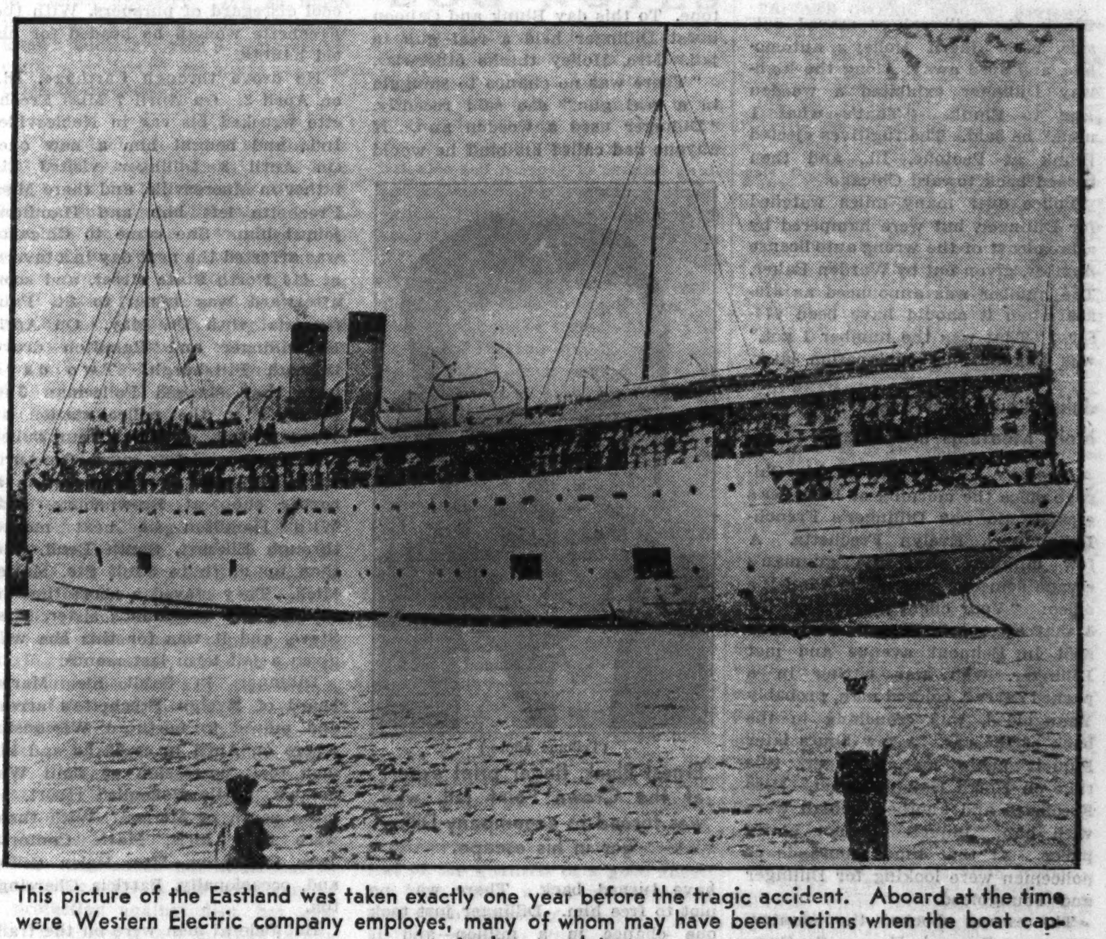
"I had horrible nightmares for months after the Eastland disaster, and it wasn't until about a year ago that I felt equal to braving a boat trip. I finally decided to take a trip on the Hudson river, and I'll admit it took me a while to get up enough courage to go aboard the boat. I enjoyed the trip, though, and I don't think I will ever have the old fear of traveling on water again. The day of the Eastland tragedy is very clear in my mind.

"When I got on the boat the decks and inside rooms were crowded. I went up a stairway and out onto the open part of the deck at the stern. I remember two other men were standing near me. When the boat started to turn over we all three grabbed an iron post. I knew we were in a dangerous place and decided to get away from there. I managed to reach the stairway but was thrown down the stairs into the inside cabin. The water was coming in fast, but I managed to climb back along the stair railing out into the open again. By that time I was in the water, but I managed to keep my head above the surface and to hang to the railing until someone above pulled me up to the side of the boat that was out of the water.

"My clothes were in rags and blood was streaming down my face from several jagged cuts. I was dazed, but managed to walk along the side of the boat to a tug which took a group of us to the dock. I don't remember how I got there, but I was taken to one of the big loop hotels near by. I wanted to telephone my wife, but there were long lines of people waiting for each telephone. A man told me to sit down and said he would stand in line for me."

Six Are Indicted by the Government

The federal government conducted an investigation to determine the cause of the capsizing. Six officials of the steamship line, including the captain of the Eastland, Harry Pederson, were indicted by a federal grand jury. The case was dropped, however, following a hearing in Grand Rapids before Federal Judge Sessions, who ruled that because the Eastland was tied to a dock in the Chicago river at the time of the accident, the government had no jurisdiction. At this hearing the defense produced evidence purporting to show that wooden pilings left in the river following the construction of a street car tunnel had caused the capsizing.



This picture of the Eastland was taken exactly one year before the tragic accident. Aboard at the time were Western Electric company employes, many of whom may have been victims when the boat capsized a year later.

The U. S. S. Wilmette, naval reserve training ship, as it appears today. The naval reserve organization bought the hull of the Eastland for $42,000 and rebuilt the ship completely. It is considered one of the finest naval training vessels in the service.

Damage suits totaling $8,000,000 were filed against the steamship owners, the city, and various other defendants, but none of the plaintifs collected anything. The hull of the Eastland was sold to the Illinois naval reserve for $42,000. Of this amount $38,000 went to the company which salvaged the overturned ship. The remainder went for court costs. A special federal master in admiralty ruled that the owners were not responsible beyond the value of the hull, which left nothing for those who had filed damage suits.

Under the direction of Capt. William A. Evers, commandant of this naval reserve district, the old Eastland was completely rebuilt as a naval training vessel. It was renamed the U. S. S. Wilmette. This ship is today one of the finest naval training vessels in the service. It is permanently berthed at the naval armory dock at the foot of Randolph street and is used each summer for training cruises of the naval reserve.

Twenty years ago one man bore the brunt of a mighty force of unfavorable comment and publicity directed at the owners and operators of the Eastland. He was the captain of the vessel, Harry Pederson. He was at his post on the bridge when the ship went over. He remained aboard the overturned ship, directing and assisting in rescue work, until members of the hysterical crowd on the dock attempted to mob him. It was necessary for a police escort to get him away.

Captain Absolved of Any Blame

Time has completely changed the public attitude toward this misjudged man. None of the investigations held him responsible for the tragedy. Today he lives in Chicago in semi-retirement. He is employed from time to time by the steamboat inspection service of the government in adjusting compasses and does other odd jobs of a maritime nature.

Captain Pederson prefers, naturally, to forget the Eastland and all the name implies.

"The investigation showed," he said recently, "that pilings left in the river caused the accident. The ship had the approval of the steamboat inspectors and was licensed to carry the number of passengers aboard her that day."

Never before in the city's history had the authorities, the relief organizations, and the citizenry as a whole faced such a challenge as the capsizing of the Eastland presented. How the challenge was met is a story of which all who took part may be proud. Outstanding parts were played that day and the days succeeding by the city's police and fire departments, the American Red Cross, the Western Electric company, and by many other heroes and heroines whose names were unrecorded.

In its final published report the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross summed up the facts of the disaster succinctly as follows:

"The capsizing of the lake passenger steamship Eastland, which caused the deaths of 812 persons, occurred in the Chicago river at the Clark street bridge, in the very heart of the city of Chicago, about 7:20 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, July 24, 1915.

"The boat was one of four which the employés of the Western Electric company had chartered to carry 7,000 men, women, and children on an annual outing to Michigan City, Ind. The Eastland was to have left the dock at 7:30 o'clock and was to have

Records Shed New Light on Dillinger Assassination

So Dillinger remained at Crown Point. Meanwhile, he appeared in court once or twice, and prepared to offer an alibi against the O'Malley slaying. His lawyers were Piquett and Joseph Ryan of Indianapolis. They were among the few visitors allowed Dillinger in jail.

The complete list of visitors, as compiled by federal agents, follows:

Feb. 1—Louis Piquett.

Feb. 3—Joseph Ryan and Hubert Dillinger, John's half brother.

Feb. 13—Ryan.

Feb. 15—Piquett and Arthur O'Leary, his investigator.

Feb. 16—Piquett and Evelyn Frechette, Dillinger's girl.

Feb. 19—Piquett and Meyer Bogue, described as a witness.

All visitors were searched. Sherif Holley said she herself searched the Frechette girl, even removing all the latter's clothing.

Saturday morning, March 3, came around. In nine days Dillinger would go on trial. Prisoners, among them Dillinger, were admitted to the exercising corridor by Sam Cahoon, 64 years old, turnkey and handyman, in previous years not an employé but an occasional inmate of the jail. Suddenly things began happening.

Dillinger leaped through a small opening, and jabbed Cahoon with what the turnkey later said was a .380 caliber automatic. He ordered Cahoon to open certain doors. Cahoon obeyed. He next commanded him to summon Ernest Blunk, jail fingerprint expert, and an appointee of Judge Murray, upstairs. Here Cahoon rebelled. "You'll have to kill me, John," he mumbled. Dillinger patted him kindly. "I wouldn't hurt you," he said. Dillinger himself called Blunk. Blunk looked at Dillinger's gun, and he, too, swears it was real, and forthwith became pliable. He called Warden Lew Baker upstairs. Then Dillinger locked up Baker and Cahoon, ordered Herbert Youngblood, Negro murder suspect, to follow him, and compelled Blunk to come along.

Downstairs Dillinger easily cowed several more jail employes and with Youngblood stole two machine guns from the jail office. Kidnaping Blunk, the jailbreakers moved outside, stole Sherif Holley's automobile, and sped away. Along the highway Dillinger exhibited a wooden gun to Blunk. "That's what I used," he said. The fugitives ejected Blunk at Peotone, Ill., and then turned back toward Chicago.

Police over many miles watched for Dillinger, but were hampered by a broadcast of the wrong auto license number, given out by Warden Baker. The number was announced as 679-929 when it should have been 674-549. "That was the number I got," was Baker's only explanation later.

John, Louis, and Evelyn Hold Meetings in Chicago

Attorney Piquett was in his Chicago office the morning of Dillinger's escape. So was Dillinger's French-Indian girl, Evelyn Frechette. A few minutes after the gunman's escape someone telephoned Piquett's office: "Your client got away." At 4 that afternoon Piquett went to a spot in Belmont avenue and met Dillinger, who was sitting in a parked car. A colored man, probably Youngblood, was crouching in the back of the car. A few hours later Piquett again met Dillinger, this time on North Halsted street. Miss Frechette and another woman were with him. Piquett did not notify police. At that time thousands of policemen were looking for Dillinger and Youngblood.

The escape shocked the country. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings in Washington called it disgraceful. U. S. Senator Arthur Robinson, Indiana, denounced the McNutt administration.

"Dillinger's escape," Robinson said, "can be directly attributed to the McNutt administration. For years neither party invoked the spoils system in state penal institutions, but the present administration has seen fit to disregard that custom —with a vengeance."

However, the McNutt administration saw the Crown Point scandal as a coverup for the Michigan City affair, and promptly transferred the pressure there. Assistant Attorney General Ed Barce was assigned to clean up the mess, and within a few days he was announcing that Dillinger had made a "large payoff" to gain freedom. Investigators crowded Crown Point from everywhere, among them Sergt. Martin Zarkovich, of East Chicago, who appeared first on the scene March 18.

Handyman Cahoon and Fingerprint Expert Blunk caught the initial roar of the storm. They were formally accused of aiding Dillinger to escape. In May Blunk was tried by Judge Maurice Crites and acquitted. Charges against Cahoon were dropped the next day.

Meanwhile, like a dirty rain the rumors fell. Personalities were not spared. The most insistent ones related that a group of men from Chicago, East Chicago and Lake county met several times during February to arrange Dillinger's delivery from jail, the price to be $6,500. Three meeting places were cited; a "saloon" in East Chicago, a tavern in Crown Point, and the White Star barbecue stand, five miles north of Crown Point. The barbecue stand meeting seemingly was disproved by Mrs. Terry Garland, owner, who repudiated her husband's tentative verification. The Crown Point tavern conference seemed mythical, too.

The reports pointing toward the "saloon" in East Chicago endured longer, and bore a more villainous taint. It was while the conspirators were meeting there, according to the rumors, that the two East Chicago policemen, O'Brien and Mulvihill, dropped in for a moment. They noticed the plotters, the rumors said, but probably suspected nothing. In any event they were slain three months later.

Assistant Attorney General Barce; United States Attorney James R. Fleming, of Fort Wayne; Judge Murray, and the grand jury looked into the insinuations. All tried to find out whether Dillinger used a real gun or a wooden one, such as he showed Blunk en route to Peotone. To this day Blunk and Cahoon insist Dillinger held a real gun in jail. Mrs. Holley thinks otherwise.

"There was no chance to smuggle in a real gun," she said recently. "Dillinger used a wooden gun. If anyone had called his bluff he would have turned back. There was no plot to free him. Dillinger just took one chance in a million—and it worked."

Federal Men and Mrs. Holley Disagree About Gun

The government, however, inclines toward the "real gun" belief, adding that Dillinger may have carried two —a bona fide pistol and a wooden one. Federal men suspect the Frechette girl smuggled a weapon to Dillinger, but Mrs. Holley says "No," and the government has high regard for her honesty. They know she was strict against allowing Dillinger too many visitors, and that she strongly opposed the visit of Meyer Bogue with Attorney Piquett on Feb. 19. As the records show, they were Dillinger's last visitors.

Piquett, it is said, represented Bogue as an alibi witness for Dillinger. This did not impress Mrs. Holley. Piquett then appealed to Prosecutor Estill, with similar results. He then obtained a written order from Judge Murray. Still Mrs. Holley would not admit Bogue. Finally Warden Baker, it is said, interceded, saying: "It would be all right," that he would stand by while Piquett and Bogue talked with Dillinger, and that a screen would separate them anyway. Only then did the woman sherif consent.

The grand jury investigated the Bogue-Piquett visit, and is said to have asked Judge Murray why he signed an order for Bogue.

"I thought there was no harm in that so long as Bogue was searched and somebody was watching and there was a screen between him and Dillinger," the judge reputedly explained.

"Unfortunately, judge, there was no screen between them," a juror supposedly replied.

Meanwhile Dillinger and his Negro companion, Youngblood, separated in Chicago. Dillinger rejoined Hamilton and headed for St. Paul. Youngblood moved on to Port Huron, Mich., where on March 16 he was slain in a gun fight in which Undersherif Charles Cavanaugh was killed and Deputy Howard Lohr wounded.

Dillinger and Hamilton, en route to St. Paul, paused to steal $52,344 from the First National bank in Mason City, Ia., on March 13. Both were wounded in the shoulder during this robbery. They hurried to St. Paul and on March 15 received medical treatment from Dr. N. G. Mortensen, St. Paul city health officer. Dr. Mortensen did not report their wounds, the law there not requiring such reports, and for this was criticized. He explained, however, he did not know the men were Dillinger and Hamilton until several days later when he saw their pictures in the newspapers.

In St. Paul Dillinger formed a new gang, enlisting such desperadoes as Van Meter, Tommy Carroll, and Lester Gillis, better known as "Baby Face" Nelson. Dillinger's sweetheart, Evelyn Frechette, was with him. About this time Dillinger's old pals, arrested with him at Tucson the previous January, were faring sadly in Lima, O., for the murder of Sherif Sarber. Pierpont and Makley were sentenced to the electric chair; Clark was given life imprisonment. Makley was killed later in an attempted prison break, thus beating the chair. Pierpont was eventually electrocuted.

Dillinger posed as Carl T. Hellman and Evelyn Frechette posed as his wife. They lived in a good residential neighborhood until March 31 when federal men and police tried to trap them and Van Meter. The three shot their way out but Dillinger again was wounded.

A Doctor Gives Professional Aid and Later Is Convicted

Medical attention was received from Dr. Clayton E. May, of Minneapolis, through the interest of Eugene Green, a hoodlum. Green was to get $500 for this, but before he could collect he was shot by federal agents. This was on April 3. He died April 11. Later Dr. May; his nurse, Mrs. Augusta Salt; Mrs. Beth Green, widow of Eugene, and Miss Frechette were tried for harboring Dillinger. Attorney Piquett journeyed to St. Paul to represent Evelyn, but she, Dr. May and Mrs. Green were convicted. Mrs. Salt was freed. The doctor and Evelyn drew two year prison terms and $1,000 fines. Mrs. Green got 15 months on a plea.

The March 31 trap drove Dillinger out of St. Paul. Yet he showed a cool disregard of pursuers. With the Frechette woman he headed for his old haunts.

He drove through Carthage, Ill., on April 2. On April 7 Miss Frechette wrecked his car in Noblesville, Ind., and bought him a new one. On April 8 Dillinger visited his father in Mooresville, and there Miss Frechette left him and Hamilton joined him. She came to Chicago, was arrested the next day in a tavern at 416 North State street, and soon afterward was taken to St. Paul for trial with Dr. May. On April 10 Dillinger and Hamilton drove through Pittsburgh. Two days later they slugged Policeman Jud Pittinger in the police station at Warsaw, Ind., and stole four bullet proof vests and two guns. On April 13 Dillinger sat for a haircut in a barber shop at Brownsburg, Ind. With Hamilton he next moved through Elkhart, South Bend, and then up north to Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. They stayed a short time in the home of Hamilton's sister, Mrs. Steve, and it was for this she was given a jail term last month.

Dillinger, in Sault Ste. Marie, heard of Evelyn Frechette's arrest and moved to northern Wisconsin, where on April 19 or 20 he and his mob took possession of Emil Wanetka's "Little Bohemia" resort, 13 miles south of Mercer. With them were their girls, Marie Conforti, Jean Crompton, Mrs. Helen Gillis, and, occasionally, Patricia Cherrington.

But federal men were on the trail, and late on the night of April 22 closed in on the resort. Inside all was gaiety. Closer the "G" men moved. In command was Melvin Purvis, head of the justice department in Chicago. The trap seemed inescapable. But something happened. Maybe it was the jitters.

John Dillinger as he appeared following his capture in Tucson, Ariz. He fought vainly against being extradited to Indiana.

An automobile left the resort grounds. Federal men ordered the driver to halt. He failed. The government men fired. Their shots struck three innocent men, killing Gillis, were given suspended sentences by Federal Judge Patrick Stone for harboring Dillinger at the "Little Bohemia" resort. Probation was probably granted in hopes the girls would rejoin their sweethearts and that the latter could then be seized. The girls did this, Miss Conforti meeting Van Meter, Miss Crompton reuniting with Carroll, and Mrs. Gillis rejoining "Baby Face" Nelson.

Jean Crompton's association with Carroll lasted two weeks. On June 7 they were trapped at Waterloo, Ia. Carroll was killed by Policemen Emil Steffen and P. E. Walker, and Jean a week later was in prison for violation of parole.

The killing of Carroll showed the temper of law authorities. They were out to "shoot to kill." Many officials, however, hoped to get Dillinger alive. Among them was Capt. Stege, although neither he nor his men expected to take unnecessary chances. Some Indiana officers hoped to take the desperado alive Eugene Boisoneau, CCC specialist, and wounding John Morris, CCC chef, and John Hoffman, oil station attendant.

The gunfire warned Dillinger inside of the trap and enabled him and his gunmen to shoot their way out and to freedom. One of the outlaws, Nelson, cornered a mile away, avoided embarrassment by killing W. Carter Baum, federal agent, and wounding J. G. Newman, another agent, and Carl C. Christensen, a Spider Lake constable. The raiders did manage to arrest the Conforti, Crompton and Gillis girls.

The Mysterious Murders of O'Brien and Mulvihill

Dillinger and his men were now pretty well scattered and for a while the situation remained quiet. Then near midnight May 24, Policemen O'Brien and Mulvihill of East Chicago were murdered in their police car on the old Gary macadam road in the southeast and swampy section of East Chicago. Their murder has never been solved. It is known they drove up to a "suspicious" car and were assassinated. Here rumors again cropped out, and had them entering "the saloon" in East Chicago one night in February and seeing a group of men plotting to deliver Dillinger from jail. The story went that the conspirators feared O'Brien and Mulvihill had "seen too much" and accordingly had decreed their death. Their murder has always been charged to Dillingerites—but that is as far as the mystery goes.

The Dillinger scene shifted to Madison, Wis., the next day when the gang girls, Conforti, Crompton and —and some didn't. Capt. Stege has been quoted as saying that some people had suggested to him it would be better to kill Dillinger on sight.

Harry Pierpont, executed by the state of Ohio for the murder of Sherif Jess Sarber.

Meanwhile, everybody from Attorney General Cummings in Washington down to the smallest village constable was out to get Dillinger. On June 23, through special legislation, the federal government offered $10,000 in rewards for Dillinger and $5,000 for Nelson. Nelson had killed Agent Baum. In addition Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Minnesota offered $1,000 rewards each for Dillinger.

Dillinger returned to Chicago after the Wisconsin affair and communicated with Attorney Piquett. Early in June he and Van Meter hid out in the Probasco home and allowed Drs. Wilhelm Loeser and Harold B. Cassidy to operate on their faces and their finger tips, the latter to make them fingerprint-proof. But facial operations and other necessities cost money, and so on June 30 Dillinger and four companions raided the Merchants' National bank at South Bend, Ind., stole $29,890, killed Policeman Howard Wagner and wounded Delos M. Coen, cashier; Perry G. Stahley, vice president, and Jacob Solomon, a bystander.

John Whiles Away Time at Movies and Ball Games

Back to Chicago the desperadoes came and scattered on the north side. Dillinger moved freely about, and even appeared once or twice at the Cubs ball park. Once he stood in Clark street near Fullerton avenue and waved to a friend passing in a car. Frequently he went to movies. Also he read the papers telling of the search for him. From them he learned July 6 of the sentencing of Patricia Cherrington at Madison, Wis., to two years in federal prison because she had appeared at the "Little Bohemia" resort with his gang just before the April 22 fiasco. He also learned of the arrest in Minneapolis earlier of Pat Reilly, former St. Paul baseball mascot, for similar complicity. In September Reilly received a 21 month sentence and $2,500 fine for that endeavor.

While hiding in Chicago Dillinger made contacts independently to leave the city. Police investigation disclosed that he had made arrangements with a man identified as Joseph G. to be taken by car to Mexico. It had long been the Hoosier's hope to accumulate $100,000 and live south of the Rio Grande in security. Under this plan, made by Dillinger alone, without the knowledge of any one else but Joseph G., the latter's wife, daughter, and chauffeur were to drive him to Mexico via Denver and San Francisco. Dillinger was to pose as Mrs. G.'s son. The price was to be $10,000—$3,500 to be paid at the beginning of the trip and $6,500 at the end. The trip was to start July 23.

The Stage Is Set for Dillinger's Final Scene

For at least a week prior, perhaps longer, Dillinger had been a frequent caller if not a roomer in an apartment at 2420 North Halsted street, rented by Mrs. Anna Sage, alias Miller. With him most of the time was Polly Hamilton Keele, friend of Mrs. Sage and former wife of Policeman Roy Keele of Gary.

Mrs. Sage and Mrs. Keele had known each other for years. As far back as 1923 Mrs. Sage had operated a disorderly house in Gary and was known as "Katie from the Kostur hotel." She also operated a similar place in East Chicago. Her houses were raided several times and she was fined $60 in 1930. Other criminal actions were taken against her in February, 1931, and November, 1931, but court records show no disposition of those matters. Also the federal government began proceedings to deport her to Rumania. Records reveal two pardons for Mrs. Sage signed by former Gov. Leslie in 1932. The deportation proceedings may still be pending or they may have been wiped out by the pardons—or by other considerations directly connected with Dillinger.

Mrs. Sage came to be directly linked with Dillinger in July, 1934. So did Polly Keele. So did Sergt. Zarkovich. The East Chicago sergeant first met the "madame" in East Chicago while she was operating a disorderly house there many years before. The two, it is said, became friends. They had their pictures taken together, and Zarkovich's former wife, who divorced him 14 years ago, last year charged him with having been "too friendly" with Mrs. Sage.

John Sees a Gangster Movie with His Woman Friends

Just how Dillinger established contact with Mrs. Sage or Polly Keele has never been disclosed. Mrs. Sage said she knew him only as "Mr. Lawrence," and did not know his true identity. Chicago police say Dillinger may have first met Mrs. Sage in a visit to her place of business in Gary in 1923, a year before he went to prison.

In any event, Dillinger spent much time in Mrs. Sage's Halsted street apartment with Mrs. Keele, and on the night of July 22 accompanied the two women to the Biograph theater at 2433 Lincoln avenue.

It was a Sunday. That evening Sergt. Zarkovich, Capt. Timothy O'Neil, and four other policemen from East Chicago, Ind., came to Chicago. They hurried to the office of Agent Purvis, and told him they believed Dillinger would attend the Biograph theater that night. They did not notify Capt. Stege, of the Chicago police. Instead, it is understood, they struck a bargain with the federal men that they, the Indiana policemen, would receive what cash rewards resulted from killing Dillinger, and the federal men would take the glory. As the situation stood, the federal men could not accept rewards —and they needed glory to make up for previous blunders.

That night, at 10:40 o'clock, Dillinger left the Biograph theater, Mrs. Sage on one side of him and Polly Keele on the other. As they reached an alley, near the theater, the East Chicago police and the government men closed on him. What happened, happened quickly. Somebody stepped up to Dillinger, called out "John," and somebody fired two bullets just beneath his heart—and somebody in back of him sent a bullet through the back of his neck.

Government Agent Gives "Official" Version of Killing

There wasn't much ceremony about it. Later, Purvis announced Dillinger had resisted arrest, and his death was necessary to save his would be captors' own lives. The Dillinger slaying made page 1 all over the world, and all the glory went to the federal men. Then the East Chicago policemen mumbled a few complaints.

"It was a mistake," Capt. O'Neil complained, "to let Purvis handle the publicity." Little by little the story unfolded, that it was the East Chicago policemen who had furnished the information leading to Dillinger's finish, and along with the story went reports that Sergt. Zarkovich probably was one of the men who had a hand in the actual slaying of the outlaw.

Eventually Capt. O'Neil and Sergt. Zarkovich received $5,000 reward from the government and kind words from Attorney General Cummings, and the federal men kept much of the initial glory.

Federal Men Round Up All Who Harbored Dilllinger

Just what person or persons "put Dillinger on the spot" is a secret locked up in the breasts and records of the East Chicago police and the federal operatives. Mrs. Sage, known familiarly as the "woman in red" because of the dress she wore at Dillinger's death, is suspected of or credited with that deed. Mrs. Keele denies she did it. For several days after the slaying both women were protected by the government, and may still be. Mrs. Keele is thought to be in Chicago, and Mrs. Sage in Gary.

The government continued going after those men and women who had worked with Dillinger, or who had sheltered and assisted him. Casualties resulted. Five days after Dillinger's assassination, James Probasco, in whose home Dillinger underwent a facial operation, leaped or fell to his death from the nineteenth floor offices of the department of justice at 208 South Clark street. Homer Van Meter was slain in a trap at St. Paul Sept. 22. On the same day Charles Makley was fatally wounded when he and Pierpont attempted a toy gun escape from prison at Columbus, O., to foil execution. Two months later—Nov. 27—Federal Agents Samuel P. Cowley and Herman E. Hollis were slain in a gun fight at Barrington, Ill., with "Baby Face" Nelson, who also was fatally wounded. On Dec. 17, police and agents arrested Joe Burns in Chicago. He was one of the men who escaped Michigan City prison.

In between these times, of course, judicial punishments on Dillinger gang accomplices were being meted out. Pierpont was executed Oct. 17 at Columbus prison, and just before Christmas Miss Conforti was sentenced to a year and a day at Duluth, Minn., for harboring Van Meter. A similar sentence was imposed there on Mrs. Marie McCarthy. Thomas Kirwin received two years and a $10,000 fine, and William A. Gray 18 months and a $5,000 fine.

All told Dillinger cost society approximately $1,000,000. He caused, directly or indirectly, twenty deaths. He caused a score of people to be sent to jail or to prison. His dozen or so bank robberies netted him $302,739. In addition, the government, various states and cities spent $595,000 in prosecutions and investigations arising from his suspected or actual depredations.

Eastland Disaster Recalled

been followed at half-hour intervals by other steamers.

"The excursionists began to arrive at the dock as early as 6 o'clock in the morning, wishing to sail on the first boat and make the day as long as possible. As soon as the gates were thrown open a solid line of people, two abreast, moved upon the boat, and by 7:10 o'clock there were approximately 2,500 persons aboard.

"The Indiana Transportation company, which furnished the boats for the excursionists, had announced that if the boat was loaded before the hour set for sailing she would not wait until 7:30. When the boat was filled, preparations were made to sail at once. One line had been cast off and the boat was beginning to swing into the stream.

"The 2,500 or more passengers, largely women and children, were in high spirits. The children were romping as well as they could on decks so crowded that one could scarcely walk, and the older ones were waving and shouting to their friends who were boarding the other boats.

"About 7:10 o'clock the boat listed slowly over away from the dock, swayed back almost to an even keel, then began to list again and slowly turned over and lay flat on her port side in some eighteen feet of water, with the keel only a few feet from the dock.

"At first the people thought there was nothing unusual about the movement of the boat. It was not until the second listing had progressed so far as to overturn a refrigerator that the crowd became alarmed.

"Then the cheers and wavings and shouts of glee gave way to screams of terror and a mad panic ensued. A number who were on the starboard side of the boat, next the dock, scrambled ashore or dropped into the water and were pulled out by rescuers, for the boat capsized slowly.

"Several hundred, gathered on the upper or hurricane deck, were spilled overboard into the river and swam ashore or were saved by rescuers.

"But many of the hundreds between decks were penned in and drowned or were crushed to death. Some of the imprisoned held on until holes were cut in the side of the boat which remained above water and were taken out alive, but terribly shocked by the horror. Hundreds were dead when rescuers finally reached them.

"News of the tragedy spread rapidly. The fire and police departments were called to the scene; many river boats quickly came to help in the rescue work; scores of volunteer rescuers plunged into the work, and the task of taking the passengers from the boat and from the water, where they had leaped or had been thrown, went on for hours. Some 1,700 reached shore alive, while the dead were being laid in windrows along the bank.

"The tally of the dead finally reached 812, with a considerable list of injured, some of whom died later.

"The people of Chicago came forward at once to the relief of those who had been bereaved. Entire families had been lost. Parents had died, leaving a number of children. Sons and daughters had been drowned, leaving parents childless. In other families the breadwinners had perished, leaving a number of dependents. There were funeral expenses and doctor bills to be met.

"Such was the situation when the American Red Cross was called upon to take charge of the relief work, prevent suffering for want of necessities of life among the survivors, see that the dead were given suitable burial, and adjust living conditions for the hundreds of women and children left without their natural protectors."

Another mute but eloquent summary of the tragedy was contained in the official report of the coroner's office, published about two months after the accident. The report tabulated the victims by sex, nationality, and civil condition as follows:

Sex

Female	451	Male	361

Nationality

German	212	Hungarian	8
Bohemian	148	Scotch	7
American	117	Canadian	5
Polish	80	French	2
Austrian	49	Hollanders	2
Swedish	41	Swiss	2
Irish	40	Greek	1
Norwegian	17	Lithuanian	1
Italian	16	Not ascertained	24
English	14		—
Danish	13
Russian	13	Total	812

Civil Condition

Single	573	Divorced	1
Married	226	Not ascertained	5
Widow	5
Widower	2

The tabulation by ages showed that 251 of the victims—nearly one-third—were between the ages of 20 and 25. Fifty-two were less than 10 years old and 295 less than 20.

The relief work, although a gigantic task, was organized quickly and completed in an amazingly short length of time. The burden fell chiefly on the Red Cross, but a major share of the expense and work was immediately assumed by the Western Electric company. The company appropriated more than $100,000 for immediate cash relief, and its representatives worked tirelessly in coöperation with the Red Cross. The Red Cross expended within a few months more than $300,000, a fund raised by popular subscription.

Sculptures Chinese Life

Chicago Woman Models Lowly

By MARCIA WINN

OUT on the rolling plains near Sioux City, Ia., a brown-eyed little girl stood in the snow and critically eyed a five-foot snow man which she had just completed.

His round head wobbled on a curved neck, his ears encroached on territory traditionally reserved for his nose, his arms were too thin and his legs were too fat, but Lucile Swan was oblivious to all such defects, for in this snow man the child, today a sculptress internationally known for her work in interpreting Chinese life in bronze, had achieved her first creative product.

"I don't know how I happened to make that snow man," mused Miss Swan, her long white hands tightly interlocked, as she stopped in Chicago to visit her parents before returning to China, "but he gave me my first feeling of form, and I have never forgotten it."

"Curiously enough," she added, "whereas I made that first snow man as large a creature as possible, I now try to make my pieces as small as possible."

That she is successful in making her sculpture diminutive is shown in the fact that her largest statuette is two feet tall, while her smallest is six inches. In making these exquisite miniatures, decorative and full of detail, she is catering, she says, to the modern trend toward small apartments and homes, in which a life-size bust is out of place.

The Sioux City snow man, however, seemed for a while to mark the young artist's first and last venture into sculpture, for as a child she was more interested in water colors and sketching. A sudden move to Chicago, and the proximity of the Art institute, changed her mind.

"I entered the modeling class," she recalled, "and the minute I touched clay I knew what I wanted to be."

Today she is the only sculptor in Peking and the only sculptress in all of China. Celebrated philosophers, actors, beauties, and princes have had her execute their "portraits" in bronze, yet six years ago she was merely one of many sculptors infesting Greenwich village, and she modeled only children's heads and decorative garden pieces.

Then, with a friend, she decided to make a 'round-the-world tour; no novelty to her, as, with her painter husband, she had wandered from artist colony to artist colony the world over. They were to have stopped three weeks in Peking, but the present trip to America is the first time she has left China since "stopping" there six years ago.

She likes the Chinese serenity of expression and the rounded contours of the Chinese head. Most of all, she says, she likes the Chinese peasant class, from which she draws most of her models. For these she goes to the People's park in Peking, where she selects men from the wrestlers, jugglers, and sword dancers gathered there to entertain the common people.

In spite of the comparatively high wages paid to models, a female model is almost unheard of in China, even though she might make as much by modeling for one hour as she would scrubbing floors for ten hours. Consequently Miss Swan is duly proud of "A Girl," her one nude statuette.

Among her more celebrated "portraits" is a bronze bust of the young wife of Gen. Linson Dzau, which has drawn wide praise for the lifelike quality of the face and the beauty of the hands. Another is a statuette of Mei Lang-fang, female impersonator, who is said to be China's most prominent actor.

"The first time I saw him act," said Miss Swan, "I thought him the most beautiful woman in the world."

With Spotty, a near-fox-terrier, and his son, Tung Shi, or "Curio," Miss Swan occupies the former palace of a Mongolian princess in Peking. She works from 9 to 1 daily, does her own plaster casting, and has her bronzes cast outside.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Dark colored Scotties and West Highland white terriers make an interesting dog quartet. The Scottie is one of the most popular breeds.

Terriers from Scotland

IF THE West Highland white terrier, a product of bonnie Scotland, finds himself pictured continuously in advertisments as an "attention getter," it is possible that this breed of terrier may be given quite a push toward popularity such as the Scottie received in recent years. One has only to remember how the perky little Scotties, with heads cocked to one side, ears up, were used on thousands of pieces of advertising a few years ago to realize how valuable this sort of thing is to a breed. When we asked the head of a Scottish terrier club to explain some of the reasons for the breed's national popularity, he mentioned the fact that illustrations of attractive little Scotties had been used all over the country to advertise a certain widely used product. Everywhere you went you could see one of these attractive dogs looking at you. The result was that more people became Scottie conscious than ever before. This impetus behind the breed, plus widely read detective stories in which there was a Scottie, undoubtedly helped the little Scotch dog on his way to popularity. However, it goes without saying that the Scottie has many appealing qualities as a home and a companion dog, or this free advertising would not have been of much value.

Now the game, hardy little West Highland white may be the recipient of some of the same treatment in advertising that the Scottie was given. This white terrier is a sturdy fellow, game to the core, and makes a dandy companion. He comes of somewhat the same ancestry as the Skye terrier, the cairn, and the Scottie. The ideal of the breed calls for a dog weighing between 15 and 19 pounds. That is what you might call a handy size for the small home. Turn one of these little terriers loose on a country place and you need worry no more about vermin, because this white terrier of Scotland knows his way around when it comes to waging war on rats and other small animals of that type. He has the short legs and body conformation required of dogs that can squeeze into small openings. About the only way you can fault a good West Highland white is to point out that, with fairly short legs and a longish coat, he can get dirty easily. But today, with a cake of chalk plus a brush available to all of us who own white dogs, it isn't much of a trick to clean up one of them in a few minutes.

There is one feature of the West Highland white that always has impressed me. I like what you might call his "honest" eye. This little terrier has a dark hazel eye and bushy eyebrows. He looks you right in the eye with forthright, piercing gaze that tells you he is a staunch kind of a character, ready to prove his sturdiness and pluck any minute.

The West Highland white is a fairly old breed. When we look into the history of the breed we find the Malcolm family of Poltalloch given credit for apparently starting a strain that has developed into our modern "whitey." These early dogs were cream colored, so it was logical to expect that eventually white dogs would be developed. We do know, however, that in 1846 the "Highland terrier" was being mentioned as one of the dogs of Scotland, so that many years ago somebody had affixed an enduring name to this fine little terrier that we know today as the West Highland white. And it's a good name, too, because most of us associate Scotland with highlands, and it is fitting that a dog should come out of Scotland with this association in its name.

As a rule the West Highland white lacks the nervousness that is found in some breeds of terriers. This is one of the commendable qualities of the breed which makes it well liked as a home dog and a pal of children.

THE QUESTION BOX

Knowing that you own a Sealyham terrier, and having just purchased one myself, I am writing to ask if you can give me the correct pronunciation of the name.

I have heard it pronounced as though it were spelled Sealyum, Sealyam, and as Sealyham. Which is correct?

Also, can you give me the correct standard height, weight, conformation, etc.? Thank you for your assistance.—C. F. I., Elgin, Ill.

I believe you will hear the name Sealyham more often pronounced "Sealyam" by owners of these dogs than in another way. You drop the letter "h" in the pronunciation and do not stress the flat "a" very much.

Space will not permit me to publish the complete standard of the breed. I suggest that you write Dr. Noel S. Young, Lake Forest, Ill., regarding the possibility of your securing a copy of the 1935 year book of the American Sealyham Terrier club. This booklet gives you a description and standard of points of the breed and contains many illustrations of champion Sealyham terriers, so that you can see how a real good Sealyham should look.

I am writing you in regard to training a Welsh springer spaniel. How do you go about keeping him from being gun shy, how to teach him to retrieve on land and in water? My hardest job is to keep him near me without a leash. The minute I take it off he runs away. The dog is about 12 months old. If you have any circulars covering my questions I will appreciate them.—V. W. H., North Harding avenue.

This department has no circulars on training gun dogs. Anyway, it takes more than a leaflet to tell a dog owner how to train his own dog.

If you believe you can train your spaniel you should purchase a book that covers all phases of spaniel breaking from the teaching of simple commands, such as "Hupp" or "Sit," to retrieving. Such a book is being suggested by mail. Even with this manual you will have your hands full, because your dog should have been started on his obedience training before this. The second suggestion is for you to contact the springer spaniel training class now being conducted near Aurora. There you will meet spaniel owners and see how owners are taught to train dogs, methods used, faults of dogs and how to correct them, etc. Write A. P. Moecher, 41 Island avenue, Aurora, about this class.

Someone informed me that a cross between a wire-haired fox terrier and a Sealyham was a standard breed. We had a two-year-old female of this breeding. Yesterday somebody poisoned this dog. My wife, who is an invalid, is terribly distressed. I am wondering if this breed is standard and where I could get a dog of that type. I am not anxious for a pedigreed dog, but I do want one that would be a fairly good watchdog with a pleasing disposition. If you know of anyone having this breed of dogs, will you please advise me?—H. L. W.

If a cross between the wire-haired terrier and the Sealyham terrier is a recognized standard breed it is news to this department. I am afraid you have been misinformed. Both the wire and the Sealy are standard breeds and have been bred as such for a considerable length of time, but cross breeding is neither one nor the other and naturally is not desired by breeders.

Possibly either a wire or a Sealyham or some other terrier will fill your requirements unless you want a short-haired dog. However, I believe you are making a mistake if you do not purchase a pure-bred dog of known ancestry. It's so much more fun to own a well-bred dog of known ancestry, with a pedigree, because a pedigreed dog gives you real pride of ownership.

I would like to know whether or not it is harmful to shave the hair off a dog in the summer time. I have a Spitz and collie mixture of a dog, and he seems so very warm in the hot weather. I would like to shave him, but am afraid to do so until I hear from you. I was told it was harmful to shave a dog and that they get some sort of skin rash. Is this so? Is a dog more comfortable if he is shaved? Thanks for answering these questions.—Miss M. N., La Grange, Ill.

You will find dog owners divided on the advisability of clipping (not shaving) a long-haired dog in the summer. A Chicago veterinarian advises the practice, believes clipping helps a dog to keep cool, and says he cannot see how it impairs the coat of a dog. I do not agree with this belief and never have clipped a dog during the summer. Flies are enough of a nuisance for any dog with a coat of hair without taking all of this off so that the insects can make life even more miserable for him. Moreover, I believe that a dog has a better coat and is better off if he wears what nature intended he should wear in summer.

Your dog sheds his undercoat in the spring. He is left with hair as a protection against flies, hot sun, etc. I believe it is a mistake to clip all of his hair in the spring or summer, but there are lots of dog owners who disagree and clip their dogs every summer.

But it is wise to assist nature by trimming and stripping a dog. Stripping will take out the dead hair, thin the coat, and relieve possible irritation and itching of his skin.

DOG NOTES

If the Midwest Retriever club, that was organized just a few weeks ago in Chicago, holds a field trial for retrievers next fall, as it plans to do, it should not only be a demonstration of good dog work on live game but also tell a story to upland game and waterfowl hunters about conservation. Millions of wounded birds are lost every year by hunters who do not use some kind of a trained retriever that is capable of picking up the trail of a wounded bird, following it to make a retrieve. A survey made in the middle west has shown that hunters not using hunting dogs shoot several times the amount of game that they bring home, because so many wing-tipped birds are lost.

The Midwest club has been organized to encourage the training and the use of Chesapeake Bay retrievers, Labrador retrievers, Irish water spaniels, golden retrievers, and flat-coated and curly-coated retrievers. These are the retriever breeds eligible for retriever trials. The club plans to hold a trial on live game this fall.

Any steady retriever that is under control, obedient, has a good nose, marks fallen game as a good dog should, and can retrieve both on land and in water will make a creditable showing in this trial. In other words, a retriever trial is simply a friendly test of the qualities of a good shooting dog, with a lot of interested sportsmen watching the fun. Any trained retriever that can be described as "good for hunting" can do a nice job in a trial, because a field trial dog does not have to know any special tricks. David P. Scobie, 208 South La Salle street, Chicago, is secretary of the Retriever club. Sportsmen who are interested in the club may obtain further information by addressing Mr. Scobie direct.

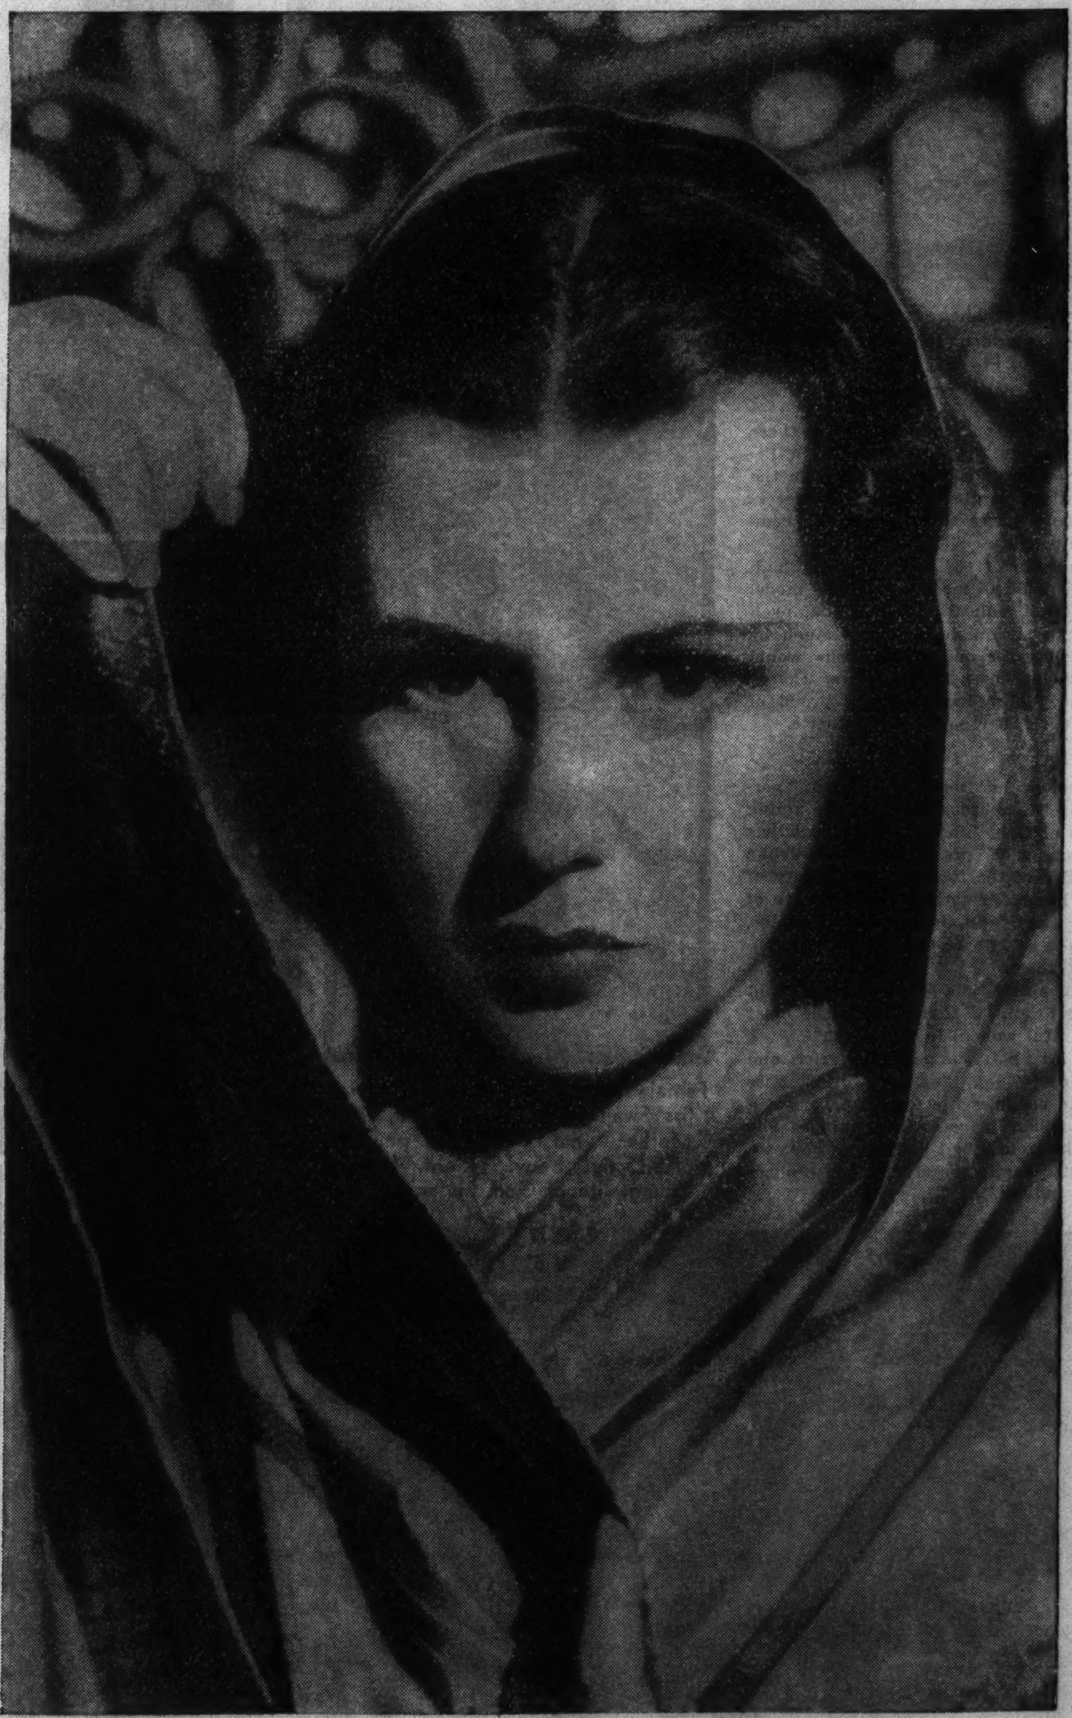
Opera and Concert Stars Open Fresh Vista for Films

Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald, who sang to sensational success in Victor Herbert's operetta, "Naughty Marietta."

At the left: Gladys Swarthout as she appears in the musical version of the Tully - Belasco play, "Rose of the Rancho."



Swarthout and Eddy Triumphs Presage New Movie Forms

By EDWARD MOORE

MUSICAL films have the call this season, and operatic and concert artists almost without number are establishing Hollywood addresses and telephone numbers for the summer. Out of the many, several are beginning to reach the top flight, and out of the several one may select Gladys Swarthout and Nelson Eddy for special glamor.

You who have met them face to face, or at least from the audience to the stage, will know why their voices have been picked out with extra interest by those who deal in sound reproduction. You who have not need only to glance at this page to realize that pictorial values have had their influence in the stellar ventures of these two artists.

Miss Swarthout has been appearing in a musical setting of "Rose of the Rancho," in its inception a play written by Richard Walton Tully and David Belasco and produced by Belasco, in which Frances Starr used to be the leading figure, dated just after the period of "The Girl of the Golden West." It now has been given songs to emphasize its romantic Spanish atmosphere, and as such it will be seen and heard on the screen with Miss Swarthout as Rose.

Miss Swarthout is a Chicago girl with a mezzo-soprano voice, a useful, reliable, and good-looking member of the Chicago Opera in winter and the Ravinia Opera in summer in other days. Lately she has been singing in the Metropolitan Opera in New York, attaining high popularity there, and in her spare time going on a series of radio broadcasts in which famous operas and operettas were transmitted in condensed form. Her success in these was so great that the films became the next logical step.

Mr. Eddy a few seasons ago was a concert baritone. Soon he became a famous concert baritone, for he possessed the gift of infusing romance into whatever he was singing, and the audiences responded to it, as audiences always have and always will. Young, alert, good-looking, with a gracious manner and ready wit, he had everything the musical stage calls for. Success knocked loudly at his door, and he was ready.

You will see him on this page in two different guises. The one below represents him as you would see him in an afternoon concert—in other words, in real life. The upper one pictures him as he appears with Jeanette MacDonald in Victor Herbert's masterpiece of melody, "Naughty Marietta," the film in which he is now being known by millions where thousands knew him before. Miss Swarthout likewise is presented in her private and professional semblances.

These are persons whose voices and talents are opening up new possibilities to the films. There would seem to be a fascinating prospect, and not so far away, either. Sooner or later there probably will be a new art form, something that is not an arranged play nor a reproduced opera, something that can be done only on the films, their vast resources combined with music to make something new and altogether entrancing.

As a matter of fact, already there have been several starts in that direction. The technicians have been doing something for Miss Swarthout that rates as a radical departure in sound recording. In detail, it consists of using a new microphone in conjunction with the former type, and in consequence a new technic of volume control.

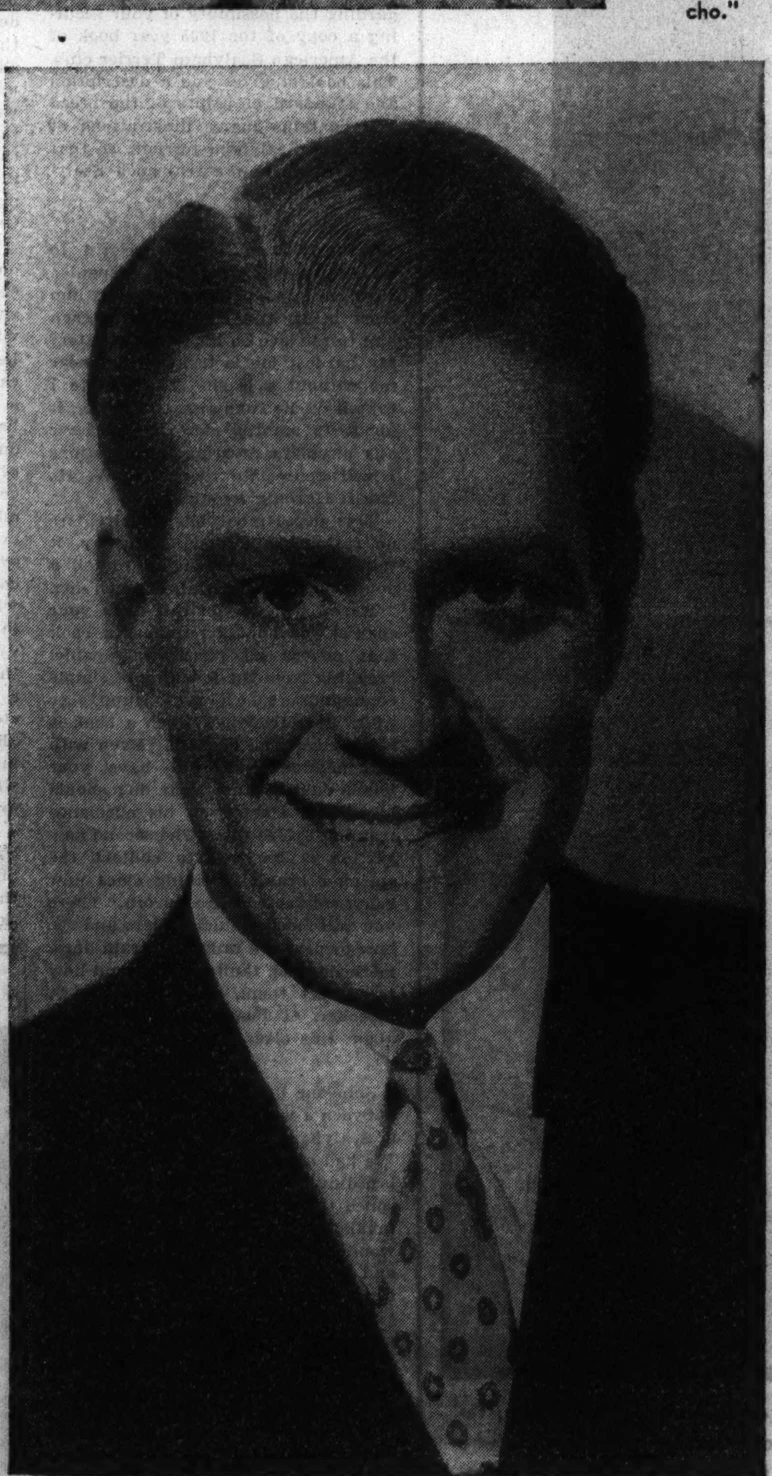
They call it a "reverberation track," and J. P. Maxfield, staf engineer of Electrical Research Products corporation, says it involves a new quality of perspective in sound. There is a nondirectional microphone as well as the conventional one. The nondirectional device, about the size and shape of an evaporated milk can, picks up sound coming from any direction, as contrasted with the conventional microphone, which records distinctly only from the front.

The conventional microphone is set and steady, recording a film track of pure melody. The reverberation track gives the quality of distance. In other words, when Miss Swarthout sings from a "long shot" her voice sounds as though it were coming from a distance. When she is in a closeup her voice comes out in all its ringing quality. Meanwhile the accompaniment is able to support her voice steadily.

Mr. Maxfield adds: "We were virtually compelled to devise some new recording method for Miss Swarthout, because her voice is the most powerful of women's voices to appear on the screen in many years."

So this is how they did it.



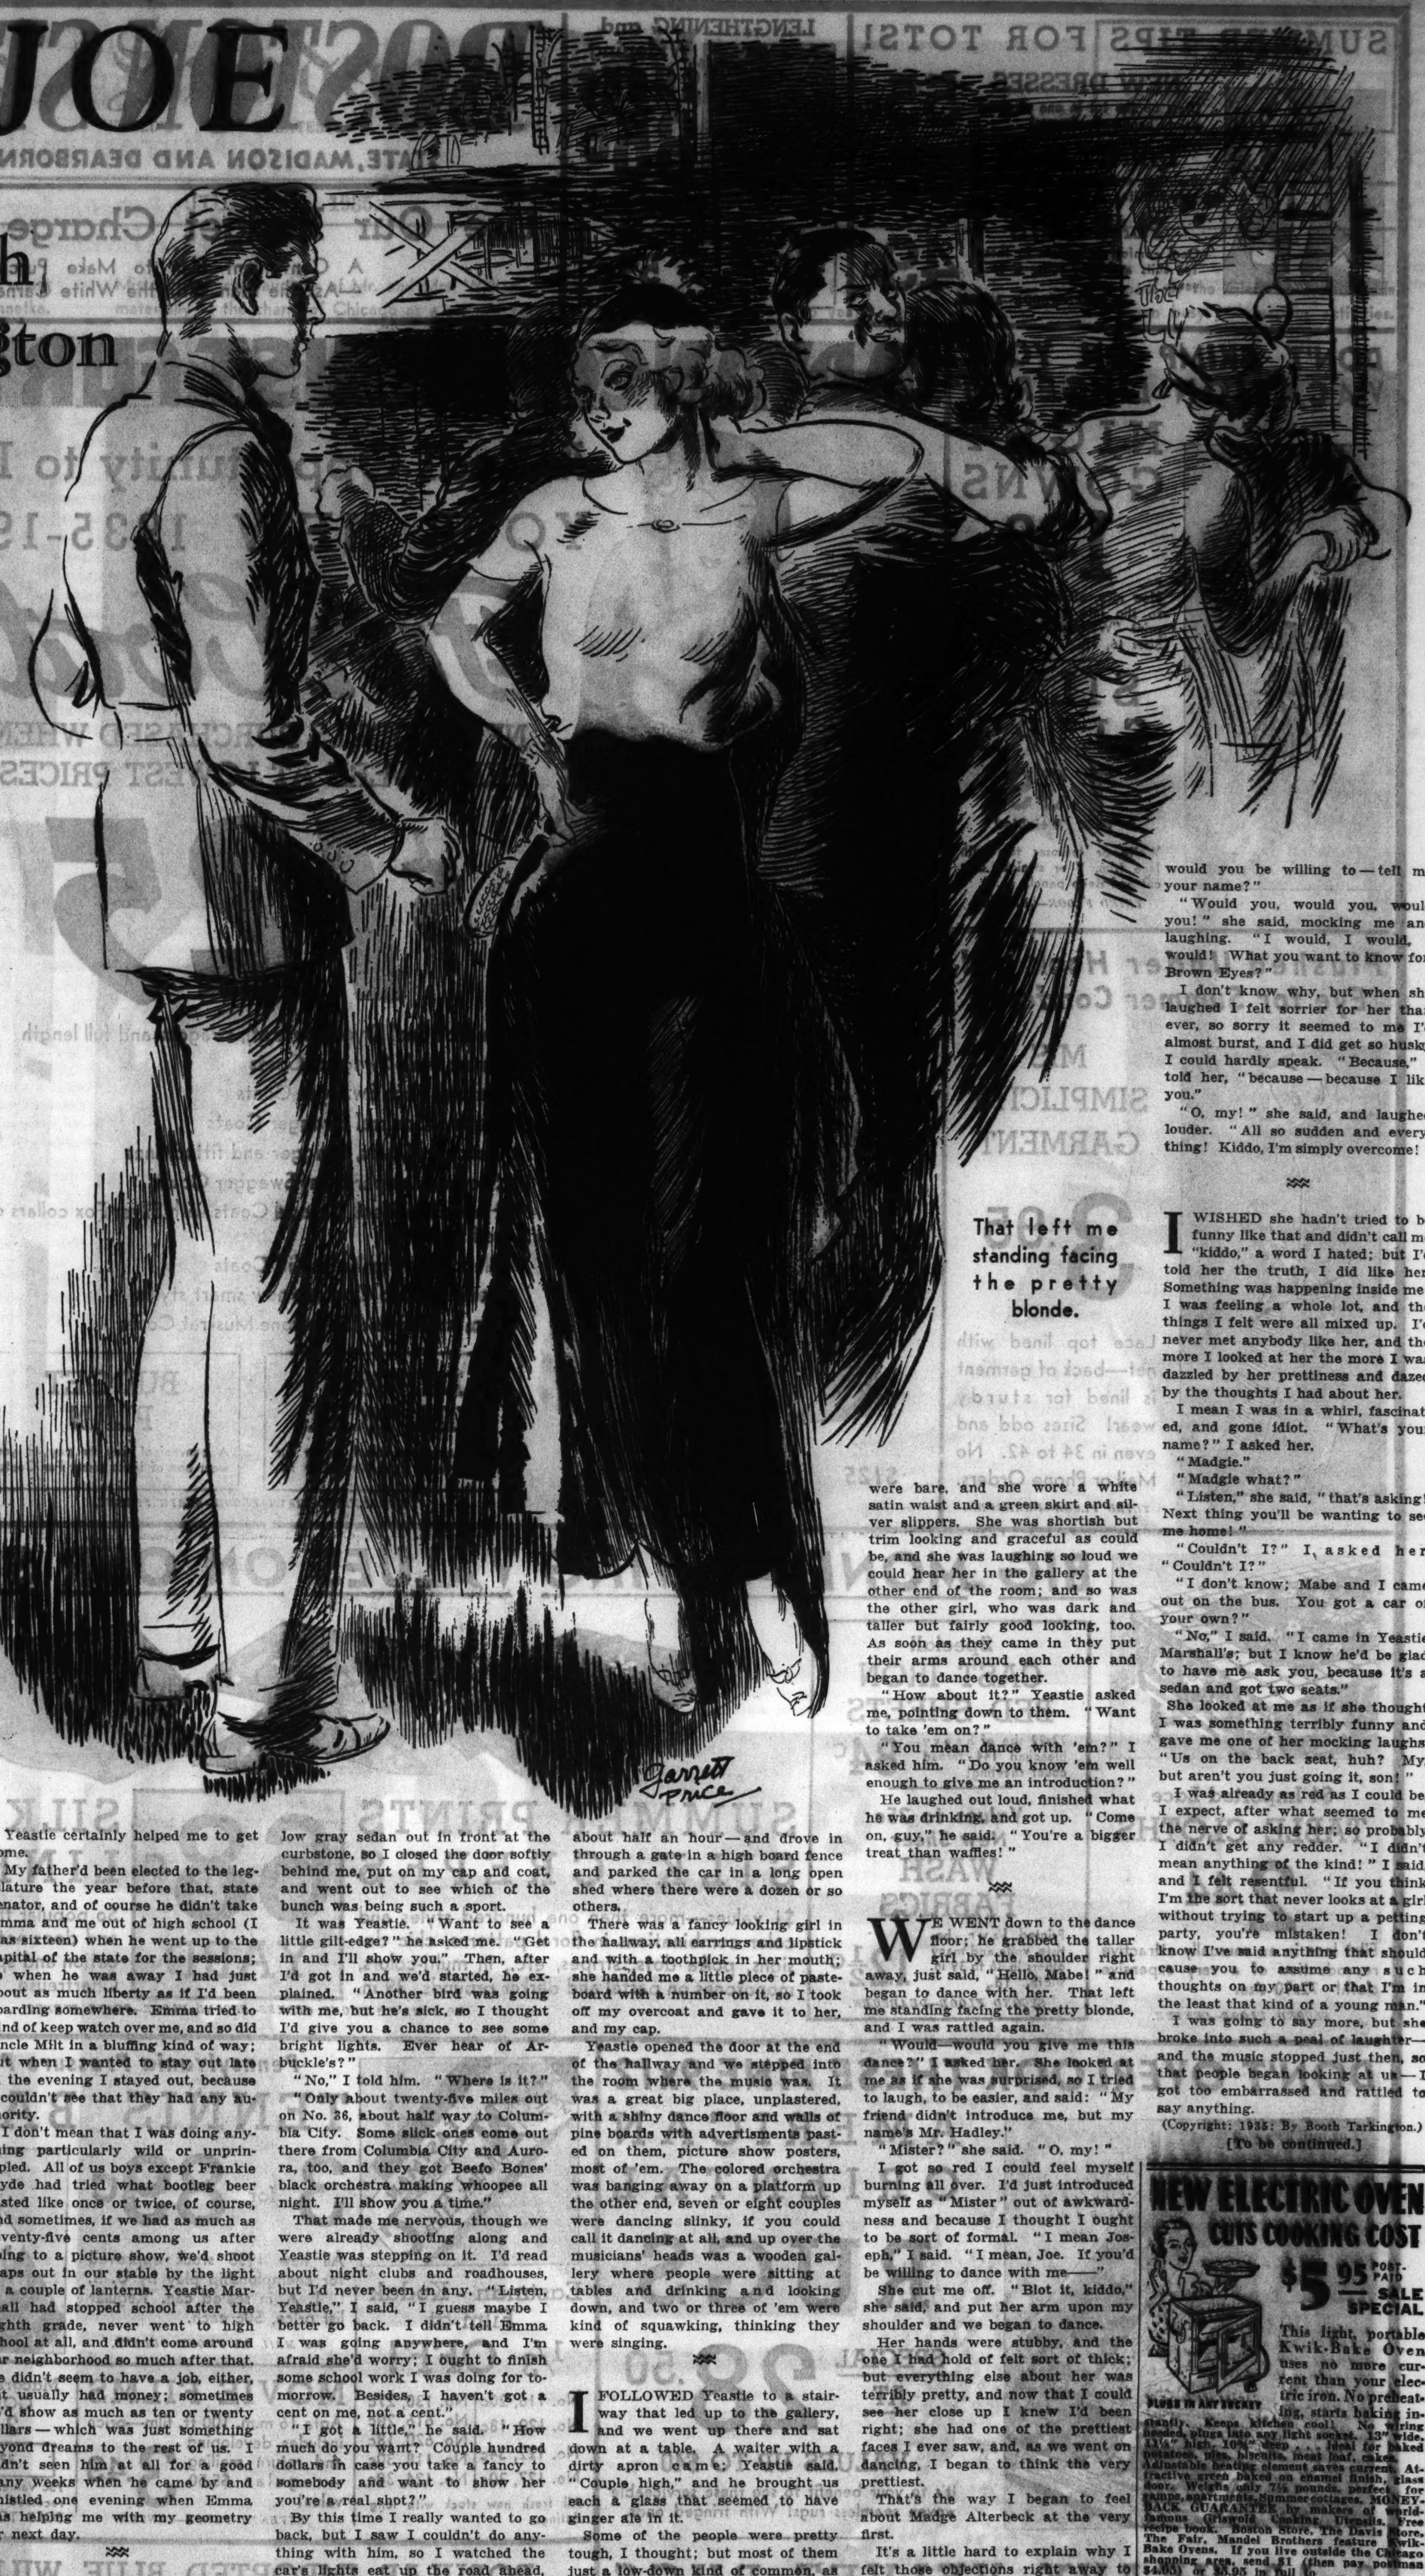
Once upon a time Nelson Eddy (at left) sought fame and fortune as a concert singer. His resonant baritone voice was the means of taking him hither and yon across the American continent in recitals, oratorio appearances, and music festivals. Here he was acclaimed a new discovery among young American musicians, but mere musical appearances were not enough for his talents. The films have claimed him.

It is easy to see that Gladys Swarthout should be in demand wherever an artist who is restful to the eyes should be desired. She was well known in concert and opera before she went to the screen. Starting her career in Chicago, she is now celebrated the country over.

THIS BOY JOE

Life Begins to Unfold Itself in Spectacular Fashion When Joe Hadley Steps from the Role of High School Boy Into That of Timid Explorer of Small Town Night Clubs—The Story Is His

By
Booth Tarkington



That left me standing facing the pretty blonde.

INSTALMENT I.

IF I WERE telling this over the radio I'd imitate a gentleman I've heard broadcasting and begin by saying, "This is Hadley speaking." The trouble is that hardly anybody outside of Aurora would know who I mean.

Well, then, I'm just Joe Hadley, about nineteen, and not distinguished—except I've had the police looking for me and not finding me, and I changed my name from Joe Hadley to something else for a while—and there are a number of people who'd like me to explain how such things came about; so I'd better.

Aurora's so much like other towns I've passed through on the railroad that, looking out of the car window and seeing pretty much the same kind of a railroad station and the same longish, straight streets leading up to the business section, and then on by to the shade trees and grassy yards and residences, I'd get a queer idea and say to myself, though, of course, I'd laugh: "I wonder if there's a Joe Hadley in this town, too—another me? Seems as if there ought to be, because there's everything else just the same."

Aurora's got a limestone courthouse, and a brick and stone public library, and two statues, and one good hotel and several bad, and department stores and churches and I don't know how many picture theaters, and of course there's the Chamber of Commerce and the Y. M. C. A. and the D. A. R., and women's clubs, where they read essays on art and authors and discuss gardening and the drama. The newspapers claim a population of "sixty-five thousand souls," and the last census really did give us forty-eight thousand, and of course people have been moving in and getting born since then.

THERE'S a north side and a south side, and the south siders call the north siders "high hat"; that's right about some of them, too. The aristocratic streets are Central avenue and Kane street; they run north from Main street about a mile and peter out at the creek bayou into woods and cornfields. Maybe Central avenue is a shade more aristocratic than Kane street; but, anyhow, our family lived on Kane street in a first-rate two-story frame house with nine rooms and a nice front porch and a good-sized yard; and my father worked for one of the biggest men in Aurora, Gus Cooper. It may sound fresh, my speaking of my father's employer as "Gus," but everybody does, mostly because he's been such a figure in politics as well as in business. My father went into Cooper's Eureka Paper company before he was married and finally worked up to a salary of thirty-five hundred dollars a year; pretty good, and so of course I felt I belonged to one of the best families in Aurora and looked on myself as part of the upper classes.

When my Uncle Milt came to live with us—I mean when he came to live on us—I thought even more of myself, aristocratically speaking. Uncle Milt claimed our family on my mother's side (Uncle Milt was my mother's brother) were descended from two brothers, one a British cavalier and the other a friend of Napoleon's, so I thought we had a right to look down on most other families, even though they probably wouldn't understand why. Later I saw we couldn't be descended from two brothers conveniently, but Uncle Milt always did get his stories mixed up, and pretty much everything else, for that matter.

He landed on us, to stay, a little after my mother'd had to accept the fact of being an invalid. That's why he came, so he said.

Uncle Milt had a good many airs. He always carried an imitation tortoise-shell card case, and the cards he had in it were printed:

MILTON POTTER BELL, ESQ.
Former Vice Consul, Hankow, China

The reference to his having been vice consul at Hankow, China, was a little overdrawing it on Uncle Milt's part. He'd had the appointment, all right—he'd worked some for Gus Cooper in politics, and Cooper got it for him, but Uncle Milt never reached farther than San Francisco, because he spent too much money there and kept postponing sailing and telegraphing back for more money until finally they canceled his appointment and sent somebody else instead, and he had to come home.

He had thin sandy hair he always kept brushed in a way that made him look fashionable, somehow, and he had a fat reddish face, soggy under the eyes and chin, but always powdery over a shave, and he never wore a soft collar—always a stiff-laundered high white wing collar and usually a red satin four-in-hand tie with probably a scraped soup spot or so on it.

My mother was fond of him, or perhaps she was just sorry for him—I don't know—but, anyhow, he kept on staying and was there when she died, just before Christmas that year. She went suddenly, and it seemed to bring my father and my sister Emma and me pretty close together in our hard time and made us feel kind toward Uncle Milt.

Not having anything to do, he'd get so bored sometimes he'd even come out to the stable, if some of the neighborhood boys and I were fooling around there, and talk to us.

Uncle Milt came out to the stable like that one afternoon the summer after my mother died, when I was thirteen years old. Yeastie Marshall and little Frank Hyde and Rip Smith, who lived next door to me, had got some terrible tobacco out of a carpet that had been rolled up in Frank Hyde's attic since his grandmother lived there—the kind of tobacco people used to think kept moths out—and the boys had brought a paper sack full of it over to our stable. It was all full of carpet fuzz, but we made cigarets out of it and were smoking and talking and trying to use the gestures our fathers did when they smoked; then we looked up and there was Uncle Milt, in his wing collar and red tie and check suit, standing in the big open doorway between us and the sunshine of the back yard.

"What on earth are you boys smoking?" he asked us. "I thought the stable must be on fire, from the smoke that's coming out; but the smell seems worse than that."

YEASTIE MARSHALL gave me a kind of uneasy feeling sometimes, not just because he was sarcastic and skeptical and looked down on religion. He'd gone to the same public school we did, No. 3, and there he'd been in the same class I was, though he was over a year older. He didn't exactly belong in our crowd. That is, his father and mother weren't friends of the parents of the rest of us.

They didn't live in a house, but in a flat over some stores down on Third street near Main, and Yeastie didn't know most of the girls we did or get invited to the same parties. How he talked about girls was one of the ways he made me uneasy. I'd been brought up to believe in what's called decency, and sometimes the way Yeastie talked would disgust me and yet at the same time upset me and make me wish I had more daring and knew some of the girls he did, down around Main street or on the south side. He went with other boys, too, more than he did with us, and even some grown men; he knew all about the speakeasies—of course, it was still prohibition then—and gambling rooms and all such places downtown, and he'd been in most of 'em, or anyhow said he had.

He was entertaining, too, and knew all the jokes that were passing around downtown and all the gossip about the older people. He always seemed to like me, too, and though he was kind of off-color and mightn't be quite on the level with other people, I was sure he'd always be a true bedrock friend of mine, and so I kept being intimate with him, off and on.

That's what got me into something. I'd been reading a good deal and thinking about life. More and more I wanted to know how much was guff and how much was truth in what we read and what we're told, and I thought I couldn't know without getting more experience of life myself.

Yeastie certainly helped me to get some.

My father'd been elected to the legislature the year before that, state senator, and of course he didn't take Emma and me out of high school (I was sixteen) when he went up to the capital of the state for the sessions; so when he was away I had just about as much liberty as if I'd been boarding somewhere. Emma tried to kind of keep watch over me, and so did Uncle Milt in a bluffing kind of way; but when I wanted to stay out late in the evening I stayed out, because I couldn't see that they had any authority.

I don't mean that I was doing anything particularly wild or unprincipled. All of us boys except Frankie Hyde had tried what bootleg beer tasted like once or twice, of course, and sometimes, if we had as much as seventy-five cents among us after going to a picture show, we'd shoot craps out in our stable by the light of a couple of lanterns. Yeastie Marshall had stopped school after the eighth grade, never went to high school at all, and didn't come around our neighborhood so much after that. He didn't seem to have a job, either, but usually had money; sometimes he'd show as much as ten or twenty dollars—which was just something beyond dreams to the rest of us. I hadn't seen him at all for a good many weeks when he came by and whistled one evening when Emma was helping me with my geometry for next day.

IT WAS near bedtime, and she didn't want me to go out; but I asked her what about her, hadn't she been out pretty late only the night before—with Mr. Edgar R. Morrison—for just a high school girl?

"That's very different," she said. "I graduate next June, and Mr. Morrison's at least thirty years old and took me to hear him read his essay on Dante at the Edgar Allan Poe fellowship, and there were discussions and refreshments afterward. It's too late for a boy of your age to be starting out goodness knows where and getting in after midnight, maybe, just because some of your bunch come along and give that silly old whistle. You go to the front door and call out that you're getting your lessons now and going to bed right afterward."

"Maybe you're right," I said, and I really half meant it; but when I went out to the door I picked up my cap and overcoat in the hall and took them with me. There was a swell low gray sedan out in front at the curbstone, so I closed the door softly behind me, put on my cap and coat, and went out to see which of the bunch was being such a sport.

It was Yeastie. "Want to see a little gilt-edge?" he asked me. "Get in and I'll show you." Then, after I'd got in and we'd started, he explained. "Another bird was going with me, but he's sick, so I thought I'd give you a chance to see some bright lights. Ever hear of Arbuckle's?"

"No," I told him. "Where is it?"

"Only about twenty-five miles out on No. 36, about half way to Columbia City. Some slick ones come out there from Columbia City and Aurora, too, and they got Beefo Bones' black orchestra making whoopee all night. I'll show you a time."

That made me nervous, though we were already shooting along and Yeastie was stepping on it. I'd read about night clubs and roadhouses, but I'd never been in any. "Listen, Yeastie," I said, "I guess maybe I better go back. I didn't tell Emma I was going anywhere, and I'm afraid she'd worry; I ought to finish some school work I was doing for tomorrow. Besides, I haven't got a cent on me, not a cent."

"I got a little," he said. "How much do you want? Couple hundred dollars in case you take a fancy to somebody and want to show her you're a real shot?"

By this time I really wanted to go back, but I saw I couldn't do anything with him, so I watched the car's lights eat up the road ahead, felt scared about what I was getting into and kind of excitedly adventurous, too—a little like not knowing how to swim but standing on the creek bank and going to dive in anyway. "When'd your family get the car?" I asked him.

"Family!" he said. "This look like a family boat to you? It's mine."

"Yours? How'd you get it?"

"How?" he said. "How?"

"Yes," I told him. "How'd you ever work your father for as swell an outfit as this?"

"Only child," Yeastie answered me. "If you want to work the old folks, be an only child, guy. Took my old man up to the big burg to the automobile show the night before my birthday, pointed out this little boat to him, and commenced crying 'cause I didn't have one like it. Christmas I'll get me a coonskin overcoat from the old lady the same way. Be an only child, guy!"

We got out there in no time—about half an hour—and drove in through a gate in a high board fence and parked the car in a long open shed where there were a dozen or so others.

There was a fancy looking girl in the hallway, all earrings and lipstick and with a toothpick in her mouth; she handed me a little piece of pasteboard with a number on it, so I took off my overcoat and gave it to her, and my cap.

Yeastie opened the door at the end of the hallway and we stepped into the room where the music was. It was a great big place, unplastered, with a shiny dance floor and walls of pine boards with advertisments pasted on them, picture show posters, most of 'em. The colored orchestra was banging away on a platform up the other end, seven or eight couples were dancing slinky, if you could call it dancing at all, and up over the musicians' heads was a wooden gallery where people were sitting at tables and drinking and looking down, and two or three of 'em were kind of squawking, thinking they were singing.

I FOLLOWED Yeastie to a stairway that led up to the gallery, and we went up there and sat down at a table. A waiter with a dirty apron came; Yeastie said, "Couple high," and he brought us each a glass that seemed to have ginger ale in it.

Some of the people were pretty tough, I thought; but most of them just a low-down kind of common, as Uncle Milt would have said. Yeastie appeared to know a good deal about different people there; he nodded to some of 'em and told me which ones were from Columbia City and which from Aurora—and he said if I wanted to dance with somebody he could fix it up; but I better wait.

I certainly didn't want to dance with anybody I could see, and I said so. He laughed. "You wait," he said. "This is early. There'll be some eye-openers out here by the time things get going good."

Well, he'd hardly spoken before it seemed to me he was right. Our table was against the gallery railing, and I was looking down when two girls came in by the door from the entryway, and the minute I looked at her one of 'em seemed to me as pretty a girl as I'd ever seen in my whole life.

She was blonde, too, with thick glossy curls and a little green silk hat on them, like what they call a beret. Her arms were pretty—they were bare, and she wore a white satin waist and a green skirt and silver slippers. She was shortish but trim looking and graceful as could be, and she was laughing so loud we could hear her in the gallery at the other end of the room; and so was the other girl, who was dark and taller but fairly good looking, too. As soon as they came in they put their arms around each other and began to dance together.

"How about it?" Yeastie asked me, pointing down to them. "Want to take 'em on?"

"You mean dance with 'em?" I asked him. "Do you know 'em well enough to give me an introduction?"

He laughed out loud, finished what he was drinking, and got up. "Come on, guy," he said. "You're a bigger treat than waffles!"

WE WENT down to the dance floor; he grabbed the taller girl by the shoulder right away, just said, "Hello, Mabe!" and began to dance with her. That left me standing facing the pretty blonde, and I was rattled again.

"Would—would you give me this dance?" I asked her. She looked at me as if she was surprised, so I tried to laugh, to be easier, and said: "My friend didn't introduce me, but my name's Mr. Hadley."

"Mister?" she said. "O, my!"

I got so red I could feel myself burning all over. I'd just introduced myself as "Mister" out of awkwardness and because I thought I ought to be sort of formal. "I mean Joseph," I said. "I mean, Joe. If you'd be willing to dance with me——"

She cut me off. "Blot it, kiddo," she said, and put her arm upon my shoulder and we began to dance.

Her hands were stubby, and the one I had hold of felt sort of thick; but everything else about her was terribly pretty, and now that I could see her close up I knew I'd been right; she had one of the prettiest faces I ever saw, and, as we went on dancing, I began to think the very prettiest.

That's the way I began to feel about Madge Alterbeck at the very first.

It's a little hard to explain why I felt those objections right away to so much false color on this pretty girl I was dancing with—I wouldn't have thought anything of just a little—but I believe what was the matter with me, I felt her heavy makeup must be a part of her wildness. Naturally I knew she must be pretty completely wild or she wouldn't be coming out to Arbuckle's this time of night—showing she was used to being there. I mean what I already wished about her was that she could have been what we call a "nice girl," instead.

I mean she struck me dumb and sentimental, and there isn't anybody in the world more sentimental than a boy of sixteen who's read a good deal in an old-fashioned library like my father's at home.

I didn't like dancing slinky. It gave me a kind of repulsion, and I stumbled a good deal, besides; but I saw that was her way, so I kept on trying to—out of politeness.

"Would you——" I asked her, and began to stutter. "Would you—would you be willing to—tell me your name?"

"Would you, would you, would you!" she said, mocking me and laughing. "I would, I would, I would! What you want to know for, Brown Eyes?"

I don't know why, but when she laughed I felt sorrier for her than ever, so sorry it seemed to me I'd almost burst, and I did get so husky I could hardly speak. "Because," I told her, "because—because I like you."

"O, my!" she said, and laughed louder. "All so sudden and everything! Kiddo, I'm simply overcome!"

≈

I WISHED she hadn't tried to be funny like that and didn't call me "kiddo," a word I hated; but I'd told her the truth, I did like her. Something was happening inside me; I was feeling a whole lot, and the things I felt were all mixed up. I'd never met anybody like her, and the more I looked at her the more I was dazzled by her prettiness and dazed by the thoughts I had about her.

I mean I was in a whirl, fascinated, and gone idiot. "What's your name?" I asked her.

"Madgie."

"Madgie what?"

"Listen," she said, "that's asking! Next thing you'll be wanting to see me home!"

"Couldn't I?" I asked her. "Couldn't I?"

"I don't know; Mabe and I came out on the bus. You got a car of your own?"

"No," I said. "I came in Yeastie Marshall's; but I know he'd be glad to have me ask you, because it's a sedan and got two seats."

She looked at me as if she thought I was something terribly funny and gave me one of her mocking laughs. "Us on the back seat, huh? My, but aren't you just going it, son!"

I was already as red as I could be, I expect, after what seemed to me the nerve of asking her; so probably I didn't get any redder. "I didn't mean anything of the kind!" I said, and I felt resentful. "If you think I'm the sort that never looks at a girl without trying to start up a petting party, you're mistaken! I don't know I've said anything that should cause you to assume any such thoughts on my part or that I'm in the least that kind of a young man."

I was going to say more, but she broke into such a peal of laughter—and the music stopped just then, so that people began looking at us—I got too embarrassed and rattled to say anything.

For TRAVEL: Today, tomorrow, and next Sunday.

For OCCUPATION: Wednesday and Saturday.

For LEGAL MATTERS: Today and Tuesday.

For IMPROVING HEALTH: Tomorrow, Tuesday, and Friday.

DAY BY DAY

TOMORROW, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY: Look ahead in dealing with those above you socially, occupationally, and in relations with government officials.

MONDAY, JULY 22: A good set of vibrations on many fronts; blend wisely the old and the new. Better than usual for those born April 10-23, Aug. 13-26, and Dec. 12-25.

TUESDAY, JULY 23: Favorable for business matters if your best judgment is wide awake. Better for those born April 23-May 9, Aug. 26-Sept. 11, and Dec. 25-Jan. 8.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 24: Make money or make plans for your future finances; improving socially. Better for those born Jan. 8-21, May 9-22, and Sept. 11-24.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY: Check up on friendships, including the sort of friend you are to others; apply the Golden Rule.

THURSDAY, JULY 25: Emotionally doubtful; let no hunches push you around; be careful with old matters. Better for those born Jan. 21-Feb. 3, May 22-June 4, and Sept. 24-Oct. 7.

FRIDAY, JULY 26: Mostly routine, but favorable for analyzing health problems, if any. Better for those born Feb. 3-15, June 4-17, and Oct. 7-19.

SATURDAY and next SUNDAY: Take enough time to be quiet for a while and meet yourself, if you think you can stand it; really, it takes nerve to do it right. Careful with secrets.

SATURDAY, JULY 27: A day when much good can be accomplished; build with superiors; buy and sell. Better for those born Feb. 15-March 1, June 17-July 1, and Oct. 19-Nov. 2.

SUNDAY, JULY 28: Be alert, get around mentally and physically; plan ahead to improve conditions. Better for those born March 1-14, July 1-15, and Nov. 2-15.

An Open Letter to Miriam Hopkins

MIRIAM HOPKINS

Dear Miriam: They tell me that sometimes a star has the choice of stories submitted. If this is the case with you during the coming several years, you would be following your better vibrations if you were to select plots, settings, and character rôles that will appeal to men predominantly, for they will constitute the major part of your public. This does not mean you should attempt to go feminine so much as that you are chiefly liked as a thinking element in the plot. With best wishes,

SPECIALIST'S DISCOVERY ENDS STOMACH MISERY

George Hanover, 507 South Wilbur Ave., Syracuse, N. Y., has made what he rightly calls "a wonderful discovery." At one time he suffered severely from a stomach ailment, but is now getting great relief. If every stomach sufferer could read the 54,169 similar letters of praise received about Udga, how much misery and expense they would save. A noted stomach specialist originated the Udga formula with more thorough medication than is found in common tablets, powders or soda. That's why hundreds of thousands have found quicker, more lasting relief. If you are troubled with indigestion, gas, heartburn, sour stomach and other disorders caused by excess acidity, beware! These conditions frequently lead to serious complications. Get Udga from your druggist today. One trial must convince or your money is refunded.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Travel Resorts

JULY 21, 1935.

Miss Betty Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Davis of Kenilworth, presents this charming and smart appearance when she is ready for a horseback ride that will start at the Indian Hill stables in Winnetka.

Miss Betty Spry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Spry of Astor street, is certain that being able to swim in the beautiful pool at the Glen View club adds materially to the charm of Chicago as a summer resort. Miss Spry finished school two years ago and since that time has been busy with various activities.

Mrs. Kimball Salisbury of Astor street is pictured in riding togs more often than in any other sort of attire, for she is one of society's best known equestriennes and rides in most of the horse shows in this district.

Miss Jane Calkins' bathing suit looks as though it might have come from Tahiti. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond M. Calkins of Deerfield. This picture of her was snapped as she was sitting beside the pool of the Knollwood club. Miss Calkins was graduated from Miss Hall's at Pittsfield last spring.

Famed Hostess of Chicago Will Remodel Salon

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter Transforms Living Rooms Completely.

By Cousin Eve.

WHEN Mrs. John Alden Carpenter returned recently from China she decided to make herself a present. It seems that for over twenty years this most charming of Chicago hostesses has had a living room which did not please her. Never did she go into it without thinking how much she would like it some other way. At last the time has come when the entire suite downstairs in the beautiful French renaissance house, 1020 Lake Shore drive, will be done over to suit the personal taste of its chatelaine.

The somber paneled and brocaded walls will be the color of sand. Hangings will be color of roses. Glorious old Chinese pictures will unfold upon the walls. The adjoining reception room changes its character. From being a handsome French room with painted ceiling it will become a book room, than which there is nothing handsomer.

A collection of old musical instruments, acquired for John Carpenter in China, will occupy a place of honor in the living room.

Besides the fun of making over this beautiful suite will be the fun of opening it with ceremony in the autumn.

The Carpenters have their usual small house at Pride's Crossing for the summer; with it go large grounds and tennis courts.

Junior League's Open House Sure to Have Originalities.

One thinks of those Junior league girls and their open house on Oct. 4. Certainly one will come panting home from Europe to give a luncheon there that day.

Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams is chairman of the event, and pushing it forward with a sparkle in her eye. Mary Meeker Cramer can be counted on for originalities. Everything that comes from her hands has a dash and daring. Her "travel party" for the Scribblers was one of the clever events of the spring.

The "travel bureau" was the Arthur Meeker apartment, 1100 Lake Shore drive. Once up in the elevator, a page in uniform (Dodo Badger) led the way to tickets, which turned out to be appetizers. At this table the party was assembling.

Costumes were in order. Mrs. Charles B. Pike wore an immense hat of the '90s, with automobile veil and smoked glasses. Mrs. Sam Chase had on a funny old bicycle suit.

One Scarcely Recognized Meeker Guides.

Three guides were waiting. They wore beards, false eyebrows, queer clothes, and only the few recognized Ambrose C. Cramer, Shreve Badger, and Arthur Meeker Jr. The party proceeded down to a strange, antique looking bus and, once inside, was driven south. Shreve Badger was the announcer, and through a megaphone he bawled out who had been born in old Prairie avenue houses, and all the happenings and excitements along Calumet. There were excited yells from white bearded Arthur Meeker Jr. when the bus passed the gray stone house at 18th and Prairie where he first saw the light of day.

Suddenly Mrs. Walter Brewster, in long green veil and smoked glasses and a plaid costume de voyage, sprang up saying she knew lots more about it than the announcer. So there were rival announcements for awhile.

The luncheon was a big surprise. It rained so the Japanese island was out of the question. But Robert Dunham said the party could use the Washington park greenhouse, and this was perfectly charming. Box luncheons and thermos bottles of hot coffee, with impromptu speeches from everybody. And on the way home the party took in the Garfield park conservatories. When they reached home late that afternoon its members felt they had indeed traveled.

So one opines that enchanting surprises of all kinds will be the order of the day Oct. 4 at the Drake hotel.

Airplanes in Europe Have the Best Roads.

Speaking of travelers—Miss Margaret Enders spent last week in town with her niece, Mrs. Ralph James, who has since sailed for England.

Miss Enders and Mrs. William H. Moore, formerly of Chicago, widow of the match king, have traveled together, by land, by sea, around, up and down, and zigzag across the earth's surface, for twenty years. This spring, leaving Berlin, they traveled entirely by air. Their air program took them to Poland, across the Carpathians to Rumania, Turkey, and I've forgotten the other wild places where they flew. They like flying, on the whole, better than motoring. The roads are better!

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, who once was Suzette Hall of New York, maintains what I consider a distinguished town house in Chicago. It is in North State parkway near Lincoln park. It was made over years ago by David Adler into a Georgian house; is gray with a russet door. The interior is furnished with charm and that simplicity which is the most expensive thing in the world.

One may buy overstuffed furniture, gold furniture dated by all the Louises of France, modernistic monstrosities, Biedermeier and what not, by the ton. But choice pieces of Adam and Hepplewhite, consoles, secretaires, pairs of arm chairs, come to us mostly by inheritance. One can't buy them any more with mere money. The Dewey house is quite foreign in effect. A visitors' book lies on the hall table near a grand piano covered with many signed photographs of this celebrity and that.

The dining room on another higher level is an interesting room with an old English landscape paper, and here again furniture of great distinction. On the sideboard a pair of magnificent and unique candelabra of gold and onyx, bought some years ago in Moscow. Their history sheet, appended, showed their original owners to have been the princely Yusupoffs, whose palace in the ci-devant St. Petersburg was of royal splendor and the scene of a famous political murder, Rasputin's.

Deweys' Guest Brings Suit Cases Full of Snakes.

Now having the mise-en-scene, on with the snake story.

Of the four Dewey children three are married, and Peter, the youngest, is away at school. Recently a schoolmate of his was due to pass through town for a day. The Dewey family met the lad, who had been south with the famous Ditmars of the New York Museum of Natural History, hunting specimens in the southland.

The visitor wanted to see the Brookfield zoo, the Shedd aquarium, the Planetarium, the Field museum, and there were all the makings of a busy day. The boy was checking a great pile of suitcases and valises when Mrs. Dewey insisted they should be sent to her house by taxi. A taxi came, the bags were piled in, and then came the thrilling secret—the young traveler said he wanted Mr. and Mrs. Dewey to know that snakes, many, long and fat, were traveling in those suitcases.

His hosts never batted an eyelash. The only question was how to warn the French butler and French servants who man the house of the quality and temper of the luggage. So the taxi driver had his first French lesson and handed over his mysterious fares to the electrified French servant with the one magic word, "serpents." That night the snakes traveled to New York first class and none of their fellow passengers was any the wiser.

I believe Mr. and Mrs. Dewey sailed for France some days ago. They were booked to do so. Last year at this date I wrote the same line, but they did not live up to my mandate.

And Mrs. Dewey remarked later that I had jolly well spoiled the summer for her, for all their friends took the item seriously and the Deweys were not called up for country house parties and week-ends. If the Deweys did not sail this time I am out of luck, for I expect to spend the next week-end with them at Longues-sur-Mer in Normandy.

Marshall Field to Build New House, Take New Wife.

Every time almost that I hear tidings of Marshall Field he seems to be building a new house. Or considering a new wife.

In this case Mr. Field, a charming fellow whose origins are from Chicago, seems again to be doing both, and his friends are wishing him well. For it is fully six months since his divorce from Audrey Coates, an English born beauty.

The new house is going up on Long Island, is in the simple American style of our ancestors, and, furthermore, is being decorated with murals by Abe Poole, a successful New York artist, also with Chicago origins. Marshall was ever loyal to his townspeople. Abraham Poole, the better to do his job, has taken a little cottage on Long Island near the new house, the exact locale of which I don't know. It is, however, near Old Westbury in the hunting country. The bride-to-be is of that community, too, an American, well known to the Aiken and Long Island hunting set.

Astor Insists on Selling Chimpanzee with Mansion.

Long Island houses, palatial ones, have been building rapidly since the war and changing hands even more rapidly. I met some people crossing the ocean last year, a young couple who had inherited one of the big fortunes. Their ambition was a great house on Long Island. Finally, through agents, they found a magnificent palace at Land's Point, which they decided to rent for a year and try out. A strange obligation was tied up with the rental. A huge chimpanzee was mentioned in the lease. This creature occupied a little suite of rooms on the ground floor. With the chimpanzee went a maid, a caretaker. The young family moved in with their babes, and at first the big ape did not bother them much. But after a few weeks there was a wild, pungent jungle smell which pervaded the entire establishment. And here they were tied up by contract to keep the animal in his handsome suite.

The house belonged to Vincent Astor and he wanted to sell it. The young couple wanted to buy it. Mr. Astor had instructed his agents that the ape went with the house, like a prize package with a pound of tea.

But in the end my random acquaintances won out. They got the superb building at a great bargain. And the Astor chimpanzee went to live in a zoo. However, the new owners had to tear the entire house paneling out to obliterate the wild smell—and even now, in damp weather, they sometimes fancy a scent, a mere soupçon, of chimpanzee.

Mulfords Obtain Long Loved House in Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mulford left town earlier than usual for the summer; perhaps six weeks ago. Theirs was the happiest of journeys. They have loved for some years an old Connecticut house. An old, old house, dating way, way back. It is a love affair with a happy ending, for now, after a prolonged courtship covering many months, the house is theirs. The mansion [perhaps I'm calling it by too grand a name] stands in a nice acreage with piney woods and meadow for a cow, between Mystic and Stonington. For a few years, when not abroad, the Mulfords have summered at Mystic. This year they occupy another house, and improvements have already begun on the new treasure. It is going to be one of those domiciles where you push a button and things happen; hot in winter, cool in summer, thoroughly electrified. Terribly old, yet absolutely modern.

It is a house where the Mulfords imagine they will spend their declining years, but "declining years" are not being done any more. Mrs. Mulford was Genevieve Mott. And her mother, Mrs. Granville Mott, was a sister of the late Joseph Winterbotham, a rare, upstanding character.

Recipes Will Be Revealed in Mrs. Mulford's Will.

I remember even now the wonderful edibles which I ate as a youngster at the Motts. Mrs. Mulford has the same flair for an outstanding cuisine, and confides the secrets of her book of recipes to nobody. She has promised in her last will and testament several of these recipes to several of her appreciative friends, which is my idea of an excellent heritage.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Belden are having to do a bit of building this year, rather unexpectedly. Their Lake Forest house, closed in the winter while they were in Florida, suddenly fell asunder. At least on their return some weeks ago they found their long living room a mass of wreckage beyond repair. The ceiling beams and supports had given entirely away and crashed down upon the furnishings and bibelots with all that was in the upper rooms. The net result was utter ruin, and not one stick of anything recognizable. The house is only twenty-five years old. The Beldens are utterly thankful that they were not at home entertaining their Biarritz relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams, when the disaster came.

Weddings

Every wedding and engagement published in The Tribune must bear the signature of a member of the family, and must bear the address and telephone number of the signer. Announcements must reach the society editor on Tuesday noon of the week preceding publication.

WILL PASS SUMMER MONTHS IN BAVARIA

Mrs. Sterling Smith and her little son, Hedrick, recently visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hedrick of Kenilworth. Mrs. Smith, the former Phebe Hedrick, and young Hedrick sailed the middle of July to join Mr. Smith in Bavaria and spend the rest of the summer there, going to Vienna for the winter. Their home is Kilmacolm, Renfrewshire, Scotland.

Southampton Fetes Nicholas Murray Butler

Society Pauses in Summer Fun to Honor Colony's Premiere Intellectual.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK The Southampton club has chosen cooks' night out for the dinner it is giving Thursday in honor of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, the undisputed intellectual giant of this light minded summer colony at Southampton, N. Y. For many years the president of Columbia university has shed luster on this resort. At long last, Adrian Larkin, Morgan J. O'Brien, Rufus L. Patterson, and Goodhue Livingston have decided to do something about it. Hence the dinner they are arranging.

If not exactly a "testimonial" dinner, this event will be evidence to Dr. Butler that his annual Southampton lecture on "The State of the World" has not fallen on ungrateful ground. If some of the less highbrow members of the colony have not always known what the good doctor was driving at, at least they have liked the sound of his resonant voice.

Butler Sees Through European Affairs, Tells Southampton.

Anyway, the Messrs. Larkin, O'Brien, Patterson, and Livingston, bulwarks of Southampton's old, conservative set, will see to it that only their kind attend the dinner Thursday night. Dr. Butler, with Mrs. Butler, is returning from his annual early summer pilgrimage to Europe in time for the dinner.

On his summer trips abroad Dr. Butler makes stately progress about Europe, seeing through everything. Then, at the end of the summer season in Southampton, he gives his annual lecture on some phase of world affairs.

Newport has its counterpart of Dr. Butler in Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice, who is now abroad with his wife, who was once the widowed Mrs. George D. Widener. Dr. Rice carries the intellectual torch on Aquidneck Island. And nary a season is rightly concluded until Dr. Rice has delivered an address on the world as he sees it wag.

There is this difference between Dr. and Mrs. Butler and Dr. and Mrs. Rice. Annually, the most spectacular party in Newport is the ball given during Tennis week by Dr. and Mrs. Rice at their magnificent Italian villa, Miramar. It knocks the spots off everything else given in Newport during the summer.

But all Southampton can expect of Dr. and Mrs. Butler are a series of small, staid luncheon and dinner parties, in addition to the lecture.

Payson's Spray Perfumed Insecticide at Garden Party.

Rivers of champagne sound hospitable in print. Tubs of caviar indicate a host is trying to do right by his guests. But the most stunning innovation in entertaining since the hand painted punch bowl is the perfumed insecticide with which Charlie and Joan Whitney Payson continuously sprayed their gardens recently during the costume ball they gave at their country home in Manhasset, Long Island, in celebration of their eleventh wedding anniversary.

Mosquitoes, which have turned two or three recent Long Island parties into shambles, didn't have a chance. They bit the dust and nothing else.

Streams of insecticide were poured into the trees and shrubs from a small tractor equipped with the kind of apparatus used to spray orchards.

Cherchez la femme behind the present attempt to restore the Greek monarchy and you find none other than our friend Elsa Maxwell.

From the monarchists' real headquarters in Paris, this amazing and indefatigable American woman has abetted shrewdly his partisans' attempts to restore the throne to ex-King George of Greece.

The only valuable statements regarding the royalist cause which have been made public by its leaders have been released through the suggestion and arrangements of Elsa.

Twenty years ago, Elsa, a short, plump, unknown California dumpling, came out of the west to take over New York and Parisian society lock, stock, and barrel. Now it appears she has widened the field and has a half nelson on the divine right of kings.

Gossip Says Rothschilds Are Behind Elsa.

Those who know their European politics and intrigue surmise that Elsa's friendship with the French Rothschilds or the possible friendship of the Rothschilds for the Greek monarchists, or both, may have led to Elsa's present position as liaison officer.

Heretofore Elsa has been a power behind more than one social throne. She has been called the court jester of international society, but no one has envisioned her in the rôle of king maker until this summer. But if the Greek republicans knew her they'd give up the argument at once and forget the fall plebiscite.

David M. Milton and his svelte, chic wife, the former Abby Rockefeller, have been enjoying a little vacation in Bermuda. They delayed their sailing until Abby's grandfather, John D. Rockefeller, had celebrated his 96th birthday anniversary.

At this seasonal boiling point, Abby's parents, the John D. Rockefellers Jr., turn to their big home on a steep little cliff above Seal Harbor on Mount Desert Island, Me. It's a big, comfortable, old-fashioned house, a bit on the rambling side.

At Seal Harbor John D. Jr. drives his own car, wears what he considers old and shabby clothes, and likes to think others fail to recognize him in this guise.

London Swelters in Heat Wave

LONDON What England calls a "prostrating heat wave," with the thermometer actually touching 84, recently completely absorbed the country.

At the sale of the Morgan collection of miniatures, Christie's, the famous auction room, for the first time in history, provided nurses in uniform to attend those overcome with the heat and the excitement. The press, full of pictures of bathing girls, finds room for the annual argument as to whether the American male's hot weather garb of shirt sleeves and belt is better than the Englishman's Spartan costume of hot worsted coat and waistcoat, with "braces" to hold up his hot worsted trousers. The gossip writer of the Daily Mail argues that the American belt "stops the circulation of air" and actually is hotter than the Englishman's outfit.

All I can say is that the Englishman's conventional clothing seems most unsuitable for a heat wave. Indeed there is general commiseration expressed by women. But I have seen little sign of any relaxation or Americanization of the Englishman's clothes in the summer. However, it is true that the climate does not press for radical change, for we seldom have more than a few days with the thermometer at 84. After all, we are on the same parallel of latitude as Labrador.

SUMMER IN EUROPE

Elizabeth Newton is spending the summer in Europe with her mother, Mrs. Arthur W. Newton, but they will return in September and join Mr. Newton at their apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue. This picture was taken at the Indian Hill club before the Girls' Latin school closed for the summer and before Mrs. Newton and Elizabeth went abroad. Next year will be Elizabeth's senior year at the Latin school.

Paris Racing Season Blithe and Brilliant

Society Outdoes Itself in Elegance and Gayety During Grande Semaine.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS The Grande Semaine, the big week of the Paris season, and its immediate aftermath have made the last few days the most brilliant socially of the high season. They have even surpassed similar periods here in recent years. The éclat of the events connected with the fashionable days at the races, Drag day at the Auteuil race track, and the Grand Prix at Longchamp, was enhanced by the dazzling weather, suitable for dress display. At the Polo club the garden parties following the races have been particularly brilliant.

The Grand Prix attracted an enormous throng, including notables from across the channel and across the Atlantic. The American Ambassador and Mrs. Jesse I. Straus were guests of M. and Mme. Lebrun in the presidential stand. In the main grandstand was the box occupied by the maharajah of Patiala, the men of his party resplendent in diamond earrings and turbans, each having one of a different pastel hue, while the colorful saris of the maharajah's six daughters, wearing diamonds in their noses, drew thousands of glances. The day before, at the Polo, where the smart throng watched the remarkable evolutions of the cavalry in costumes from the seventeenth century to the present, and the motorized military pageant, the maharajah of Patiala had difficulty to keep himself and his gorgeous group from being photographed. He was much perturbed by the insistence of several cameramen, as his religion does not permit him to be photographed.

Chicago Represented at Grand Prix.

Also seen at the Grand Prix or at the Polo, where each day of the week there has been a special program, were Lord Derby, who had entries in several races of the week; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Strassburger, having the Duc and Duchesse de Nemours in their box; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Close, in a box with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Dean Jay, and Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace; Joseph E. Widener and his son and daughter-in-law, the P. A. B. Wideners; Gen. and Comtesse de Chambrun, and Col. and Mme. Jacques Balsan.

Chicago was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Comtesse de Danne, formerly Elizabeth Stone, and Mrs. Jacob Baur, who left later for London to be present at the christening of her grandchild. After the Prix des Drags these Chicagoans were the guests at tea of Mrs. Owen Aldis at her apartment, as were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gade.

Americans Flock to Mme. Lebrun's Garden Party.

Mme. Lebrun gave a garden party for women at the Palace of the Elysée. A number of those attending it were Americans who were also seen at the nearby British embassy where the huge annual garden party was up to its traditional splendor.

Mme. Ganna Walska was striking in a dress of white crêpe, sweeping the lawn, with bright green gloves and belt to match her emerald necklace and the ornament in her broad white hat. Noel Coward was seen chatting with the Marquise de Polignac, the former Mrs. James Eustace of New York. Others in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Berry Wall, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Raffalovich, Mrs. Alexander Bonnyman, Mrs. Henry S. Lehr, Ira Nelson Morris, John Ridgely Carter, and Gen. Charles Sherrill, former American ambassador to Turkey, and his wife.

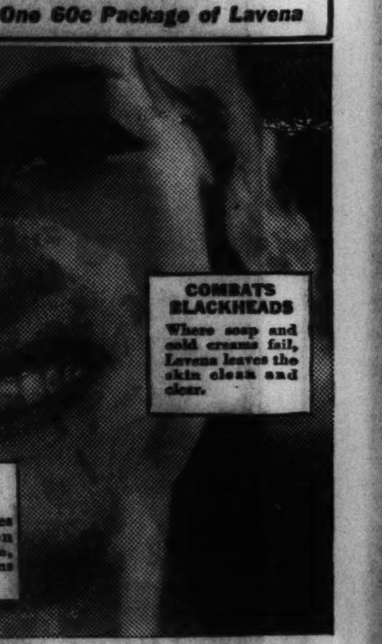
AMAZING EFFECT ON SKIN-BLEMISHES discovered in this WONDERFUL 2-MINUTE OATMEAL FACIAL

6 Jars of Treatment Cream in One 60c Package of Lavena



COMBATS LARGE PORES
A daily Lavena facial shrinks them back to normal. Deep-cleans them, too.

COMBATS BLACKHEADS
These soap and cold creams fail, Lavena leaves the skin clean and clear.

SOFTENS ROUGH-DRY SKIN
Rough, dry blotches disappear when Lavena's delicate, natural balm softens them.

At last a facial that deep-cleans, stimulates, absorbs excess oiliness. Leaves skin soft, clear and velvet-smooth.

If you don't believe Lavena is a miracle facial, then make this simple test. First cleanse your face with soap or with cold cream. Now! Moisten the palms of your hands, blend Lavena to a creamy lotion. Put it on. Wash it off. If your skin doesn't feel softer, more glowing, if it doesn't look cleaner, clearer, than soap or cold cream left it, we'll gladly give your money back. At all cosmetic counters.

LAVENA
The 2-Minute Oatmeal Facial

We guarantee to refund the price of Lavena if it does not perform exactly as we say.

Woman's Aid to Sponsor a Drama Program

Troupe of Radio Actors to Give Two Plays in Presentation on Friday.

THE Chicago Woman's Aid is bringing its summer activities to a close with an attractive program of two three act plays by a troupe of NBC radio players, to be given at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in the clubrooms, 185 North Wabash avenue.

MISS JOAN BLAINE.
[Maurice Seymour Photo.]

The plays, "Answer at Midnight" and "Afraid of Romance," will be presented just as they were over the air, using microphones and employing all the tricks of a real broadcasting station. Miss Joan Blaine will take the leading rôles in both presentations. Others in the casts include Douglas Hope, leading villain and director; Miss Jeanne Juvelier, Arthur Jacobson, and Bob Jellison. Mr. Jellison doubles as a messenger boy and the sound effects of a singing canary in "Afraid of Romance."

Chicago Woman's Club to Hear Reading of Comedy by Lansdale.

Of interest at the Chicago Woman's club this week is the reading which Miss Caroline Barr will give of Frederick Lansdale's comedy, "On Approval," at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. Miss Barr is a former director of the Chicago Drama league, and has charge of the dramatic work at the Children's Civic theater, Navy pier, which is directed by the drama league. Miss Barr is author of a book of plays for children, "Six Plays for Six Grades," and a number of adult one act plays and stories.

At 2 o'clock Tuesday Dr. Bertha Van Hoosen will speak on "Self-Control" before the Navy pier committee, of which Dr. Ione F. Beem is chairman. At 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the French play reading group will meet, and an afternoon of bridge has been arranged for members and guests.

One of the few summer meetings of the Woman's City club will be held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, when Miss Marianne Manning, dramatic reader, and Miss Eleanor Davis, pianist, will furnish the program. The performance will be held in the club lounge, a delightful place on a summer afternoon, for it has an extensive view of the lake. The club is located at 6 North Michigan avenue.

Activities of Catholic Groups Participate in Summertime Mood.

Activities in Catholic circles this week are rather in the summer mood. At the Catholic Woman's league, 410 South Michigan avenue, Mrs. John Vincent Hackett, second vice president and chairman of membership, will be hostess at a membership tea at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the league lounge. On Thursday afternoon members will gather for the usual afternoon of bridge and tea which is a feature of the summer program. During the warm weather the league is keeping its cool lounge open between 10 and 5 o'clock week days, and from 10 to 1 o'clock on Saturdays, for the convenience of its members.

The Illinois Club for Catholic Women, 111 East Pearson street, is holding its monthly meeting today. An original play by Mrs. James O'Callaghan, entitled "Life Passes," will be presented by members of the I. C. C. W., and will be followed by "The Purple Doorknob," given by the Laetare players of Mundelein college. Next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, a dessert bridge will be held at the club. On the committee for the party are Mrs. Walter O'Brien, Mrs. T. F. Fahey, and the Misses M. Louise Jones, Mae Burns, Eleanor Hogan, and Mary Deal.

Study Group on War Debts Is to Continue Through Summer.

Although the regular activities of the South Shore League of Women Voters have been suspended for the summer, Mrs. F. W. Souerbry, chairman of the department of international coöperation, is continuing her study group on the question of war debts. The group meets at 11 o'clock the second and fourth Wednesdays of the month in the community house of Bryn Mawr Community church, 7000 Jeffery avenue. This Wednesday Mrs. A. P. Anderson will summarize the congressional report of Jan. 29, 1935, of the debate on the world court as it relates to the subject of war debts. Mrs. D. W. Palmer will give a brief account of the background for the conflict between Italy and Ethiopia.

Writer members of the Matrix club will gather tomorrow night to hear Martin Stiever, of a publishing company, discuss "Writers as the Editor Sees Them." During the summer the club meets regularly at 7:30 o'clock Monday nights in its clubrooms at 75 East Wacker drive.

Protestant Women's Service Club to Hold Business Meeting.

The Protestant Women's Service club will hold a business meeting tomorrow at the summer home of Mrs. Carlton Prouty, the second vice president, in McHenry, Wis. On Thursday members will drive to the home of Mrs. F. Whitfield at Lake Marie, Ill., for a picnic followed by swimming, cards, and outdoor sports.

Of interest is the golden jubilee anniversary of the German Old People's home [Altenheim] which will be celebrated next Saturday from noon until midnight at the home, 7824 West Madison street, Forest Park. The first building of the home was erected in 1885, and since then the institution has grown steadily. Luncheon, supper, music, dancing, games, and a play by the junior auxiliary are on the celebration program.

The Prairie State club of the Illinois Federation of Woman's Clubs will hold its midsummer philanthropy party tomorrow at the Graemere hotel. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock, followed by cards.

IS FOND OF RACING

Miss Jean Westcott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Westcott of 1242 Lake Shore drive, made frequent trips during the last month to the Arlington Park race track from the Glen View club at Golf, where she and her parents are spending the summer months.

Occupational Bureau Assists College Girls

Nonprofit Organization Helps Educated Women in Finding Employment.

By Ruth DeYoung.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 20.—[Special.]—Although the National Federation of Business and Professional Women has indicated here the last week that the sweet girl graduate with the proper abilities and ambitions need have no fear of the future, there is one Chicago institution interested in learning what is going to happen to her during the next five years.

This is the Collegiate Bureau of Occupation, housed in an unpretentious office at 5 South Wabash avenue. Its carpet is worn, but then why shouldn't it be when 17,000 persons have crossed the threshold in the last twelve months?

Colleges and Universities Asked to Enroll Some of 1935 Graduates.

The bureau, through its director, Mrs. Miette Brugnot Denell, has just sent a letter to the vocational directors and appointment secretaries in all of the leading colleges and universities asking them for the enrollment of some of their 1935 graduates. This is being done without charge in order that the bureau may make a scientific study of their progress during the next half decade.

"We are going to make every effort to obtain positions for these students seeking them," explains Mrs. Denell, "and we will follow up each girl's personal and vocational history. In this way we hope to collect specific research data on the vocational progress, personal development, and salary ranges of graduates from three types of institutions, the coeducational university, the larger college for women, and the small college. Fortunately, I feel convinced, there is a pronounced upturn in the economic situation."

Many Employers Express Enthusiasm for Project.

Many employers have expressed enthusiasm over the project. Therefore it will be a means of increasing placement possibilities, of strengthening future vocational opportunities for college women in Chicago, and of obtaining comprehensive vocational information.

The Collegiate Bureau was established in 1912, in the era of long hair, high necked shirtwaists, and a decided attitude of suspicion toward any female who sought occupation in fields other than marriage or teaching. It was sponsored then, and still is, by the American Association of University Women and by the Chicago alumnae associations of leading colleges and universities.

The financing is handled on a coöperative plan. Donations from college alumnae associations and similar groups are used to support research, guidance, and promotional work. Office overhead and placement activities are met through reasonable fees on a percentage basis contributed to the bureau by each registrant for whom it obtains a position. The organization operates on a strictly nonprofit basis.

Present Conditions Make Function of the Bureau an Important One.

More than ever the bureau is filling an important bill today. Youngsters just out of school come for advice. Executives and professional people use the bureau as a clearing house for bigger connections. The older woman who finds much that she has built up swept away goes there for help. Of course there are those who defy classification, like the countess of excellent foreign background and education who had acquired the American gum chewing habit. Enrollment is limited to women with at least two full years or more of college or highly specialized training.

Mrs. Thomas J. Dee is president of the bureau board. She is supported by an executive committee that includes Miss Helen Norris, Mrs. Grace Hanbury, Miss True Kimball, Miss Marion Hanna, Miss Mary Zimmerman, Miss Marion Bebb, Miss Grace Coulter, and Mrs. Denell.

AT THE HORSE SHOW

Mrs. Murrel A. Kern took more than a passing interest in the horse show at which this picture was taken, for she, as owner of the Lexington Saddle farm at Palatine, had several entries in the show given at the Oakbrook polo field recently. The affair benefited the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago and was sponsored by the Hinsdale Junior Infant Welfare center.

British Body Fights to Stamp Out Bribery

Efforts in this country to stamp out bribery engage the attention not only of the authorities but of a LONDON private society called the Bribery and Secret Commissions Prevention league. That organization, in its June news sheet, says that since the first act for the prevention of corruption was passed in 1906 there have been 828 convictions for bribery in this country.

The little society gets its support largely from business men who want to see an end to the practice, said to be widespread, of giving secret commissions to employés. The London County council, which is a tremendous buyer of food supplies for its innumerable hospitals and infirmaries, has an ingenious system of double check.

Flower Shows Occupy Society in Berkshires

Lenox Exhibits, Under Mesdames Gibbs, Forbes, Reach New Highs.

PITTSFIELD, MASS. Mrs. W. Rockwood Gibbs of Rock Ridge farms, Richmond, and Mrs. George O. Forbes of Orchard farm, North Egremont, garden club leaders, helped to make the two day Lenox flower show, which closed yesterday the most successful in the history of the Lenox Horticultural society. The exhibits of the Richmond Garden club, which was founded eighteen years ago by Mrs. Gibbs, and of which she has been the only president, and of the Great Barrington Garden club of which Mrs. Forbes is the head, attracted much attention. Especially popular was the ideal garden in the center of the hall, which they created in coöperation with the Lenox Garden club, Mrs. Carl A. de Gersdorff of New York, president. Mrs. Gibbs gave a medal for the most outstanding exhibit in the show. There were 119 classes.

Col. and Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice are shown with Mount Hope Faithful, world champion cow which they raised at Mount Hope farm, Williamstown, in a news reel that was placed on the screen at a Williamstown theater. Col. and Mrs. Prentice were given a private showing before the pictures were placed on public view. Mr. Prentice recently completed writing a book on his success in raising blue ribbon stock at Mount Hope. He is also active in the revival of the Wililamstown Village Improvement society under the leadership of Charles Bulkley Hubbell, charter president of the old society. Mr. Hubbell was graduated from Williams college in 1874.

Miss Betsey Paddock to Wed George A. Holloway of Glencoe.

The wedding of Miss Betsey Paddock and George A. Holloway of New York City and Glencoe, Ill., is to take place this fall. It will not be a large event because of the death on May 22, last, of Miss Paddock's father, Dr. Brace W. Paddock, who for twenty-five years had been a leading Berkshire county physician. Dr. Paddock and his father, Dr. Frank K. Paddock, who died in 1901, were closely identified with the Pittsfield House of Mercy hospital of which each was chief of staf in his day.

The Bishop Memorial Training School for Nurses at the hospital was the gift of the late Henry Walker Bishop of Chicago in memory of his son, Henry W. Bishop, who died when a senior at Williams college. Miss Paddock's maternal grandfather, the late William R. Plunkett, for years was president of a New England life insurance company. The late Mrs. Frederick Goodrich Crane of Dalton was her aunt.

Mrs. Junkin to Visit Metzes at Fernbrook.

Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin of 179 Lake Shore drive, Chicago, is arriving next Thursday to be the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Metz at Fernbrook, Lenox, while en route to visit Mrs. Charles R. Crane on the north shore of Massachusetts. Miss Gisela Binz, pianiste, of Berlin, who is spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Metz, played at the garden party which Mrs. Metz gave for the Richmond Garden club.

SOME DAYS ARE PASSED AT GOLF CLUB

Mrs. Charles S. Connell, the former Barbara Graf, is one of the many brides who are learning to keep house in the Marshall Field Garden apartments. She is staying in town all summer, with occasional days in the country such as the one on which this picture was taken at the Chicago Golf club in Wheaton. Mrs. Connell is interested in several charities, including the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind and the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins.

Local Society Hastens Trek to New England

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H. Mr. and Mrs. J. Foster Smith of Chicago have just concluded an interesting visit with their son, Philip Horton Smith of Salem and Mrs. Smith, also their daughter, Mrs. John Z. Burgvin of Hué, Amman, Indo-China, who is paying a visit to this country for the summer. Philip Smith is architect for a magnificent feudal French château, to cost nearly half a million dollars, now being erected at Marblehead, Mass., for the Misses Lydia and Caroline Gove, heiresses to the fortune of the late Lydia Pinkham.

Miss Helen M. Wadsworth of Chicago was in a group attending a concert on Sunday evening at the Mountain View house, Whitefield. The program was given by the ensemble selected from members of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra.

Motoring through New England and breaking their journey at the Sunset Hill house on Sugar Hill are Mrs. B. E. Hamilton, Mrs. R. E. Wesley, and Mrs. Joseph Sherburn, all of Evanston.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham at Sugar Hill Estate.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham of Chicago, who is spending her usual summer at her Sugar Hill estate, has just leased her farmhouse on the same estate to Mrs. Worthen James of St. James, Mo. Mrs. Winterbotham accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Poole, and members of her party on Tuesday evening to the première of the Barnstormers, held at Peckett's Hayloft theater in a huge barn at Sugar Hill. Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall of Chicago and Greenwich, Conn., who are passing the summer at the Sunset Hill house, Sugar Hill, were there; also Mrs. Hill Griffith, formerly Miss Philipson of Chicago, and a party of her guests from Hotel Moulton at Lisbon, where she is passing the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Fleming of Evanston are late arrivals at Lovett's by Lafayette Brook in Franconia.

Arriving at the historic Crawford house, Crawford Notch, for a short sojourn this week were the Misses G. and D. Dodd, with Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Halm, all of Chicago. They are making a comprehensive tour of the White mountains.

Spending a few days and playing golf at the Mountain View house at Whitefield are Mr. F. T. Cahill and Mr. A. J. Mayer, both of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Paul Parker of Evanston, with their family, are at the Maplewood club for a short sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Driscoll of Chicago have visited many of the mountain resorts, including the Mount Washington at Bretton woods, Polly's place at Colebrook, The Balsams at Dixville Notch, and the Maplewood club. They are touring many other of the eastern resorts, Macks to Spend Season at Dixville Notch.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Mack of Chicago, after a leisurely motor tour via Cleveland and Buffalo, have now arrived at The Balsams, Dixville Notch, to spend the season, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Mark Whitman, who lately returned to join Mr. Whitman there after visiting the Macks in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Tennant of Chicago are paying their annual visit to Peckett's on Sugar Hill in the White mountains, meeting many acquaintances made there last season. They attended the Barnstormers' play, "Beggarman, Thief," presented on Tuesday evening at Peckett's Hayloft theater.

Miss Hazel Botts and Miss Blanche Nixon of Peoria have arrived to visit the Forest Hills hotel, Franconia.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Coonley of Chicago usually come from their farm on the shores of Lake Sunapee at some time during the season to visit the White mountain resorts. Their summers formerly were spent in the hills.

Mrs. Peter S. Theurer and Miss Theurer and Mrs. E. M. Pfister of Chicago are late arrivals at the Crawford house, Crawford Notch.

Many Chicagoans Are Vacationing at Narragansett

NARRAGANSETT, R. I. Mrs. W. R. Barker and daughter, Miss Margaret Barker, of Chicago were guests at the Dunes club this last week. Mrs. J. Tuetle of Chicago was also registered there. H. W. Fleming of Chicago is spending his summer vacation at a hotel here.

The tennis tournaments at the Point Judith Country club started Monday and the men's handicap tennis tournaments began Saturday.

Benefit Sale at Watch Hill to Be Brilliant Event

Exhibit at Holiday House Will Aid Greek Women Striving for Support.

WATCH HILL, R. I. One of the most brilliant social events of the season at Watch Hill will take place on July 24 and 25. Mrs. George G. Snowden of Philadelphia is opening her home, Holiday house, to the public for the Relief of the Greek Women. The affair will be an exhibition of articles for sale made by the Greek women who are striving for self-support and the betterment of their existing conditions. This worthy charity was started before the world war.

Tea will be served on the terrace overlooking the Atlantic ocean both afternoons. Mrs. William J. Chalmers is one of the women interested in the affair.

Hibbards Guests of Bartletts at Beverly.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard left Wednesday by motor for Beverly, Mass., to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Bartlett for the remainder of the week.

Harry Potter of New York City was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West at Stoneleigh. Miss Betty West, the West's debutante daughter, is seen almost daily at the Misquamicut Golf club playing tennis and is fast developing into one of the best players around here.

E. F. Gore, J. T. Edwards, and Garland Ferguson of Chicago spent the last week at Ocean house.

Sailboat races are held Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at the Yacht club. Hubbard Phelps is among the contestants.

Mrs. Phelps to Defend Her Golf Title.

The prize for the Sunday afternoon putting tournament was donated this week by Hunter S. Marston of New York.

Mrs. Louise De Koven Phelps, chairman of women's golf at the Misquamicut Golf club, and present club champion, was a participant this week in the invitation golf tournament at the Shenacossett club in New London.

The women's club championship golf tournament is scheduled to begin July 29, at which time Mrs. Phelps will have an opportunity to defend her title.

Meadowcrest, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Shinkle of St. Louis, remains unopened at the present time. Mr. Shinkle has been ill. However, they are expected here later in the season.

FLAIR FOR WRITING

Interested in all things artistic is Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, the former Mary Meeker. She has a flair for interior decoration and writing, and her husband is one of the city's well known architects. She is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker.

"THIS BOY JOE"

A BRILLIANT NEW SERIAL

by

Booth Tarkington

● As he said himself: "I'm just Joe Hadley, about nineteen, and not distinguished—except I've had the police looking for me and not finding me."

Joe Hadley was a blundering, groping lad, instinctively decent. Until life cracked his eyes wide open, he was something of a sap, lovable to be sure, but a sap. He thought it was the height of sophistication to go night-lifing with Yeastie Marshall.

To Joe, Yeastie personified the perfect pal. To Yeastie, small-town slicker and auto thief, Joe was just a dumb kluck, an easily dazzled boob who, without knowing it, could be made an accomplice in crime. That's how the police came to be after Joe.

"This Boy Joe" takes rank with the immortal "Penrod." It is as profoundly searching as "Alice Adams," as deeply human as "Seventeen." In "This Boy Joe," Booth Tarkington, America's most beloved living novelist, has written a gripping epic of the average boy.

Every parent, every adult who remembers his own youthful doubts, should read "This Boy Joe." This masterly serial starts today in the Graphic Weekly section of the

How to Remove Leg or Arm Hair In 3 Minutes

Without Making It Grow Faster, Coarser or Stubbier

OH BOY! THERE'S A BAD GROWTH BUT IT'LL TAKE ME ONLY A MINUTE TO MAKE IT FALL OUT
KNOWING WHAT TO DO IS ALL THERE IS TO IT— I'VE MADE HER LOOK LOVELY—AND I DON'T SMELL BAD AND THERE'S NO DANGER OF ME CAUSING A FASTER, COARSER OR STUBBIER NEW GROWTH
DE MIRACLE

Hair Simply Falls Out This Easy, New Way

NO RAZOR; no dread of causing a stiffer, faster, stubble-like new growth. No messy pastes or powders; no red skin and no terribly offensive odor, strong enough to "smell up your whole house." Instead a marvelous liquid discovery, entirely new to most women, that makes hair fall right out and leaves "no dark hair root shadow." A new, quick, 3-minute easy way that is as harmless as washing your skin with soap and water—a way that simply cannot make hair grow faster, stiffer or coarser, because it actually discourages the growth of hair itself. See the ugly, hairy skin replaced by the soft, smooth beauty of a clear, hair-free skin.

Just do this

And get rid of ugly leg or arm hair entirely without encouraging a coarse stubble-like new growth

What To Do

There are just two simple easy things to do. First pat skin lightly with De Miracle, as this new miraculous-like liquid discovery is called—wait 2 or 3 minutes, then wash hair away with water—pleasant, easy, quick and inexpensive. See how smooth, clear, youthful and free of hair it leaves your skin. Be happier and perhaps more unafraid of letting others see your skin than you ever have in your life.

Will You Make This No Risk Test?

Will you test DE MIRACLE without risking a cent? Then get a bottle of DE MIRACLE at any drug or department store today. 60c, $1 and $2 sizes. Chicago Parks to Have Series of Art Exhibits Museums and Collections to Lend Best Works for Temporary Displays.

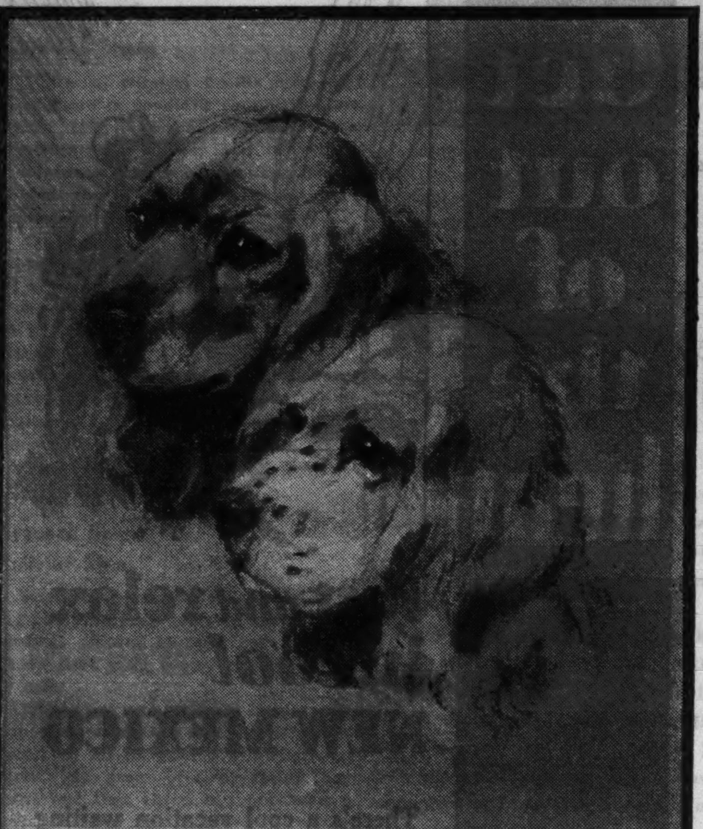
By Eleanor Jewett.

THERE were rumors all last winter, at each meeting of the Municipal Art league's board of directors, for instance, that something new in cultural lines was on the tapis for Chicago parks. Charles Fabens Kelly, dean of the Art institute school, outlined prospective plans for changing exhibits of paintings and handicrafts in the various park fieldhouses. A greater stir of interest was at work underneath all the talk, and the suggested plans have materialized recently in the action of R. J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, who announced the appointment of a special committee of representative citizens to stimulate greater popular interest in music and the other fine arts in the parks and recreation centers of Chicago.

It is planned that this committee—the citizens' committee on art and music in the Chicago park district—will secure exhibits of fine art and commercial art from the different museums and collections available in Chicago and elsewhere for temporary display from time to time in the park buildings scattered throughout all sections of the city. There are more than eighty of these buildings available. In addition to exhibits of paintings, sculpture, and the graphic arts and crafts, the committee will develop and foster musical events, dramatic and festival performances and other similar activities of cultural value in all parts of the park district.



A SENSITIVE INTERPRETATION

"A Pair of Cockers," by Ted Vognild, the most entrancing painting in the current All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts Professional Members' exhibition at the Stevens hotel. Miss Vognild knows dogs and paints them with magnificent sincerity.

Elizabeth Haseltine's Sculpture in Jackson Park.

Chauncey McCormick, vice president of the Art institute, is chairman of the committee, among whose members are Potter Palmer, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. C. B. Goodspeed, Charles H. Worcester, Robert B. Harshe, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Thomas E. Tallmadge, Jerzy Bojanowsky, Dr. Ernest Bloomfield Zeisler, John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Maude Robert George, the Rev. Edwin Hoover, Edgar Nelson, Dr. Frederick A. Stock, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, and John F. Cuneo.

The committee has an enormous field before it and an unrivaled opportunity for making Chicago the finest playground in the country, with amusements that are distinctly worth while. In line with this project comes the news from Elizabeth Haseltine, sculptor, of her latest work, three wood carvings which have just been placed in the Japanese garden on the Wooded Island in Jackson park. The figures are carved from tulip wood and are slightly over life size. They represent a squirrel, a kingfisher, and a great blue heron. They have been most attractively placed. The squirrel and the kingfisher stand in the water among lily pads and the heron, a philosophical bird, is on a tiny island surrounded by dwarf iris. Robert E. Moore was the landscape architect for the garden, which is fascinating.

Barr Makes Unusual Use of Colors in Theater Costumes.

Another project which Chicago has been enjoying is also related to the park board scheme. A share in it belonged to Mandel's, where in the Blue room, 8th floor, an exhibit of costume designs and sets by Kenn Barr was on display from June 24. The exhibition had to do chiefly with the costume designs for the production of "Theodora," given on the Field museum steps. Mr. Barr made these for the park director as a special favor for virtually nothing—a thousand costumes!—for which he dyed all the materials also. A few other designs were in the Mandel show and he plans later to exhibit more in connection with the dramatic productions that are to be given in Chicago in the parks by the American Art theater.

Mr. Barr's designs are individual, and he makes a brilliant use of vivid color. He is a young man, still in his early twenties, but he has an unusual acquaintance with the stage. In his theater work he has developed a psychology in his use of color which is based on tests made on audiences of children and adults. Most of his work has been done in Minneapolis, where he is famous for his ability and clever technique. Among his sets for the American Art Theater company are those for "Hamlet," "Romeo and Juliet," the "Ur Faust," and Milne's "The Ivory Door."

The American Art theater promises us soon several distinctly worth while productions, better even than the musical "Theodora." The park commissioners are to be congratulated upon inspiring a movement that has so many thrilling divisions—art, drama, and music.

NEWS OF ART AND ARTISTS

The summer shows open this Thursday in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. William S. Schwartz, Francis Chapin, and their confrères promise an interesting group of modern paintings.

Stark Davis, Palette, and Chisel academy member and noted Chicago painter of birds and decorative canvases, is in Hollywood painting for the movies. Last summer several overmantels of his for movie stars created a distinct sensation.

Jamey Dulin, former Chicago newspaper man, who has studied abroad, painting in Paris, is conducting Ruth Van Sickle Ford's summer illustration class during August at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts. Mrs. Ford is leaving for a vacation month of traveling and painting.

The Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, is showing paintings, water colors, and prints by Stanley Bielecky of East Chicago, Ind., through July 31. This is Mr. Bielecky's first one man show in Chicago. He exhibited for the first time in the last annual Hoosier salon in the Marshall Feld galleries in January.

A one man exhibit by Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, Chicago painter, is the attraction in the Old White Art gallery, The Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs. Among the paintings shown are "Into the World Came a Soul Called Ida," "I Have Slept with the Starlight in My Face," "I Drew a Picture in the Sand and the Water Washed it Away," "Memories of the Past," and "Woman."

Tourists Stage New Gold Rush to Black Hills

Will Leave $9,000,000 There This Season; Little Gold Digging Is Seen.

By Hal Foust.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 15.—[By mail.]—There's another gold rush to the Black Hills here this summer. In the late '70s prospectors invaded these mountains of the Sioux reservation on the strength of Gen. Custer's reports of traces of the precious metal. This year the invaders are tourists, leaving gold in their wake.

The tourist business this year, bigger than in the boom seasons of '27 and '28, is bringing $9,000,000 to this state in the hands of 450,000 recreational travelers. The estimate is made by Ray Bronson of the local chamber of commerce and of the U. S. 14 association.

The hardy adventurers who came here seeking gold were met by hostile Indians. The tenderfeet arriving with vacation gold to spend are met with cordial welcomes.

Glad Hand Replaces Tomahawk.

The majority of the prospectors, seeking easy money from nature, met with disappointment, many of them with death at the hands of the Sioux. The 1935 visitors, seeking merely a communion with nature, are not disappointed.

The name, Black Hills, gives no hint of the grandeur of its saddle paths, its hiking trails, and its roads. The Indians gave the mountains this misnomer, Paha Sapa, because from the hot, arid, and treeless plateau. The peaks, covered with yellow pine and balsam, are dark rises on the horizon.

The late Calvin Coolidge, in vacationing here from the White House in 1927, did much to publicize the natural attractions of this area. But easterners seem to have forgotten the news stories of eight years ago, telling of the President catching trout in beautiful mountain streams or ascending slopes for grand vistas.

Ninety per cent of the tourists from east of the Mississippi river merely pause here en route to the Rockies or to the west coast, says Mr. Bronson.

There are at least a couple of hundred miles of highway—served by buses from the railroad station here—that have scenic merit appreciable by the most blasé traveler. U. S. 16, meandering south through Custer State park, climbs lofty ranges, penetrates heavy forests perfumed by evergreens, and enters ravines carpeted with wild flowers and bordered by sheer limestone and granite walls carved into queer shapes by centuries of wind and rain erosion.

Through a Geological Menagerie.

On this road there are at least two vehicular tunnels where the exit frames a distant portrait of George Washington, carved by Gutzon Borglum on Mount Rushmore. The face is 69 feet high from hair line to point of chin.

Another drive travels through a geological menagerie bearing the name of The Needles. As might be guessed by the name, rocks shaped somewhat remotely like a sewing utensil rise 400 to 600 feet, precariously balanced on their small bases. Deer, protected in the Custer State park, 126,000 acres in area, wander across the highway.

There are log cabins, saddle horses, lodges, and fishing streams awaiting the use of visitors at reasonable rates. In one of the better known lodges this reporter paid $3.75 a night for himself, wife, and child. A three room new log cabin, furnished, situated at the base of a precipitous cliff, with a trout stream passing the front door, and shaded by virgin yellow pine and fragrant balsam, was priced at $2 a night for two persons.

In this tourist gold rush of 1935 there seems to be little gold digging.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations, to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How large is London? —M. P.

It has an area of 811 square miles and a population of 8,000,000. It is generally considered the world's largest city, although that claim is sometimes disputed by New York. In addition to the Old City of London, once enclosed by walls, there are twenty-eight metropolitan boroughs. Greater London is approximately thirty miles in diameter.

How long before the season closes in Yellowstone park? —N. D.

The official season usually ends around the middle of September.

What and where is the world's smallest republic? —T. W. K.

San Marino, fourteen miles from Rimini in Italy, is not only the smallest but the oldest. On its mountain plateau it is so inaccessible that tourists often go up into the clouds before they find it.

Is there any place in Chicago where I can get help on planning a vacation in Wisconsin? —G. E.

Write, phone, or call upon the Wisconsin Resort bureau at 180 North Michigan avenue.

I have heard of a seven day combined rail and water tour from Chicago to New York, including Washington, Niagara Falls, and Mackinac. Can you tell me who operates it and where I can get further information on it?—B. R.

It is operated jointly by the Baltimore and Ohio and the New York Central railroads and the Chicago, Duluth and Georgian Bay Transit company. Write the Baltimore and Ohio passenger trafic department at the Grand Central station in Chicago.

How can we be assured of reasonable hotel and restaurant rates in France?—L. B.

Write the national tourist office of the French ministry of public works at 610 5th avenue, New York City. The office guarantees the rates in resorts, historic points, watering places, and cities usually visited by travelers in France.

Air Conditioning of Trains Called Health Measure

THE $19,000,000 air conditioning program recently completed by western railroads is a decided contribution to the health as well as the comfort of the traveling public, says a letter received by Harry G. Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives. The writer was Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health.

"It is timely to congratulate the executives of the western railroads on the progressive steps they have taken in air conditioning their principal trains," said Dr. Bundesen.

"This contribution to the health and comfort of the traveling public should do much to stimulate rail travel through the west this summer. It should give encouragement to those who in the past have suffered because of atmospheric conditions associated with cross-country travel, especially those who are afflicted with hay fever. Small children who have difficulty in compensation for excessive heat will not experience a measure of relief."

Lake Steamers Rival Big Ones in Safety Devices

Officials Point Out Freedom from Major Accidents in Last 20 Years.

THE ships that ply the Great Lakes are smaller than those on the ocean lanes, but in construction, equipment, and appointment they closely rival their big sisters. This was set forth yesterday by officials of the operating companies as the summer cruising season reached its height.

Ranging in size from 250 to 500 feet, and in tonnage from 2,000 to 5,000, the passenger fleet is held to be ideally adapted to lake travel. The technical equipment is the same as that on the high seas, with the exception of those navigating instruments essential to the crossing of vast expanses of water.

In Constant Touch with the Shore.

Powerful wireless outfits keep ship and shore in constant communication, while telephone and public address systems provide easy and convenient communication aboard. To this is added the constant vigilance maintained by the federal government.

From boiler room to top deck the government inspectors test every bit of apparatus on each vessel. They set the passenger load maximums and see to it that their regulations are rigidly adhered to.

Many of the personnel of the liners have worked together for years. One captain has served fifty years without an accident. They are given credit for having achieved a high state of efficiency.

Staunch Ships Built of Steel.

Because the ships are small floating communities, many of them carry medical officers to take care of any needs that may occur between ports of call.

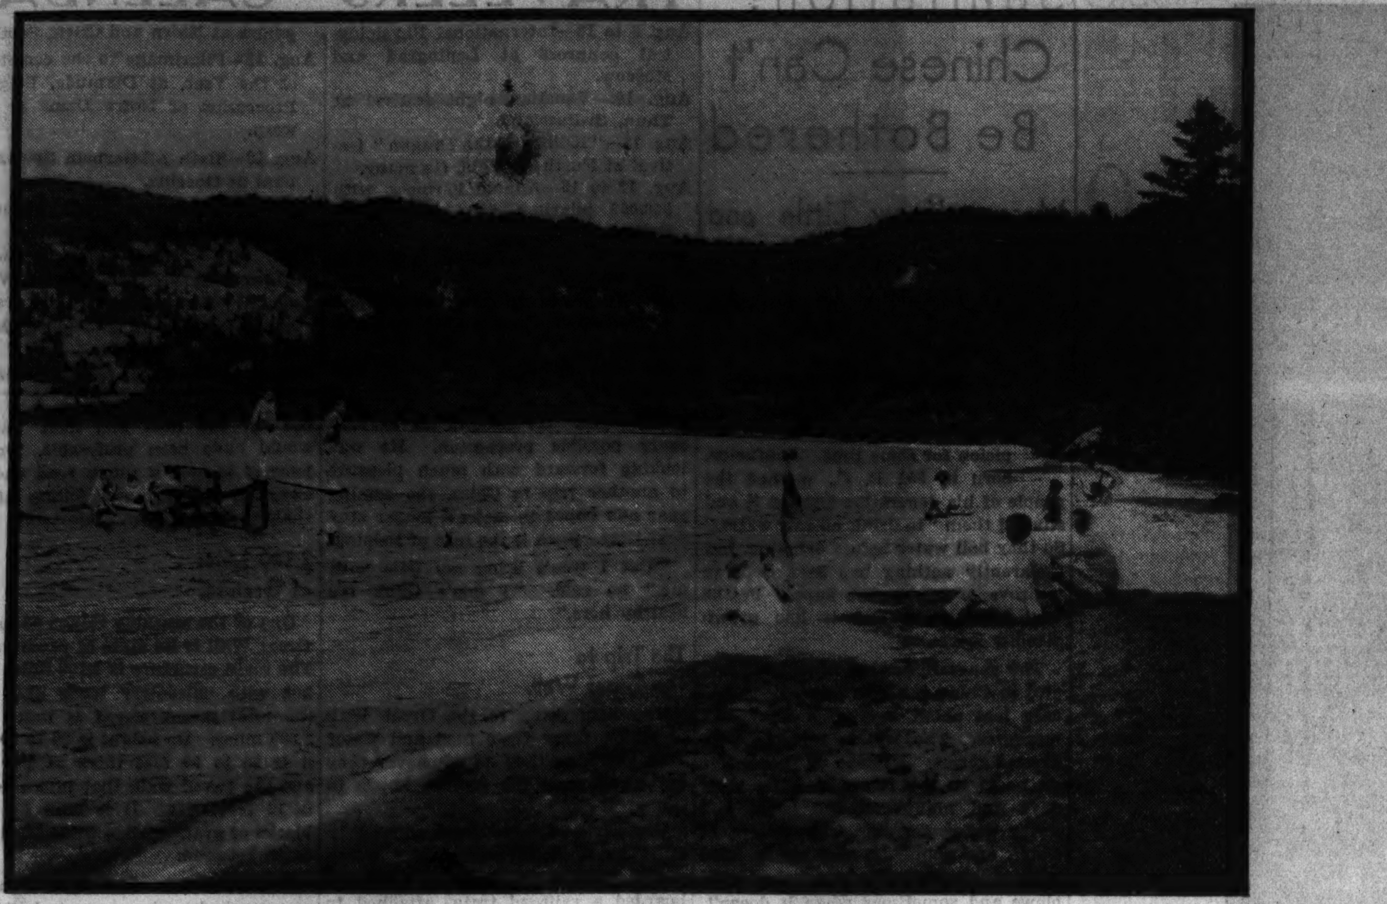
Officials of the various lines maintain they have the finest fleet to be found on inland waters anywhere on earth. As proof of their claim they point out that there has not been a major disaster on the lakes in twenty years.

In the early days many of the boats were wooden and none too safe. Nowadays they are stanchly made of steel. They leave Chicago daily for the resorts and cities on the five lakes, and this season they are attracting unusually large crowds.

That is the background against which the lakes pageant moves each summer.

Hungarians Seek Raise.

BUDAPEST.—(AP)—Hungarian clothing trade workers are agitating for a 50 per cent raise in piece work rates. The pay for sewing a pair of trousers is 3 cents and for a whole suit 35 cents.



TAKING LIFE EASY ON A BEACH AT TADOUSSAC

While salt water bathing is quite safe at Tadoussac, in eastern Canada, many visitors prefer the quieter surroundings of a fresh water lake. This picture shows a lake a few minutes' walk from the leading hotel there.

Escorted Tours of America Now Rival Those of Old World

ESCORTED tours, which first became popular for people traveling abroad, in recent years have been developed with equal satisfaction for those who would see America first.

While there are no foreign languages or custom officials to bother one at home, the escorted tour has proved its advantage in permitting one to get more enjoyment out of his vacation and at the same time cover more ground at less cost than if one attempted to manage his own trip.

Everything is paid for in advance in a lump sum covering all necessary expenses attending first class travel. A travel expert accompanies each party as business manager.

The complete route going and coming back is definitly established beforehand. Pullman space, meals, and lodgings at hotels and inns, railroad transportation, meals in dining cars, and sightseeing trips by motor are all scheduled. One knows what the expense will be before he starts.

More than two hundred tours are being operated this summer to the west. Schedules can be arranged for thirteen days as the standard time allowance for seeing two or more national parks. A seven day tour can be taken to include only Glacier national. Another choice is Yellowstone and Colorado for ten days. If one has three weeks the tour may include California, the Pacific northwest, and the Canadian Rockies. One circle trip is routed through Denver, Salt Lake City, and Los Angeles, and then up the coast as far as Vancouver and back through Canada.

Cigaret Boxes Call for Army Recruits

PARIS—(AP)—France is seeking recruits for its army from among its cigaret smokers. Cards bearing exotic colonial scenes on one side and an invitation to join the colonial troops on the other side are included in the government tobacco monopoly's cigaret packages.

"Visit far countries while preparing for your return to civilian life," is the offer addressed particularly to conscripts who have just completed their compulsory service.

Yachting Fans Go to Mackinac for Finish of Race

A NUMBER of yachting enthusiasts this year are turning into a week's vacation their visit to Mackinac Island to see the finish of the Chicago Yacht club race. Leaving last Thursday night on the Seeandbee, they arrived at the island Friday morning and since then have been taking a holiday while waiting for the finish of the 320 mile race some time tomorrow. They expect to return on the Seeandbee next Thursday morning. The thirty-fifth annual meet started yesterday from Chicago.

Beginning today the City of Hancock will go into hourly service on Lake Michigan from the east end of Navy pier. It has been reconditioned throughout. Capt. W. J. Petroskey, formerly of the S. S. Manitou, will be in charge.

The Detroit and Cleveland Navigation company, operating the steamships Eastern States and Western States between Chicago, Mackinac Island, St. Ignace, and Detroit, this month is running special cruises each Tuesday.

The Chicago, Duluth and Georgian Bay Transit company, known as the Georgian Bay Line, this season is operating all expense water and land vacation trips, ranging from nine to fourteen days, in conjunction with a hotel in the heart of the Ontario resort country. The oil burning liners South American and North American are being used.

Officers of the steamers cruising the Great Lakes relate that so far the 1935 business has been heavier than that of 1934, in spite of the loss of last year's World's Fair visitors.

Modern Theater in Armenian City

ERIVAN, U. S. S. R.—(AP)—A monumental theater with a stage opening on indoor and outside auditoriums which can be used separately or jointly is going up here as a cultural center for the capital of the Armenian soviet republic.

The stage can be divided with a movable, soundproof partition, so that independent productions can be shown to different audiences simultaneously.

Lawyers and Doctors Head Traveler List

Attorneys Sail for Honolulu; Physicians Leave for Leningrad and London.

PROFESSIONAL groups headed the list of departing travelers last week—the doctors bound for Europe and lawyers for Hawaii.

Following the convention of the American Bar association in Los Angeles, 125 attorneys sailed yesterday on the Matson line's Malola for Honolulu. They will tour the islands in response to an invitation extended by Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter. Included in the party are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rogers, Miss Hilda A. Johnson, John McCarthy, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Huxley and daughter, all of Chicago; George Wilson of Quincy, Ill., and Jesse Miller of Des Moines.

Prof. A. J. Carlson, chairman of the department of physiology of the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Carlson headed a large group leaving Friday on the Cunard-White Star line's Laconia for the 15th international physiological congress, to be held in Leningrad and Moscow Aug. 8 to 18. Prof. A. C. Ivy, chairman of the department at Northwestern university, and Dr. James S. McLester, president of the American Medical association, will be among those leaving next Friday on the Berengaria.

Neurologists Meet in London.

Others on their way to the congress are Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Abt, Dr. Samuel Broder, Dr. P. W. Salit, Dr. Eugene Falstein, Dr. Frances Prosterman, Dr. and Mrs. Arnold Lieberman, Dr. Belle Korman, A. Korman, and Miss B. Korman, all of Chicago, and Mrs. Edith Mitchell Ennis, Miss June Ennis, Dr. Mary Gilruth McEwen, and Dr. Ernest McEwen, all of Evanston. A number of them will also take in the International Congress of Neurologists in London.

Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Stone and Dr. Victor L. Schrager sailed on the Manhattan Wednesday for the London meetings. Dr. Percival Bailey and Dr. Basil C. H. Harvey, both of the University of Chicago, left earlier in the month on the Antonia, and Dr. George W. Hall went over on the Normandie in June to travel and play golf before attending the sessions.

Aboard the Ile de France when it set out from New York yesterday were Dr. and Mrs. Isadore Trace, Dr. George Halperin, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Halperin, Miss Lucille Halperin, Dr. and Mrs. Martin Zeisler, and Karl Zeisler.

Three members of the faculty of the Northwestern university dental school—Dean Arthur D. Black, Dr. Karl LeRoy Vehe, and Dr. Stanley Clark—left on the Laconia for London, where they will attend the convention of the American Dental Society of Europe.

Three Doctors Sail from Montreal.

Sailing from Montreal Friday on the Canadian Pacific's Duchess of York were Dr. and Mrs. John Leeming, Dr. M. M. Kunde, and Dr. Bernard Mortimer, en route to Leningrad; Oscar Van Pevenage, Mrs. Louisa Sinke, Samuel Johnston, and Miss Ellen Tracey, debarking at Liverpool; the Rev. T. D. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Nesbitt and Miss Elizabeth Nesbitt, for Belfast, and Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Zinser and Miss Evelyn R. Zinser, for Glasgow. Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. McIntosh and their two daughters of Milwaukee were joined at Montreal by Dr. Charles G. Mixter of Brookline, Mass., and left on the Duchess of York for Glasgow, whence they will go to shoot over a grouse moor which Mr. McIntosh has rented for the season.

Among those sailing on the Stuttgart of the Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd yesterday from New York were Mr. and Mrs. George Schneider of Chicago, who have been making regular trips to Europe on German ships since 1893, and Mr. and Mrs. Heinz Hilbert of Milwaukee. Leaving on the Albert Ballin next Thursday will be G. J. Glover, Alfred Wemmer, Mrs. A. Schueren, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Alsted and Miss Mary Alsted, all of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Gillen of Milwaukee, and William Schmoeller of Omaha.

To Visit Italy in the Autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Howland are embarking Tuesday on the Conte di Savoia for Italy. They will spend two weeks in Naples and then go to Stresa, on Lake Maggiore, where they will remain throughout the autumn. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fitzgerald, Mario Fishcetti, and Mrs. A. F. Musson are other Chicagoans planning to take the Conte di Savoia.

Miss Carol Hyatt, Miss Rita Ryan, and C. B. Davies sailed Friday on the American Merchant. Arnold McLeod and his sons, John and Donald, took the Majestic for a lengthy stay in rural England. Fellow passengers were Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Grimm and E. V. Vickory, the latter of Hinsdale. On the Alaunia when it left Montreal Friday were the Rev. and Mrs. Albert E. Taylor and their son of Dundee and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Matthias of Park Ridge. On the Ile de France were Mrs. Joseph Langlands, Eugene J. Pollack, Miss Amy Wolf, S. Walker, Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Ackerman, S. Berger, and Henry Buchman.

Dozen Leave for the Orient.

Twelve Chicagoans started from Portland, Ore., for the orient Tuesday on the General Lee of the States Steamship line. Nine of them will confine their traveling to the far east; the other three are on their way around the world.

W. B. Taylor Sr. and his grandson, Arnold B. Taylor, will visit Japan, China, and the Philippines. Another grandson, C. H. Taylor Jr., will continue westward with a Northwestern university classmate, W. B. Mock. William C. Dickey also will circle the globe. Other passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Orcutt, who will spend the winter in Korea; James A. Black, Mrs. Clara L. Reed, Richard Reed, John P. McCarthy, and Vernon J. Morris.

Historic Tomb Found.

TOKIO.—(AP)—When Tokio planned a memorial to Shinano-no-Kami, official who acted as intermediary for the government with Commodore Perry, his 73 year old grandson, Tsurukichi Inouye, was discovered as an inmate of a municipal charity home. Through him they found the grave of the "go-between," marked by a Buddhist monument.

Yankees Invade British Isles in Vast Numbers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 20.—The biggest British invasion by American tourists in six years is now taking place. Shipping companies and tourist agencies report that the British Isles will receive a higher percentage of American trafic to Europe than at any time since the war.

Tourist agencies in London are doing a roaring business and one agency has had to triple its staf to deal with the queues of American visitors booking tours to various parts of England. As in previous years, the lake district, Shakespeare's country, and the cathedral and university cities are the most popular objectives. Ireland, Scotland, and Wales are also attracting large numbers.

Americans are using English air lines in order to tour the islands more rapidly. One agency reports that its air bookings have increased by 300 per cent over last year's figures. It is noticed also that American tourists are staying longer in Britain this year than in past years. The majority are not booked to return for seven or eight weeks.

Air Fares at Rail Level Announced

AIR fares no higher than standard rail plus Pullman rates were announced yesterday by Carleton Putnam, president of Chicago and Southern Air lines. The new rates will be a summer excursion arrangement, said Mr. Putnam, with a 10 per cent reduction for round trips.

On Chicago and Southern Air lines trips where railroads offer parlor car chair space the same rate will prevail. Between points offering only Pullman sleeper space the air rate will be based on regular rail fare plus lower berth. On the average, according to Mr. Putnam, the rates over the Chicago and Southern Air lines system will be about 3¾ cents a mile.

Sanitation? Chinese Can't Be Bothered

Masses Know Little and Care Less About Modern Health Measures.

By Mason Warner.

PEIPING, China.—The water supply of China has been under suspicion for some time. Confucius, born in 551 B. C., warned the people of his generation against it and advised them "to drink no raw water." So they boil water before drinking, but apparently nothing has been done to improve or purify the supply in the last 2,385 years and it has grown steadily worse.

The generations that have lived and died in China for ages know little and care less about sanitation or health measures. The soil is infected with disease germs. Millions of people live on boats in the rivers, passing their days and nights on the boats and never going ashore. The waters of China are polluted. The air is filled with fine dust whenever the wind blows and sometimes when it doesn't, so the very air that is breathed can deal death to the unwary.

An Extra Careful American.

I do not think living in China is as dangerous to health as many say it is. Neither do I agree with those who assert traveling in China is as safe as in the United States. However, I am convinced that the idea of health preservation can be overdone.

In Peiping I met an American importer who was making his eleventh trip to China. He advised me to put an antiseptic salve in my nostrils every morning, gargle with another before and after every meal, apply a foot powder to prevent "Hongkong foot," wear a cholera belt, and be provided with an eye salve for trachoma and medicine for "Peking throat." Before leaving home he was vaccinated as a protection against smallpox, was "shot" for cholera, and had several antityphus inoculations. He assured me he took every possible precaution. He was looking forward with much pleasure to another trip to China the coming year and hoped to make a longer stay next time. Such is the lure of Peiping.

"But I won't bring my wife with me," he said. "I don't think it's healthy here."

The Trip to the Great Wall.

Travelers going to the Great Wall of China carry their food and water with them, as they do whenever they get away from the foreign hotels in China.

Our party of three drove about fifty miles by auto, through half a dozen walled villages, to Nankow, where we boarded a railroad train, attached to which was an "observation car." The latter was a flat car, with a wrought iron railing running along the sides, a top to keep the sun's rays off. Securely screwed to the floor were twelve large and hard wooden armchairs, with no upholstery nor cushions.

The railroad runs parallel to the ancient camel trail through Nankow pass, and we passed seven or eight camel caravans and scores of donkeys and carts. And many high wheeled, squeaking wheelbarrows, for man power is so cheap in China that they transport grain, coal, and other heavy freight long distances by wheelbarrow.

After passing through the Great Wall the railroad ends at the village of Chien Lung Chiao, from which point tourists are carried two miles back to the wall in sedan chairs. Each chair is carried by four coolies. If it were not for the heat and dust walking would have been preferable, for the journey is over a rough road and the swaying, jerking, and jolting of the chair is decidedly uncomfortable.

2,500 Miles of Granite.

One of the amazing things about the Great Wall is its state of preservation. The main structure is 1,700 miles long, but with subsidiary walls and loops the total measurement is more than 2,500 miles. Its height is 20 to 50 feet; it is 20 to 30 feet thick at the base and the paved walk that tops the wall is 12 feet wide. It is built of great blocks of granite—two walls filled with earth between.

Tradition says more than a million men worked twelve years to build this wall that winds its way westward from the sea, over hill and dale, mountain and valley, twisting and turning, with high defense towers at distances of 150 to 200 yards along the entire way—a barrier against the warlike Tartar hordes that attacked again and again throughout the years. As a feat of huge engineering achievement it stands unsurpassed, and it has stood more than 2,200 years, for it was built in the third century B. C. Its top is paved with granite blocks, about 12 by 4 by 3 inches, and could serve as a parade ground today.

The Animals Change Guard.

On our return to Peiping from the Great Wall we detoured to the Ming tombs, which occupy a beautiful valley, with the tombs on the slopes of wooded hills.

From the tremendous white marble outer gateway of five wide and high arches to the first, or middle, tomb is three miles through the "Holy Way," a broad avenue guarded on each side by statues of war lords and civic magistrates and stone images of elephants, camels, lions, horses, and unicorns.

The stone animals are in fours—two standing guard and two kneeling or resting. Our guide informed us that these animals change guard during the night. The recumbent figures rise and take their place on guard and those which have been standing lie down and rest. It seems that only those possessed of much faith can see the performance. None of our party cared to wait for the act, especially after the guide explained that it was done so quickly the eye could not always follow it. Frequently only the rustle of the grass for an instant, sometimes not even heard, gives notice that the guard has been changed.

Silence That Is Startlingly Thrilling.

Nowadays there are few strangers who come to gaze on the departed glories of old Peking. Those who do come look and wonder at the surpassingly beautiful Temple of Heaven, the Altar of Heaven, the Lama monastery with its gargantuan Buddha, the Temple of Confucius, the splendid winter palace, the summer palace, with its lovely lake and wonderful marble boat; the Yellow temple, the Mohammedan mosque—objects of interest so numerous as to forbid simple listing.

If silence can be termed dramatic there are three places in and near Peiping where the silence is so startlingly thrilling that one is moved as if by a great tragic scene in the theater. One of these is at the tomb of Yung-lo, the great Ming emperor; another is in the Forbidden City, into whose peaceful calm you walk from the tumult and confusion of the imperial city, and the third is at the Temple of Heaven, one of the world's supreme architectural triumphs.

Fresh Water "Seas" Offer Health, Sport

Cruises and Racing Events Bring Sights and Thrills to Chicagoland People.

THE far famed, fresh water "Seven Seas" of North America, in area totaling slightly more than 100,000 square miles, offer more this year than ever before in health, sunshine, cooling breezes, sport, and relaxation. Not that the weather conditions are any brighter over Lakes Superior, Michigan, Huron, St. Clair, Erie, and Ontario, and Georgian bay, but that an increased number of steamers and pleasure craft are cruising these inland seas.

Whether you travel in a 20 foot or a 150 foot cruising yacht, or as a passenger at ease aboard one of the steamers that ply the lakes outbound from Chicago, in many respects you experience the same thrills and new sights of a voyage around the world's seven salt water seas.

There are the customs upon entering another country, if you leave American borders on your vacation; there are the quaint French Canadians you may visit in old world backgrounds; historic sights of early explorations and battles; natives [Indians, of course], with whom you can barter; and literally all the joys of an ocean trip. For, if you take deep breaths, you'll discover that the air of the Great Lakes, besides being clean and pine scented, is noticeably salty.

Watching the Small Boats at Play.

On every one of the large lakes and on thousands of smaller lakes connected with them in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, New York, Ontario, and Quebec, excursion ship passengers have perfect vantage points to watch regattas of small pleasure boats at play. The tall sails of racing windjammers reach as high as any great lakes steamer's bridge deck; and the buzzing, bouncing motor boats speed as much as five times the steamer's knots—but with far, far less comfort!

Long distance yacht races criss-cross the Great Lakes in all directions. These fleet dashes are in addition to the lone, leisurely cruising craft you'll spot at various times from summer resort ports and steamers' rails.

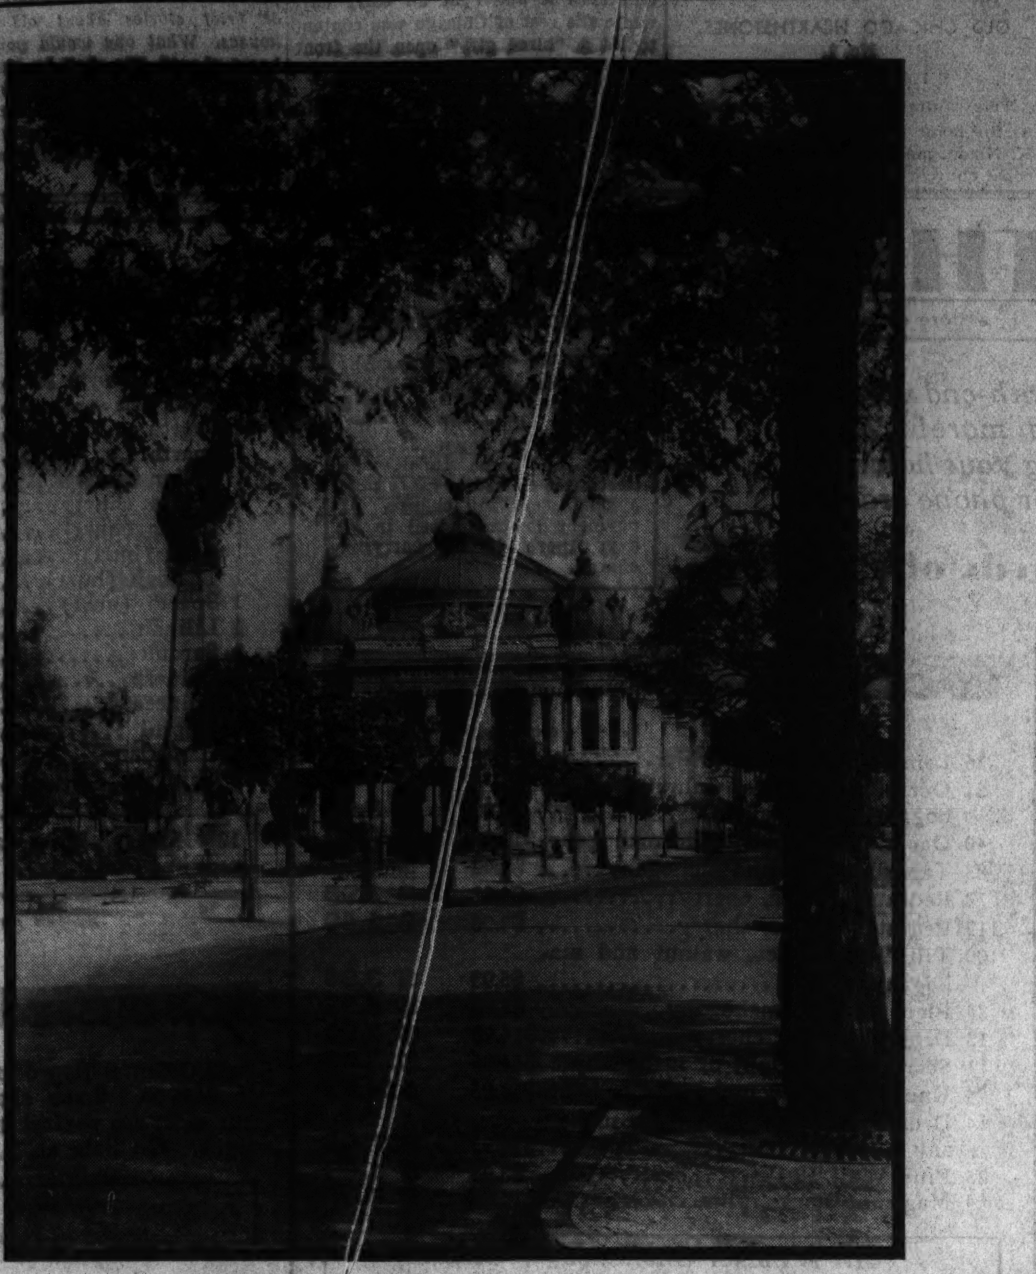
The first long distance cruise on the Great Lakes was in 1679, when La Salle built the Griffon, a little windjammer, near Niagara Falls. He sailed as far west as Green Bay, Wis., and his boat was lost somewhere near Manitoulin Island, at the north of Lake Huron. Incidentally, the mystery of the Griffon's fate has never been solved. If you are bent on nautical archæology and exploration, a visit to that region may reward you with the secret of the ship's disappearance. For the last three years visitors to the islands have uncovered the hulls of more than one old vessel.

Notable Races Are Repeated.

Yachts have been sailing Lake Michigan and other great lakes for more than 60 years. The Chicago-to-Michigan City and Chicago-to-Mackinac race, sponsored by Columbia and Chicago Yachts clubs, respectively, are being repeated this year. Both these famous fresh water events were instituted before the turn of the century.

Entering almost any port on the great lakes, especially our own lake, even more yachts than in predepression years will be seen in the harbors. No sudden revival of the sport has been noted; rather, a rapidly consistent growth.

The increase of popularity of this colorful sport has made new yacht harbors necessary in many lake cities. The new Chicago Corinthian Yacht club is using the newest local harbor, at the foot of Montrose avenue. The Ludington [Mich.] Yacht club, Capt. Nels Palmer the commodore, moves into its new $55,000 PWA yacht harbor, begun last summer. An unusual service is being operated during the summer for visiting craft. The coast guard lookout at the harbor entrance immediately notifies the club and dock management when a yacht is making the port. If at night, searchlights and floodlights brighten the harbor so that the visiting skipper may find his way safely.



OLD WORLD ARCHITECTURE IN THE NEW WORLD

The municipal theater in Rio de Janeiro is a favorite stopping place for winter voyagers.

Famous French Windmill Soon to Be Museum

ARLES, France.—[U. P.]—Alphonse Daudet's windmill is to be saved from ruin and made into a museum.

This is the historic windmill which inspired the famous writer to produce his "Lettres de mon Moulin." There were four windmills in all, in and around which Daudet wrote his letters.

It was also in this vicinity that he wrote the tragedy, "L'Arlesienne." Recently the windmills were classified as historical monuments by the ministry of fine arts, and the only alteration is to restore them to their original condition.

Unearth Viking Weapons.

BERGEN, Norway.—(AP)—Weapons used by a Viking of seven centuries ago were turned up by a farmer's plow at Grytten. The outfit included single and double edged swords, an arrow point, an ax, and a shield. The swords had been bent double to prevent grave robbers from using them.

Highway Opened to Top of Peak in Yellowstone

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo.—With the opening of the road to the summit of Mount Washburn, Yellowstone park visitors again have the opportunity of exploring Alpine heights by motor. Crews of men have been at work for weeks clearing away deep snowdrifts. The opening of the highway to the top of the 10,317 foot peak was later this season than for many years because of the unusual snowfall of last winter.

A huge drift of snow, eight feet deep, lying just below the lookout station, still enables visitors to indulge in a snowball battle during their stay at the top. However, their interest will more likely be focused on some of the other major attractions this vantage point offers.

A twenty power telescope has again been set into place near the parapet that surrounds the pinnacle. Through this class the entire vista of Yellowstone park spreads clearly before the observer. All major mountain peaks in the park are visible and the Gallatin range to the west and the Absaroka range on the east become the bordering horizon.

Tourists Sleep in Birthplace of Lafayette

PARIS.—[U. P.]—Tourists in the Auvergne can now avail themselves of eating and sleeping in the historic old château Chavagnac, which was the birthplace of Lafayette almost 200 hundred years ago.

The north wing of the château has been remodeled by the Lafayette memorial and 15 rooms have been equipped with baths, central heating and other modern comforts so that a limited number of guests and tourists can be accommodated.

An effort has been made to effect these improvements without destroying any of the historic beauties of the place. The vast grounds, which surround the castle, have been beautified and the château is supplied from its own farm with fresh eggs, butter, and cream, and chickens and other farm products. Visitors to the château are not charged set rates as at a hotel, but are expected to contribute something to the memorial fund which pays running expenses.

Accommodations have been established in the château to receive children for the purpose of building them up to prevent disease. The extensive grounds are turned over as a playground for poor Paris children who sleep in the château and are fed on the products of the farm.

Oldest Parish in U. S. to Observe 325th Birthday

OLD POINT COMFORT, Va., July 20.—The oldest parish in the United States, that of St. John's church in Hampton, will commemorate its 325th anniversary Sunday.

Members of the summer colony at Old Point Comfort, together with out of town members of the parish, will attend the picturesque memorial services, which will be held on the site of the original church. This site is now part of the Paul Tabb estate and was a portion of the original glebe lands of the parish. Following the revolutionary war many of the colonial parishes were unable to retain their properties. But the late Thomas Tabb, who acquired the original Kecoughtan glebe lands, presented the site to the St. John's parish.

First known as the Kecoughtan parish [Kecoughtan was the name of the Indian settlement], it was established in 1610, shortly after the colonization at Jamestown Island, and was a gathering place for the first English settlers. It continued as such until 1634.

It was not until 1728, however, that the present church was built, and since then the structure was twice destroyed during military conflict. It was first burned down by Admiral Cockburn in the war of 1812, and suffered a similar fate in the war between the states. However, the original walls erected in 1728 still stand. There are several pieces of communion silver, dated 1618, and a memorial window for Pocahontas.

Motor Racing at Abruzzi in August

"THE most beautiful and romantic of lands is the definition given by the poet Gabriele d'Annunzio to the region of Italy between the mountains and the sea and known to tourists as the Abruzzi.

From Aug. 11 to 15 Abruzzi will be the scene of some of the most exciting motor races in Europe. The races will be for the Acerbo cup, founded by Baron Giacomo Acerbo in memory of his brother who fell in the world war. The meet will include participants from every country of the globe.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

VACATIONISTS drawn to California this summer by the San Diego exposition are getting an eyeful of the west coast's greatest landmarks, the old Spanish missions.

These early structures were much more than mere chapels; they were trade schools. The Indians were taught to weave, to cook, to plant and harvest crops, to raise horses, sheep, and cattle, to tan lether, to make adobe bricks. They were taught games, songs, and dances, and music, sculpture, and art.

The mission was the hub and center of the colony. The converted Indians lived there and helped to build dwellings for themselves as well as for the artisans, guards, and servants. In selecting the sites for their work the Franciscan padres chose the most fertile spots they could find, and to this day the mission gardens are masses of flowers. The sanctuaries were situated a day's journey apart, but today the distance which was an all day trudge for the padres is covered by an hour's motor ride.

● San Diego de Alcala was the first in the historic chain of missions dotting El Camino Real. Proceeding up the coast from there, one reaches San Luis Rey, and then San Juan Capistrano, San Gabriel, San Fernando, San Buenaventura, Santa Barbara, Santa Ines, La Purisima, San Luis Obispo, San Miguel, San Antonio, La Soledad, San Carlos Barromeo, San Juan Bautista, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, San José Guadalupe, San Francisco de Asis, San Rafael, and San Francisco Solano.

Each has a distinction all its own. Some of them are now only venerable piles of ruin; others have been restored to their former beauty. Many of them house relics of the heroic and primitive era in which they were built, and a few of them are still used as churches and schools. Santa Barbara's sacred altar fires have never gone out since they were lighted in 1786.

Whether deserted or occupied, whether wrapped in legends of triumph or tragedy, the missions of California, like the cathedrals of France and Spain, tell an eloquent story of sacrifice and courage.

● When the Franciscan fathers carried a Caucasian civilization and the cross of Christ to the western shore and planted them at San Diego, they could not know, of course, that the high plateau overlooking the bay there would one day be the site of a great exposition.

When, in 1770, Junipero Serra, who fathered the chain of missions, scanned the horizon for the white fleck that would herald a sailing vessel bringing supplies to his almost destitute expedition, he had no idea that some day the lonely waters at the foot of the Mission San Diego de Alcala would become one of the great harbors of the world.

When, in 1781, eleven half hearted families recruited from Mexico by the Spanish government founded an adobe pueblo and called it the City of Angels they could not foresee the time when Los Angeles would become a throbbing city of a million and a quarter persons, attracted by the climate from all over the world. Nor could they foresee such a fantastic colony as Hollywood.

When the early friars first saw the arid wastes out there they would never have believed that some day those wastes would be transformed into one vast tapestry of oranges, palms, eucalyptus, acacia, and pepper trees.

● It was the task of the padres to colonize the wilderness and to supplant barbarism with civilization, paganism with Christianity. How well they succeeded may be seen by even the most casual tourist in California today.

When Chicago Was Young

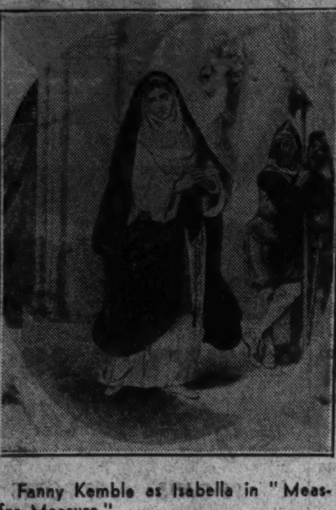
The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd, of New York.

Chicago, Jan. 25, 1886.

DEAR JULIA: I am in bed with a cold, but am recovering and am now at a point where I enjoy my poor health. It's rather nice to be ill enough to be indulged, but not so ill as to be uncomfortable. Will has been so worried about me, it was pathetic. He sat up all one night, listening to hear if I breathed right.



Fanny Kemble as Isabella in "Measure for Measure."

Now that I am convalescent he sends me flowers, with original poetry accompanying them. Tennyson need not fear for his security in the office of poet laureate, but I love Will's poems, even though they are inspired by only his loving heart.

Breakfast is over and I am sitting up in bed, reading the morning paper. An interesting item I find is contained in a telegram from Philadelphia announcing the return of Fanny Kemble to America. She is now 75 years old, says the paper. Dear me! I can hardly believe that when I remember how she thrilled us with her Shakespearean readings. She will stay at her Lenox home, I suppose, while she is in this country.

The name Kemble touches a spring that evokes memories of the stage. What a family that of the Kembles! I found an account of them not long ago, from Roger, Fanny's grandfather, down, and clipped it for reference, for there are so many of them in the hall of fame it is quite confusing. Their history is really the history of the stage in England, for Roger Kemble began his career when "play actors" were termed "vagrants" and when in every town of England magistrates denounced them as "mountebanks" and "nuisances" and drove them from the place. Now, think what honor is paid to our great players! Roger Kemble was a hairdresser by trade, but joined a traveling troupe and married the daughter of an Irish actor, by whom he had twelve children, many of them famous later. The greatest, of them was, I suppose, Sarah, Mrs. Siddons. She played in barns, and it seems strange to think that she went from the applause of the rustic to the compliments of the prince of Wales and the homage of Sir Joshua Reynolds. Reynolds' picture of her as the tragic muse is so wonderful. Her brothers, Charles and John Philip Kemble, and a sister, Mrs. Whitlock, all were successful. The latter played before George Washington, to his great delight, I remember reading.

Dear mother used to tell of having attended Fanny Kemble's marriage in Philadelphia to Pierce Butler, and of how her good fortune in marrying a man of means and social standing was the subject of conversation for a long time. But it proved not to be such a happy marriage, and you recall, of course, the divorce suit which was so widely discussed. Even though she had Rufus Choate for her lawyer she had a hard time in securing a decree. Will says the case of "Butler vs. Butler" is still quoted by lawyers. I do wish Fanny Kemble would come out to Chicago and give her Shakespearean readings. They say she isn't fond of the stage, although she has been so successful. She loves writing, which many think is her real forte.

Here comes Martha Junior, scolding me for writing, so I'll say good-by, and much love. Are you glad you haven't a fair jailer to tell you what you may do? Lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Fanny Kemble [Butler] of the royal family of the stage in England died in 1893. It was a nephew of Fanny Kemble, Algernon Sartoris [a son of Adelaide Kemble Sartoris], who married Nellie Grant, daughter of President Grant. Owen Wister, American novelist, is a grandson of Fanny Kemble.

OLD CHICAGO HEARTHSTONES.

No. 1.

710 Rush street.

This white stone house was built as the home of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Nixon, members of St. James Episcopal church, and has seen some notable entertainments. When the duke of Newcastle visited the Nixons here a top story was added for the convenience of his suite. The Nixons employed a butler at an early day, while the rest of Chicago was content to let a "hired girl" open the front door.

For some years Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter lived here, at which period a studio was built over the dining room for Mr. Carpenter, who has composed many of his works in this sunny room.

The house is now a restaurant.

[Note: In response to the requests of readers, we are beginning a series of brief stories about old Chicago houses. What one would you like to know about? We shall be glad to try to satisfy the curiosity of friends of this column who may have noticed some old building that looks as if it had a history. Address Herma Clark, Chicago Tribune.]

Discount Heart Balm.

LONDON.—(AP)—Heart balm suits have gone out of fashion here. Only one is down for hearing at the present session of the law courts, as compared with nine two months ago. The explanation may be that none of those nine claimants obtained heavy damages and four of the cases were settled out of court.

"I use MUM because it's QUICK"

THE busy woman's deodorant—that's what they're calling Mum, these days. For busy women have no time to waste, and they know they need waste none when they use Mum.

It takes just half a minute to use Mum. A quick fingertipful under this arm, under that, and you're safe for the whole day. As quick and simple as that!

Another thing busy women like about Mum—if you forget to use it before you dress, just use it afterwards. For it's harmless to clothing.

It's soothing to the skin, too—so soothing you can shave your underarms and use Mum at once. Think of that!

Mum is sure and instant in effect. It prevents every trace of disagreeable body odor, without affecting the perspiration itself.

Quick, easy, sure and harmless! Is it any wonder busy women are so enthusiastic about the daily Mum habit? Have you formed this habit? Bristol-Myers, Inc., 75 West St., N.Y.

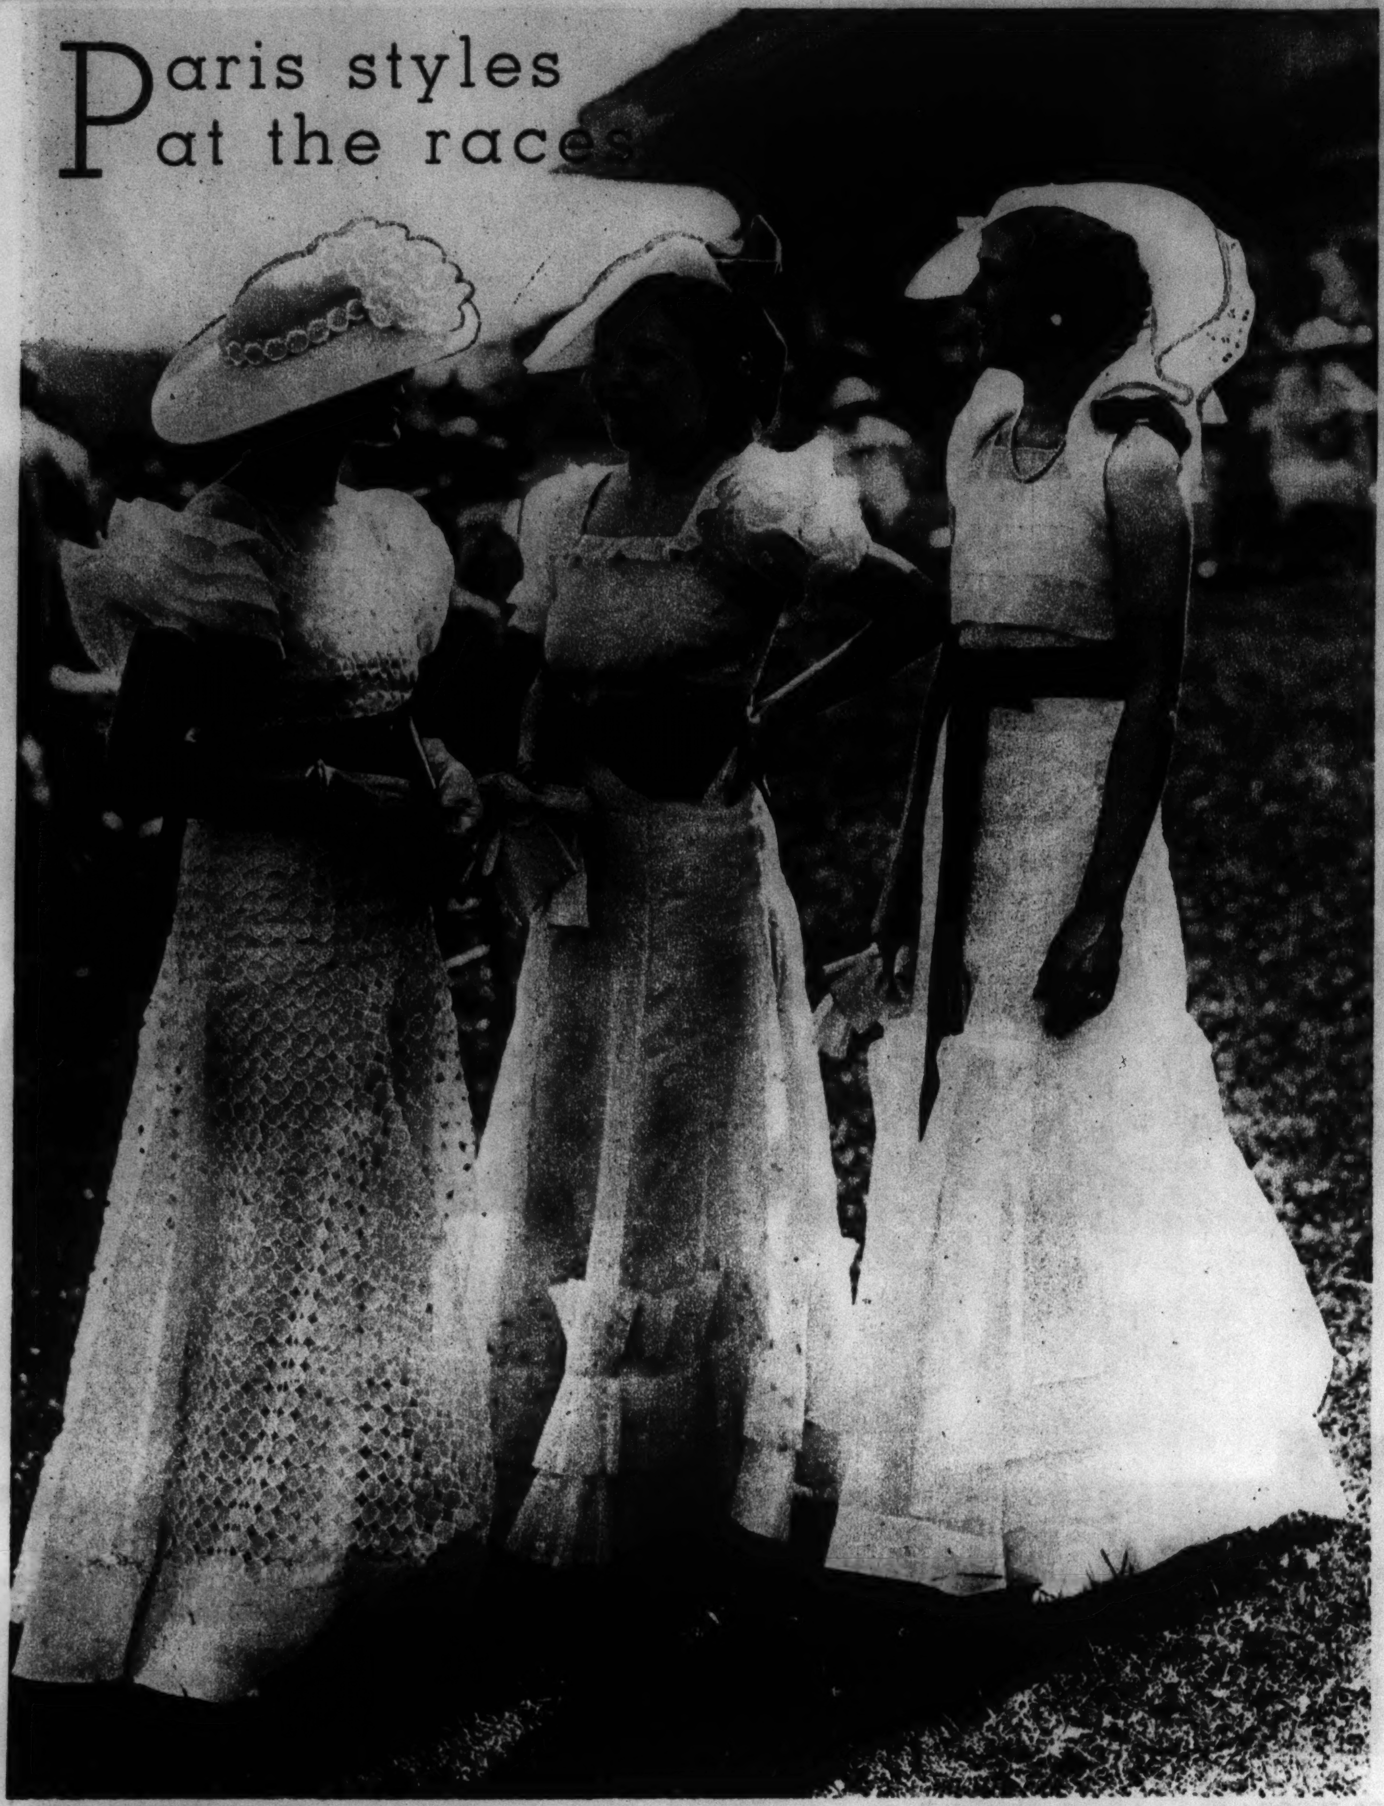
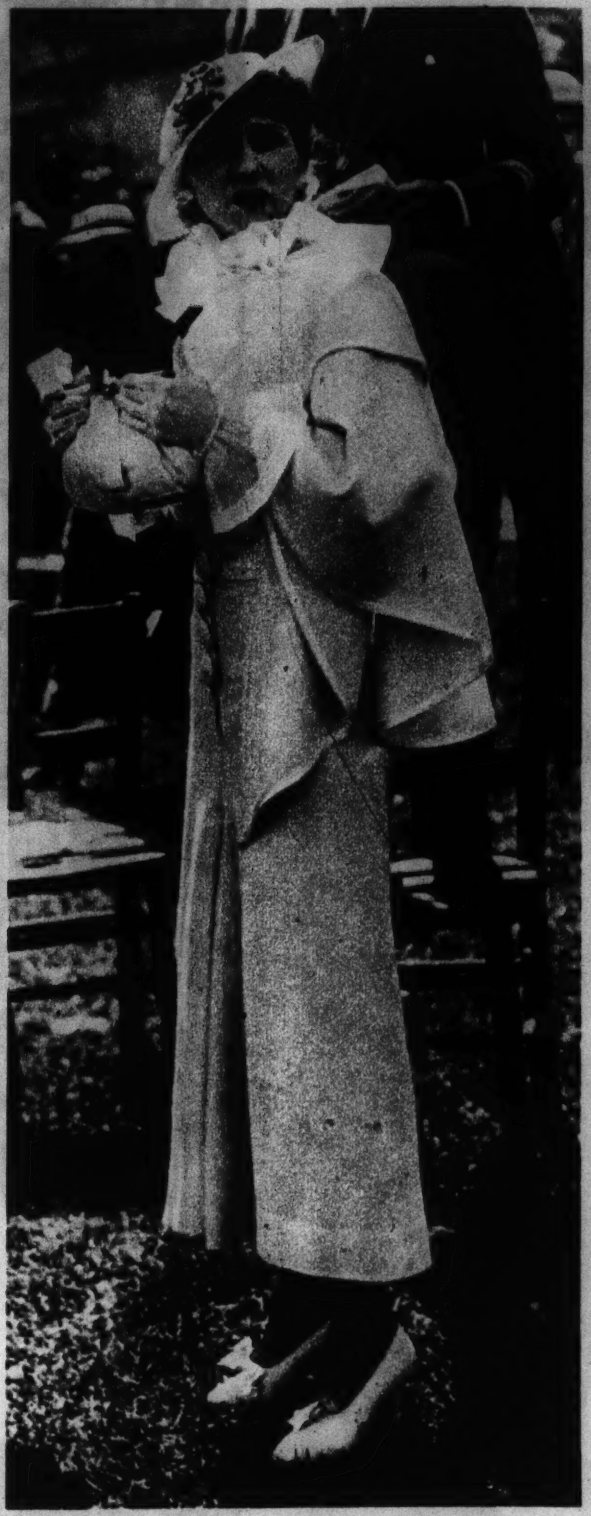
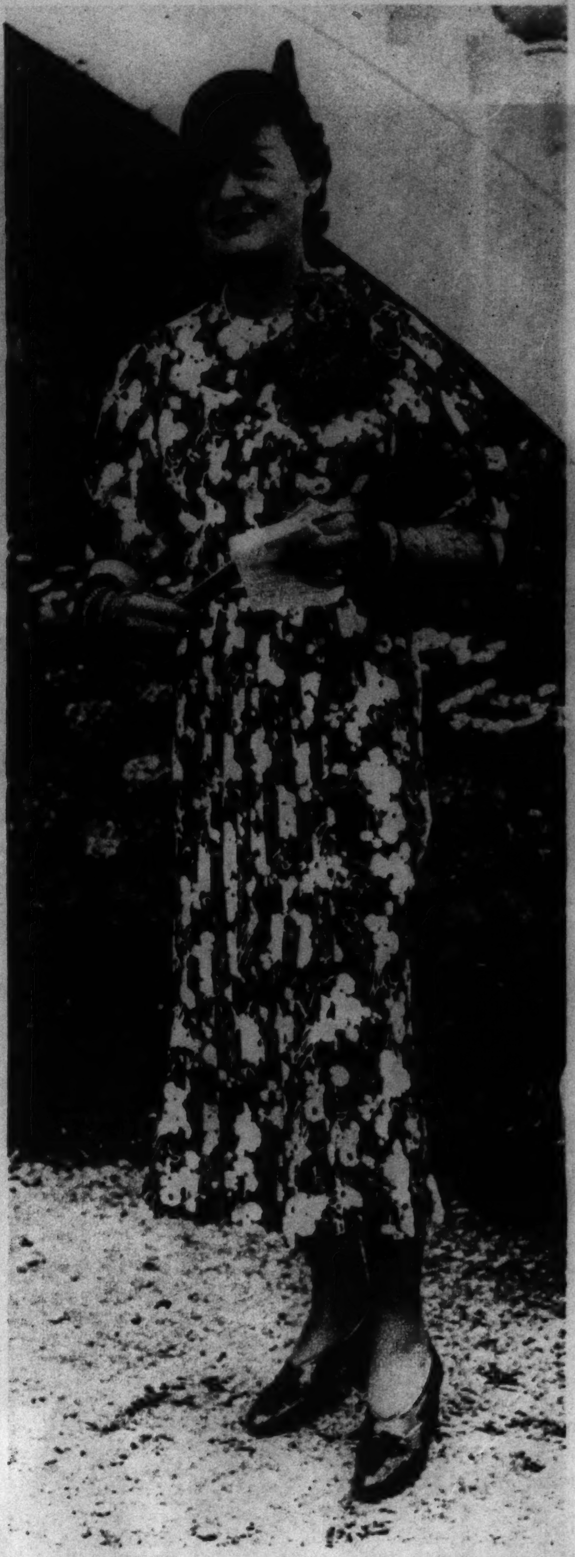
Paris styles at the races



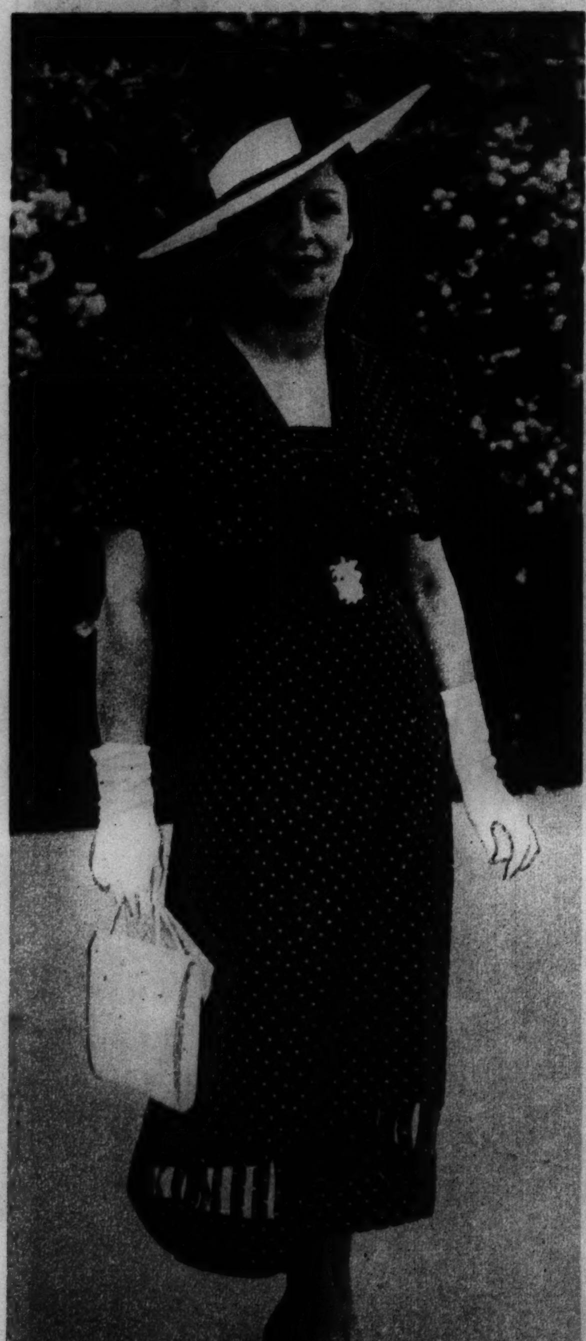
AT THE FRENCH GRAND NATIONAL AT AUTEUIL, these mannequins wore embroidered organdy dresses, all with full long skirts. Two of the frocks have short puffed sleeves; the one at the right is made with upstanding shoulder wings held in place with velvet bows. All have vivid sashes in velvet.



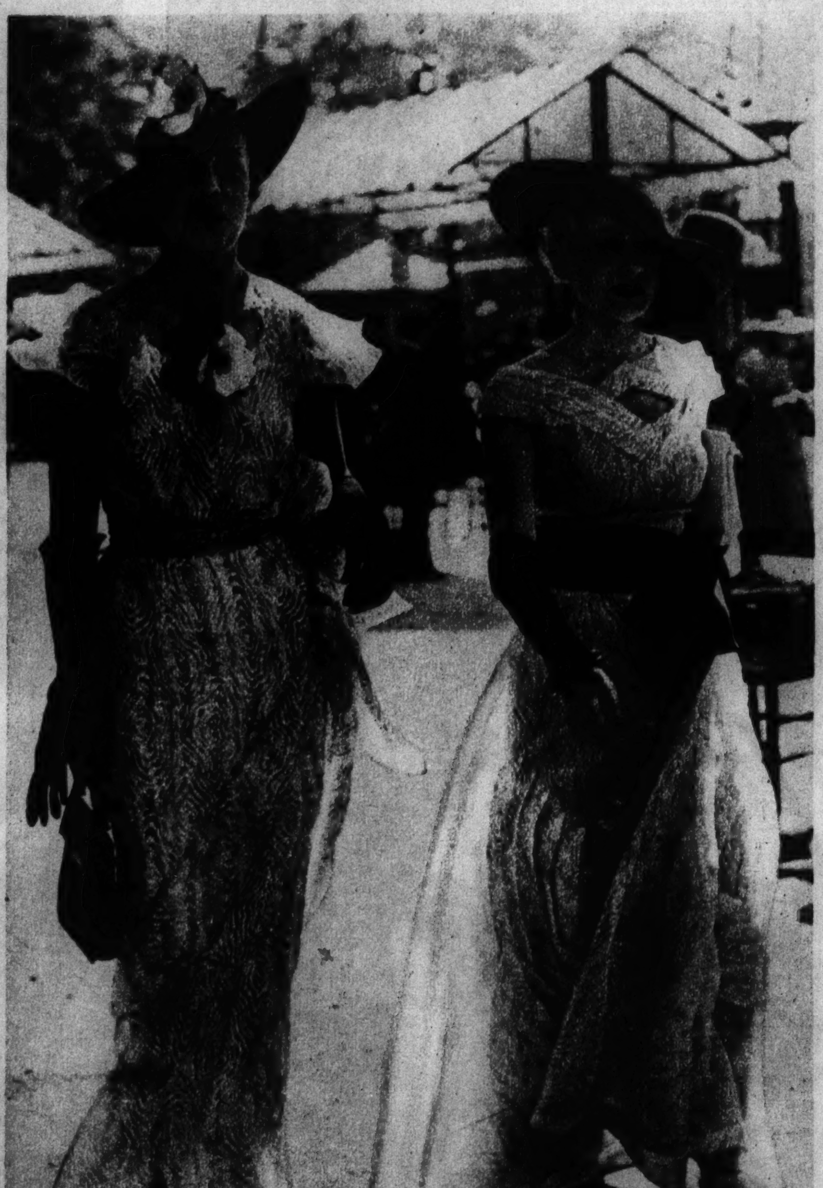
AN ALL-WHITE ENSEMBLE at Auteuil, showing the new skirt fullness directly in front. The capelike jacket top is long; ruffles and cuffs are of white organdy, accessories white.



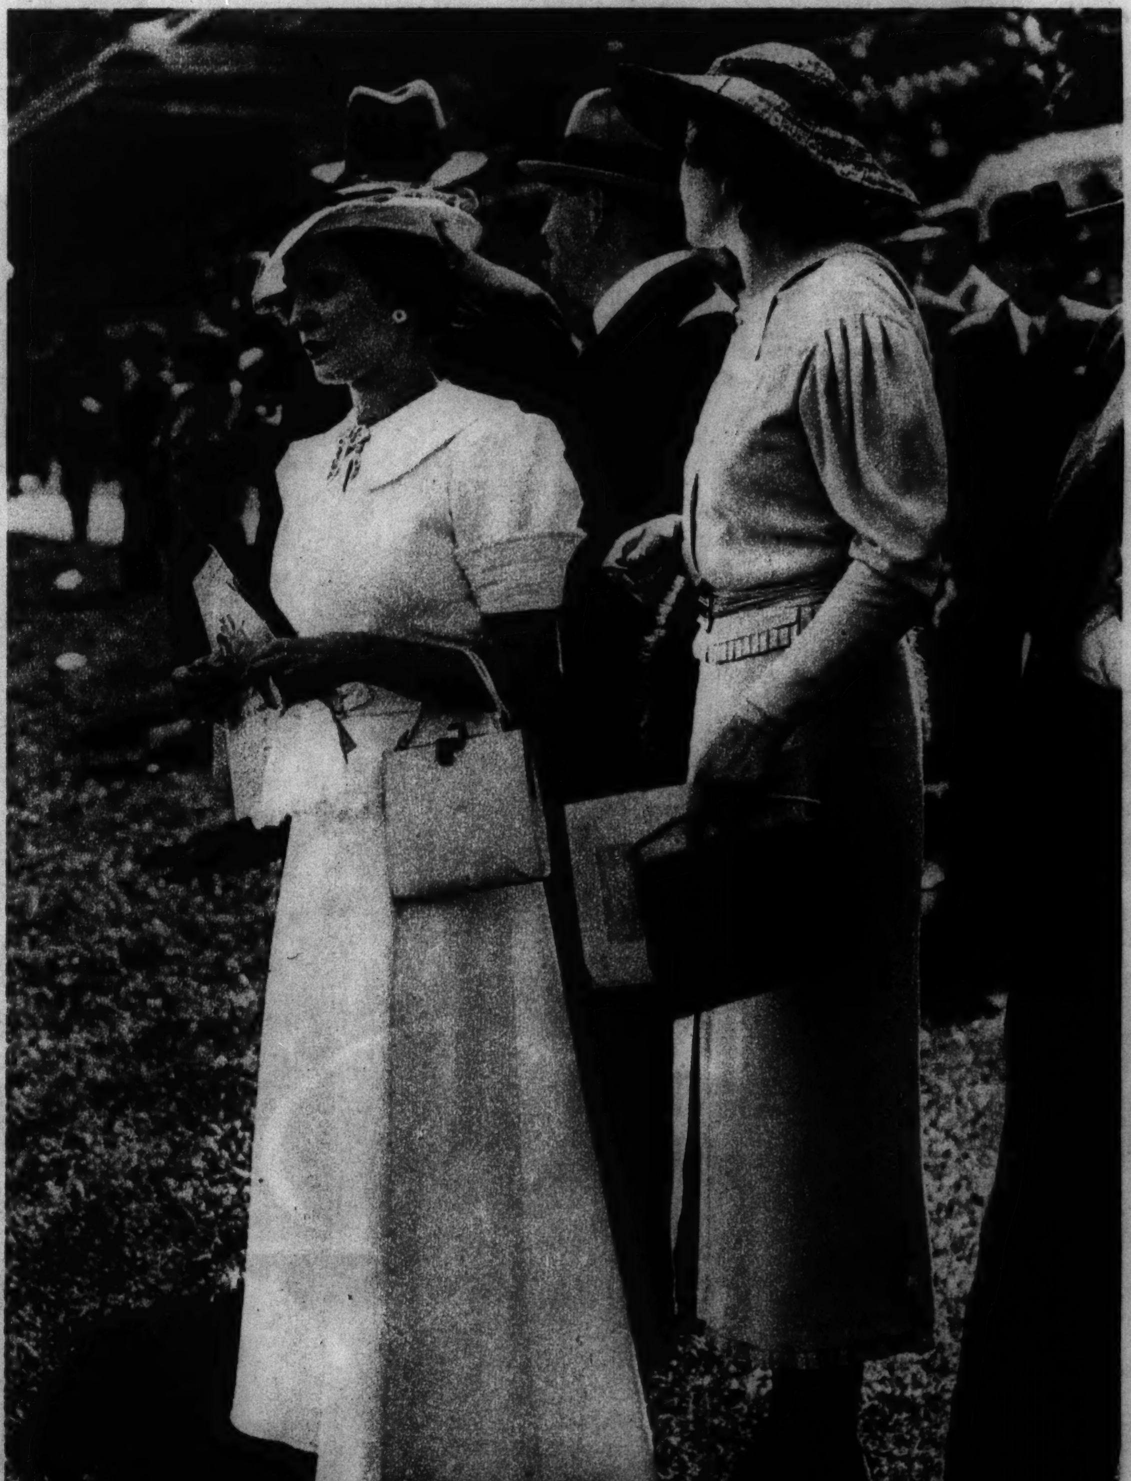
AN AFTERNOON DRESS OF PRINTED CREPE, made with the new skirt fullness. Poppies in vivid colors form the bold pattern against a plain dark background.



OF WHITE DOTTED BLACK TAFFETA is this Marcel Rochas creation featuring skirt fullness and a wide sailor collar. The skirt is trimmed with a band of bars of the taffeta.



LARGE BRIMMED PICTURE HATS ARE TOPS for fluttering swiss printed organdy dresses with full long skirts. The frock at left has shoulder ruffles, two contrasting flowers, and a tie sash of the organdy; that at right has yokeline trimmed and fashioned of folds of the organdy, and a ribbon sash tied at the side front.



STITCHED FLARED CUFFS terminate the puffed short sleeves in the all-white ensemble at the left, which has a high round collar and black costume accents. At the right, a pale blue outfit trimmed with flat plaitings and contrasted with dark brown.

"It's true...Your New Tangee Face Powder ends that Powdery Look"

SAYS THIS POPULAR YOUNG PHILADELPHIA SOCIETY GIRL

● If you want to end that mask-like powdery look try the New Tangee Face Powder. It contains the same magic color principle that has made the Tangee Lipstick so famous. The minute you apply Tangee Face Powder it blends with your skin tones and gives a soft underglow, making your skin look younger, fresher, more natural. It prevents any coated, mask-like effect. And another nice thing . . . Tangee costs only 55c and $1.10 at good shops everywhere. Shades: Rachel, Light Rachel, Flesh.

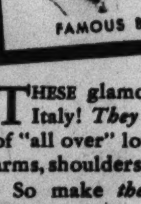
LEARN THE SECRET OF "All Over" SKIN BEAUTY FROM THE Lovely WOMEN OF . . . . ITALY



"WE BEAUTY SPECIALISTS RECOMMEND PALMOLIVE BECAUSE, MADE WITH OLIVE OIL, IT KEEPS FACE, ARMS, SHOULDERS SOFT AND SMOOTH. THAT'S WHY IT IS THE FAVORITE BEAUTY SOAP IN ITALY."
Giovanni Bandel
FAMOUS BEAUTY SPECIALIST OF VENICE, ITALY

THESE glamorous beauties of Italy! They know the allure of "all over" loveliness . . . face, arms, shoulders, soft and smooth!

So make their beauty secret your very own . . . Use Palmolive for your bath as well as face!

See how this beauty soap . . . because it is made only with olive and palm oils . . . actually soothes and beautifies your skin while it cleanses. See how utterly different its lather is. Rich, velvety lather . . . deeply penetrating, but very gentle . . . never irritating!

As a matter of fact, it is olive oil, nothing else, which gives Palmolive its soft, olive-green color. This very color assures its purity.

So keep lovely "all over" with Palmolive. Use this wonderful soap made with precious olive oil for your complexion and bath. Learn for yourself why Palmolive is the favorite beauty soap in France, Italy, Germany and seven other European countries.

The highest grade...

No ingredient ever goes into Canada Dry until it has proved itself Grade AAA. Ginger, sugar, rare essences . . . all must pass rigid tests in our laboratories. Just another good reason why one ginger ale is always pure, always uniform . . .

. . . of course it's "CANADA DRY"

The very mention of "Canada Dry" these warm days, creates an urge to revel in its dry, mellow flavor . . . its gay, long-lasting sparkle. For children, especially, there is no more wholesome summer-time drink.

And Canada Dry's Sparkling Water and Canada Dry's Lemon-Lime Rickey, too, make welcome additions to your stock of beverages for hot-weather drinking. Like "Canada Dry" they are unequalled for flavor and "mix"-ability.
